MY, WHAT A BEAUTY?

Drive up the Trent Road — about half way to Trenton — on the South Side of the road before you arrive at Bayside, you will see our sign on one of the most desirable bungalows you could dream of. It is painted a charming white — you will surely notice it — There is a matching garage. The owner is moving to Toronto — It could be yours for a down payment of only $3,000.

SOMETHING OLD

Preferably called "older type" than just plain "old." "Older type" because it has been there a mighty long time but up-to-date like for the sensible family — for the family that likes plenty of room that you just couldn't find in a new one unless you spend many many dollars. This has 4 bedrooms, 2 baths, good location, good heating system. Good price — $11,300. Good down payment — $3,000.

IT'S COTTAGE TIME

Half way to Trenton — just off the Highway — No. 2 — only about $1,000 down — 2 bedrooms, a big lot right on the Bay — completely equipped — even a brand new lawn mower. You can start your holidays right today and have your problems solved for years to come.

First Aeroquay At Malton to Cost $23,668,000

TORONTO (CP)—A $23,668,000 contract, believed to be the largest ever awarded in Toronto, was given Thursday to the Foundation Company of Canada to build Malton airport's first aeroquay.

A $23,800,000 bid by Anglin-Norcross was the second lowest of the eight tenders submitted.

The aeroquay, designed by Toronto architects John B. Parkin Associates, will have arms extending from the circular building to serve as loading ramps and to allow passengers to board aircraft without going outdoors.

It will contain 1,500,000 square feet of usable floor space, including customs and airline offices, lounges, restaurants and waiting areas. Construction is expected to be completed within two years.

Mrs. Keith Williams, Mill Street, who has been employed at the Northern Electric plant, Belleville, has severed her connections. On her last day of work, a group of her co-workers presented her with several lovely personal gifts.

The night shift also held a buffet luncheon in her honor and a party in the form of a stork shower. Hazel was the recipient of a basket of dainty gifts for which she voiced appreciative thanks.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Irish, Mrs. Burton Woodbeck and several ladies spent last week at Presqu'ile, with the Stirling Cubs.

Miss Klaashe Brokema, was given a presentation party at The Elaine Footwear plant and the employees and management presented her with a swivel rocker. The bride-to-be was also tendered a surprise shower party at her father's cottage, Oak Lake. Klaashe was the recipient of a large array of miscellaneous gifts for which she voiced thanks. Her co-workers served refreshments of wieners and marshmallows.

In the recent examinations held at Albert College, Belleville, by the Royal Conservatory of Music, the following pupils of Mrs. Grace Pitman, ATCL, were successful: Jean Woods, Tweed, piano grade VIII, (honors); Firth Bateman, Stirling, theory, grade II, (first class honors); Heather Kemp, Frankford, theory, grade II, (pass); Helen Morrow, Stirling, harmony, grade IV, (pass).

Mrs. H. R. Tompkins, spent last week with Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Lemieux, Ottawa.

All Sectors of the Economy Except Agriculture Show Absolute Gain During 1950's

TORONTO. — All sectors of the Canadian economy except agriculture showed an absolute gain during the 1950's, says the current Commercial Letter published by The Canadian Bank of Commerce. The value of the agricultural output in 1959 was little changed from that at the beginning of the decade, but certain other industries — notably mining and oil—moved up in relative importance as factors in the nation's economy.

The growth of output in various sections has not necessarily been followed by growth in employment, the Letter says. Employment has followed patterns of its own, as in the oil industry, where steady growth has not been accompanied by increased employment opportunities.

Under the heading "Long Run Shifts in the Canadian Economy," the Letter analyzes changes in the pattern of industry through three decades, in the last of which population increased by 30 per cent, volume output doubled and real personal income rose by about a third.

In a second article "The Inns of the Sixties" the Letter traces a changing pattern in the hotel business brought about partly by new trends in transportation.

Smaller and less efficient hotels have been eliminated, the Letter says, while motels have shown rapid growth ,and the airport hotel has sprung up to serve a new need. Meanwhile the large downtown hotels have placed more reliance on conventions, service club luncheons and other business and social activities to increase their trade.

As a result, liquor revenues account for about half of total income. This is also because the requirement of some provinces that the granting of liquor licences is contingent on the availability of a certain number of bedrooms, means that some hotels are merely bars with bedrooms. The Letter suggests that this is a kind of "economic waste."

Heavy Damage To Crops, Barns By Thunderstorms

High Winds Accompany Rain in Some Places

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A solid line of thunderstorms, accompanied in places by vicious winds, swept across Southern Ontario Friday, causing heavy damage to crops and barns.

The downpours came on the heels of the province's hottest day of summer, with temperatures in the 90s.

No injuries were reported. Insurance assessors estimated damage at $5,000,000 on 9,000 acres of tobacco in the Tillsonburg area of Western Ontario.

The weather was expected to be generally sunny and cooler today and Sunday.

The weather office said a continuous line of thunderstorms, stretching from the northeast to the southwest, built up along the length of Lake Ontario and Lake Erie and moved southwards. Several centres registered gusts up to 90 miles an hour.

Toronto got 1½ inches of rain. Other areas received about an inch.

The southwestern portion of the province was hit by a brief but strong storm which left a trail of uprooted trees, toppled power lines, collapsed barns and flattened crops.

A storm in the community of Puce, 10 miles east of Windsor, knocked over trees and damaged houses and boats. Power was cut off for several hours.

Strong winds accompanied by heavy rain badly damaged an area near the village of Bailieboro, 16 miles southwest of Peterborough. Winds ripped a roof from a barn and felled nine telegraph poles.

Some farmers experienced 100-per-cent loss at Tillsonburg, 25 miles east of St. Thomas. Stanley Smith, chairman of the Ontario Flue-Cured Tobacco Growers' Marketing Board, said, however, the losses will not make great inroads into this year's 25,000,000-pound crop, due to be harvested in a week.

London, Strathroy and Tilbury were hit hard. Windows were blown out of stores and fallen power lines put more than 1,000 telephones out of order in London. Trees fell across roofs of homes, factories and at least one car.

Most of the 150 cents pitched near London airport for a militia survival course were flattened.

GOP CONVENTION MONDAY COULD BE TAME AFFAIR

Rockefeller May Still Be Drafted

CHICAGO (CP) — Compared with the razzle-dazzle of the Democratic circus at Los Angeles the Republican convention opening here Monday could turn out to be as tame as a bankers' meeting.

The reason is that few of the 1,331 delegates assembling seem to doubt that Vice-President Richard Nixon has enough votes already in his pocket to take the pesidential nomination.

But comparisons are apt, and the accent seems to be on youth.

In many minds Senator John F. Kennedy, 43, was making only token gestures when he said in advance of the Democratic presidential convention in Los Angeles two weeks ago that it wasn't a shoo-in. He won anyway.

But in that case there were strong opponents—including Lyndon B. Johnson, who turned out to be a running mate with Kennedy for the vice-presidential position—while Nixon: he seems to be just like money in the bank.

In a nutshell, this is the overall picture of the Democratic national convention which was held in Los Angeles two weeks ago and the Republican convention which now begins here. The American public is as ga-ga as the politicians can make them about the presidential elections in November.

The boy from Whittier, Calif., Nixon, who at 47 has become the strong man among Republicans, is almost certain to emerge as

Rockefeller, Nixon Agree On Platform

CHICAGO AP) — Vice-President Richard M. Nixon today appeared to have cleared the tracks for a united Republican effort in the November general election with a compromise agreement with Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller on basic platform issues.

Is an eight-hour New York meeting which he took the initiative in aranging, Nixon and the liberal Republican New York governor agreed on what the latter called "specific and basic positions on foreign policy and national defence."

"These constitute the basic positions for which I have been fighting," Rockefeller said in a statement. "If they are embodied in the Republican platform as adopted by the convention, they will constitute a platform that I can support with pride and vigor."

There wasn't the shadow of a doubt in the minds of Republicans working on the platform that when it is presented to next week's convention here it will represent the composite piews of Nixon and Rockefeller.

Rockefeller's statement went a long way toward assuring the vice-president's associates they will have the enthusiastic support of the governor in crucial efforts to carry New York state in November.

CORNWALL (CP) — Kenny Ertl, Cornwall merchant, says he will appear as a witness against Adolf Eichmann, concentration camp overlord recently captured by Israeli agents in Argentina.

Mr. Ertl, who survived six years of captivity in German concentration camps, said Thursday the Israeli charge d'affaires had phoned him from Ottawa confirming he would be asked to appear at Eichmann's murder trial.

Lumumba Flies to Seek U.S. Economic Aid As Western Business Interests Seek Foothold

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) Premier Patrice Lumumba was flying to the United States today to seek aid for the Congo as the Communists and Western business interests raced to get a foothold in developing the new republic's economy.

While shopping around for American capital and more technical aid, Lumumba also is expected to review the explosive military situation in the big Central African country with Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold.

Hammarskjold cancelled plans to leave Sunday for the Congo where the UN has been funnelling in a police force.

Before leaving Leopoldville, Lumumba signed a 50-year agreement with an American financier to develop the Congo's mineral and power resources worth an estimated $2,000,000,000. He also got offers to help from Russia and Communist East Germany.

The premier had two thorny problems to review with Hammarskjold: Withdrawal of Belgaian forces from the Congo and the future of the rich Katanga province. The Katanga assembly has proclaimed itself an independent republic, but the Lumumba government refuses to recognize the secession.

Violence broke out Friday near a Katanga mining centre. Belgian airborne troops fought Congolese mutineers. A Belgian spokesman said about 16 Congolese and two Belgians were killed and many wounded.

The UN is faced with a problem of its own over interpretation of two Security Council resolutions calling for removal of Belgian forces.

Both Hammarskjold and the council have been speaking in terms of a Belgian pullout from Congo territory, but Belgian oficials insist the resolutions do not include Belgian military bases at Kitona and Kamina held by treaty.

Hammarskjold plans to fly to the Congo after his talks with Lumumba — probably Tuesday night. His main task is to determine whether the growing UN peace force is strong enough to keep order, and if so, arrange for the complete withdrawal of Belgian forces.

Accompanying Lumumba to New York is L. Edgar Detwiler, president of the newly-founded Congo International Corporation, who signed the development pact with the premitr.

Marketing Policy for Hogs Faces Showdown at Meeting

TORONTO (CP) — The differences over marketing policy between the Ontario hog producer organizations and the Farm Products Marketing Board are expected to come to a head following a joint meeting July 27.

Agricultural observers feel the producers, rather than come to terms, will try to make the Ontario government give way, forcing a showdown recently promised by Everett M. Biggs, assistant deputy minister of agriculture (marketing).

This could result in government stripping of all compulsory powers of the three producer groups—the Ontario Hog Producers' Association, Ontario Hog Producers' Marketing Board and Ontario Hog Producers' Co-opeative.

The producer organizations would lose the power to direct all hogs from Southern Ontario through their assembly yards and to collect a 30-cent service charge on each hog sold. The organizations usually get about 95 per cent of the hogs in the province.

At a July 15 meeting the factions failed to settle their differences, largely amalgamation of the three boards and electoral system changes.

The number of complaints from farmers since the direct sales system was introduced in 1956 is seen as indicating the three organizations would not receive enough support to make possible continued operation on a voluntary basis if the government removed the boards' compulsory powers.

The recently formed Free Enterprise Livestock Producers have been campaigning for removal of the directed selling features in the hog marketing plan.

Under this plan, which operates within the Ontario Farm Products Marketing Act, the cooperative asks for bids after setting a daily price. The compulsory features of the scheme are sanctioned by order-in-council.

Disadvantages of the scheme claimed by its opponents are that it prevents them obtaining prices they might be offered under the Dutch clock auction system used in tobacco marketing.

Charles McInnis, president of the Hog Producers' Association, claims the system is a safeguard against big packing firms monopolizing the market.

U.S. Orders Red Diplomat Ousted Saying He Gathered Aerial Photos

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has ordered the Soviet third secretary in the Russian Embassy here to leave the United States for spying.

The expulsion of Petr Y. Ezhov, 39, was the 12th ouster of a Soviet diplomat from the U.S. in the last 10 years.

U.S. authorities said the expulsion was ordered after evidence was collected against Ezhov, rather than being deliberately timed as a counterpunch to Moscow's attacks on the U.S. over the downed American U-2 and RB-47 reconnaissance planes.

They did not expect the Russians to retaliate by booting out an American diplomat, although Moscow has expelled seven U.S. Embassy personnel on spy charges in the past decade.

Ezhov, like another Soviet diplomat since expelled, was undertaking his undercover activities in part during the time when Premier Khrushchev visited the United States last September.

The state department said Ezhov was engaged for months in getting aerial photographs of American cities and defence installations.

The department gave this account in saying Ezhov, a press aide, "flagrantly abused his diplomatic status by engaging in espionage activity":

Ezhov paid a commercial photographer to take pictures of selected sites from a private plane. While under close FBI surveillance, he gave the man more than $1,000.

He also paid for flying lessons for the photographer and hinted the Soviets would buy him a plane so he could carry out further aerial reconnaissance.

Soviet diplomats, in retaliation for similar restrictions against U.S. envoys in Russia, are forbidden to acquire such photographs. The pictures were reported not available on the open market.

The New York Times says "it was regarded as more than coincidence that the announcement of Ezhov's activities and of his expulsion" was made on the day that Soviet charges went before the United Nations security council on the RB-47 incident.

Several Major Timber Areas Threatened by Bush Fires

By The Canadian Press

Fires continued to rage through acres of timber and bush in Newfoundland, Northern Ontario and Western Canada Friday.

Other areas reported few fires.

Near Gander, Nfld., a fire which broke out Tuesday was still out of control after consuming 100 square miles of cut timberland.

A British Columbia forestry department spokesman said Friday that the fire situation was still deteriorating in the $11,000 square-mile Kamloops area. With clear skies forecast, $100,000 is being spent daily in the battle against the flames.

Six men were sent to hospital as 60 mile an hour winds fanned the 13,000-acre Spius Creek blaze.

During the week 588 new fires were reported in British Columbia, 263 of them in the Kamloops district.

In Northern Ontario more than 200 men were battling a forest fire that has engulfed 500 acres of timber near Red Lake, 300 miles northwest of the Lakehead.

A rash of small fires started by lightning had been put out.

A 3,600-acre blaze was being fought by combined ground and air forces in northeastern Alberta Friday. In the southwestern part of the province 65 men were combatting a 600-acre blaze reported out of control in the Hay Lake region.

The fire hazard was extreme in the Crowsnest Pass area on the British Columbia-Alberta border and hiking trails were closed in Banff and Jasper national parks.

One major fire was burning near Prince Albert, Sask., but rain and thundershowers have held fires under control in Northern Manitoba.

In Quebec, firefighters controlled a fire spread by a 30-mile-an-hour wind on the north shore of the St. Lawrence River 165 miles northeast of Quebec City.

TORONTO STILL IN

TORONTO (CP) — Controller Jean Newman said Friday Toronto has no intention of withdrawing support from the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities "but we are entitled to know how our money is being spent." Con. Newman said the board has already passed the $6,620 annual assessment dues for the federation but has requested a complete breakdown of expenditures fo 1960 compared with 1959. Toronto's assessment has doubled since last year and the federation's annual budget has increased from $44,000 to $81,000, she said.

OPPOSITION TRIES TO MAKE 'VISION' POLITICAL MIRAGE

Resources Minister Under Bitter Attack

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons opposition did its utmost Friday to make Prime Minister Diefenbaker's "vision" look like a political mirage.

Liberals and CCF alike hammered away at this broad theme as Resources Minister Alvin Hamilton, the cabinet member who has to keep the vision of northern development clear, came before the House with his 1960-61 spending estimates.

The man who might have given Mr. Hamilton the stickiest time wasn't around. Mervyn Hardie (L — MacKenzie River), who represents a vast Northwest Territories area, was in hospital recovering from a heart attack, suffered in the Parliament Building Thursday night.

Filling the breach was Osias J. Godin (L — Nickel Belt), who at one point likened Mr. Hamilton to a pair of wind-ruffled trousers on a clothesline — "a lot of vehement movement but it remains in the same position."

TERMED MIRAGE

". . . This great vision of the prime minister and the minister of northern affairs has become a mere mirage," Mr. Godin said. Today, three years after the Conservative government took office, "the mirage is going away from us as we go on."

Before the House was $77,050,633 in spending estimates for the department of northern affairs and national resources in the fiscal year that began April 1. Approved earlier Friday were the $195,897,719 for public works and $290,678,450 for veterans affairs.

The Commons sat again today—its first Saturday sitting of the current session — to continue study of Mr. Hamilton's estimates. At this stage in the session — today's sitting day is the 131st—the House still must approve $3,330,397,839 of the government's total 1960-61 budget of $5,740,168,920.

Remaining for item-by-item sanction are the estimates of $1,563,272, 266 for defence, $1,42,-

General Survey In Charge of Trenton C.O.

OTTAWA (CP) — Two senior RCAF officers were en route to the Congo today to survey United Nations aircraft requirements.

External Affairs Minister Green told the Commons that four RCAF North Stars which carried food supplies to the former Belgian colony will remain there at the disposal of the UN for 30 days.

Th air force said Air Commodore Frederick S. Carpenter, 46, air officer commanding Air Transport Command at Trenton, Ont., will make a general survey of requirements for freight and passenger flights in the Congo.

RCAF flight operations will be co-ordinated by Wing Cmdr. John O. Maitland, 40, officer commanding 426 Transport Squadron at Trenton. The four North Stars now in the Congo are from 426 Squadron.

Russia Demands UN Insist U.S. End 'Spy' Flights

'Revolting Hypocrisy' Says Lodge in Reply

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP) The Soviet Union Friday asked the UN Security Council to "insist" that the United States stop what the Russians charged were "new aggressive actions" by the U.S. Air Force against Russia and prevent their recurrence.

Vasily V. Kuznetsov, a first deputy foreign minister, flew here from Moscow to present the Soviet case before the council on the U.S. RB-47 plane incident.

Kuznetsov, in language even stronger than that used by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko in the council last May on the downing of the American U-2 spy plane, introduced a resolution that would also condemn "these continuing provocative actions" by the U.S. Air Force and regard them as "aggressive acts."

Gromyko's resolution was rejected 7 to 2 with Russia and Poland the only countries voting in favor.

PROVOCATIVE ACTIONS

Kuznetsov said that the U.S. "systematically undertakes provocative actions against another state and is thereby constantly placing the whole world before what is in fact tantamount to a crucible."

"Instead of acting in conformity with the United Nations charter to promote the consolidation of peace and security, this great power—the United States of America—is playing with the destinies of the world and time and again is undertaking actions that can involve the peoples of all countries, and primarily the people of the United States itself, in the disaster of a new world war with all the ensuring catastrophic consequences."

The wives of the six crew members of the RB-47 listened from the gallery as Kuznetsov made his bitter attack on the U.S., and the women appeared tired and bewildered by the debate. The Russian wound up with denunciation of American bases everywhere.

Henry Cabot Lodge, the chief U.S. delegate, was the only other speaker Friday and he made only an interim reply, pending a full-dressed speech Monday when the debate will be resumed.

GAVE U.S. POSITION

Lodge repeated the American position that the RB-47, shot down by a Soviet plane July 1, was not over Soviet territory as the Russians claimed.

Lodge said that the downing of the reconnaissance bomber by a Soviet fighter plane was a "criminal and piratical action" and that in view of Soviet activities Kuznetsov's speech was "a pretty revolting piece of hypocrisy."

He again appealed to the Soviet Union to release two captured airmen the Russians claimed were the only survivors of the crew. One was killed and four others are missing.

But Kuznetsov insisted that the surviving airmen, Lieut. Freeman B. Olmstead of Elmira, N.Y., and Lieut. John R. McKone of Tonganoxie, Kan., would be tried "with the full severity of Soviet law," although the leaders of the Pentagon (U.S. de-

Provincial Premiers Invade Ottawa To Lay Siege to Federal Treasury

OTTAWA (CP)—The provincial premiers invade Ottawa this weekend, prepared to lay siege to the federal treasury.

A three-day conference starting Monday between Prime Minister Diefenbaker's federal forces and the 10 provincial premiers, backed by 28 provincial cabinet ministers, will be the opening round in joint efforts to work out a new tax-sharing arrangement among the 11 governments.

All provinces have served notice they will be seeking a larger slice of the direct taxation fields now dominated by Ottawa. The federal government has given no hint of how far it may go to meet their demands.

One and perhaps two additional conferences will be held later before a new federal-provincial tax-sharing pact is hammered out.

It's a vital problem. Tax-sharing payments by Ottawa to the provinces count for nearly one-tenth of federal expenditures and a considerably higher proportion of provincial revenues.

The new tax-sharing arrangement, to take effect April 1, 1962, will strongly affect the finances of both levels of government for probably five years. That has been the duration of the last three post-war agreements.

Most of the provincial delegations, backed by 51 official advisers and including another 21 municipal "observers," are expected to arrive Sunday.

Among them will be four premiers who weren't at the last such heads of government meeting in November, 1957.

Liberal premiers Jean Lesage of Quebec and Louis J. Robichaud of New Brunswick both won upset provincial election victories last month. Conservative premiers Duff Roblin of Manitoba and Walter Shaw of Prince Edward Island toppled former Liberal governments in 1958 and 1959.

Vincent Massey Awarded Royal Victorian Chain

LONDON (CP) — The Queen awarded Vincent Massey on Friday the Royal Victorian Chain, the highest personal honor she could give the former Canadian governor-general.

It now is held by only 20 others. Massey becomes the second Commonwealth citizen from outside Britain to receive it.

A Buckingham Palace announcement said the chain is awarded as "a mark of the highest distinction and special favor."

The Queen and other members of the royal family have often shown warm affection for Massey, the first Canadian to become governor-geenral of Canada.

The award, a silver-gold chain with a diamond-studded Maltese Cross, has been awarded to only about 70 persons since it was established by Edward VII in 1902. Normally it is given to heads of state and members of royalty.

The 73-year-old former governor-general, visiting in England for the last three months, went to Buckingham Palace Friday and received the award from the Queen without ceremony or formalities. There is no investiture with this personal award.

A palace announcement said: "It is annoused from Buckingham Palace that in the exercise of her majesty's prerogative right, the Queen has conferred the Royal Victorian Chain on the Right Honorable Vincent Massey as an indication of her deep appreciation of his services as her majesty's personal representative while governor-general of Canada from 1952-1959."

The chain was conferred upon two others this year — the king of Thailand and President de Gaulle of France. The only previous Commonwealth citizen outside Britain to receive it was the Nizam of Hyderabad and Berar, an Indian state prince, in 1946.

Of the 21 existing holders, only two are not heads of state or members of royalty. They are the Archbishop of Canterbury and Sir John Weir, the Queen's personal physician.

Tourist Trade Deficit Shows Big Reversal

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's long-standing tourist trade deficit with the United States i "beginning at last to have a welcome reversal," Resources Minister Alvin Hamilton said Friday.

He told the Commons that last year American tourists spent $351,000,000 in Canada, up $42,000,000 from 1958. At the same time Canadians boosted their U.S. spending by $32,000,000 to $445,000,000.

The deficit of $94,000,000 in 1959 tourist spending was a decrease of $10,000,000 from 1958.

Meanwhile, Canada's tourist trade deficit with all countries increased last year by $7,000,00 to $200,000,000, reflecting generally an increase in overseas travel by Canadians.

Dr. Hamilton assured MP that their suggestions for Canadian travel bureau offices other American cities besides New York and Chicago are "no being ignored, nor are the possibilities of a travel office Europe being ignored."

Lake Ontario Portland Cement expects to go "into the black" in only its second full year of operation. In addition, steady progress in all areas of the company is reported by George H. Elliott, president and chairman of the Executive Committee, to the shareholders of Lake Ontario Portland Cement Company Limited in a semi-annual report dated July 25, 1960.

Cement sales during the first six months of the 1960 fiscal year, show an increase of 26 per cent over the same period in 1959. The report says this was accomplished despite a number of adverse factors such as an unusually severe winter and contniuous rain during and continuous rain during havoc with the construction industry.

The Lake Ontario Portland Cement plant, situated at Picton, Ontario, has been running at capacity since May 1959, the only cement manufacturing plant in Ontario to do so, according to reports the company has received. There were no scheduled interruptions during the winter months which are traditionally slow in the cement manufacturing business even without the added factor of adverse weather as experienced in Southern Ontario earlier this year.

Reader Thinks Eggs Are All In One Basket

By DON HARVEY

A reader has written that we have probably been putting all our eggs in one basket by "relying on the possibility of airline service alone" coming to this district.

"You are neglecting the many companies which operate their own, or sometimes charter or lease, aircraft", his letter said. "Most people are not aware of the business flying taking place already right under our noses in this area."

On the contrary, Sir. We have not been putting all our eggs in one basket nor are we neglecting business aviation. Let's take one thing at a time. Rome wasn't built in a day.

There certainly is a lot of business flying going on "right under our noses" locally. And it will increase. Did you know that more than 600 business and executive aircraft are operating in Canada today? Two-thirds of the total are single-engined aircraft, any one of which would be able to land on a grass field. But where is there a suitable grass field in the Belleville-Trenton area for which the owners do not want a mint of money? We know of a few farmers who have likely airfield land but just whisper your intentions to them and watch the price go up. They visualize the growth of a local airfield into a colossal, multi-runway airport. Who really knows what the future holds? Ready-built airfields in the district are too far away. We need a local field.

We would like to see RCAF Station Trenton opened to business flying. In fact, we'll likely be alive to see it come. But it won't be tomorrow.

A six - member airport committee has been set up to study the needs of East Central Ontario. The committee (of which this writer no longer is a member) believes that bringing in airline service is an essential step in boosting the area's prosperity. We agree (and so does the committee) that business flying cannot be overlooked. Nor will it be. But each project must be considered in turn. The committee has chosen to press for airline service first.

The gentleman who wrote the letter endorsed the committee's efforts.

"You have my wholehearted support," he wrote. "It would be a wonderful thing if it (airline service) should become a reality — if the cost was not too far out of line. I would use it occasionally to get repairs to my leg braces done in Toronto".

Belleville Wins Doubles, Singles in District Playdowns

District playdowns in the Women's Provincial Lawn Bowling Association were held on the greens of the Belleville club on Friday. Mrs. Gordon Vince was the convener and chairman of the day's play, which was held in excellent weather, although a storm broke as the last end of the trebles game was being played. The zone playdowns will be held in Kingston in about a week and the finals will be played in Toronto, early in August.

There were only three clubs represented in the playdowns, Trenton, Kingston and Belleville, and a bye was necessary in the knockout play. A Kingston rink of Mrs. Lottie McAdoo, Mrs. Kitty Ovens and Mrs. M. Pashalides won the trebles competition, defeating a rink of Mrs. Thelma Fitzgibbon, Mrs. Millie Smith and Mrs. Ann Watkin, 18-14, after getting a bye. Earlier the Belleville rink defeated a rink of Mrs. Carmel Boyce, Mrs. Pearl Carr and Mrs. Helen Coutts of Trenton, 18-6.

A doubles rink of Miss Marg Fairbairn and Miss Winnie Smith of the Belleville club, drew a bye in the first round and defeated a rink of Mrs. K. Stringer and Mrs. Florence Sears of Kingston 16-8. Previously the Kingston rink defeated a Trenton rink of Mrs. Pearl Frost and Mrs. Madge Way by 13-10.

Mrs. Myrtle Smith of the Belleville club won the singles title of the playdowns from Mrs. Bertha Coppins of Kingston, 21-20, in a thrilling match. In this competition the first player that reaches a count of 21 is the winner. The greens were in excellent condition and between the morning and afternoon games, the women's section of the club provided a delicious luncheon for the guests. A large gallery of local enthusiasts followed the play in the afternoon games.

Slippery Roads Cause Mishaps, Nobody Injured

Slippery road conditions, caused by the afternoon rain, resulted in two highway mishaps north of Belleville yesterday. No injuries were reported.

South of Roslin on No. 37 highway, Harold M. Grevstad, of Ottawa, lost control of his car on a curve. The vehicle rolled over several times on the roadway and then ended up in the east ditch. Damage to the car amounted to approximately $800.

At Cannifton, on the Moira River Bridge, Dennis Hughes had his car skid sideways on slippery planks. The car bumped into the side of the bridge, causing minor $25 damage while the car had about $50 damage.

All was comparatively quiet in the city with no accidents and little more than routine matters coming to the attention of police.

No Fire, Just Making Salve

TRENTON — The fire department Thursday night received a frantic call from a woman occupant of a multi-unit apartment house on Front Street. The woman insisted she could smell smoke.

Checking each apartment, firemen finally tracked the odor to one apartment where the lady of the house was concocting a special kind of ointment on the stove. It was not known what ingredients the do-it-yourself pharmacist was using.

Lightning Bolt Disrupts Power

TRENTON—During an electrical storm yesterday, lightning struck an insulator at the corner of Henry St. and Dufferin Ave. A 44,000-volt line was knocked out of commission and a large part of the west side of town was without power from 5:06 p.m. to 6:40 p.m.

When the lightning struck, the resulting "fireworks" prompted a housewife in the neighborhood to call the fire department, thinking that a house had been struck.

Reaction Good

TRENTON — Public reaction to the proposed revitalization of the Trenton Yacht Club is good. Several owners of small craft who previously believed the club was too disorganized to be effectual have expressed the opinion that this time the members mean business. The general opinion seems to be that dock facilities are needed primarily, boat servicing facilities secondly and a club house after the first two requisites have been attended to.

Booth Opens

TRENTON — The Chamber of Commerce opened a tourist booth this week on Dundas St. West at the foot of Farley's Hill.

H. B. Smith, secretary-manager of the chamber, will spend the summer supplying motorists with information concerning tourist attractions, accommodation and general points of interest in the Quinte district.

Hit by Train

BLIND RIVER (CP) — Henry Pezet, a CPR section foreman from this community midway between Sault Ste. Marie and Sudbury, was killed Friday when hit by an east-bound passenger train near the station.

Police said no one saw the accident and trainmen were not aware anything had happened until the train stopped just east of the station. Pezet had apparently eaten his lunch in a small shack beside the tracks.

MISS AGNES JOSS

The funeral of Miss Agnes Joss was held Friday afternoon from the Grant Funeral Home where service in the chapel was conducted by Rev. R. D. MacLean. Interment was in Elmwood Cemetery.

The bearers were Nelson and Michael Joss, Ernest Eatly, Carson Elliott, Angus Vance and George Hammett.

MRS. CHARLES W. MOTT

Mrs. Ellen M. (Ella) Mott died in the Belleville General Hospital on Saturday after being in failing health for some time. She was in her 91st year.

Born in Toronto, she had lived in Belleville for nearly all her life and was a member of the Wesleyan Methodist Church. She was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Croudass. Her husband, Chas. W. Mott, pre-deceased her.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Ethel Donald of Toronto and Mrs. Jessie McDonald of Detroit. A son, Fred L. Mott, died in 1953. There are five grandchildren and a number of great grandchildren.

MRS. JULIA STELLA BONIAKOWSKI

The funeral of Mrs. Julia Stella Boniakowski was held from the John R. Bush Funeral Home to Holy Rosary Church on Friday morning. Requiem Mass was celebrated by Rev. Peter Murphy, who also gave the graveside prayers at St. James' Cemetery.

MRS. ALBERT E. BALDWIN

The funeral of Mrs. Lillian G. Baldwin was held from her late residence, Northport, on Friday afternoon, under the direction of the John R. Bush Funeral Home. Rev. William Pointen, assisted by Mr. Walter Kingersley conducted the service in the home and the committal rites at Cherry Valley Cemetery.

MRS. JAMES CROSS

Deloro

In failing health for some time, Mrs. Gladys Evelyn Cross of Deloro, died in the Belleville General Hospital on Friday evening. She was born at Bolton, Ontario, 55 years ago, being the daughter of Mrs. Mabel Quackenbush and the late George Neal and had resided at Deloro for the past 12 years and she formerly resided at Port Colborne. In both communities she was well known and highly respected.

A member of St. Paul's Anglican Church of Marmora, she is survived by her husband, James Cross; three daughters, Mrs. Alex (Lorraine) Grist, Mrs. J. (Jessie) Kovach of Port Colborne, Miss Colleen Cross at home; two sons, John Cross of Elliot Lake, Neal Cross of Petrolia; four sisters, Mrs. C. (Edith) Gregory of Niagara Falls, Ont.; Mrs. Harry (Jessie) Moffatt of Marmora township, Mrs. Arthur (Margery) Nobes of Marmora, Mrs. Roy (Yvonne) Moss of Markham and one brother, Howard Neal of Marmora. Also surviving are 12 grandchildren. Her first husband, Harry Cross, died some years ago.

Produce Market Getting Bigger And Better

The Saturday produce market is getting bigger and better as more vegetables and berries come into their own. Today's market was undoubtedly the largest this year. Several farmers said next week's market should be even larger.

A large assortment of flowers and plants was available. The number of varieties offered was too large to mention here but, as an example, a bunch of eight gladioli sold at 75 cents while a mixed bouquet sold at 25 cents.

In the vegetable line, fresh cauliflower sold at 10 to 30 cents each. Potatoes were 60 cents a basket (one farmer asked 50 cents) or $3 a bushel; cucumbers, three for a quarter; yellow and green beans, 20 cents a quart; carrots, beets, green onions, 10 cents a bunch; field tomatoes, 35 cents a pint; radishes, three bunches for 25 cents; cooking onions, 75 cents a basket; vegetable marrows, two for 25 cents; leaf lettuce, two bunches 25 cents; broad beans, 25 cents a box; shelled peas, 50 cents a pint; peas in the pod, 25 cents a quart; green and red peppers, 10 cents each.

Extra large eggs sold at 45 cents a dozen. Large were 40 cents and mediums, 35.

In the berry line, blue raspberries sold at 40 cents a qt.; red raspberries, 45 cents; blueberries, $2.50 a basket; gooseberries, 35 cents a quart; red currants, 40 cents a quart; white currants, 35 cents a quart.

The Windsor variety of cherries sold at 60 cents a quart, while Montmorencies went at 35c. Early Golden plums were 35 cents a quart.

'Camel Herders' Entertain Crippled Kiddies

Some eighteen crippled kiddies of the city are having the time of their lives this afternoon.

They are the guests of the Camel Herd Stable of the Belleville Shrine Club.

And some dozen or so Camel Herders are seeing to it the youngsters lack for nothing.

They are enjoying pony rides, boat rides and other entertainment on "personally-conducted" tours. Each youngster is under the watchful eye of his or her personal "Herder".

Later they will get the ice cream, soft drinks, milk, cookies and other goodies dear to the hearts of children.

At six o'clock they will be driven by the Herders to their respective homes.

Belgian Troops Jeered as They Leave Capital

LEOPOLDVILLE (Reuters) — Belgian troops today pulled out of this capital city to the derisive cheers of Congolese onlookers.

At the same time, United Nations soldiers, who are replacing the Belgians, fanned out through the hinterland toward such trouble spots as Luluabourg. Latest reports said Belgian paratroopers hold Luluabourg airport and Congolese forces the rest of the town.

Belgian army commanders stood tight-lipped as their troops moved out by the truckload from Leopoldville. The deadline for the withdrawal was 6 p.m. local time tonight.

The Belgian forces were withdrawing to their main Congo bases. Premier Patrice Lumumba has called for their complete evacuation of his country.

United Nations authorities here appealed today for at least 200 additional doctors. A spokesman said the medical situation is "extremely grave."

The doctors are needed to replace Belgian physicians who fled from the country during anti-white rioting. One major medical problem in Leopoldville is the need for purification of the city's drinking water.

—Mrs. Lee Bradshaw.

Four Airman Die in Flaming Plane Crashes

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Four airmen died in flaming plane crashes Friday while helping thousands of ground fighters battle the worst forest fires in 30 years in nine western states.

Two converted B-25 bombers among many pouring fire-retarding borate solution just ahead of roaring flames — crashed, one in eastern Oregon, the other in southern California.

Spreading fires, many lightning - set, blackened some 200,000 acres in California, Washington, Oregon, Montana, Idaho, Nevada, Utah, Wyoming and Arizona. In Idaho, the FBI investigated the possibility of arson.

More than 300 fires were battled by 3,000 men in British Columbia. The worst was a 13,000 - acre fire.

Damage was in uncounted millions of dollars — more than $10,000,000 in southern California alone.

In Los Angeles County in California, fires routed some 1,000 persons from their homes Thursday. There the flames have destroyed two score houses and cabins.

Traffic Sign Wrong Color Says Magistrate

BUTTONVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Because a York County traffic sign was the wrong color, three speeding charges were dismissed Friday in this community north of Toronto.

Magistrate Robert Hirtle ruled that a black and yellow speed sign was illegal because it had been erected in 1959 after the Highway Traffic Act had been amended to say all traffic signs must have black lettering on a white background.

He said signs put up prior to 1956 are valid until August next year.

IN MEMORIAM

PECK. — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Harry W. Peck, who passed away July 26th, 1959.

One year has passed since that sad day,
When one we loved was called away;
God took him home, it was His will,
Within our hearts he liveth still.

—Ever remembered by wife Lena and family.

BRADY. — In loving memory of a dear mother, Bessie Brady, who passed away July 22nd, 1958.

The blow was great, the shock severe,
We little thought the end was near;
And only those who have lost can tell,
The pain of parting without farewell.
More each day we miss you,
Friends may think the wound is healed;
But they little know the sorrow,
That lies within our hearts concealed.

—Sadly missed by daughter Ruth and son-in-law Norris Easton.

MALLOY. — In ever loving memory of a dear daughter, Marie, who passed away July 23rd, 1937.

My lips cannot tell how I miss you,
My heart cannot tell what to say;
God alone knows how I miss her,
In a home that is lonesome today.

—Sadly missed by Mother.

REID. — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Acile A. Reid, who passed away July 23rd, 1943.

Time goes on with many changes,
Joys and sorrows, smiles and tears;
But your memory we will cherish,
With the passing of the years.

—Ever remembered by wife Estella, sons Morley and Malcolm, daughters Pearl, Marvel, Ruth.

CAMPBELLFORD

Parma Scouts Enjoy Week at Crowe Bay

CAMPBELLFORD — Fifteen boy scouts from Troop 425, Parma, Ohio, (a suburb of Cleveland) completed a one-week holiday at the local Boy Scout Camp at Crowe Bay on Saturday.

The American boys visited the camp on the invitation of the Campbellford Scouts, who entertained the visitors during the week.

For some of the visitors, it was the first time they had fished from a boat, and the highlight of the visit for one boy was to win a fishing contest sponsored by the Campbellford Rotary Club. The lad hooked and landed a 30 inch muskie, the largest fish taken during the week at camp.

SPECIAL EVENTS

Last Wednesday, the Rotary Club held a special events day and provided mammoth hot dogs and refreshments. The boys competed in various events for prizes offered by local merchants. On Wednesday evening, at a special ceremony, the American boys presented their original troop flag to the Campbellford Troop. Scout Master, Jack Connor, accepted the flag on behalf of the Campbellford Troop from Explorer Scout, Tom Hauser, of Parma. The flag the original Troop 425 flag, contained 48 stars.

The group visited the open-pit mining operations in Marmora and journeyed to Peterborough to see North America's largest lift lock in operation.

VISIT CHEESE FACTORY

They visited No. 10 power house at Campbellford and also saw how cheese was made during a visit to Empire Cheese factory, where Cheesemaker Les Shillinglaw gave each of the lads a sample of the cheese for which the district is famous.

The families of most of the Scouts spent the week at district resorts. Scouts attending from Troop 425 Parma, were: Bill Kerlin, Jim Kerlin, Alan Redick, Tom Tulloch, Bill Goetz, Jim Parry, Tom Hause, Warren Hauser, Alan Krysiak, Byron Sprunger, John Barbotta, Russell Todia, Scott Hill, Gerald Soroczak and Mark Gutzman.

The visitors were in charge of Scoutmaster Stan Macey of Parma, Ohio, a former Campbellford resident.

OPPOSITION TRIES

906,631 for the finance department, $103,129,198 for the labor department and unemployment insurance commission plus the estimates for legislation, the Privy Council, and the departments of trade, defence production, northern affairs and secretary of state.

DROP IN SPENDING

Main point of Friday's opposition attack: A $10,677,408 drop in spending for Mr. Hamilton's department since the 1959 - 60 fiscal year, which the minister said was partly due to completion of some large northern projects, postponement of others and "budgetary reason".

Mr. Godin and others said the government is increasing the department's administration costs and reducing job-producing capital outlays during a period of high unemployment. "If savings are made here they should be made in administration," Mr. Godin said.

Another sore point, especially with CCF MPs: Mr. Hamilton's announcement that $120,000 will be spent for the long - heralded "resources for tomorrow" conference to be held in Montreal in October, 1961.

Murdo Martin (CCF — Timmins) said that $120,000 for the conservation conference sounds a lot when said quickly, but works out to only $12,000 a province which is "not a very rosy picture." Worst of all, "the rape of our natural resources is still continuing."

Douglas Fisher (CCF — Port Arthur) said he is suspicious about the conference. Just what specific will emerge from the whole thing? he asked.

The minister's enthusiasm was one source of doubt and another was the fact that co - operation from all provinces seemed to be forthcoming readily. If that's the case, Mr. Fisher said, it would appear to be a pretty "bland" conference.

Mr. Hamilton's annual ordeal by oratory also included stiff criticism of his April announcement of revisions in federal oil and gas regulations, designed to stimulate Canadian participation in Arctic oil development and preventing foreign companies from getting leases.

Mr. Godin said one regulation, whereby a company getting a lease must list its shares on a Canadian stock exchange, amounts to the same thing as granting Canadian citizenship to everybody who promised to wear a Canadian-made suit.

Mr. Hamilton is expected to reply to the criticism before the debate enters the item - by - item stage, possibly today.

REP. CONVENTION

Republican presidential standard bearer.

Though New York's Governor Nelson Rockefeller keeps sniffing at the wind in search of a draft, he'll be lucky if he finds a mere breeze.

More likely the multi - millionaire may find himself drafted and delivered hog - tied to the Nixon forces as the party's vice-presidential nominee.

Rockefeller, 52, keeps saying he wants no part of the vice-presidency, a job Nixon has held ever since he climbed aboard the bandwagon of Republican President Eisenhower in 1952.

SHREWD POLITICS

But Nixon is shrewdly aware that with some of the Eisenhower magic wearing off, he can use a little more popularity and muscle to counter the Kennedy-Johnson coalition.

It is possible that Rockefeller would ignore the demand of delegates that he accept the No. 2 spot?

He might, but then he would risk party enmity should he continue his drive for the presidency in future years.

Undoubtedly the thought in Rockefeller's mind—as it was in the mind of Adlai Stevenson—is that lightning can strike and there may be just the remotest chance Nixon may be rejected.

Democrat Stevenson apparently thought the same thing but though the crowds loved him, the delegates didn't.

In the four-day Republican convention, the winning candidate must have at least 666 votes and Nixon says he has pledges of at least 1,000. The New York delegation which Rockefeller will head has 96 votes.

Rockefeller has criticized the Eisenhower administration - collapse of the summit, the U-2 spy plane incident, the loss of U.S. prestige in the Japanese riots. He has made certain suggestions, including a big boost in defence expenditures — a contrast to the Eisenhower argument that current spending suffices.

RECONCILE ARMS

The Nixon team has made a big show of trying to work out a party platform which fits in as closely as possible with Rockefeller's wishes. They say it is a struggle to reconcile the Nixon-Rockefeller views but they will try.

If Rockefeller avoids the vice-presidential trap, hopefuls are led by 56-year-old Henry Cabot Lodge, U.S. ambassador at the United Nations.

There's also that strong Nixon supporter, Kentucky Senator Thurston B. Morton, 52, chairman of the Republican national committee.

Body Is Found

CARDINAL CP)—The body of D'Arcy Patrick, 53, missing since a party Monday night, was found Friday night floating in Galops Canal in this community 45 miles south of Ottawa.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Thompson were strolling along the canal when they spotted the body of the father of 11 children.

Drowns in Lake

HUNTSVILLE (CP)—Bernard Albert Rogers, 29, of Toronto, was drowned in Mary Lake, 12 miles south of this Muskoka district town, when he tried to swim to shore from a capsized canoe Thursday night. Robert Gawn, 14, of Toronto and his sister Carol, 12, clung to the overturned canoe and were rescued by Jamie Ure of Toronto.

Madoc Art Centre Opening Weeks Attract Capacity Crowds

To paint light colors first, or dark colors first? That is the current question at the Madoc Art Centre, now in the opening weeks of its seventh annual season. Nestling into the rolling landscape of the Highlands of Hastings, near Actinolite, Ont., the resident summer art centre is attracting a capacity crowd of vacation painters from Toronto, Oakville, Owen Sound, Fort William, Port Huron (Mich.), New York City and Florida as well as nearby Bancroft, L'Amable, Belleville, Kingston, Peterborough and Manotick.

Most of them are perennial visitors, back to sketch at their favorite haunts guided by professional coaches. Assisting Mrs. Mary Schneider, resident director and painting instructor, will be Don Fraser, Frank S. Panabaker, Joicey Horne, John A. Hall, Irene Collins, Jack Pepper and Ralph Allen who will also join in nightly studio reviews of paintings, many of them still wet on the canvas. Pottery and ceramics are directed by Dr. Roman Schneider.

ATTRACTIVE SCENES

One a day is the average, with a variety of three to a dozen or more paintings to take home at the end of their stay, be it a week or several weeks. For advanced painters or beginners there are massive pines on the hill across the rustic bridge and stile behind the studio building; the spinning wheel in the front meadow near the wishing-well with its quaint gabled roof, the red pump and the red bell under the sun deck, that summons the drowsing from their spring-filled mattresses to another summer day of outdoor sketching for contemplation and enjoyment. Further afield are rocks and waterfalls near Flinton, 10 miles from Madoc, streams, bridges, old barns and farm buildings, spreading elms and knotted tree stumps.

Few locations could be more ideal. Easily reached by bus or car, the Manahatta river skirts the art centre grounds. Accommodations for 5 combine city conveniences with the joys of hiking, swimming, sunning, fishing, boating and barbecues in company with fellow sketchers from all walks of life, of whom there have been more than 350 since Dr. A. Y. Jackson declared the Madoc Art Centre officially open in June, 1954.

Pensions Drop For Veterans of First World War

OTTAWA (CP) — Pensions to Canada's veterans will drop by about $600,000 this year as time takes its toll of First World War servicemen, Veterans Minister Brooks said Friday.

Veterans pensions are expected to total $148,940,000 this year compared with $149,550,000 last year, he said as the Commons gave speedy approval to his department's $290,678,000 budget for the current year.

The over - all reduction of $1,901,000 is due largely to economies in administration, he said.

To suggestions that pensions should be boosted to keep pace with increases in the cost of living, Col. Brooks said a full review of pensions is planned.

But he noted that there was no increase in pensions between 1920 and 1947. The next increase was in 1957.

The Commons polished off the last of the public works spending estimates — after 3¼ days—finished those of veterans affairs in short order and then embarked on the budget for northern affairs and national resources.

Col Brooks said 188,626 veterans were receiving pensions as of March 31, 1,636 fewer than a year earlier. Second World War liabilities were increasing as those from the First World War decreased but at a slower pace.

John Smith (PC — Lincoln) an artilleryman in the First World War, urged the government to extend war veterans allowances to Imperial War veterans who served on the Indian frontier in the 1914-18 war. Only a handful lived in Canada.

O. W. Weichel (PC — Waterloo North), also a veteran of that conflict, urged that widows of pensioners with more than a 50-per-cent disability continue on full pension for one year instead of immediately suffering a drastic pension reduction on the death of the pensioner. He later urged an increase in the $9,000 grant to the Canadian Legion.

ACCUSED BRITAIN

The Soviet resolution accused Britain of being a "direct accomplice" in the incident since the plane left from an American base in Britain. He said that Norway also was an "accomplice" because the plane was to land in that country if it encountered difficulties, a charge that Norway previously denied.

Kuznetsov insisted that the U.S. had sent the plane into Soviet airspace to "detect the system of radar stations and other military objectives in the Soviet Union."

The Russian contended that the plane had disregarded signals from the Soviet fighter to land, and was headed for Archangel, "deeper inside the Soviet Union," when it was shot down.

Lodge declared that at no time during the flight was the RB-47 closer than 30 miles from the Soviet coast. U.S. officials have said they will prove that the plane was over international waters when shot down.

His widow, Mrs. Lesley Johnstone Stykes, who died four months later, left an estate of $167,613, including $88,009 received in her husband's will.

Both wills were filed for probate Friday.

TRIAL ENDS

LONDON (AP) — The Grunwold affair — a spectacular trial that at one stage shook the London Stock Exchange — ended Friday with two financiers jailed for five years each on fraud charges totalling £3,405,500 (Approximately $9,564,000 at the current rate of exchange). Jailed were Herbert Murray, 67, former head of a large building society, and Friedrich Grunwald, 34, the society's solicitor and director of a string of companies. They were found guilty of using the society's money to finance their own property deals.

Use Good Oil To Lengthen Engine Life

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

The subject of oil quality seems to pop up frequently among car owners. Again, a few economy-bent motorists ask why use expensive oils when an engine actually needs no more than a low-priced regular grade to operate efficiently.

Premium and heavy-duty oils are generally recommended because they contain oxidation inhibitors and detergent additives. The cheaper, regular grades are straight mineral oils, more or less, which do not offer as much protection to the engine.

Of course, regular oils will lubricate and cushion engine parts, but premium grades are also designed to stop formation of harmful oxides and minimize the grit, sludge and gum accumulations which shorten engine life.

E. S. writes: "My car has power-operated windows which work too slowly now in comparison to their speed a few months ago. Wiring and all connecting mechanism seem O.K."

(A) Check the motor. Worn brushes can cause this.

From J. N.: "Since changing the oil, I get a very slow leak at the oil pan drain plug. I've tried tightening the plug but there is still some oozing."

(A) A new plug gasket may be needed. You might also use a little gasket compound to compensate for any uneven spots which would prevent a tight seal.

R.P. asks: "I have a 1900 eight-cylinder model which will be used next month to pull a small trailer approximately 1,500 miles and back. I understand this requires special care of the automatic transmission. In what way?"

(A) A more frequent check on the transmission fluid level is important. Also watch for signs of transmission overheating.

W. Q. writes: "My transmission began acting up recently and I discovered the fluid is backing up or overflowing from the filler pipe. What diagnosis can I expect when I consult a mechanic?"

(A) The transmission may have been overfilled — water from the oil cooler might be leaking into the fluid — or the suction pipe may be damaged.

Beware of Bears Painted Red Says Minister

OTTAWA (CP) — Warning to visitors in the mountain national parks of Alberta and British Columbia: Beware of bears with red backsides.

This is the danger sign adopted by the parks branch of the national resources department to warn the public against bears that have become "overly friendly" with visitors.

Under regulations put into effect in 1958 and outlined in the Commons Friday by Resources Minister Alvin Hamilton, such bears are removed to "very distant spots" and have their posteriors painted red.

If they reappear in parts of the park frequented by the public, they are removed permanently, Mr. Hamilton said.

He rejected a suggestion by Eldon Woolliams PC — Bow River that "reliable people" be permitted to carry fire - arms in the parks to protect themselves.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINIFRED E. WILSON

MOSS LOVER

When we consider all the difficulties encountered by the parula, our smallest warbler, we marvel that it manages to exist at all. Fortunately, it has a tremendous range: just about all eastern North America, including Manitoba and Minnesota, from the northern limit of civilization to Florida. But unfortunately this tiny beauty is extremely choosy about its nesting grounds. Humid woodlands where usnaea moss sometimes called "old man's beard") grows on the trees are the sole spots in Canada where the parula breeds, building its home in the centre of a bunch of this drooping lichen. The only possible place for a parula's nest is woodland in the vicinity of a pond, swamp, or lake, and the march of time is rapidly removing this type of territory.

ANOTHER HAZARD

Another nesting hazard faces this dainty little warbler. Cowbirds seem to take special delight in placing their eggs in tiny homes. Naturally, once one of these big eggs is taking up all the room there is no chance for a parula infant.

Migration presents another danger. Modern, man-made contrivances block the flyway: radio beacons, tall buildings, television towers. Twice a year many miles must be travelled. In September some parulas will be leaving Anticosti Island in the Gulf of St. Lawrence for Nicaragua in Central America. At that time the most likely area in which to find these warblers is deciduous woods, their preferred territory; however, almost any kind of country is possible if it provides them with insect food in the tree-tops.

Parulas search for insects by hanging upside down, chickadee fashion, while they carefully examine the under side of a branch, poking into every crevice. It is from this habit that they earned their name, for "parus" is the scientific name for "titmouse"; to which family our little chickadees belong.

IDENTIFICATION AIDS

Parulas are best recognized by what is known as the yellowish "saddle-patch" on their blue backs, and a band of dark brown that crosses the bright yellow chest. Two white wing bars on the blue wings are another aid for identification. These birds are unusually tame for warblers, showing up at bird baths and feeding stations "en route". At home, while feeding their youn they are noted for allowing a audience of humans quite close.

Of course you can hardly expect to hear the characteristi song in autumn — but given luck you may. This is a buzzy, a cending trill, ending in a sharp emphatic "zip".

$1,900 Shortage In Revenues And Fines Found

EASTVIEW (CP) — William Bolton, supervisor of auditing and accounting in the Ontario municipal affairs department, said Friday Mayor Gordon Lavergne asked whether the Ontario official had to report a $1,900 shortage in town parking meter revenues and fines.

"I told him I already had my report typed and was mailing it," Mr. Bolton said at a provincial inquiry into the town's financial affairs.

"Well, that's the end of it," he quoted the mayor as saying.

Mr. Bolton said both Mayor Lavergne and Mrs. Adrienne Laroche, town treasurer, had asked him repeatedly at two meetings last week whether he had to report the missing money.

BIG SHORTAGES

Mr. Bolton said he found a shortage of $1,000 in parking meter collections and possibly $900 in parking fines after he began a check of the town's books July 11.

Mr. Bolton said that Mayor Lavergne asked whether the shortage could be overlooked "if someone were to put the money back right away."

Robert Boudreau, who audited the town's books for more than ten years, told the inquiry that "things were so bad I should have resigned from the job years ago."

He admitted that he knew that some assessments were illegally fixed although he did nothing about the matter.

Their Last Hope

Congo tribesmen have stopped American planes from landing to evacuate missionaries from posts in the provinces of Leopoldville and Kasai.

The crowds which gathered at landing strips were not hostile, but merely wished to prevent the departure of men who have served as doctors and teachers.

Now, more than ever before, such men, and women like them, are needed in the Congo.

Despite all the stories of atrocities, it is surely evident that not all of the Congolese have abused whites. If they had, there would have been much more bloodshed.

Probably the vast majority of the natives have been guilty of nothing worse than drinking and name-calling. They are likely to suffer severely, though, as the result of the brutality of a minority. If, as appears likely, the majority of the white technicians leave the country, the chaos which will result will reduce the population to a much lower standard of living than would have been the case had the white man never started to introduce his industrialized society to the heart of Africa. Only those natives who have continued to follow tribal life in the hinterland will escape the penalty for the sins of a relatively few.

If there is any hope of salvation for the land, it may well rest with the missionaries and with whatever white, brown and yellow experts the United Nations can persuade to risk their lives in an effort to restore the crippled economy of the newly-born nation.

Kill-Joy

Somebody is always taking the joy out of life.

This time it is the Windsor Star.

Prime worry amongst economists in recent years has been Canada's continuing unfavorable balance of trade. Repeatedly we were warned, and we think correctly, that Canada could not continue to enjoy the tune without some day having a reckoning with the piper.

Of late, there has been an improvement in our trade balance. Exports have increased more rapidly than imports. Our trade deficit, though it still exists, is smaller.

The Star, however, makes a bothersome point.

"Historically," it says, "large trade deficits have always been associated with prosperous times in Canada, declining deficits or even surpluses with a depressed economic climate. The steadily decreasing deficit, then, may be an indicator of economic trouble ahead."

Perhaps we shall worry less about this prediction if we seek to put the facts into the more familiar frame of our own household budgets. We always seem prosperous when we are acquiring more things than we have money to pay for, buying a new home, a new car, major appliances. Our wallets are always thinnest in those years in which people owe us instead of us owing others.

But which are the years which eventually fatten our bank balance?

Yukon Grows Fastest

Canada's population is nearing the 18,000,000 mark.

This may not be an unmixed blessing—there are Canadians who like those wide open spaces and now they have to go farther afield looking for them—but an expanding population is essential if we are desirous of living in twentieth century style.

Figures for June 1, compared with the same date a year ago, show Ontario's gain to have been the greatest, 137,000 compared to Quebec's 107,000. But the Yukon was an easier winner on a percentage basis, an additional 1,000 people representing a gain of 7.7 per cent. Somewhat surprising, too, is Newfoundland's record, with an additional 10,000 people, a bigger gain than that for Saskatchewan, whose population is double that of the eastern-most province. British Columbia, which had had dreams of mushroom growth in recent years, did not fare so spectacularly, adding only 36,000 people, a percentage gain which was only slightly larger than Newfoundland's.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

TRIUMPH

Death is regarded by many people as a calamity.

Very often it is. To have lived through a number of decades and to have come to the end without having developed any strength of character or any religious fidelity is a calamity indeed. Some people leave this earthly scene conscious that they have added not to the sum total of the world's happiness but to the sum total of its misery. For such, death is indeed a calamity.

But death is a triumph for many people. Maude Ballington Booth died some years ago, and the message of faith which she left and which was read at her funeral service constitutes a triumph that even those of most distinguished station might covet. From her earliest youth Mrs. Booth had been a religious and social welfare worker. She died at the age of 82, having poured out the whole of her adult life for the good of other people, and particularly for those who had sunk so low on the social scale that an unfeeling world paid little attention to them. "During the last few years of my earthly life," she wrote, "death lost for me all its sadness and dread and shadow. I look forward to it as a shining portal into the new world of eternity." Then she added this word for her only son: "Let your tears shine with the rainbow brightness of joy that I would have you share with me. Keep the faith."

Here indeed is triumph.

British View of Cuba

London Observer

The crisis in the relations between Cuba and the United States underlines a paradox which pains and surprises most Americans: that the United States, which sees itself as the precursor of colonial freedom, is widely regarded abroad as an imperialist —even a colonial — power.

Nowhere is this truer than in Latin American, although until Castro came along with his own brand of anti-diplomacy, few Latin American politicians of consequence had been rude or rash enough to refer to their huge neighbor in any but the politest terms. The shock to the Americans when Castro began to abuse them was therefore all the greater.

But they should not have been too surprised.

In the rest of the world the United States has rather unfairly inherited the odium which properly belongs to other Western powers. In Latin America it has too often behaved as an imperialist power itself.

The Monroe Doctrine, by which every American country was pledged to assist any other which might be threatened by reoccupation by a European power, was obviously motivated by anti-colonialist altruism, but it did not stop the United Staes from feeling free to intervene itself in Latin American affairs.

This intervention started in Mexico, with the occupation of Texas, formerly a state of the Mexican Union, and continued with the foundation of the Republic of Panama, formerly a province of Columbia; the invasion of Mexico shortly before the outbreak of the First World War; the occupation by United States Marines during that war of Nicaragua, the Dominican Republic, Cuba and Haiti; and finally the overthrow of an elected Guatemalan government in 1954.

None of these actions was calculated to endear the United States to its neighbors south of the border.

Even more important United States friendship since the war towards the dictatorships of Perez Jimenez in Venezuela, Rojas Pinilla in Colombia, Vargas in Brazil and Fulgencio Batista in Cuba — not to mention Francisco Franco in Spain—antagonized democratic Latin Americans, just as its support of reactionary regimes or parties in South Korea, Japan, Turkey and Formosa antagonized liberal opinion in Asia.

All this last was done, admittedly, with the intention of combatting Communism—which is precisely what the state department is worried about in Cuba. And no disinterested person will deny the possibility that Communism—quite legitimately from its own point of view—may be trying to urge Cuba to provoke the Americans into some disgraceful action.

Basically, however, like the revolutions in Iraq and Egypt, the Cuban "26 de Julio" movement is a nationalist one.

Though officially Cubans have been free from colonial domination for nearly 60 years, in fact they have been as tied to the United States as Iraq and Egypt were to Britain. And their pride, very naturally, resents this.

In these circumstances, many Cubans have turned in exasperation towards Moscow. Others have not, and would prefer to treat with Britain and Western Europe.

But almost no Cubans want to maintain their country's former close relations with the United States.

This must be galling to Americans. But in their own interests, and those of the Western world, the last thing they should do is to get tough about it.

The Cubans—like many peoples in Africa and Asia — are going through a period of nationalist euphoria. They are thinking with their hearts rather than with their heads.

But so were the Americans in 1776.

Bee Brood Is Rich Food

Chemurgic Digest

Bees are one of nature's most useful creatures. They make honey. They help flora to pollinate. Their social organization provokes scholarly conjecture among entomologists, sociologists, psychologist, and parents trying frantically to explain the facts of life to their precocious offspring. A Canadian scientist now says bees could replace beefsteaks.

"We have only 50 more years of steaks", says Brian Hocking, professor of entomology at the University of Alberta, prophetically viewing the exploding world population.

Canadian apiarists every fall destroy bee brood worth twice the value of its annual honey crop, he points out, and import new colonies in the spring. People serve fried or chocolate coated bees at parties to impress (or revolt) their guests. But he sighs no one takes bees seriously as food.

They're easy to prepare, have a pleasant distinctive flavor, and are highly nutritious. Bee brood —the larvae and pupae of bees— contain twice the vitamin A of egg yoke, says Dr. Hocking. Larvae contain 4 per cent fat and 16 per cent protein, he finds, and pupae 2.5 per cent fat and 18 per cent protein (about the same as beef). And the vitamin D content of baby bees is 10 times that of cod liver oil.

Salted baby bees imported from Japan are cooked in vegetable oil and seasoned with soy sauce.

"All you can taste is the soy sauce", says Dr. Hocking. A taste panel evaluated bee brood sauteed in butter, French fried, and baked, found all forms tasty. The prepared foods bear little resemblance to bees, look more like breakfast cereal, and taste, according to the panel, nutty, caramelized, shrimplike, or like pork cracklings.

"They taste like bees", says Dr. Hocking.

If pharmaceutical firms latch onto bee brood as a source of vitamins, the protein might be lost to human nutrition, Dr. Hocking fears. But animal nutrition is another angle. And even adult bees, proportionately slightly lower in protein content and unpalatable in appearance (what with hair, wings and all), would not faze misanthropic mink, portly porkers, or hungry hatchery fish.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

JULY 23, 1940

The last of the wooden sidewalks remaining in the city, with the exception of one stretch of approximately one hundred feet on Brock Street, was torn up last week when it was decided that the wooden walk running up the hill past the Corby Library on Campbell St. had outserved its usefulness and will be replaced by a modern concrete walk. The steepness of the grade at this point on Campbell Street, has been instrumental in the wooden sidewalk being left in position long after other like walks in the vicinity had disappeared.

Citizens were entertained to the swirl of the bagpipes in downtown Belleville Saturday afternoon and evening when a transient piper plied his musical traits in true Highland fashion as he paraded in front of local beverage rooms seeking solace to his musical soul. The sequel to the story is merely this: the bearded player won't play for at least a fortnight, which he will spend as the guest of Gaoler G. H. French, who also will have possession of the bagpipes.

Miss Gwendolyn Ervine has returned home after spending two weeks in Toronto with friends.

Mrs. Woodman Thomas, and Mr. Homer Thomas spent the weekend in Kingston, Ont., the guests of the brother of the former, the Rev. F. W. White and Mrs. White.

Belleville old boys and girls are here to celebrate old times. While the celebration of Old Boys' and Girls' Reunion—which is the third such event—begins officially tomorrow, old boys and girls have been arriving from every direction during the past week, and the indications are that a great crowd will be present to live over again old times in the beautiful city of the bay. Already many groups of former residents gather upon the streets, clasping hands and talking over old times. The program arranged for the entertainment of the visitors is complete in every detail. The officers of the reunion are as follows: Hon. president, Lt.-Col. S. S. Lazier; hon. vice-presidents, Thomas Ritchie, J. M. Hurley, Lt.-Col. W. N. Ponton, Chas. N. Sulman, J. W. Walker, James A. Roy, R. J. Graham, D. V. Sinclair, Curtis Bogart, W. Jeffers Diamond, J. E. Walmsley, E. Guss Porter, MP, George Wallbridge, J. J. B. Flint, John Newton and John McKeown; president, J. F. Tobacco Crop Ends Poverty

Winnipeg Tribune

If anybody wonders why the Manitoba government, despite disappointments, keeps plugging away on an attempt to start a commercial tobacco-growing industry, they should take a look at Joliette County in Quebec.

In 1933 you could buy land in Joliette County at $2 an acre. And nobody was buying because all that would grow on the sandy soil was poor grass, and a few clumps of scrawny willows and alders.

The provincial agronomists moved in to try tobacco. Last year farmers of the area took off a $3 million tobacco crop. If you want to buy land in Joliette County now you have to pay $200 an acre.

The example of Joliette County is of interest to Manitoba because the type of land found there is similar to the type of land where Manitoba's tobacco-growing experiments are being carried out.

Manitoba has a good deal of country of this kind, land where farmers now get a scanty living for their best efforts.

A crop like tobacco, if it can be successfully grown, could make a tremendous difference in these areas. It is well worth the effort the provincial government is putting into it.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

MOST HEART ATTACK VICTIMS RETURN TO NORMAL ACTIVITIES

"Dear Dr. Molner: You sure knocked the props from under me with the article on 'No return to normal after heart attacks.' I had a so-called mild heart attack and I've been hoping I'd be able to do all my work, especially out in the garden. The article doesn't give me much hope. — A.Y."

And your letter knocks the props from under me! I didn't get the idea that I wanted to across to you.

Let me put it this way. You have a lot of heart muscle. Somebody once figured out that the heart muscle has 30 times the strength it needs to support life. Maybe the correct figure is even greater. Anyway, you are born with a heart that has a great deal of reserve strength.

Now when you have a heart attack big enough so you know it, and you call the doctor, some of that heart muscle is probably damaged. Scar tissue forms and, from the tissue standpoint, some damage has been done. You can't undo it any more than you can get rid of a scar from a serious cut. Little nicks disappear, yes; scars from a severe wound, no.

We do know, from years of observation, that a great many people have heart attacks so mild that they never notice them. There are other injuries to the body, "little strokes," bumps or strains on the joints and muscles, over-fatigue and all sorts of small matters which cause little if any notice at the time, but some are great enough so they add up. That's part of the "wear and tear of life."

To get back to hearts, three out of every four people who have heart attacks return to their normal activities — and when I say this, I mean three out of four of those whose heart attacks are serious enough so they knew they had an attack and called the doctor.

Over-strenuous activity may have to be avoided. Look at it this way: A football player, whose leg is broken, may go back to playing football, or he may not, depending on the severity of the break. If he breaks a leg a second time in the same place, he'd better quit football. But he still can walk on that leg for the next 50 or 60 years.

It's the same with a heart attack. The majority of people who have them go back to normal activities, although they may well have to avoid strenuous activity. You can be able to keep house, work in the garden, go shopping, do all the normal things of life, but perhaps not able to play 36 holes of golf, stay up dancing until 5 a.m., play water polo with the kids, or go on 10-mile hikes.

In addition, time is a great factor. Your heart (like a mended broken leg) may demand that you favor it for six months or a year, or even two years to allow it to regain strength after healing.

Believe me, I hadn't the slightest intention of knocking any props from under you or anyone else. A heart attack is nothing to ignore, but the healing powers of nature are not to be underestimated, either. They are tremendous. Just don't demand the impossible.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I made a comment in the office that since I stopped smoking I noticed that leg cramps do not occur as often. My friends disagree with me. — E.L.D."

Let your friends disagree if they wish; that's their affair. But nicotine from smoking (or any source) does have a recognized effect on the small blood vessels of the system and hence is one known cause of leg cramps.

Note to M. M. W.: Some people are sensitive to chocolate; hence it is possible that this has a connection with your headaches.

• • •

"Don't Quit Because of Arthritis" is the title of my leaflet designed to help all who suffer the aches and pains of arthritis. For a copy write to me in care of The Chicago Sun Times Syndicate, P.O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill., enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 5 cents in coin to cover cost of handling.

Now Summer Bachelor Fine

Christian Sience Monitor

At about this season it was long customary, until a few years ago at least, to wring out a few tears for the summer bachelor. He it was who stayed in the steaming city padding back and forth from an airless apartment to the job that provided the wherewithal to send the wife and kids to the mountains or the beach.

He was pictured as subsisting on dull restaurant fare or keeping himself alive with liverwurst and cold beans. He was not far out of an era in which dishwashing was to the male of te hspecies an esoteric art.

But the march of civilization, as it is generally called, has changed that milieu. The lord of the manor and the forest is himself partly responsible. For with the vogue of the backgard grill and the cookout; he has re-evoked the image of the hunter roasting his game by the open fire. Can the chef who regales his friends with charcoal-broiled steaks protest that he will burn his fingers if he grills a frankfurt on the kitchen hotplate.

Now that the neighborhood market presents him with prepared frozen foods from clam chowder to sliced turkey to coconut pie, can he plead inability to read the defrosting directions? Or while Mom is dumping sand out of mildewed sneakers and warning Junior to take his sunning within reason, will Dad forget to turn on the air conditioner?

Don't bother to worry about the summer bachelor. He "never had it so good".

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

AFTER YOU ARE FORTY

A man's greatest creative work should be done after he is forty. Before that he is but laying a foundation for the structure which shall be indicative of all that he is able to be.

It is significant that the majority who have not built a strong foundation by the time they are forty are the ones to whom failure and disappointment come. Some of the most successful men — indeed probably a majority — do not attain great renown until after that age. But they are at school and at work before that.

There is a feeling among many that if they are earning well and having a good time in their thirties, they have little to worry about. But statistics show that these same men ten years later are the ones who are regretting and complaining of their lot and — ten years later — probably largely dependent upon others. The time to build and to save is before you are forty!

Then with your ripened knowledge and experience you may expand, grow and enjoy as well. The time for rest is when your work is finished — speaking in the figurative sense. Though to the real producer, his work is never finished!

Have an account at some bank to which you keep adding something regularly. Take systematic exercise every day. Get your full eight hours of sleep — and go to it unworried. Read, absorb, have sound friends and keep them. And keep educating your heart all the time.

Then, from forty on, you will be worth while to the world — and to yourself.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

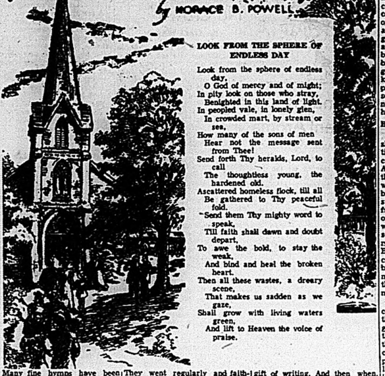
At a motel at which I was stopping overnight there was a large party of school teachers on their way home from a convention, and in the motel garden I got into some of their conversation. The most arresting thing that came up was the difference between the school discipline problem in downtown schools as compared with that of suburban schools in what are described as well-to-do districts.

Several of the teachers, both women and men, had taught in both downtown and suburban high schools. And they were not only unanimous but emphatic in declaring their experience.

"Discipline in high schools in comfortable suburban areas has become a serious and in some instances a rather desperate problem," they said. "The pupils are not only without interest in study and determined to have it soft in all possible ways, but their parents back them up when you attempt to discipline them. In the downtown schools, on the other hand, where you have often a good sprinkling of children of foreign born parents as a basis of behavior towards education, there is hardly any problem at all. Disturbers, if any, are dealt with very effectively by the pupils themselves. And parents back up the staff close to a hundred per cent. Copyright: Canada Wide

Stories of Famous Hymns

by HORACE B. POWELL



LOOK FROM THE SPHERE OF ENDLESS DAY

Look from the sphere of endless day,
O God of mercy and of might;
In pity look on those who stray,
Benighted in this land of light.
In peopled vale, in lonely glen,
In crowded mart, by stream or sea,
How many of the sons of men
Hear not the message sent from Thee!
Send forth Thy heralds, Lord, to call
The thoughtless young, the hardened old.
Ascattered homeless flock, till all
Be gathered to Thy peaceful fold.
Send them Thy mighty word to speak,
Till faith shall dawn and doubt depart,
To awe the bold, to stay the weak,
And bind and heal the broken heart.
Then all these wastes, a dreary scene,
That makes us sadden as we gaze,
Shall grow with living waters green,
And lift to Heaven the voice of praise.

Many fine hymns have been written to speed the cause of Christian foreign missions. This one, turned out in 1840 by America's distinguished and beloved poet, William Cullen Bryant, does the same for home missions.

It is one of several popular hymns which Bryant has left us. Another of his songs which opens with the line, "Thou whose unmeasured temple stands", was written for the dedication of a New York church edifice.

The poet was born in a typical New England Puritan home in Cummington, Massachusetts on November 3, 1794. His parents were devout church members. They went regularly and faithfully to public worship and they also held daily family devotions at home — in which William participated.

The lad's father had some of the world's best poetry in his library and William was taught to memorize poems and hymns. When he was only five years old, it is said, he used to climb upon a chair and recite many of the hymns of Dr. Isaac Watts for "make-believe" audiences.

Memorizing poems made the boy want to write verses for himself. Long before anyone dreamed that he had any literary talent, he used to pray for the gift of writing. And then when, as a youth of 17, he wrote his immortal poem. "Thanatopsis", the world knew that another literary genius had begun his career.

A Lift for Living

Belonging Brings Us Security

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

One day the taxicab in which I was riding got caught in a traffic jam, and those who live in large cities know that jam means something less pleasant than Grandmother's preserves.

I looked out of the window on a little sea of confusion: gesturing drivers, scurrying pedestrians, anxious and even frightened faces. But in the midst of the jostling group was a boy about five holding his father's hand. His big blue eyes were like two calm pools in the surging tide. He was not scared. He was not worried. He was looking around in untroubled confidence. Why? He was secure in the hand of the one to whom he belonged. He was his father's boy, and his father was with him.

Great is the security derived from belonging to a family. I recall well the words written to me by a friend at the time of my father's death. He said that when a man's father dies, it is like moving up to the front-line trench in a battle zone. The defenses ahead of you are removed. In the struggle of life when we have to make difficult decisions, don't we often look longingly back to the days when we belonged to our parents and enjoyed security behind their front-line facing of responsibilities?

DESIRE TO BELONG

Why do youths join gangs and become delinquents? Because the family tie is often too weak to give them a sense of belonging. And why these all-too numerous teenage marriages? Again, one reason is that the family does not adequately answer their desire to belong.

Belonging to a nation also gives a sense of security. In the summer of 1946, a member of our Red Cross delegation to Russia was a prominent Jewish philanthropist, Louis Levine. When we reached Prague he went out at midnight to the Polish border where poor Jewish refugees were being smuggled out of Poland. He told me how he waited in the dark until there emerged from the blackness the bedraggled fugitives, frightened and desperate. The Czechoslovak government at that time winked its eye at the practice and was willing to let the refugees pass through their territory. But where were they to go? They were people without a country.

We are just ending what was designated as Refugee Year. The sympathy of the western world was stirred by the plight of hundreds of thousands of displaced persons without citizenship in lands of their own. The future fruit of such existence is fearful to contemplate.

No insecurity is more acute than that of "not belonging." The orphan without a family, the boy ostracized by his crowd, the man without a country — all these feel a lack of support which leaves them weakened.

A person without fellowship is like a fish out of water. A person cannot work absolutely alone. All effective work involves some cooperation. A man cannot play alone for long. Sometimes on the golf course I see a man playing around by himself; there have been times when I felt it would be less embarrassing to play golf by myself. But no game keeps its zest without fellow players. I have often seen persons playing solitaire but I have never heard one break into a hearty laugh of real enjoyment.

HONOR OF SERVICE

What keeps the crews on our ships at their dangerous posts in times of storm? Something we call "the honor of the service." And where does it come from — this honor of service, this spirit which sends a policeman into a burning building to save a stranger, which keeps men faithful to their oath in the service of others? Well, I submit to you without argument that honor of service and oaths of loyalty mean little without belief in God. By drawing closer to God, we come closer to our fellow men because we ourselves become more fit to live with, and that is the first point to watch in the matter of fellowship.

This business of belonging becomes ever more important as the pressure of our mass living grows. The recent census reveals the civic pride of our people in the growth of their towns and cities. But as cities grow, the per capita civic interest tends to lessen. One challenge of our time is to preserve individual interest and responsibility.

We must cultivate the spirit of community. When a person feels he belongs to a community and has a stake in its home life, its school life, its church life, he is immune to the Communist germ. The spirit of community is just about our best defense against communism.

We are made to belong to something bigger than ourselves.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter James Annis are pictured cutting the wedding cake following their marriage in Holloway Street United Church, Belleville. The bride is the former Miss Lynda Marie Bush, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Bush, of Belleville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. James Annis of Belleville, and the late Mrs. Annis. (Photo by William E. Riley, Belleville.)

ANNIS — BUSH

Tall standards of mauve and yellow gladioli, yellow and white Shasta daisies, interspersed with ferns, formed a lovely background in Holloway Street United Church, Belleville, on Saturday, July 16, at high noon, when the Reverend C. W. Coleman, pastor of the church, assisted by the Reverend J. Rhampos, of Ottawa, united in marriage, Lynda Marie Bush, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Bush of Belleville, to Peter James Annis, also of Belleville, son of Mr. James Annis, of Belleville, and the late Mrs. Annis, in a double-ring ceremony.

The wedding music was rendered by the church organist, Mr. Clifford Templer, who accompanied the soloist, Mr. Alfred Hughes, of Belleville, as he sang the "Wedding Prayer" before the ceremony, and "Where'er Thou Walkest," during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the lovely bride wore an enchanting, floor-length gown of white silk bombezine, richly appliqued and re-embroidered with French lace motifs on molded bodice and bouffant skirt, cascading into a cloud-of-silk chapel train. Her waist-length veil of silk tulle illusion bordered by wide scalloped lace, was held by a matching pill-box tiara of scalloped open lace-edge and sprinkled with seed pearls. She carried a cascade of tawny-gold roses.

She was attended by Miss Barbara Annis of Toronto, as maid of honor; Mrs. John Mikulshi of Buffalo, N.Y., and Miss Josephine Mascara of Belleville, as senior bridesmaids, and Miss Carol Bucher, Belleville, as junior bridesmaid. The maid of honor and the senior bridesmaids were gowned alike in white eyelet silk organza over mauve taffeta in waltz-length, with wide mauve cummerbunds having back bows, and streamers to the hemlines. They wore white tulle picture hats with matching mauve back bows and carried yellow and white 'mums tied with rainbow-tinted ribbons. The junior bridesmaid wore a gown of mauve silk organza, mauve floral headdress and carried a nosegay of white and yellow 'mums.

Little Miss Susan Dolan, of Belleville, was a sweet flower girl in her white silk organza frock over mauve taffeta, with floral headband in matching mauve and carrying a nosegay of white and yellow baby 'mums.

The bridegroom was attended by Mr. Peter Zegouras, of Belleville, while Messrs. T. Annis of Kingston, cousin of the bridegroom, and Marvin Millard, of Belleville, ushered the guests.

The reception was held at the Belleville Shrine Club, where mauve and white streamers, complemented by standards of large mauve 'mums, mingled with baby yellow, white and mauve pom-poms, adorned the rooms.

The bride's table, with its white damask cloth, and three-tier, all-white, swan-pillared wedding cake, topped by a single mauve orchid beneath a heart-shaped arch, misted about the base with white tulle entwined with English ivy and baby mauve 'mums, flanked by tall mauve candles in silver holders, and the bridal bouquets made a charming nuptial picture.

The bride's mother, gowned in a Ceil Chapman creation of pure silk rosepoint lace in soft beige tone, with beige hat and accessories, and Talisman rose corsage, received. Assisting in the receiving line was the bridegroom's cousin, Mrs. S Johnson of Napanee, who wore a powder-blue gown of nylon and lace with blue accessories and corsage of pink Sweetheart roses.

Following the reception, the young couple left for Las Vegas, San Francisco, and Hollywood, California, via plane, the bride travelling in a mauve and white printed silk sheath with mauve silk duster, white accessories and mauve orchid corsage. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Annis will reside at 220 Foster Avenue, Belleville.

Guests were present from Hamilton, Aylmer, Peterborough, Kingston, Napanee, Picton, Buffalo, N.Y., Trenton, Toronto and Belleville.

Previous to her marriage the bride was entertained at a personal shower with Miss Josephine Mascara as hostess, and at a crystal and linen shower with Mrs. Pred Wannamaker as hostess, and Mrs. Bill Rollins as co-hostess.

Wedding

FRIZZONE — KING

A very pretty wedding was solemnized recently by Major Victor Greenwood, of the Salvation Army, at the Citadel, Belleville, when Pauliene Patricia King, of Belleville, R. R. 4, daughter of Mrs. (Marion) Everett King, of Belleville, and the late Mr. King, became the bride of Lewis Gerald Frizzone, also of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Frizzone. White chrysanthemums and roses formed a pretty background for the ceremony.

Mrs. Greenwood provided the wedding music, and during the signing of the register, Miss Enid Cooper, soloist, sang, "How Jesus Graced the Marriage Feast."

Given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Roy Wright, the bride was charming in her street-length gown of white nylon over satin with shoulder-length veil of tulle illusion held by a coronet headdress. She carried a cascade bouquet of red roses.

She was attended by her sister, Miss Marlene King, who wore a street-length gown of blue nylon over satin with white accessories, and corsage of pink roses.

Mr. Ronald Tapp, of Belleville, attended the bridegroom.

The reception was held at the home of the bridegroom's aunt, Mrs. George Mathews, where the bride's mother received the guests, wearing a white- blue-flowered nylon with white accessories, and corsage of yellow roses. Assisting in receiving was the bridegroom's mother, attired in light blue lace over taffeta with blue accessories, and corsage of red roses.

The bride's table was prettily appointed with the traditional white damask, and centred by a three-tier wedding cake flanked by white tapers in silver holders, and surrounded by sprays of roses and carnations.

For the wedding trip to Niagara Falls, the bride chose blue taffeta with white accessories, with corsage of red roses.

A shower honoring the bride was held, previous to her marriage, at the home of the bridegroom's aunt, Mrs. George Mathews, Charles Street; a presentation was also held at the Hawkins' Company by the bride's co-workers when she was the recipient of an electric iron. The bridegroom was also honored by his co-workers at the Bata Shoe Factory when he was presented with an electric clock.

Guests were present from Toronto, Crystal Beach, Marmora, Ivanhoe, and Hamilton.

Mr. and Mrs. Frizzone will reside at 123 Stanley Street, Belleville.

Bride-Elect Presented With Gifts

Twenty-five friends and neighbors recently gathered at the home of Mrs. John Wannamaker, R. R. No. 1 Consecon, to shower a bride-elect, Miss Marjorie Cannons.

The evening's entertainment consisted of games and contests. Later on, the bride-to-be received a corsage, was seated in a decorated chair and opened her gifts. They included a 32-piece set of stemware and a matched set of canisters.

Delicious refreshments followed. Co-hostesses, Mrs. Elsie Blake, Mrs. Douglas Wannamaker, and Mrs. Ed Cannons helped to make the evening a success.

Tourists in Norway Find Fish Canneries Have Pleasant Aroma

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

Stavanger, Norway — If you've got a can of imported sardines around, chances are you'll find the name of this port on it. And thereby hangs a fish tale.

Trolling around here for a story that wouldn't smell fishy, we hooked onto Christian Bjelland and Co., Norway's largest canners, whose "King Oscar" brand is probably the world's best known — not surprising in view of the fact that about 98 per cent of their daily product of up to 20,000,000 canned fish is exported. The plant here is only one of 11 Bjelland canneries, and if you want to figure out how many fish are packed in like sardines here each year, you'll have to herring-bone up on higher mathematics. But there have not been many that got away.

A FISH STORY

Depending on season, three types of fish are hauled in from the Gulfstream-warmed waters of the North Sea. All are called sardines usually, but that's something of a fish story; only the tiny Brisling really are, the medium-sized being a kind of herring and the large ones kippers.

Whatever they are, they all wind up in the can after a series of ultra-modern hygienic processes that are exposed to touring visitors once a week. Few are prepared for the most surprising aspect of the cannery: Not only are gas masks unnecessary, but a delicious aroma of olive oil and oak smoking pervades the plant. On emerging, most visitors head straight for the nearest Stavanger's abundant retail stores to load up, at prices well below those at home.

Stavanger is at the base of the fiord country, across the southern tip of Norway from Oslo. In between lies some of the most primitively spectacular country in the world — deep land erosions where the ocean has gouged its way far inland, flowing sometimes hundreds of feet below mountain lakes and glaciers. These vast swamps of snow melt only enough in summer to produce dramatic towering cascades of water that are often the only sounds in the windless shelter of the mountains.

With its humpy hills and salt-box houses, Stavanger looks much like parts of Maine and Nova Scotia. A pleasant and peaceful city of bicycle-wide medieval streets, somewhat away from Europe's main stream, there is still time here for the police to stop traffic and escort nesting ducks and their broods from the noisy harbor to quiet Lake Bredevannet in the centre of town for a tranquil lying-in.

HAIR-RAISING TRIP

They told us the way to see the fiord country was to proceed by bus and ferry across the mountains to Bergen, an adventure we found as hair-raising and hilarious as it was scenic. The drivers who ply these unpaved mountain trails high above the wandering ocean ought to receive extra pay for hardship duty and be promptly dispatched to King Olaf for a medal after each leg.

You'd think they have enough to do just staying on the road, squeezing through rock tunnels and under precariously balanced boulders, backing up half a kilometer to let another vehicle by, jamming on their brakes to permit meandering livestock to cross the road and whipping around hairpin turns with the agility of sports car drivers. But they also deliver and pick up mail at every hamlet, stop to let passengers take pictures, pull up to lonely quays to see if the ferry has deposited anyone there, and have even been known to get out and help farmers wrestle with milk cans.

For those travellers who can keep their eyes off the road, the views are as advertised. It is difficult to imagine the majesty of the fiords until you see something that underscores man's minuteness — a lonely patch of green farm deep in an isolated valley far below the road, or the wake of a ship that turns out to be a huge liner somehow seen through the wrong end of a telescope.

The awsome mood of nature that is the towering fiord country ends brightly in Bergen. A new-old city of soaring views, it has been blown up and burned down so many times that the hills arching around the harbor are now the chief remaining identification with old Bergen.

RETAINS CHARM

But despite its newness, Bergen retains a charm of many facets. The great shipbuilding yards and busy harbor dominate it from one angle, but smack up against them stands Bryggen, one of the largest intact sections of wooden medieval buildings and streets to be found anywhere. Just beyond the lovely modern shopping square of Torgalmenning is Sydneshaugen, a cloistered old neighborhood of hilly streets and intriguing stone buildings.

Bergen also boasts what may be Norway's best hotel, the Bristol, unique in that its able young Swiss-trained manager, Finn Carlsen, managed to talk the owners into doing something considered daring in Europe these days — redecorating the place in the same old comfortable and tasteful Victorian style it was born with.

Carlsen belongs to the classic school of hotel operators who greet guests at the door, show them to their rooms and keep file cards indicating their preferences in food and accommodations — as well as whether the management sees fit to let them darken its door again.

It's all very refreshing in this era of cold hotel management and colder decor, and another reason why few travellers to Bergen run out to visit the suburban village of Paradise (where, incidentally, you can buy a railroad ticket to Hell, near Trondheim). Bergen, they're likely to feel, is Paradise now.

No Cross, No Crown

By ALMA MASON

So many of us as we stumble along through life ask ourselves over and over: "Why, why must I suffer physical ills? Why must I know poverty when my neighbor lives in luxury? Why must I be subjected to death and disaster?"

We persist in concentrating on material well-being and physical perfection, repeatedly forgetting that we cannot take wordly acquisitions and physical beauty into God's other world. The only acceptable bounty we will be allowed to contribute to the hereafter will be an unblemished and thriving soul.

Grief and disaster, sorrow and pain have been bequeathed us through Christ's own earthly persecutions and untimely and terrible death. He told us to take up a cross if we follow Him and gain a home in His Heavenly Kingdom. After pondering this wise counsel left us by Jesus, why should we think that we should be exempt from pain and suffering?

Moral excellence has never been attained by soft and safe living. The direst peril of this era is that most of us are more concerned wth the gross and inferior metal of irresolute and ignoble concentration on self than we are with the silver ore or spiritual infinity and selflessness.

Sensual pleasures, money and ease and physical fitness have never combined forces to fashion a great soul.

Trouble is deeply engraved on every human heart. The reason for human suffering should not be obscure or enigmatic. Difficulty usually increases spiritual fortitude.

Why should we expect sunshine all the way? A cloudy day alerts us more to the glowing loveliness of a golden gossamer day when it dawns.

Perhaps we gaze at the sorrows, at the physical imperfections of others as we say, "Why does God let her suffer so? Why is she left on this earth, a burden to others?"

What an exasperating and empty world this would be, indeed, without our patient martyrs! Where would we obtain the strength to endure our own miseries without encountering the pain borne patiently by another soul?

GLOWING SOUL

I count among my treasured friends a little lady in a wheel chair. She possess a glowing and ever expanding soul. Her sunny Christian philosophy lights every dark corner of her hospital room; her cheerful faith impregnates and enhances all who fortunately visit her or her sick companions.

There is a driving impulsiveness about her rich faith that leaves an indelible imprint on the hearts of her many friends. There is a patient bowing to God's will; a dependent acceptance of God's plan that is seldom to be found in a sturdy body. Her spiritual life may be on the wane — but her place in the needs of God's Kingdom here on this earth is important and extensive.

A few years ago a merry, carefree girl was struck with a car when returning from work. She never walked again. Some of her friends remarked it would have been much better had she died.

She met the cutting down of her physical life head-on with courage, and rapidly developed spiritual qualities she had never before known.

She had the words of the Lord to Joshua, "Be strong and of good courage for the Lord thy God is with thee", inscribed on parchment where she could see them from her bed of pain.

For 12 years as her many friends visited her, they too absorbed the soul strength of the motto.

One young girl said, "Madeline, you have given us all a quality of coursage we never knew existed in the world before. We were all heedless and happy and self-absorbed. You have blessed and changed our lives with an awareness of the true meaning and purpose of existence".

Madeline replied, "One does not have to be brave alone. God is always with us".

Why must we suffer? Because God need faith and bravery shining through the dark webs of pain to light a silvery lamp to guide us on. So often when the physical body is bludgeoned and subjected to torture, a magnificent faith emerges to guide the weary and heavy laden to the very gates of eternal life.

A smile shone from a bed of pain
And, like a rainbow ray,
It sent me forth with hope again
And strength to bless the day.

A softly uttered word, "Take heart,
For God is always near"
Gave me a fresh, courageous start
And filled the hours with cheer.

The purest love pours from a soul
Immersed in grief and loss,
And Godly faith, enduring, whole,
Shines from a lowly cross.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Mrs. S. J — We want to talk to the boy's parents.

May J. — They have no right to interfere.

Mrs. S. J. — I recently learned that my 20-year-old daughter, a junior in college, is deeply involved in an affair with a boy her own age.

This young man is being supported through college by his wealthy parents who have made him promise he will not marry until he completes his studies. May is deeply in love with him and is willing to wait.

I feel this is a terrible situation and I want my husband to go to John's parents and discuss it with them. Perhaps if they knew May and realized how unhappy these kids are, they would consent to an immediate marriage. But May has even threatened suicide if we do such a thing.

May J. — This is my life and I feel my parents have no right to interfere. At the time they could have helped me — in my early teens — they did nothing. I was lonely, had no dates and could have used their advice, but all I got from them was criticism.

At last I have now found love and I don't want them or anyone else doing anything to upset this relationship. If John's parents find out about this, they could take him out of our college and send him elsewhere.

I am willing to wait for marriage until John completes his studies. But we are so much in love we can't go on just seeing one another on ordinary dates. This way we are sure of one another.

The Council: The S.J.'s appear eager to promote this marriage, but they have little chance of success. Even if they could succeed, there are many indications that they would not be doing the right thing for their daughter's happiness.

At 20, this young man, who is still a student and completely dependent upon his parents, is unprepared for marriage. He may think he wants it, knowing it is an impossibility for many years. But it is questionable whether he would want it if it were handed to him at this moment. And it is even more questionable whether he has the emotional maturity to carry through a successful marriage with a girl who is basically as immature and frightened as he is.

May reveals that she is filled with resentment toward her parents and has completely unrealistic dreams for the future. These are certain signs that the relationship has gotten off to a very bad start. Her fear of losing John is evident. At bottom, she must know that her chances of holding on to him for four or more years are slim. She has sought to bind him by giving herself physically, but she has little assurance that this will work.

The S.J.'s cannot completely control their daughter at this age, but they do still have some power. They don't have to send her back to the college at which she is involved in this destructive relationship. This kind of control, however, is not enough. May needs a close, warm relationship with her parents and a much better understanding of what is involved in marriage and the relations between the sexes. This should be the goal for May — not marriage at the present time.

This - - - and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

Selling seasons seem to get more mixed up every year. Flannels are selling in mid-year for the summer cottage trade; cotton and blends are selling in the fall, and summer dainties are sought in December for southern travellers. It is often difficult for the shopper who is still buying for summer to get any kind of selection as the winter stock is being put out.

About those fall styles for women, most dresses have a normal waistline but there is also a trend toward the long torso look. This may be suggested in the contoured belts, fitted or semi-fitted bodices with pleats or fullness springing from the hipline.

Blouses are important in the three-piece suite; often in the overblouse style they are in matching or co-ordinated fabrics. Jackets are semi-fitted in front, loose at the back and hipbone length. Fur collars are staging a comeback on both suits and coats. Look for coats with cape backs, and with more width than last season.

Most women designers have put the hemline about two inches below the knee, but many of the men have it at the bend of the knee. Suits with culotte skirts have made their appearance, but time will tell if this becomes popular.

Canadian textiles are changing and improving and are making more and more inroads on the markets of the older countries. They have much more to offer in ways of good behavior, such as better washability, dyeing qualities, textures, patterns and easy care. The new [illegible] nylon, especially created to blend with cotton, is a Samson among fibres with superior strength and abrasion resistance reported to give 70 per cent extra wear. Another fabric soon ready will be Antron, a new kind of all-nylon fibre with great opacity. this promises to be a big success in blouse and lingerie fabrics. Arnel, a big success for several seasons, blends with worsted finishes to produce cosy fabrics. Another coming fibre is Darvan with all the virtues and none of the short-comings of wool — light warm, shrink-proof and washable.

Because of modern fabrics, we are told that wall-to-wall carpeting in the bathroom is the latest luxury. Decorators say that easy-to-clean nylon floor coverings are practical and inexpensive.

The other night we were watching a serial in which a boy brought home an old bird cage that he had found in a neighbor's junk can. Mother was horrified, but she evidently had not read the following: "If you have an old bird cage in the attic or basement, ladies, you had better get it out and look at it with an appreciative eye, for here's a suggestion on how to make good use of it. Why not convert it into an ivy container? First of all, scrub it clean and straighten any bent wires. Then give it a coat of aluminum paint to hide the chips and rust. Next paint it again with white or black enamel. When the paint dries, plant a wide low flower pot with ivy or philodendron and set it in place on the bottom of the cage When you attach the top of the cage, gently coax the strands of ivy through the wires You can train some strands up over the cage or allow others to grow downward. Now you have a beautiful new plant decoration for your den or living-room."

Here is a thought for us which was read recently: "Tranquillity is not gained through tranquillizers. It is something which has to be cultivated. It comes a bit at a time. As the poet says, 'Heaven is not reached by a single bound; we build the ladder by which we rise, from the lowly earth to the vaulted skies, and we mount to the summit round on round'."

MODERN MANNERS

Carolyn Hagner Shaw

ARE MANNERS TOO OLD-FASHIONED?

Recently I received a rather disparaging letter from a ruffled reader. It was an interesting letter, written in a friendly manner, but the writer, a woman, disagreed with some of the things I've said. She wrote "You should realize that today's fast-moving life has no place for the snobbery, the starch and frills that were the code for society in leisurely bygone days. Today personal popularity is a matter of having appearance, personality, a sense of humor, a friendly disposition and a lot of vigor. These are the things that count more than courtly manners or a heart of gold."

Frankly, I don't quite agree. "Pretty is as pretty does," our mothers used to say. And personal salesmanship depends more, I think, on "Manners" than on any other single factor. The basis of all social behavior, after all, is simply thought of others. For example, we don't eat with our fingers because to do so is to perform an unsightly act before others.

Good manners can be the key to a well-rounded and, therefore, well-liked person. Superficial manners and insincerities will not result in popularity. I agree with the reader's sentiments about the value of having a good appearance, a friendly disposition and, above all, a sense of humor. But to conform to conventional behavior is not, in my opinion, snobbery. It's just common sense. As I have said before, not to do so is to estrange one's self from society.

All of us can acquire manners and learn to think in terms of the other fellow first. The most dazzling beauty or the most perfect grooming count for little when social graces are lacking. I think the old-fashioned, expressive terms of "the perfect lady" or "the perfect gentleman" are much more commendable descriptions than "a perfect beauty" or "a perfect card."

Long Evening Dress Back In Full Glory

NEW YORK (AP)—New York fashion designers are predicting the most dressed-up season in the last 20 years.

They've brought back the long evening dress in all its glory. Small fortunes have been invested in lavish, imported fabrics to give it a proper welcome.

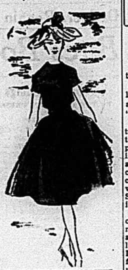
Roxane, who recently won a fashion award for her glitter gowns, spared neither bead nor sequin. As climax of the showing came a series of long evening gowns in exclusive souffle lame brocades and silk damasks and evening coats solidly encrusted with jeweled embroidery or smothered in furs like albino fox.

Their brilliance and $2,000 price tags, roughly took the play away from excellent Roxane clothes shown earlier: Coat costumes of dress or two-piece suit with coat; princess silhouetted coat dresses.

Black Beauty



By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

Simple but smartly effective dresses grace the stores right now, dresses that would be perfect for a summer wedding, a dinner party or any dress-up occasion.

This example is of black organza over taffeta. The bodice has a high, round neckline and short, set-in sleeves. The set-in belt has a bow in back, while the gathered, flared skirt has a wide, stiffened hem.

Here is a fine foil for colorful accessories, yet it is extremely smart unadorned.

Herrington Reunion Held In Hastings

CAMPBELLFORD — The Herrington family reunion was held in Hastings, the birthplace of the family, on Saturday last. The weather was fine and a ball game was held in the afternoon between the Herrington and the Hastings team, with Hastings being the winners with a score of 17-14. The children ran races and received prizes. Mrs. Herrington was presented with a corsage of white carnations.

It was the first time so many of the family have been together in 13 years. The parents and ten of their 12 children attended and 23 of their 25 grandchildren aged 14 years to four months, Lunch and dancing took place in Hastings Town Hall.

Those present were the parents: Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Herrington; Mrs. Jesse Anderson and Bill of Havelock; Mrs. Lloyd Baker, Bill, Garry and Denise of Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Jim Herrington, Patsy and Joanne of Ottawa; Mrs. Edmund Hay, Nancy and Allen John, R. R. 3, Campbellford; Mr. and Mrs. Bill Herrington, Sandy, Randy, Karen and Cathy of Niagara Falls, Ont.; Mr. Jack Herrington and Miss Alison Howe of Toronto; Mr. Murray Herrington of Whitby; Mr. Frank Herrington and Mark of Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Andre Clermond, Paul, Linda, Dianne, Danny, Michele and Philip of Quebec; Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Herrington, Donna, David, Deborah and Danny of Campbellford, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Herrington of Detroit, Mich.

CHAIRS, BOTH STRAIGHT AND ROCKING

Part Two

Do you notice that when one has a day of leisure, it seems twice as long as other days?

Therefore, if a man can spend all his days in leisure during a life of seventy years, he will practically have lived one hundred and forty. That's an easy way of achieving a long life".—from "The Gay Genuis" by Lin Yutang.

"Yes, I've learned what Voltaire meant when he said that the use of leisure posed a real problem in man's life," a friend in Montreal told us, referring to an experience she had once encountered at this same Agriculture State College, which we were visiting in Logan, Utah. She had described it most vividly:

"As a teacher of home economics, I was asked one summer to give a series of lectures at Utah's Agriculture State College in Logan. On weekends, I discovered everyone on the faculty staff fled the campus to visit friends or go on camping trips in the Canyon. They returned refreshed, for another week's teaching, while staying in the dormitory rooms, comfortable enough, all fitted with Yale locks.

"One weekend, I was invited to visit some friends in Salt Lake City. It was a Saturday morning and everyone else had gone their various ways the night before. I was the only one in the whole dormitory.

"Before dressing, I decided to take a shower. Leaving my door ajar, I headed down the corridor with only my dressing gown around me, armed with sponge and towel.

"Upon showering, I hurried back along the corridor just as a sudden gust of wind swept through it. A sudden alarm gripped me. I tore like mad. I remembered I had failed to snick the lock and hadn't my key with me. But it was too late.

"The door banged in my face'

"I was completely helpless. Not a soul around, until nightfall, when the night watchman would make his rounds.

"If ever you feel time rushes by too quickly, try spending a whole Saturday in a corridor, wrapped only in your dressing-gown. I guarantee it will be one time you'll find that time can crawl! And oh, what I'd have given for a rocking chair."

No doubt, her Quebec background accounts for that wish. Quebecers are notoriously fond of them. The rocking chair plays an important role in the home life and are found on the verandah of every house throughout the province, however modest or imposing. Even early morning, finds their owners rocking contentedly in them.

And when we saw a very up-to-date anniversary card featuring a rocking chair with words "cause you two are so happy, it really appears you'll be still going strong in your rockin' chair years", could it be, we wondered, that rocking chairs are becoming fashionable through out the continent? If so what magic does such a chair possess?

According to John Gould (who frequently comments on the ways of yesterday and today), rocking chairs are a wonderful vehicle in which to spent one's leisure time. He suggests, since we live in a muddled sort of world, where life is one mad rush, push and pace, so that all mankind is flung in the midst of a kind of "furious functional pursuit of unrelenting urgencies" there is, he claims, a need for counter balance; since every action must have its equal and opposite reaction. So voila! This is the prime law of rocking chairs. They succor that need of a kind of journey that goes nowhere, allow reflections undisturbed and serene, since rocking whisks one one into a happy realm.

Rocking chairs are made to live in, not just to sit on, Mr. Gould goes on, and since one can't rock and look at TV even, "this thorough unification into absolute nothingness is the medication" people need in our highly functionalized world.

"You can't rock and do anything else", claims Mr. Gould, though he admits some women do tat and rock, but this is due to long practise which is some sort of an achievement. No, he says, when you rock you go off into a sort of delightful hiatus and lose track of things and when somebody speaks to you, you return from far away and have to stop rocking and say "What?"

So perhaps we shall all owe Mr. Benjamin Franklin an added debt of gratitude for ever having invented the rocking chair in the first place!

QUESTION:

This is an S.O.S. for the Pot-Pourri recipe. I clipped it out some time ago, in fact I made some three years ago and it has only just lost its fragrance. Now I want to make some more, in fact have the rose leaves drying with salt, but cannot find the recipe anywhere. Perhaps there are others who would like it at this time of year too. Just want to tell you I have been cooking beef your slow method and must say it is tops. We like ours juicy and a little bit rare. Also the last recipe for pot-roast was superb . . . Mrs. E. D.

ANSWER:

Thank you for your kind comments. Here is the recipe you request.

POTPOURRI DELIGHT:

One quart rose petals (red and deep pink), 3 rosebuds (deep red), 2 small daisies (yellow), 6 violets (African or blue), 6 mint leaves, 4 rose geranium leaves, 1 fern leaf (for decoration), 1 tablespoon dried orange peel (crushed), 1 tablespoon each of: ginger, cinnamon, ground cloves, nutmeg, allspice, 2 tablespoons orris root (crushed), 5 drops oil of jasmine, 2 pounds sand or fine aquarium gravel, 1-2 cup kitchen salt.

DRYING METHOD:

Dry rosebuds, daisies and violets whole in separate box from leaves and other petals. Keep boxes of drying flowers away from sunlight and drafts. Dry until petals are crisp.

MIXING METHOD:

Place rose petals, daisies and whole violets in large bowl. Add orris root (a fixative for petal scents and oils), blend with spices, orange peel, crushed mint and rose geranium leaves, 1-2 cup salt and the jasmine oil. Add bits of fern leaf for decoration. Pack in jars or other containers and seal tightly. For extra fragrance, seal the petals, after drying and before mixing, in quart jars with 2 tablespoons salt. Let stand for three weeks and then mix as above with other ingredients.

THANK YOU NOTE FROM MARY MOORE:

On June 25th, a letter from one of our readers, Mrs. R. M., requested a Blue Ribbon cookbook. To date I have received about one dozen letters giving coupons for or offering to sell copies of the Blue Ribbon cookbook. I have forwarded these to Mrs. R. M. I hope she will write thanking these readers. However I want to thank you for your quick response. It is heartening to know you always will come to my rescue when an S.O.S. is sent out.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Don't look now but the "little world series" of the Belleville District Softball League could be a repeat of the 1959 edition.

The Bobcats, showing plenty of power at the plate and with a balanced mound staff, have tucked away the circuit bunting. And signs at the moment indicate their adversaries for the playoffs bauble could be the rejuvenated Merchants from Cobourg.

Of courses anything can happen. Take last season fr-instance. Who would have bet or believed the young Trenton team would have roared behind a 3.0 deficit to take the next four games and eliminate and humiliate the powerful Ox Pointers from Point Anne.

The Trenton Hallorans, away to a flying start, slumped somewhat in the latter stages and finished the schedule with 21 points, but are still a potential threat for second place honors.

The Merchants, with 17 points, have two games to play and must win both to draw even with the Hallorans. This would necessitate a playoff for the runner-up spot and on present form the Cobourg clan should take it. That is, if they get by Deseronto in both of their remaining games. Stranger things have happened.

Deseronto and the RCAF Flyers have mathematical chances to finish in the fourth playoff spot. Deseronto has seven points, one in front of the Flyers, and two games lef to play.

The Flyers have one game left, that with the Bobcats. This game might have been played last night. If it was and the Cats won, the Flyers are out.

On the other hand if the Flyers pulled out a win, it means Deseronto must win one of its remaining two games with Cobourg to claim the berth. In short, a win for Deseronto over Cobourg tonight will settle all play-off spots.

Should the finals series resolve itself into a sequence of jousts between the Bobcats and the Merchants, it could very well be, as we noted, a repetition of the sometimes red-hot duels of last season.

Then "Sleepy" returned to the pitching wars and the Merchants grabbed a new lease of life. Campbell got a well-earned rest while offensively the Merchants were led by Gary Goyer's fine thumping at the plate.

Perhaps we're taking too much for granted. After all, the playoffs see the first and fourth, and second and third teams battle it out for the finals. Second and third places are clinched for the Merchants and Trenton, either one way or the other.

Like last season, the Trenton club could develop into a chips-down club and scatter conjecture, prophecy, indications and whatnot to the four winds. While, perhaps, they have not shown it in the past two weeks or so, the potential is there and it could blast off anytime.

On past performance and paper the Cats appear to be the team to beat. Bobby Hunter, ace right-hander, is having a fine season, as is Bobby Green, topside southpaw. The "Ole Bearcat" Al Adams is the king of the bullpen while the new bridegroom from Picton way, Roger Chapman, will be available for league duties only.

With Bert Faulkner waving a magic wand at the plate, the Cats offensive power should be enough to turn the trick. Johnny Batchelor, Earl Cousins, Denny Haydon and Doug Hull are clouting the ball with consistency. Floyd Crawford is also holding up his end platewise.

The league powers-that-be are holding a confab Monday night at the CNRA starting 7.30 to draw up playoff dates. All clubs are requested to be on hand.

Jersey Scores Second Win Over Marlins

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Toronto, Buffalo and Richmond seem a cinch to get into the International League playoffs, but it is anyone's guess what team will snarl the last playoff berth. Jersey City, Rochester, Columbus, Montreal and Miami are separated by only five games.

At the moment Jersey City holds the spot with a measly one percentage point over Rochester thanks to a 5-3 victory over Miami Friday night. Columbus in sixth place, squeaked by Richmond 3-2. The Montreal at Toronto and Rochester at Buffalo games were rained out.

A four run uprising in the [illegible] that wiped out a 3-1 Miami lead gave the Jersey City club its second straight victory over the Marlins. Four hits accounted for the runs and knocked starter and loser Bunky Stewart out of the box. Andres Ayon, the second Jersey City [illegible] got credit for the win although Bob Miller came to his rescue in the ninth and ended the game by striking out the last two men.

Columbus scored its winning run against Richmond in the ninth on an error. Pinch runner Al Jackson was on third with two out when Roberto Herrera tapped an easy bounder back to Richmond pitcher Jim Bronstad. He got his glove on the ball, but it slid out and Bronstad fell down chasing it as Jackson raced home to end the game.

Jim Umbricht, who survived four Jet errors in the first two innings, pitched a five-hitter for his second win against three losses.

MOSS TO RACE SOON

LONDON Reuters) — Racing drivtr Stirling Moss, severely injured a month ago during practice for the Belgian Grand Prix, will return to racing circuits next week, it was disclosed Friday.

Moss, almost fully recovered from injuries that included two broken legs and crushed vertebrae, will try for the first time the new Grand Prix circuit at Brands Hatch, Southern England, Tuesday.

If rebuilding of the Lotus Formula One car in which he crashed has not been completed by Tuesday, Moss will take the wheel of the Cooper car he drove last year.

The Chicago White Sox, charging back from the grave, have streaked within .003 percentage points of the American League leading New York Yankees—the club that left 'em for dead.

The streaking Sox, tearing up their obituary that was typed by New York writers when the Yankees swept a four-game series at Chicago in mid-June, busted back for 18 hits and a rollicking, 11-5 romp in the opener of a four-game set at Yankee Stadium Friday night.

It was the sixth straight success for the Sox, their longest string of the season, and 20th in their last 28 games in their bid to shift the shroud to the Yankees. New York fits the part. The Yankees, who had won seven in a row from Chicago, now have lost 10 of their last 15.

WERTZ HAS THREE RBI

Third-place Cleveland stayed 2½ games back, losing 6-4 at Boston as Vic Wertz drove in four runs with a homer and two singles for the Red Sox. Baltimore's fourth-place Orioles, ending their home losing string at seven, trailed by three games after beating Detroit 2-1 with a pair of unearned runs. Kansas City netted six unearned runs in defeating Washington 9-4.

The White Sox, trailing by six games in fourth place on July 4, now have knocked 70 hits in five games. They've scored 47 runs in that spree, five of them in the fourth Friday night to beat Bob Turley (6-2), who had won six in a row.

Early Wynn, starting pitcher, singled in the first run of the frame, breaking a two-all tie. Minnie Minoso, who batted in three runs, clinched it with a two-run double as the Sox swung for five consecutive hits in the rally.

Bill Skowron, who hit into a doubleplay with the bases loaded in the fifth inning against winning reliever Frank Baumann (7-4), drove in two of the Yank runs. So did Tony Kubek. Skowron's 17th homer counted two in the second inning off Wynn, giving the Yanks' a 2-1 lead, and he tripled for his third hit and scored on Kubek's single in the eighth.

THREE-RUN HOMER

At Boston, Wertz walloped a three-run homer, his 11th, in the third inning for a 4-3 lead against loser Jim Grant (6-5), then singled home the winning run in the fifth. Ted Williams also homered for the Red Sox, his 15th and no. 507 of his career, behind winner Ike Delock (5-3). Jim Piersall, who went to the Indians in exchange for Wertz, hit two home runs and doffed his cap to the Red Sox bench and the pressbox. Ken Aspromonte of the Tribe stretched his hit streak through 19 games, but Vic Power's string was cut at 20.

Singles by Walt Dropo and Brooks Robinson and errors by Frank Bolling and Chico Fernander gave it to the Orioles and reliever Jack Fisher (6-8) who blanked the Tigers on six hits for seven frames. Pete Burnside (5-5) was the loser.

The A's wrapped it up with four unearned runs in the sixth at Washington, thanks to an error by Jim Lemon, who hit his 24th home run for the Senators. Dick Hall (6-7) was the winner with Ken Johnson's 3 2-3 innings of shutout relief. Hal Woodeshick (3-3) lost it.

Chisox Love That Man Roy Sievers

NEW YORK (AP) — Ask any member of Chicago White Sox who has been most responsible for their sweeping comeback in the American League race and the reply is "Roy Sievers".

"The guy has been a lifesaver for us", pinch-hitting expert Earl Torgeson said Friday. "He may not be our big man but he's the key man. We'll win this thing if nothing happens to him".

"Sievers has been the difference", said second baseman Nellie Fox. "The guy has given the club a big lift".

"I'm ready to play", said big first baseman Ted Kluszewski, who was on the injured list. "But how can I hope to get in the lineup the way that guy is going. He's brought this club back practically all by himself. And I hope he keeps it up".

Sievers, who established a high for the league by hitting safely in 21 straight games recently, has hit in 23 of his last 24 games, collecting 37 hits in 91 times at bat for a .406 mark to raise his average to .303 from .241.

The White Sox won 18 of their last 24 games to climb from fifth spot to a virtual tie with New York Yankees.

Yep, those Pittsburgh Pirates really were falling apart. They lost five of seven and their National League lead was chopped to a mere half-game over the Milwaukee Braves. But now, the Bucs are booming again, padding their lead to 2½ games once more.

Wilmer (Vinegar Bend) Mizell, shaky, but tough when things got rough, pitched the Pirates to a 4-1 victory at San Francisco Friday night. It was their second in a row after that slump that followed the all-star break.

The Braves, after winning seven in a row, dropped their second in succession, just barely missing with late home run power in an 8-7 loss at Chicago to the last place Cubs.

Los Angeles regained third place by beating Philadelphia 2-0 behind the four-hit, 14-strikeout pitching of right-hander Don Drysdale. St. Louis, just one point behind the Dodgers, defeated Cincinnati 8-3 as Curt Simmons pitched his first complete game since 1958.

Three runs in the fifth inning, capped by Bob Skinner's two-out, two-run single, brought the Pirates from behind in their fourth consecutive victory at Candlestick Park. Willie Mays hit his 19th home run for the Giants in the first inning, but Mizell (6-5) then blanked them on eight hits. He left seven runners stranded, fanning Willie Kirkland with the bases loaded in the third. Mike McCormick (9-6) was the losing pitcher.

Drysdale (8-10) tied the NL strikeout high for nine innings this season—fanning the last six men he faced—for his fourth straight victory and first shutout. Tony Taylor, who doubled with two-out in the third for their first safety, had two of the Phils' hits in their 12th whitewash of the year. Frank Howard's bases-empty home run, his 15th, beat Gene Conley (6-6) in the second inning. Drysdale leading the majors with 156 strikeouts, then doubled and scored on Norm Larker's sacrifice fly in the eighth against reliever Dick Farrell.

FINALLY FINISHES ONE

Simmons, the southpaw who was released by the Phils, gained a 2-0 record with his first complete game in nine starts since Sept. 1, 1958. He allowed six hits, including homers, by Frank Robinson and Willie Jones, but shut out the Reds after the third inning. The Cards scored three in the first, climaxed by Daryl Spencer's 12th home run, and then won it with two more in the third on doubles by Alex Grammas and Bob Nieman and a single by Stan Musial. Grammas now is hitting .223. Joe Nuxhall (1-5) was the loser.

Rookie Ron Santo drove in three runs for the Cubs, tagging relief pitcher Joey Jay for the clinching run with a solo homer, his second, in the seventh inning for an 8-3 lead. The Braves, who hit four home runs, then got to winning reliever Don Elston (6-4) for a two-run homer by Hank Aaron in the eighth and solo shots by Eddie Haas and Ed Mathews in the ninth before Joe Schaffernoth got Aaron for the last out.

Lew Burdette (10-5) was the loser, giving up a two-run homer by Ernie Banks, who remained deadlocked with Aaron for the NL lead with 27. Joe Adcock hit the other Milwaukee homer, off starter Mark Freeman.

Tucker Pulls Major Upset

Favored Balding Beaten In Millar

TORONTO (CP) — Three eastern professional golfers and one westerner met today as the $5,500 Millar Golf Trophy and n[illegible] play championship wound up[illegible] suburban Cedar Brae golf course.

Murray Tucker, 36-year-old pro from Toronto Rosedale who sidelined favored Al Balding met Bob Gray, a 51-year-old from Toronto Scarborough in one semi-final.

In the other, Bill Thompson of Vancouver's Marine Drive steps onto the fairways with Moe Norman the Kitchener - born fast playing pro from Sleepy Hollow course here.

Tucker pulled Friday's major upset when he came surging from behind to beat Balding in the afternoon round. Two down after the 15th hole, Tucker got one back with a par on the 16th, they halved the 17th, he got a birdie on the 18th to tie the match, then won with another birdie on the 19th.

THREE-TIME WINNER

Balding, a Millar winner in 1952, 1954 and 1958, knocked out Bill Kozak of Niagara Falls 4 and 3 in Friday's morning round to meet Tucker in the quarter final.

Tucker had beaten Alf Hill of Peterborough 1-up in the morning round when Hill three-putted the final hole from 50 feet. Previously Hill had knocked out defending champion Bob Cunningham Jr. of Toronto in the opening round.

Gray defeated Bill Mawhinney, a Vancouver-born pro now playing out of Toronto, 1-up and Toronto's Norm Smith 6 and 4.

Friday's quarter - finalist were at an added disadvantage when a violent rain storm delayed play for two hours.

EASY WINS

Thompson, last year's finalist, handled Jim Collins of Toronto 3 and 2 in Friday's morning round, then moved past Frank Whibley of Kitchener Westmount by the same score.

Norman, who was eliminated by Thompson on the 19th hole of last year's semi-final, had no trouble as he dumped Ross Babcock of Thornhill 2 and 1 and Johnny Henrick of London Highland 4 and 3.

Dick Borthwick of Hamilton who had created a major upset in defeating Ontario Open winner Winnipeg-born George Knudson of Toronto in the first round, bowed 4 and 3 to Smith Friday morning.

Riders Lose Star Centre

OTTAWA (CP)—Ottawa Rough Riders of the Big Four Football Union have lost Canadian centre Gerry Selinger through injury and regained import guard Tom Gunderman by persuasion.

General manager George Terlep said Friday Selinger aggravated an old knee injury in practice and may be out for the season. The lineman from Windsor had played three consecutive years with Riders.

Gunderman, who left Riders' training camp last week, agreed to return after a phone call to his home in Newton, N.J., Terlep said. He walked out of training camp last week.

Six-Man Merry-Go-Round

Italianos Win Over "Lions"

By GEO. H. CARVER
Sports Editor

The "lions" failed to make it in Memorial Arena's rope am[illegible]eatre last night.

Dino and Dominic Bravo, two handsome bronzed Italians, emerged triumphant from a flurry of arms and legs over Fred Atkins and Ivan Kalmikoff.

They did it with a neat trick. Perfectly timed "off-the-ropes" blast-offs, culminatng in twin drop-kicks, flattened the "lions" effectively. Dino and Dominic pinned them to the mat until the "three" was thumped off.

Ie was a good half hour of solid fun, laughs and action. Referees Al. Korman and Jim LaRock proved good mixers, albeit they formed part of a six-tier sandwich at times.

It was plain out-in-the-open brawling. All six men were inside the ropes, at times, that is. Atkins and Kalmikoff had a de[illegible] yen for chucking first [illegible] then Dominic outside the enclosure.

It was a hodge-podge of everything. There was a dash of soccer, Canadian football, "Ring-Around-Rosy," follow the leader, square-dancing, tag, leg-pulling, arm-stretching and Dagwood sandwiches.

The Italians scored a win in the first fall. They took command and wound it up with a battering-ram act, that saw the Atkins - Kalmikoff noggins nearly fused. They looked two inches shorter as they went to the dressing room.

The "lions" took the second heat. How it happened, we cannot tell. Six men were pretzelled in a piled-up heap. It looked like an octopus convention and somewhere in the pile were the referees.

A distant thumping sounded Then the pile disintegrated and the officials held up the Atkins-Russ arms in the victory token.

It looked bad for the Italianos starting the rubber set. They were heaved out of the ring unceremoniously, but bounced back with another battering-ram act that softened the foemen.

Came a wild flurry. Dino and Dominic went to the ropes, bounced off, met Atkins and Ivan with two well timed kicks to the respective pusses — and that was that.

Frenchy Vignal was the "iron man" of the night. He took on tough Jim LaRock in the semi-final pinning him after twenty-minutes of fancy battling, then engaged Karl Kulaski as a chaser.

Kulaski did not like Referee Korman's tactics, strong-armed him a couple of times and got disqualified for his trouble.

TITANS SIGN DOROW

NEW YORK (CP) — Al Dorow, quarterback for the Michigan State Rose Bowl team of 1954, signed Friday to play with New York Titans of the American Football League. Dorow played last year with Toronto Argonauts of the Big Four.

BILINGUAL COUNT

MONTREAL (CP) — A doctor pronounced Bob Cleroux, of Montreal, and Texan Roy Harris in "tip - top shape" Friday for thtir 10 - round heavyweight boxing match at Montreal's Delorimier Stadium Wednesday night.

Meanwhile Billy Gore, Harris's trainer, has asked the athletic commission to make arrangements for bilingual counting by the referee in the event of knockdowns. Harris understands no French and Cleroux little English.

MacKay Wins But . . .

Crowd Boos Silly Capers

CHICAGO (AP)—In a three-hour marathon, during which he twice threw his racket, sent a ball boy crying from the court and drew violent boos from the crowd, United States Davis Cup star Barry MacKay advanced to the finals of the national clay courts tennis tournament.

The 23 - year-old top-seeded player had his temperamental outbursts Friday before about 2,000 River Forest Tennis Club fans in out - lasting Jon Douglas 4-6, 6-4, 10-12, 6-3, 6-3.

In the third set, which lasted 74 minutes, MacKay lost his service in the 21st game that gave his unseeded opponent an 11-10 edge. MacKay was so disgusted he sent his racket whizzing into the backcourt canvas guarding the stands. It barely missed the head of a ball boy and nearly slammed over the canvas into the crowd.

After dropping the third set 10-12, MacKay took the fourth 6-3. Then in the fifth set, MacKay dropped the first game and again sent his racket crashing to the sidelines, sending the net judge ducking.

Later in the set, after MacKay had won three straight games to move ahead 3-1, he began sniping at one of the backcourt ball boys, 11 - year-old Lincoln Kesler.

Finally, he threw a ball toward Kesler. The boy was replaced by another boy and Kesler left the court in tears. From then on, the crowd booed MacKay at every opportunity and applauded when he missed shots.

In Los Angeles Coliseum

Patterson, Swede Meet Nov. 1

NEW YORK (AP) — Unless obstacles arise, Floyd Patterson and Ingemar Johansson will fight for the third time Nov. 1. The vast Los Angeles coliseum which seats 100,000 will be the scene.

Bill Fugazy, president of Feature Sports, picked Los Angeles and said he would confer with both fighters as soon as possible to complete the arrangements. He intends to leave for Johansson's home in Sweden Tuesday.

A live gate of $1,000,000 or more is anticipated. Presumably closed - circuit television would be used for the third and rubber match.

A prime consideration to Fugazy was that outside of Los Angeles it would be hard to find a place that has an enormous arena plus the virtual assurance of good weather.

On the Track

CHICAGO (AP) — A field of 12 three - year-olds headed by Kentucky winner Venetian Way, who will be ridden by Eddie Arcaro, was named for today's 32nd running of the $135,600 one-mile Arlington Classic at Arlington Park.

Given the best chance against Venetian Way are John William, who will also carry 123 pounds Divine Comedy, New Policy and Kelso.

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP)—Unbeaten Olden Times, winner of four straight here, takes on six other fleet two - year-olds in the $143,250 Hollywood juvenile championship today.

The six - furlong race pits Olden Times against his arch rival, Papp's All. The latter had won five in a row until Olden Times took him after a terrific battle in the recent C.S. Howard Stakes.

FORT ERIE (CP)—Markedly, owned by Col. Lafayette Harry Nelles of King, Ont., paid the largest price of the Ontario racing season as he won the first race at Fort Erie Friday.

Markedly, a three-year-old ridden by jockey Alex Wick paid $158.20 as he scored the first victory of his career.

Gray Ben, an 11-to-1 shot, won the second race and combined with Markedly for a daily-double of $680.90.

The featured Waverly Beach Purse was won by Senor Teddy.

Today, Hidden Treasure and Champagne Velvet head a field of 14 three - year-olds in the $7,500 Bison City Stakes. The entry is owned by W.R. Beasley of Toronto.

BREAK CAMP

AURORA (CP) — Toronto Argonauts of the Big Four football league break training camp here today and return to their Canadian National Exhibition homd grounds for a Sunday workout. Their first exhibition game is with Calgary Stampeders in Toronto next Wednesday.

PACIFIC SHIPMATES — Jacky McBride stands with three of the four horses she will have under her care on a 28-day voyage from New Zealand to Vancouver in August. The horses have been bought by Pat Samuels, a New Zealander, now living in Canada. Miss McBride, a native of Auckland, N.Z., and an expert horse rider, plans to work in Vancouver for a short time after delivering the horses. (CP Photo)

ooks After Four Horses

ert Groom Is Jacky McBride

By J. C. GRAHAM
Canadian Press Correspondent

UCKLAND, N.Z. (CP) — An ractive New Zealand girl is in Vancouver next month as room in charge of four horses. is Miss Jacky McBride of kland, a prominent show r.

he horses, travelling in the sel Waitemate, were bought ntly by Pat Samuels, a New lander who has lived in Can- for some years.

e asked Miss McBride if she ld care for the horses on the 28-day voyage from Auckland to Vancouver. She worked out a regime to keep the horses fit and in good heart although they will be confined with little opportunity for exercise.

Coming from a country in which the native race is Maori, the horses have been given appropriate names—Maori Legend, Maori Chieftain, Maori Boy and Maori Warrior.

VETERAN GROOM

Miss McBride is a photographic colorist by profession, but she has been showing and riding horses since her childhood —for about 20 years.

She bought her first horse for $15 by saving pennies. Since then she had won many successes in the show ring. She also owns a racehorse which she bred and which now is in training.

Miss McBride is a thoroughly experienced groom and has travelled with Australian and New Zealand polo teams, looking after the ponies.

In Canada she will work for a time at the livery stables in Vancouver to which her four charges are going.

Later she expects to do some show riding in North America before returning to New Zealand.

Palmer Slips to Second

Jay Hebert Takes Over Pro Golf Lead

By FRITZ HOWELL

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Arnold Palmer is going to have to come from behind—as he did in the Masters and National Open, and didn't in the British Open — if he's going to win the 42nd PGA championship.

Proving that even the best can get the worst of it at times, the year's leading money winner ($66,000) from Ligonier, Pa., fell to a 74 in Friday's second round to surrender the lead his opening 67 had given him.

Out front as 95 survivors of the cutoff (at scores of 151) went into today's third round was Jay Hebert, 37, of Lafayette, La. Jay, whose younger brother Lionel won this fixture in 1957 when it was man-to-man combat instead of medal play, had five birdies and two bogeys for the day's best round of 67 and a two-day total of 139, one under par.

Palmer's unexpected collapse on the front nine left him in a three-way tie at 141 with three-time champion Sam Snead, who had a second round 73, and Doug Sanders who had 70-71. Between them and the leader was Don January, the Dallas hotshot, who put together a pair of 70s.

Hebert fired his round early and let the others worry in the 90-degree temperature the rest of the day. Only Fred Hawkins was able to whip par in the late going over the windy, dried - out 7165-yard Firestone Country Club course. Hawkins' 69 put him in a three-way deadlock at 142 with Ken Venturi and John O'Donnell.

O'Donnell was getting cheers from everyone. The Baltimore precisionist, a club pro, who has a pair of 71s to his credit, is 46 years old and still unconvinced he's going to break his life-long record of never winning more than $400 in a tournament.

"If you get any money away from these touring pros, you just have to be lucky," he said.

With the field cut to the low 90 and ties, the PGA committee hauled out the pipe wrenches today and tightened up the long layout for the stretch drive.

Markers are on the back of all tees, adding as much as 30 yards in some cases, and players have to peek at the flag across the corner of a trap, or seek it in some far corner.

Hebert summed it up with: "A 71 would be a mighty fine number on either of the last two rounds." He predicted 283 or 284 for the 72 holes would take the title now held by Bob Rosburg of Overland Park, Kan. Bob had a 74-75—149, getting into today's play by two strokes.

Bisley Team Gets Welcome

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence Minister Pearkes Friday night welcomed home from England members of the Canadian Bisley team, who made a strong showing in the National Rifle Association matches.

Two members of the team carried Gunnar Westling, 52, the New Westminster, B.C., welder who won the Queen's Prize, top award of the British meet, the 30 yeards from the plane to Mr. Pearkes.

The defence minister offered the militia sergeant his personal congratulations for the showing as some 100 spectators and friends watched. Mrs. Westling welcomed her husband.

Junior Sets World Record In Swim Trials

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—Dennis Rounsavelle, a junior from the University of Southern California shaved more than a second off the existing world record in the 400 - metre individual medley Friday.

The young swimmer splashed home in 5:07.5 in preliminaries of the AAU national men's outdoor swimming and diving championships.

The accepted world mark is 5:08.8, set by Scotland's Ian Black in 1959.

George Harrison of Stanford has a 5:05.3 time pending from the Los Angeles invitational meet on June 24. Harrison, swimming for the Santa Clara Swim Club, was one of eight qualifiers Friday. His time was an unspectacular 5:15.7, fifth best among the qualifiers.

Earlier, Jeff Farrell, of Yale Naval ROTC, shattered the existing American record in the 100-metre freestyle preliminaries.

Farrell's time was 54.8 seconds, nine - tenths of a second better than the American record of Jon Henricks, an Australian student at Southern California.

It was only two - tenths of a second slower than Australian John Devitt's world mark.

T-V TIPS

by JOHN WETTLAUFER

It's only natural that everyone wants to get the maximum service from his television with a minimum of repair bills. Here is a tip that may help to extend the life of that faithful old set.

Don't let your set run too long at one period. Contrary to popular belief, it is more harmful to leave a TV set turned on for long periods than to turn it on and off frequently. This is because prolonged operating generates considerable heat which could make parts and components break down quite rapidly. In other words, turn off your set whenever you leave the room.

In spite of the best of care, sooner or later every television set needs repairs or adjustments for peak performance. CIRCLE TV SERVICE, 364 Coleman St. have the trained men and equipment for all TV repairs from a minor adjustment to a complete overhaul. Phone WO 8-6791 and tell us your troubles.

My Name is Jose Jimenez, Bill Dana, Turns Producer

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — One of television's new comics — Bill "my name is Jose Jimenez" Dana — gets promoted to producer next month.

Dana, a genuine funnyman, got lots of laughs by just announcing his name in the plaintive style of a Mexican peon.

Much of his comic forte was transposing the Js and Hs a la Espanol. For instance, he described Israel as a country where "the Hewish people speak Jebrew".

Dana, once a comedy writer, will mastermind the new Spike Jones TV show. He will recreate Jose Jimenez for Spike.

"I am jappy to say that the boss likes heem", says Jose of Bill the producer. Dana has an album out of his spots on the Steve Allen show last season.

LAUGHTS CAME EASIER

The spots, in chronological order, show that Dana got guffaws at the start of the season by saying: "My name is Jose Jimenez".

By mid-season, the yoks came by the time he got to "My name . . ."

At the windup, laughs came the minute the audience saw his face. It's a type of comedy reminiscent of Joe "Wanna buy a duck?" Penner.

Dana, a Hungarian from Quincy, Mass., who got the idea for Jose in Puerto Rico, says "I met a nice chap down there who told me he was the Dutch representative. I asked: 'Are you a consul - general for The Netherlands?'

"No," he answered. 'I am the Dutch representative.' I kept pressing him about The Netherlands. Finally, he threw up his arms.

"I am the Dutch representative. You know, Dutch, Chrysler and Plymouth."

LAST DAY AT BELLE — "The Bellboy" to end all Bellboys is portrayed by none other than Jerry Lewis, in the classic comedy triumph, "The Bellboy," playing today for the last times, with three Color Featurettes, at the Air Conditioned Belle Theatre.

Sunday, July 24

General Tendencies: This is a wonderful Sunday to get up early and delight others by being charming, warm and devoted to them. In this way, as well as attending the services of your choice, you are able to really live your religion the best. Then tonight you can have all kinds of interesting events of a surprise nature occur.

Aries (March 21 to April 19)— You arise feeling very gay and happy, so be sure you spread this joy to lighten the burden of others. Then you have a sudden opportunity to enjoy recrea[illegible]hat is not always possible. P[illegible]cipate enthusiastically.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — It would be very wise this morning to give some tangible proof of your devotion to cloest ties. Later, get out and visit good friends you appreciate and let them know your true feelings, how happy you are to be allied with them.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — Elevate your consciousness now through study of the great philosophies or listening to lectures of the most inspired people you know. P.M. plan your new week's activities wisely and on paper. This is one of the best steps toward greater sucess.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21)— Morning should be spent concentrating upon your true goals in life and reviewing your past experiences that you may plan a wiser program for achieving success. P.M. fine for social [illegible]ties where persons are w[illegible]n and sincere.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — Deep concentration upon your own particular desires and ambitions are fine in A.M. Strive for greater harmony in all spheres of your life. Tonight you can either seek the company of intimate friends or be one of a large and happy group.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — The ideal day for reaching some very important decisions. Feel out those whom you feel will give you the greatest support in your aims. Evening is then fine for happiness in whatever realm most pleases you. Be gay.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — While you may have ideas of a civic nature in mind, your best benefits today come from intimate and loyal friends who think along very broad lines. Think ambitiously, though it is Sunday.

[illegible]orpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — [illegible]ou contact that experienced advisor today, you will then be prepared properly to impress and win over others who are vital to your welfare and happiness. Be sure you understand everything that is being advised.

Sagittarius (Nov. 2 2to Dec. 21) If you get into the so-called "silence" for awhile today, you can get some very good hunches that wil lhelp you tremendously in all of your affairs. P.M. you can meet someone very worthwhile or be of real help to another.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)— A fine day to sit down quietly ith partners informally and hresh out activities for the future that will be very productive. .M. show gratitude and devotion that will be most pleasing to est tie.

quarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)— being of real service today, can become a source of true piration for others. Go out r in the day and lose no optunity to lend a helping hand outsiders, strangers, if necesy. Store up blessings for your-ces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — wearing a smile today, not y will you attract the right ple to you, but you will underd just how to make everyg about you more charming orderly. P.M. be sure you act that sudden invitation for an l evening.

your child is born today . . . or she, will be very sensitive the inside while displaying on exterior a calm and fastion that will be most inviting others. Hence, prepare your progeny for work before the general public, as an entertainer, a speaker and the like. Let the education be a formal and practical one. Also, do not fail to give a word of praise or a pat on the back for exceptional work done. This is very important.

Monday, July 25

General tendencies: This is your day to avoid an argument or disagreement in the morning since it could have lasting results of an unfortunate nature. However, the afternoon and evening bring you a chance to "think big," from which you can later get results of equal magnitude to your thoughts. So go to associates, advisers early. Then plan policies under which you wish to operate in days to come.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — Financial matters and methods of procedure appear to be at odds this morning, so be sure you are most practical, sensible. Then later you will be able to get out to the recreations and activities that most satisfy.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — Planning for happier and more affluent days ahead for yourself and family of utmost importance now. Don't be critical of ties, be helpful instead. P. M. a very delightful time can be had entertaining at your own house.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — Be sure you get important general duties handled early so that you can delve into those unusual and fascinating interests that beckon so today. P.M. continue to follow your inclinations and have lots of fun with friends.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — Take care you do not get into any argument with higher - ups on matters of property or finances. Then later if you work very hard, you can increase income a great deal and make your future plans for even greater success in the future.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — While you want to make a very fine impression in some civic project, you must understand early just where and how you would fit in best. Take time in the evening to relax and have fun as you most prefer. Be gay.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22)— Rather than bewail your seeming inability to accomplish very much of late, look into better and newer methods of operating. Meet the people who can help you to get ahead faster too. Be more dynamic, purposeful.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — Don't be so busy today that you let down a good friend who looks to you for help. P.M. get out with good, fine comrades for a happy time. Join wholeheartedly in sports, etc.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — See that you do not get into any argument with anyone today. Tend strictly to own affairs and see how far you can advance on own efforts and talents. You will be very gratified, if you get an early start especially.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Particular care must be taken this A.M. so that no little accidents occur, no matter where you are or what you are doing. Latter part of day is then fine for meeting new people, seeing new things. Advance.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — Be sure you don't go overboard on beauty treatments or expenditures simply for fun. Then the remainder of the day is fine for conferring with advisers you like who can give invaluable ideas for bettering your life.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Tend strictly to business in A. M. and be sure you do not upset a higher - up by some unguarded word. Evening is then fine for going out with some kind - hearted associate for an evening's fun. Dine out royally. Be dynamic.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — Get your routine work done quickly and then be off seeing people and showing how understanding and intelligent you are. You must adopt a happier attitude toward life so that you can accomplish far more. Be sincerely interested in people.

If your child is born today... there will be a definite tendency to fight for almost everything that is wanted. You must teach early to use more diplomatic methods. This early experience will be invaluable in later life since there will be a fine knack for dealing with others. However, be sure you give sufficient spiritual training during adolescence in order to have a well - rounded personality and achieve the greatest success possible in this chart.

MOIRA RIVER CONSERVATION AUTHORITY

TENDERS

LINGHAM LAKE RESERVOIR

The Water Control Advisory Board of the Authority solicits tenders on the proposed repairs and improvements to the Lingham Lake Dam in Grimsthorpe Township. The work will include the installation of a 36" gate valve in a new concrete sill to be placed across the spillway, the replacement of the decking over the spillway, the repair of the spillway facings, etc. The total value of the job is comparatively small and tenders from local contractors are invited.

Information to bidders, forms of tender, specifications, drawings and other documents may be inspected and obtained after July 28th, 1960, at the Belleville Builders' Exchange; at the home of Authority Vice-Chairman, Earl Sager, at R. R. 2, Madoc; by appointment only at the Authority Office, Municipal Building, Cannifton; or by writing to the undersigned at Box 13, Cannifton, Ontario.

Sealed, marked tenders will be received at the Authority Office or received by mail addressed to the undersigned at Box 13, Cannifton, Ontario. Closing date — 12:00 Noon on Wednesday, August 10th, 1960.

G. WISHART, M.Sc.,
Chairman,
Water Control Advisory Board.
MICHAEL CHUBB, R.P.F.,
Secretary-Treasurer.

REAL ESTATE FOR SALE

WHAT WILL YOU HAVE
IN 5 YEARS,
RENT RECEIPTS
OR EQUITY?

Think this over, then call one of our professional property consultants who will discuss any one of our many and varied listings of which the following is a sample.

EAST SIDE CENTRAL

Professionally decorated straight from the latest interior decorating publication. You will be amazed at what has been done to beautify this home. Of split-level design it has the ultimate in kitchen arrangement and decor. The combination living-dining room leaves one spellbound. The 3 bedrooms are the last word in tasteful appointment. There is excellent recreation room facilities accessible from the main hallway. There is not a word of exaggeration in this description. Call us this weekend and confirm our claims. The owners are away and we have the key. Priced at $16,000.00 with good terms.

VICTORIA AVENUE
$2,000.00 DOWN

One of the better houses built in the past five years. The 24' living room is very artistically decorated as is the rest of the house. Exceptionally bright kitchen with modern conveniences. 3 large airy bedrooms. Basement ideal for recreation room with walk-out to rear of house. Unbelievably priced at $13,900.00. See it this weekend.

WE WILL MEET YOU

If you give us a call and show you through our remaining new houses. A private showing at your own leisure is much better than any open house, AND you can purchase any one of these on the spot, no waiting to have one built. We have the following:
SPLIT LEVELS at $3,000.00 down—Finished recreation room, attached garage, combination living-dining room, master bedroom 16' x 14'.
BUNGALOWS at $3,100.00 down — Split-level entrance, double fireplace, large living room, dining room, attached garages, etc.
TWO STOREY at various down payments with two baths, living room, dining room, 4 bedrooms, etc.
MANY OF THESE ARE READY for immediate occupancy, others ready in two weeks.

Authors, Artists Quit Congress

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Council of Authors and Artists quit the Canadian Labor Congress Thursday — charging the CLC with creating an artifiical racial division between French and English -language performers on CBC radio and television.

The dispute involves a feud between two organizations of actors, artists, dancers, singers and other performers on the French and Englih networks of the CBC, a fight that goes back to the TV producers' strike in Montreal 19 months ago.

President Claude Jodoin of the congress, national parent body of Canada's organized union movement, denied that the congress had creaetd any racial or language division.

The English-language CCAA, which claims about 1,600 members across Canada, withdrew from the CLC in protest against granting of congress affiliation to the Federation des Auteurs et des Artistes du Canada, which represents about 1,300 radio and TV performers in Montreal and Quebec City.

In a prepared statement, Mr. Jodoin said CLC officers had consistently tried to bring the two rival factions together through some form of mutually acceptable co-operative arrangement.

The rival groups emerged after about 70 television producers on the CBC's French-language network at Montreal went on strike in January, 1959.

Plan Early for Hunting Season

It may seem a bit early to be thinking about the coming hunting season, but the prudent gunner can do a lot of spade work during the summer months which will pay off when opening day for upland shooting rolls around. More and more as the seasons pass we see good hunting territory posted and taken out of circulation for the rank and file. The gunners, as a group, may as well face a few facts.

Of course, the mourning dove is not the popular bird in northern latitudes that it is below the Mason-Dixon line. But with the changing climate the numbers of dove in the northern states is definitely on the increase and the interest of the gunners is growing in proportion. Dove season comes in fairly early and the farmers as well as the hunters know it. We see new posting signs now as early as August.

YOU ARE A GUEST

When you come right down to it, you can't blame the farmer for posting his land. So many men completely ignore the fact that farm land is private property. When you are on that property, with or without express permission, you are there as a guest and you should govern your behavior accordingly. All too few do so, with the result that exasperated farmers post their land as a matter of self-protection.

As I say, hunters and, for that matter, fishermen should face facts. It is only a matter of time until practically all hunting will be done on land where management is planned and pressure controlled. This is true now on much of the state-owned hunting tracts and the idea is spreading to the farm.

For years sportsmen's groups and individual gunners have been studying farmer-sportsman relations in one way or another. Seldom does the group idea work out very well, largely because the plan is too one sided. In other words, the gunners secure for themselves what they want—a place to hunt — but the farmer gets all too little in return. So the plan dies out and more land is posted.

It is unfair to expect a farmer to set aside some of his land for game, such as planting feed patches or widening the unplowed area along the fence lines. If he goes out of his way, in one way or another, to produce more game for the sportsmen, certainly he should be paid for his trouble. The fact that the game itself is public property is sot sufficient reason for him to open up his acreage to the public thus leaving himself wide open for the abuses and depredations which he inevitably suffers at the hands of the unscrupulous few.

NO TRESPASSING OR HUNTING

GET ACQUAINTED

By and large, it is wiser for you, personally, to make your own arrangements in advance. Go out and get acquainted with the men who own the land on which you would like to hunt. Arrange with him, or them, for a day-by-day hunting fee or, if you like, a set fee for the season. Then, when you do hunt, treat that property as though it were your own.

Here and there, farmers whose land adjoins are forming their own associations. Large blocks of land are posted and then fixed hunting fees are charged, payable at an agreed central point. Accumulated fees are then apportioned out to the land owners at the close of the season.

Whether we realize it or not, a gradual evolution is now in progress. Farm game hunting, as we have known it in the past, is disappearing rapidly, too rapidly. Fee hunting is taking its place. Just as often, no hunting is permitted.

It must be remembered that the price of your hunting licence won't buy you one ringneck rooster at a game preserve. You may as well make up your mind that if you want any semblance of good shooting you are going to have to pay for it.

So it is prudent to make your shooting arrangements now. As soon as a farmer learns that you are willing to meet him halfway, usually he is quite agreeable to the making of any fair arrangement. Better think it over and do some planning now. It will pay off when the hunting season arrives.

Garden Notes

Vacation Plans for Gardeners

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

Who will water your garden while you take a vacation? Give them a mulch and they will not need watering.

A few days before you depart soak the garden well. Work up the soil around the plants lightly with shallow hoeing. Apply a four to six inch mulch around the plants that will not stand prolonged dry weather. Use grass clippings, peat, sawdust or ground corn cobs. When using sawdust mix in a little dry fertilizer. Sawdust tends to absorb some of the nutrients from the soil in the process of breaking down. If you are using peat work it into the soil lightly. A solid layer of peat tends to pack and make a hard surface which rain cannot penetrate.

HOUSE PLANTS

House plants can be moved to the bath tub and set on a thick terry towel. Set the tap to drip water very very slowly onto the end of the towel. It will act as a wick carrying the moisture to the potted plants. Be sure to leave the drain open.

If you plan to move the plants outdoors set them on the north side of the house. Sink them to the level of the pots in soil or mulch material and cover the tops of the pots and the soil in them with mulching material Give the surrounding area a good soaking and they will be OK for two weeks. As an added protection against cats and dogs cover the plants with chicken wire.

In the vegetable garden a thick layer of newspapers or old magazines will act as a mulch under the tomato plants to conserve moisture. A light lath cover will shade the lettuce plants and slow evaporation. Hill up the beans and the lower levels where the roots are will stay cool and moist. Have some one pick the beans twice a week or the plants will stop bearing.

Dahlias and other large leafy plants can also be hilled up to keep their roots moist and cool.

ORDER NOW

Before you go away order the day lilies which are delivered in mid-August. Also the iris and other plants for early fall planting. Need some new ornamental shrubs or fruit trees? Go to see them at the nursery and pick them out soon, while they are still in prime condition. Your nurseryman will reserve them for you and notify you when they are about to be delivered.

Mid-July is the last date to pinch back the late blooming chrysanthemums. The early flowering types will have set their buds and should not be pinched. Give all mums a feeding now. The late flowering ones will need another next month. Liquid fertilizers should be applied after the soil is soaked. Granular and powder types should be applied and melted in with a good soaking from the hose or rain. Remember feeder roots can only take up nutrients in liquid form.

Ten Fillies Go to Post At Woodbine

TORONTO (CP) — Last time Old Woodbine was visited by a cloudburst of Friday's proportions, the pacer Royal Aileen went out the next evening and set a season's mile record of 2:03.

Accordingly, indications should be that today's $5,533 feature, the Canadian Juvenile Circuit Pace for two-year-old fillies, will be conducted on a track to enchant the young lady horses.

Ten of the distaff youngsters will go to the post in two heats, the fourth and seventh races. This event is the second leg of a six-part event worth $50,000 conducted on six tracks, the other five in Quebec.

The downpour Friday didn't deter the pacers and trotters. A daily double payoff of $102.50 resulted when the first-time starter Highland Direct, owned by Jack McIntosh of Wheatley and driven by Jiggs McFadden, returned $18.40 in the first. Ross Johnston drove his father's three-year-old colt, Johnny Johnston C., to the fore in the second for a $7.50 return.

Dunc Campbell, the canny veteran from Ailsa Craig, scored his seventh driving victory in the $1,400 B1 feature with his own gelding Argyel Duke, the 4 to 5 favorite. Argyel Duke led from wire to wire and, combined with Walter Grant driving Hi Acres Rudy, returned $14.80 in the quinella. It was the big gelding's third win in four outings at Old Woodbine.

THE GOLDEN YEARS

Early Retirement Has Its Risks But Only You Can Really Decide

By THOMAS COLLINS

Here is a retirement story that wraps up in a bundle the dreams and aspirations of many couples in their fifties.

It is a request for advice, not from a couple but from a couple's daughter.

"My parents are both 56 years old and they have told me and my brother that they want to give up the job which Dad has held for 19 years. They want to retire, as they phrase it, 'before we are too old to enjoy our rewards.'

"They plan to take their savings and buy an 80-acre farm about 60 miles from the city. The farm has a large pasture and about 40 acres of tillable soil. They think they can rent the pasture to nearby farmers for a small income and hire a neighboring farmer to cultivate their tillable acres for other income.

"The whole scheme seems insane. Almost all of their money will be used up to buy the farm. They will have no assured income except for $40 a month from an annuity until four years from now when Dad's abbreviated pension of $80 a month begins.

"Is there anything you can say that will help me persuade them to hold on to the security they have — at least until 60?"

SINCERELY CONCERNED?

Here is a child who may be sincerely concerned about the happiness of her parents, or who may be concerned over the prospect that her parents will become dependent on her and her husband. Whatever her motive, the story is not hers but her parents'.

Apparently, this couple has decided at 56 that there is something more to life than expending their days in tune with somebody else's clock. Perhaps they are tired, fed up, angry, discouraged, frustrated or itching to tell off the husband's boss.

The fifties are a dangerous age for many intelligent married couples. This is not because of a frantic grasping for sex, as the novelists would lead us to believe. Instead it is a realization — and the mid-fifties are the time for it — that life is turning gray, that riches can't be had, that health may fade, now or never they must reach out and squeeze the juice from the orange.

Where and how can they squeeze?

A man and his wife who know what time it is are aware that any other job the husband takes (if he can find another) will make about the same demands as the one he now has. Different in manner, perhaps, but still demands that will keep him from pursuing some new life.

The next best thing is a lot of money. But for a couple to live on a standard of even $5,000 a year it will take about $125,000 in capital. A working man doesn't have that kind of money.

How then can he escape?

SEEMS LIKE ANSWER

A little farm invariably seems like the answer. It is housing. It is a garden for summer vegetables and winter preserves. It is a way of life that makes few financial demands in the way of clothing, entertaining or status. If only a few dollars could be obtained by renting out the pasture and letting a neighbor till the soil, maybe the way has been opened to dream, to look at the sky, to sing . . . to squeeze the orange.

This urge has made the country what it is.

My opinion is that only a fool and his brother could expect to move from the city and operate a farm at a profit. But it is my opinion also that more people ought to try it. And for this couple, with $40 from an annuity, it may be a good gamble.

SPONTANEOUS FIRE

AYLMER (CP) — Inspector Robert Kaufman of the Ontario fire marshal's office in London said Thursday night spontaneous combustion was the most probable cause of Tuesday's $250,000 fire in Aylmer's business district.

Special Piano Built for Gould To Play Bach

STRATFORD — A special piano is being shipped from New York to Stratford for Glenn Gould's use during the Bach Program on July 24. The piano, being prepared by Steinway for this one concert, will be so modified as to be a 'quasi-harpsichord'. It will have the action of a piano, yet will create an effect which Mr. Gould feels to be especially appropriate to Bach. It is to be used for this concert only and so interested are the Steinway family in the innovation, and in Mr. Gould's playing, that they are coming to Stratford to hear the concert.

Glenn Gould will appear at the concert in the Bach Concerto in D minor for piano and orchestra, a work which he has already recorded for Columbia records, with marked success.

The Bach program will be the first of the Sunday concerts to be given in the Festival theatre. It will be played by the National Festival Orchestra, and will feature soloists Glenn Gould, Oscar Shumsky, violinist, Leonard Rose, 'cellist, and Dirk Keetbaas, flautist.

Oscar Shumsky will appear in the Concerto number 2 in E major for violin and orchestra, Mr. Rose is the Suite number 3 in C major for unaccompanied 'cello, and Mr. Keetbaas, flute player of the Festival Orchestra will join resident artists Gould and Shumsky as soloists in the vigorous and exciting Brandenburg Concerto number 5. Mr. Keetbaas, a native of Winnipeg, is flautist in the Winnipeg Symphony Orchestra.

A novel point in this Bach program is that, although it has orchestra and four soloists, it has no conductor. In order to create the vital ensemble playing which is usually found in small chamber groups, the orchestra and soloists will rehearse and perform together, without the customary conductor.

Other concerts in the Sunday afternoon series will be A Sunday Serenade, on July 31, with Shumsky and Rose as soloists. The program will also include an original work by John Cook, "Suite of Psalms," designated as a cantata for the spoken word, in which Julie Harris, Douglas Campbell, Bruno Gerussi and Douglas Rain, with other members of the Festival acting company, will take part.

On August 7, a Beethoven program will be presented in which the three resident artists, Glenn Gould, Oscar Shumsky, and Leonard Rose, will perform by themselves, in various combinations. It will include the Sonata in C minor for violin and piano, the Sonata in A major for 'cello and piano, and the Trio (Ghost) for piano, violin, and 'cello.

Seeking Site For 200 Houses

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Minister Pearkes said Friday his department is still investigating possible sites near North Bay for a 200-unit housing development in connection with the Bomarc installation there.

Replying to J. R. Garland L—Nipissing, Mr. Pearkes said he could not give the Commons any progress report on construction because none of the houses has been started.

New Riots Rock South Rhodesia As Congo Quiets

Soldiers Stand Guard Over Uneasy Bulawayo

BULAWAYO, Southern Rhodesia (Reuters)—Police and soldiers stood guard here today as an uneasy quiet returned after a day-long riot Sunday by thousands of Negroes angered at the banning of political meetings.

Police cordoned off the main industrial area of the city and would not allow anyone to enter it. Business was at a standstill and many stores were sending Negro employees home.

More than 20 persons were injured in clashes between police and demonstrators, who hurled bricks and stones at cars owned by whites.

Troops were called in after repeated attempts by some 500 steel-helmeted police using tear gas failed to break up the crowd.

Twenty Negroes were injured, two with bullet wounds, and a white girl suffered a cut head when she was hit by a brick thrown at the car in which she was riding.

The demonstration started in the Negro quarter of Bulawayo in protest against a ban imposed on a meeting of the National Democratic Party.

The rioting here following disturbances last week in Negro townships near Salisbury in protest against the arrest of three leaders of the National Democratic Party, which is demanding greater rights for Negroes in this self-governing British colony.

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (AP)—The United Nations airlift of troops into the Congo speeded up today, and the total of forces deployed over the new African country approached 7,500 men.

About 350 more Tunisians were flown in today. Tonight and Tuesday between 1,200 and 1,500 other men are expected to bring the UN force's total manpower to about 9,000.

With the port of Matadi again functioning, oil for Leopoldville and its big airlift airbase was being pumped through a pipeline and also was arriving by tank cars over the repaired railway line.

The UN also expected the early arrival of pilots from Sweden, Norway, Brazil, Argentina and Yugoslavia to fly a special UN aircraft fleet for interior transport.

NO U.S. CREWS

The U.S. air force handed over the fleet of planes, including helicopters and small aircraft, but refused to furnish air crews. The Russians had protested a U.S. army transmission unit flown here last week to help in UN communications, and American officials said they would return to Germany.

The UN mission announced it is pushing a crash program to meet the Congo's pressing medical and financial needs.

The treasury and currency situation was reported so precarious that it appeared many Aug. 1 payrolls could not be met.

The Congo's biggest political problem—what to do about the secession of rich Katanga province — apparently awaited UN Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold's arrival Thursday.

All was reported quiet in Stanleyville today and is most of the countryside.

The Belgian embassy said approximately half of the Congo's 80,000 Belgian residents had left the country.

Lumumba Happy Over Talks With Hammarskjold

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) Premier Patrice Lumumba of the Congo holds more talks with United Nations Secretary - General Dag Hammarskjold today. Lumumba is seeking trained personnel to help get his chaos-ridden country back on its feet.

The 35-year-old leader of the infant Central African country arrived in New York Sunday and after an initial 2½-hour meeting with Hammarskjold said he was "very optimistic" about the situation back home.

The secretary-general invited Lumumba to lunch today with the members of the UN Security Council, which last Friday called on Belgium to speed up withdrawal of her troops from the Congo.

Later today Lumumba was to talk with delegates of the 29-nation Asian-African group and hold a press conference. He winds up his talks with Hammarskjold Tuesday.

CANADIAN TRIP PLANNED

Lumumba also plans to travel in the United States and Canada, but no itinerary has been worked out yet.

Lumumba told reporters he and Hammarskjold in their first meeting had discussed the general situation in the Congo and the session had been "very fruitful."

"I express my satisfaction for the understanding which has prevailed during our conversation," the premier said, speaking in French.

An aide said Lumumba particularly wants the UN to send engineers and doctors to the Congo.

Dynamite Blast Leaves Crater In Highway

JOYCEVILLE (CP) — A truck carrying five cases of dynamite and 36 dynamite caps caught fire and exploded on a sideroad near here Saturday. The driver and his companion had headed in opposite directions to block traffic and were uninjured.

William Eglund of Parry Sound and Lance Woods of Tamworth said they stopped the truck when they smelled smoke and found the tarpaulin covering the dynamite was smouldering.

Mr. Eglund said "Lance went one way and I went the other. I'd say we were about one-quarter of a mile away when she went."

The blast left a crater about six inches deep in the hard-packed gravel and scattered parts of the truck over a 60-foot radius.

ALICE SPRINGS, Australia (Reuters)—A government expedition in search of the world's most primitive and elusive human beings reports it has stumbled across a major clue to the tribe's survival.

A message from the group of native welfare officers said Saturday they had discovered a "wonderland" of wild flowers in the normally arid desert about 500 miles west of this Central Australian town.

One of the great mysteries of the naked, nomadic Bindaboo tribe of aborigines is how they survive in the almost waterless, 12,000-square-mile area of rock and sand in the deserted heart of Australia.

A government patrol which spotted 200 to 300 of the Bindaboos in 1957 was surprised at their excellent health and well-nourished appearance. The aborigines appeared free of all normal diseases except eye trouble, especially trachoma.

The current patrol, which set out in two jeeps July 4, said in a radio message it was amazed to find that the wilderness of sand dunes and rock had been transformed into a vast expanse of flowers and spinifex tussock grass. This wild grass, the only plant that normally can grow in the area, was lush and green instead of its usual undernourished yellow.

The report said rockholes were full of water from recent rain.

Local rainfall in an area previously believed suffering from prolonged drought could explain how the Bindaboos, estimated to number 6,000 are still able to survive.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis: — Another fine day is in store for Southern and Central Ontario today but showers and thunderstorms are edging into the Northwest. This line of unsettled weather will reach central regions early Tuesday and may bring isolated thunderstorms to southern Ontario late Tuesday. Increasing south - to - southeastery winds will bring rising temperatures and humidities to Southern Ontario today and Tuesday but in the North a return to northwesterly winds will again drop temperatures in that area Tuesday.

WRECK VICTIM — The body of the only victim of a head-on train crash just north of Montreal is removed by stretcher bearers. A diesel-powered freight train and a commuter train crashed on the single track. Sixty persons were injured. (CP Wirephoto).

Trains Collide Head-on, One Woman Killed

MONTREAL (CP)—The CNR was to open an investigation today to find out why two of its trains collided head-on Saturday night, killing one woman and injuring more than 60 other passengers.

A commuter train and a 55-car freight collided on a single track through a wooded area near Roxboro station in the suburbs northwest of Montreal.

The first passenger car plunged about 10 feet into the rear of the diesel locomotive, buckling with the impact, and the two jackknifed. Two other passenger cars were not derailed.

The body of Marie Julien, 22, of Montreal was pinned in the twisted steel for three hours.

The CNR listed five persons as seriously injured with skull fractures and multiple injuries. At least 55 others, including about a dozen with fractures, were listed as less seriously injured. All were from the Montreal area.

The commuter train, carrying an estimated 100 passengers in three cars, was travelling to Montreal from St. Eustache, Que. The freight—three of its cars were derailed—was heading for a gravel pit to load gravel.

They collided about 5 p.m. on a blind curve.

The CNR said its lists of injured were probably incomplete because residents of the area rushed to the scene along a dirt road and had taken many of the victims to hospital by private car before police or railway officials arrived.

Daniel McCormick, Jock Mitchell and Francois Aumond, three residents of the area, were among the first on the scene.

McCormick described the scene he and Aumond saw when they reached the train:

"The entire coach seemed to be crowded with a struggling mass of humanity flung like a handful of matches among a tangle of broken seats. . . ."

Ambulances soon converged on the scene. One, carrying four of the injured, broke down and was towed several miles to Sacre Couer hospital by a towing truck.

Nixon Will Win Nomination, Also Choose Running Mate

These points stood out today:

Nixon not only will walk off with the presidential nomination in a vote set for Wednesday, but he will name his running mate.

Nixon's choice for the vice-presidential nomination seemed to lie between United Nations Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge and Senator Thurston B. Morton of Kentucky, the party's national chairman. The odds favored Lodge.

Nixon made it clear in a TV broadcast Sunday night that he has no intention of permitting the selection of a running mate in a so-called "open" convention.

Minimum votes needed for a victory are 666 and Nixon's aides say he has about 1,000 of the 1,331 delegates pledged to him.

Rockefeller, liberal governor of New York, probably will not permit his name to be submitted to the convention as a possible presidential nominee. Even Rockefeller could not find the solid-core that would be required for a successful draft for the top post.

But, from his subteranean position as a non-candidate for either spot on the ticket, Rockefeller threatened to withhold the support of the big 96-vote New York delegation in the hope of fashioning a party platform along the lines of his agreement this weekend with Nixon.

Nixon went a long way toward meeting Rockefeller's views—de-

300 to 800 Canadian Troops Will Join UN Congo Force

OTTAWA (CP)—Between 300 and 800 Canadian soldiers are expected to join the United Nations Congo force in the next month or so.

Informed sources say the government will announce soon that this number of supply and communications personnel will be deployed with various UN units throughout The Congo, a country about as big as Europe. No combat troops are involved though some of the personnel may be drawn from Canada's standby UN force, the 2nd Battalion, Roal Canadian Regiment, at London, Ont.

The Canadian force likely will be flown to The Congo by the RCAF via Pisa, Italy, a UN staging area for the African operation.

It was not immediately clear why the Canadian troops will not leave immediately for The Congo. One apparent reason was the need for inoculations against tropical diseases. However, it was pointed out that Swedish and Irish troops for the UN Congo force left on 48 hours' notice.

The UN sought Canadian help for the Congo force mainly because the Canadian Army has such a vast amount of experience in this field. It not only fought in Korea but it has participated in truce operations in Egypt's Sinai Desert, Palestine, Kashmir, Viet Nam, Laos, Cambodia and Lebanon.

The government may have delayed an early decision in the matter because it was not at first clear how white troops would be accepted in The Congo.

NIGHT CLUB BURNS

GHOSTS, BEARS, HONKY-TONKS ENLIVEN SESSION

Minister Against Park Commercialism

OTTAWA (CP) — Ghosts and visions, bears and honky-tonks. Those were the ingredients of the Commons' first Saturday sitting of the session.

The 1960-61 spending program of the northern affairs department provided the mixing bowl for all.

Resources Minister Hamilton struck out sharply at the attitude implied by two government backbenchers who called for commercial development in the national parks.

In exasperated tones, Mr. Hamilton asked "How can a minister stand up against the pressures of commercial interests who want to use the parks for mining, forestry and for every honky-tonk recreational device known to man, unless the people who love these parks are prepared to band together and support the minister . . . ?"

PLAIN TALK

Mr. Hamilton made it plain he's fully behind the primary purpose of the parks as places preserved in the natural state they were found in by the original discoverers. He urged formation of a national parks association, free of politicians and civil servants, to help fight the battle for preservation of the parks.

59 FATALITIES ACROSS CANADA DURING WEEKEND

Traffic Killed 37, Drownings 16

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Four provinces shared Canada's 59 reported weekend accidental deaths.

A Canadian Press survey from 6 p.m. local times Friday to midnight Sunday showed New Brunswick, Quebec, Ontario and British Columbia the only provinces reporting such deaths.

Traffic killed 37, drownings 16 and miscellaneous accidents six.

Quebec had 20 traffic deaths, six drownings, a train wreck death and a man killed by a falling tree.

Traffic accidents killed 12 in Ontario, one Southern Ontario accident claiming three lives. Five persons were drowned, two died when hit by trains and a youth was chopped to death by a cruiser's propeller in the St. Clair River.

ONE MISHAP KILLS FOUR

Four of British Columbia's eight deaths occurred in a boating accident in the Straits of Georgia when a fishing boat flipped over. The province had another drowning, two traffic deaths and a girl killed by a train.

Three persons died in New Brunswick traffic accidents.

The survey includes traffic and deaths in summer pastimes but not industrial deaths.

Ontario dead:

Frank May, 61, Hamilton, drowned Sunday after falling out of his boat in Hamilton harbor.

Sidney Hoblyn, 70, Toronto, struck by a train in West Toronto Saturday.

Plaintiff Wins Big Judgment Against Assoc.

TORONTO (CP) — A complicated law case, involving three simultaneous actions against more than 70 defendants and a country-wide cemetery business, was won Friday by the client of Toronto lawyer Lewis Duncan, who died April 8.

The client, William Overholt, 51, of Toronto, was awarded a judgment expected to run into thousands of dollars. Mr. Justice Wishart F. Spence said the case was too involved for him to determine costs alone and referred the matter to a master of the Ontario Supreme Court.

In a 120-page judgment, one of the longest ever handed down at Osgoode Hall, Mr. Justice Spence ruled that Mr. Overholt is entitled to commissions for selling and opening up cemetery lots.

Never Co-respondent in Three Divorce Cases but Picture Used

TORONTO (CP) — The woman whose picture was used in evidence as that of a co-respondent in three divorces—but who apparently had nothing to do with them—is a North York public school teacher.

She is Mrs. Eleanor Cass, a pretty young divorcee. She says she was not a co-respondent in any of the three cases concerned, and Elliott B. Pepper of the attorney-general's department says he is convinced of her innocence.

This was the latest development in a story that began to unfold Friday when Attorney-General Roberts announced that examination of divorce records in metropolitan Toronto had turned up three cases in which pictures of the co-respondent were of the same woman.

On Saturday when the pictures appeared in Toronto newspapers, Toronto lawyer Aubrey Golden said they were photos of a client of his. He said she had been "induced" to give the pictures to a person whom he did not identify, and that they were used in the divorce actions without her knowledge and consent.

Later Mr. Golden and his client saw Mr. Pepper, who said: "I am completely convinced she had nothing to do with the three divorces".

Until today her name had been withheld.

Today, in company with Mr. Golden, Mrs. Cass appeared for a press conference at Queen's Park. She said she had been under considerable strain but decided it was her own best interest to make the facts of the case public.

She said she had been married in 1951, had begun a divorce action in the autumn of 1957 and received a decree absolute in September, 1958.

Aid For Poorer Areas Imperative Says Diefenbaker

10 Provincial Premiers Start Dicker for Deal

OTTAWA (CP)—Premier Frost of Ontario today called on the federal government to share income and corporation taxes equally with the provinces. As an alternative, he proposed a constitutional amendment to permit provinces to levy indirect sales taxes.

Noting that the federal government now pays to the provinces one-seventh of personal income tax yields and one-fifth of corporation tax, the Ontario premier told the opening session of the Dominion - provincial conference:

"Provincial tax revenues are inadequate today because the federal government occupies a larger share of those fields than it is entitled to."

He contended that since both the Dominion and the provinces have a constitutional right to direct tax fields, it should share them on an equal basis.

Mr. Frost did not offer an estimate of what his proposal would cost the federal treasury. However, for the current fiscal year the two tax fields would yield a total of some $3,370,000,000. A half-share of this would be $1,685,000,000. The present tax-share formula provides payments and abatements totalling an estimated $563,000,000.

Mr. Frost said Ontario approves adjustment payments to the less prosperous provinces, but suggested a "good hard look" at the methods used to calculate the payments.

"In providing equalization," he said, "no regard was had for the other side of the ledger, namely, the exceptional heavy additional cost to Ontario . . . and its municipalities because of industrial concentration and rapid growth."

He called for funds for exploration and research in "areas lagging in development."

Mr. Frost also advocated a reciprocal tax collection arrangement for the establishment of one tax collection agency, either at the federal or provincial level.

Ontario at present has one tax-sharing arrangement with Ottawa which permits the federal government to collect income tax in Ontario, 13 per cent of which is rebated to the province.

Ontario collects its own succession duties, amounting to about 50 per cent, and 11 per cent of the taxable corporation income. The three sources give Ontario

Lesage Asks 25 Per Cent Of Income Taxes

OTTAWA (CP) — Premier Jean Lesage of Quebec today proposed the provinces be allowed up to 25 per cent of federal tax revenue on personal income and corporation profits and be given exclusive right to levy succession duties.

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker, opening the first phase of negotiations for new Dominion-provincial financial agreements, told the 10 provincial premiers today he hopes a deal will be made in time for action by the federal Parliament next year.

He made no firm proposals as to details, but said the federal government regards the principles of equalization and help to the less wealthy provinces as paramount in new agreements to become effective April 1, 1962.

The new agreements should also strive to stabilize provincial revenues, the prime minister told the opening plenary meeting of the Dominion-provincial conference.

He said that since his government took office three years ago, it has embarked on new Dominion-provincial programs which are putting a strain on federal tax evenues. An aim of federal fiscal policy was to make more room available in the bond markets for provincial and municipal borrowings.

EXPECT MORE MEETINGS

"The federal government hopes to be in a position to submit to Parliament in 1961 whatever legislation may be required for the period following March 31, 1962," he said. The present conference will have to be followed by at least one and possibly more meetings.

"I wish to emphasize that the federal government remains firmly committed to the principle of equalization and of financial assistance to those provinces in which incomes and taxable capacity are below those of the richer provinces," he said.

"The government believes that the principle of fiscal aid and equalization . . . is quite separate from the question of tax rental or tax sharing."

The Atlantic provinces adjustment grants, introduced by the Diefenbaker government had carried equalization further than any previous arrangement. Total equalization and other fiscal aid grants last year amounted to $215,000,000 compared with $136,000,000 in 1957-58, the last year

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) The United States declared today it has proof that Soviet fighters deliberately pushed a U.S. RB-47 reconnaissance plane off its course and shot it down over international waters.

In a dramatic speech to the United Nations Security Council, U.S. ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge said "this astonishing and criminal fact is established beyond doubt by the evidence of our scientific devices."

Lodge produced charts to demonstrate his points, and denounced the Soviet Union for "flagrant disregard for the standards of international conduct."

He called the Soviet charges that the plane violated U.S.S.R. air space July 1 a "complete fabrication" which must be dismissed as a poor attempt to [illegible] a wanton attack on a plane over international waters.

Lodge said he would introduce a resolution asking that the council call for an impartial investigation of the incident.

Damage totalled $600 Saturday when two cars collided on Station St. at Herchimer Ave. Police identified the drivers as Douglas Robert Harrison, R. R. 3 Demorestville, and Monica Ellen Walsh, 52 Ritchie Ave.

Police said the cars collided head-on. There were no injuries.

City police said nothing but routine matters occurred Sunday. Provincial police investigated one minor accident over the weekend.

WELLINGTON CRESCENT CHILDREN ENJOY SCAVENGER HUNT

On Friday afternoon, Wellington Crescent held a Fun-Day with a scavenger hunt, races of all sorts, dashes, wheelbarrow races and 3-legged races, a milk bottle drop, a skipping contest and a hula-hoop contest. Supervisor Patti Jenkinson and assistant leaders Suzanne Van Allen and Jim Lawlor chose the winners of the events. The captain of the winning scavenger hunt team was David Thompson. Elizabeth Jones was the skipping champion, skipping 158 times in one minute, and the winner of the hula hoop contest was Debbie Maher.

PARKDALE'S PICNIC ENJOYABLE AFFAIR

On Thursday all the children were kept busy playing games, engaging in stunts and races and eating their lunch, for at Parkdale playground an all-day picnic was held. Prizes were given to the winners (those scoring the most points), who were: senior girls, Sandy Cone; junior girls, Janie Hayman; senior boys, Jimmy Pope, and junior boys, Larry Mays. The winning team was team "A", whose captain was Sandy Cone. Everyone brought a lunch and a very fun-filled day was enjoyed by all. The supervisor was Lynne Brown.

White Cane Club Annual Picnic Held Saturday

It was a bright and breezy day on Saturday when the White Cane Club held its annual picnic at Victoria Park. The games were entered into with enthusiasm and keen competition. Lt. Col. Everett Fairman, chairman of the Hasting County Advisory Board, which is a member of the United Appeal in Belleville was in charge of the games. Mrs. H. Rollins made the arrangements for the picnic and several members of the Board were present to lend a hand. The Kinette club provided ice cream and soft drinks which were offered to everyone, and several merchants contributed prizes.

Members of the club and guests were present from Kingston and Trenton. Music was provided by Norman Scott, who accompanied the singing with his guitar.

The prize winners for the games were: passing the ball, Mrs. O'Shea; dropping clothes pins in the jar, Gerald Maracle and John Towner, tied; an item of gossip relayed down the line, Mrs. Waite's team; pitching horseshoes, (men) Arlie Scott and Clarence Morris (women) Mrs. O'Shea; guessing the number of jelly beans in a bag, Mrs. Waite; identifying objects in a shopping bag, Clarence Morris and Milford Rushlow; oral contest, Arlie Scott; geography contest, Clarence Morris, Gerald Maracle, Mr. Payne, the one with the nearest birthday, Harvey St. Onge; tallest lady, Mrs. Lloyd.

A picnic supper of sandwiches, cakes, fruit, ice cream, and tea was served at the tables, and all expressed their enjoyment of the outing.

Old Home Week In Gananoque Draws to Close

GANANOQUE (CP) — Old Home Week in this village 16 miles east of Kingston ended Saturday night with a firemen's parade, the swirl of bagpipes and the crackle of fireworks.

Many of the thousands of out-of-town visitors won prizes during the final judging of carnival. Winners included the Peterborough Ornamental Swimming Club who won the women's war canoe race, and the Ottawa Rideaus who won the paddling championship.

Other highlights of the festival were historical pageants, baking contests, maple dances, pancake breakfasts, harness racing, a beard-growing competition and a curling tournament.

PLANT EXPANSION

OSHAWA (CP)—General Motors of Canada announced Saturday plans for a 20-per-cent increase in the area of its truck-manufacturing plant in Oshawa. The addition of 35,000 square feet will bring the manufacturing plant area to nearly five acres.

NIXON WILL WIN

scribed as left wing by the party's ultra-conservative segment — in a conference with Rockefeller at his New York apartment Friday night.

REACHED AN AGREMENT

In a pre-dawn announcement, they said they had reached a 14-point agreement on what the hard core of the platform should contain. It ranged from higher spending on defence to endorsement of the objective of the Negro sit-in lunch-counter demonstrations in the southern states.

Southern Republicans immediately raised a cry against the proposed stronger Negro-rights plank and there were indications the 103-member platform committee would reject the Nixon-Rockefeller civil rights proposals.

Senator Barry Goldwater of Arizona, a friend of Nixon but also leader of the Republican extreme right, called Nixon's trip a "surrender" and a sellout to the "republican left."

He also accused Nixon of a virtual doublecross, saying the vice-president had promised him not to allow certain things to go into the proposed Negro plank and then doing the exact opposite in the Nixon-Rockefeller agreement.

ACCEPTED SOME POINTS

However, the committee did go along with some of the Nixon-Rockefeller suggestions and it seemed for a while Sunday that Nixon would thus return the maverick Rockefeller to the Republican fold. Rockefeller for months had been critical of Nixon and the Eisenhower administration.

Rockefeller demanded that it be made clear what is needed is a definite acceleration in defence production.

The plank adopted by the platform drafters Friday asserted "there is no price ceiling on America's security."

"The United States can and must provide whatever is necessary to ensure its own security and that of the free world and to guarantee the opportunity to fulfill the hopes of man of good-will everywhere. To provide more would be wasteful. To provide less would be catastrophic. Our defence posture must remain steadfast, confident, and superior to all potential foes."

This obviously wasn't enough for Rockefeller, who has said that the present level of defence spending ought to be stepped up by $3,500,000,000 to provide an airborne alert, speed missile production and equip ground forces to cope with any "brush-fire" wars that might break out.

Rockefeller said the New York delegation supported his view and it planned to take "a strong, vigorous position" on the matter when the platform is presented to the convention Tuesday.

There was implicit support from Nixon in this proposed protest to the convention.

The vice-president said on a television broadcast Sunday night it has "become necessary to reappraise whatever we have done in the past and to allocate whatever increased expenditures are necessary to keep America's position at the strongest possible level, and that means stronger than any potential aggressor. . ."

Victim Walks Into Car's Path

BANCROFT (Special)—Bruce Coon, 86, died in hospital at Peterborough Saturday of injuries suffered, when he walked into the path of a car on Hastings St. in Bancroft.

Police identified the driver of the car as Robert Vear of Maynooth.

Police said Mr. Coon stepped out from behind a parked car into the path of Mr. Vear's car.

Di Diamantides In Bethel, Maine Attending Course

BETHEL, Me. — Di Diamantides, general secretary of the Belleville YMCA, is one of seven Canadians attending the 14th annual Summer Laboratory in Human Relations being conducted by the National Education Association of the United States. Some 152 delegates from ten different countries are attending the three-week course dealing with problems of working with people in a training, consultant, leadership or administrative capacity.

Those attending include people from the fields of YMCA work, education, industry, personnel directors and consultants, government ministers and other occupations. The laboratory is staffed by professional people in psychology and sociology from a number of American universities.

Working in small groups, participants are given the opportunity of exploring and practising the basic skills of human relations using their own experiences for laboratory examples. The course, which concludes a week this Friday, emphasizes community and organizational relations and on planning ways of applying knowledge gained to each person's job at home.

HEAD FOR SHOWDOWN

LONDON (Reuters) — An unprecedented showdown is approaching between Labor party leader Hugh Gaitskell and the party's rank-and-file with British defence policy a key issue. A preliminary list of resolutions for Labor's annual delegate conference in October shows 120 resolutions demanding unilateral nuclear disarmament. The Gaitskell line says Britain must be loyal to NATO.

Obituaries

ARTHUR E. SOUTHWORTH

Frankford

Arthur E. Southworth died in Cobourg General Hospital on Sunday, July 24th following a lengthy illness. He was in his 73rd year. Born in North Hastings he lived in Frankford for the past 17 years, previously residing in Campbellford.

He was a plant operator for the Ontario Hydro. Active in his community Mr. Southworth was a member and former elder of Frankford United Church. He was also a member of the Frankford Legion No. 387, the Golden Rule Lodge of Frankford, and was active in the Frankford Quartet.

Predeceased by his wife, Ethel Lowery, in 1945, Mr. Southworth is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Margaret Grant and Miss Maude Southworth, both of California, and a brother, Leonard of Cannington.

Resting at the Rowe Funeral Home, Frankford, funeral arrangements appear elsewhere in this edition.

JAMES E. SPENCE

R.R. 2, Carrying Place

A funeral service was held in Trenton on Friday under the auspices of Canadian Legion, Trenton Branch 110, for James E. Spence, a veteran of the Second World War, who resided at R.R. 2, Carrying Place.

Mr. Spence, who lived in the district for the past 35 years, was in his 54th year at the time of his death. He was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William J. Spence, and was born in Mount Eagle township. He had been in failing health for the past two years.

Mr. Spence, who was a construction worker, was highly regarded in the district. He was an adherent of the United Church and had served with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment.

Surviving are his widow, the former Nettie Robertson; one son, W. J. (Bud) Spence, Trenton RCAF; one daughter, Mrs. Gordon (Audrey) Bonter, Carrying Place; seven grandchildren; four brothers, Roy and Archie Spence, Trenton; Lorne and Peter Robbins, Trenton; six sisters, Mrs. Russell (Margaret) Pitman, Marmora; Mrs. Charles (Jean) Beckwith, Smith's Falls; Mrs. Jack (Jessie) Clarke, Trenton; Mrs. Charles (Violet) Cheyne, of Toronto; Mrs. D. (Edith) Sharpe, Trenton, and Mrs. Wilfred (Amy) Yarrow, Trenton.

Mr. Spence rested at the Weaver Funeral Home, Trenton, until time of service, which was performed by Rev. R. Reid, of Bethel Temple.

Bearers, all members of Branch 110, were Jim Williamson, William Milne, Fred Logue, Bill Latour, Arthur Newton, Arthur Ray and Cpl. Bob Perry.

Interment was in White's cemetery.

NEVER

She said that the lawyer who handled her divorce requested pictures of herself and her husband. She said the lawyer told her they were required in connection with her own divorce action, and that she supplied him with three pictures.

"I know nothing whatever about the persons involved in the three cases", she said. "I have never seen or had contact with them at any time".

The picture development was touched off Friday when Attorney-General Roberts said investigation of divorce records in Metropolitan Toronto turned up pictures of the same woman as co-respondent in three cases. He said the cases were instituted by the same law firm.

The attractive brunette's picture was released by investigating officers and appeared Saturday in Toronto's three daily newspapers.

Mr. Golden said the woman had been "induced" to give the pictures to a person he did not identify and they were used in the actions without her knowledge.

Mr. Roberts said he had appointed Mr. Pepper Queen's proctor in a case instituted by Catherine Jean Donell against Harvey Craig Donell, naming a co-defendent. A decree nisi had been granted.

Mr. Pepper said Mr. Donell admitted in effect during an interview Friday that the divorce evidence was faked.

The co-respondent investigations were started after model Joan Johnson said on a May 26 CBC-TV program she was a professional co-respondent. Later she told investigators that unknown to the CBC her story was a hoax.

Mr. Roberts said none of the 2,000 photos already examined are of Miss Johnson. About 6,000 documents are yet to be examined.

Quinte Trap And Gun Club

Don Parker won the high-over all award with a score of 94 at the Quinte Trap and Gun Club shoot Sunday.

Top shot in the 16-yard event was Denny Rosatte with a 49. Bert Singer had a 48 and J. Walsh and D. Parker were tied with 47's.

Earl Marvin took the handicap event with a score of 48 with D. Parker shooting a 47 and Jim Cole 45.

GHOSTS, BEARS,

Eldon Woolliams (PC — Bow River) touched off the outburst during study of the parks branch's $23,149,615 spending estimate.

The national parks branch last year had a revenue of $2,190,890 and expenditures of $22,095,425, Mr. McFarlane said. He said this represents a cost to the taxpayer of $7 for every person who enters a national park.

Mr. Woolliams put in a bid for supervised private enterprise development in the parks.

CAMPER HIMSELF

Mr. Hamilton, recalling many pleasant summers as a parks camper, said "My sympathies are with the man who does not get too much money; my sympathies are with the thousands who want these parks and who want them for their quietness and beauty and relief from the pressures of this civilization—the people who do not go there for the purpose of doing something which they could do just as well in any place outside."

Mr. Woolliams and Mr. McFarlane also teamed up in advocacy of permitting parks visitors to carry guns as a protection against bears, a recurring theme of Mr. Hamilton's estimates.

Mr. Hamilton also came in for some criticism from Liberal Leader Pearson and J. W. Pickersgill (L—Bonavista-Twillingate) who renewed earlier attacks on the government's "vision" of northern development.

Noting a $10,000,000 drop in the department spending program, Mr. Pickersgill suggested "the minister's vision has been cut down sadly by the minister of finance's division." Mr. Pearson said there was more mirage than vision.

LEAPS TO DEFENCE

Prime Minister Diefenbaker leaped to the defence and reaffirmed that the government will assert Canada's right to Canadian participation and control of resources development.

Mr. Hamilton asserted that private enterprise had leaped ahead of the government's expectations when northern oil, gas and mineral rights were opened for exploration and development.

Earlier, Mr. Diefenbaker announced that federal incentives to municipal winter works will be continued and expanded this winter.

In addition to paying half the labor costs for roads, parks and sewer and water lines built in winter months, the government would make similar contributions to labor costs on construction and sewage treatment plants, parking areas, pumping stations and water towers.

Labor Minister Starr also announced that the federal contribution to a federal-provincial vocational training program for the unemployed will be increased to 75 per cent of the cost from 50 per cent.

Young Woman Escapes From Penitentiary

Authorities said Dorothy Elizabeth Mills, 17, climbed to the top of a construction shed, used a ladder to reach the top of the penitentiary wall and then slid 20 feet to the grounds by means of a blanket.

Construction work is going on at the penitentiary.

The girl was sentenced at Chatham, Ont., last March to three years for robbery and automobile theft. She was born in Cape Breton, N.S.

Authorities said it was the first time a woman has escaped from the penitentiary.

Four Escapees From Orillia Soon Captured

ORILLIA (CP)—Four escapees from the Ontario Hospital School, one of them said to be a pyromaniac, were recaptured Sunday night after an intensive search by police, hospital staff and farmers.

One of the youths is held responsible for three fires that caused about $80,000 damage in the area during a previous escape June 17. He was one of three patients who escaped Sunday morning.

Provincial police said another patient disappeared later but was picked up soon afterwards.

One of the other three was caught at a farmhouse when he sought a drink of water. The farmer, who had been given his description, telephoned police.

Another who was with him fled, but returned later and sat in a truck in the farmyard, where he was detained.

The most-wanted youth was picked up as he walked along Highway 400. About 10 provincial policemen, 12 hospital attendants and some 20 farmers had searched for him.

He was not violent but had a tendency to set fires, said Dr. Alexander Finlayson, acting superintendent of the school, which he described as essentially for mentally retarded persons.

No One Believes Katanga to Stay Independent

By ADRIAN PORTER

ELISABETHVILLE, The Congo (AP) — While Premier Tshombe of Katanga tries to convince the world Katanga will will remain idependent, no one —not even his Belgian supporters and advisers — quite believes it.

On the surface, Elisabethville and the big mining centres scattered about Katanga appear returning to normal after the Congo army revolt a fortnight ago sent thousands of Belgian settlers fleeing to Northern Rhodesia.

In Elisabethville, about half the white population of 12,000 has returned. The Union Miniere, the huge mining corporation which in effect runs Katanga, says 80 per cent of its staff is back.

Traffic is heavier than a week ago. There is plenty of food. Most Negro servants are back at work. More shops are open, curfew has been lifted and a certain kind of night life has begun again. But Elisabethville is a world of men.

WIVES DIDN'T RETURN

Most settlers who returned sent their wives and children to Belgium, Rhodesia or South Africa. The men make it no secret that they are prepared to leave again if the whites and Tshombe seem likely to lose control.

Russian Hands Body of Pilot To Americans

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Russia today handed over to American officials the body of Capt. Willard G. Palm, 39-year-old pilot of the U.S. RB-47 reconnaissance plane shot down by Soviet fighters over the Arctic July 1.

Palm's body was turned over to American Consul Richard Schneider in a Moscow mortuary while a uniformed guard of honor of American military and air force attaches was kept waiting for half an hour on the sidewalk outside.

The body, in a plain brown coffin, was driven in a canvas-covered Soviet army truck to Sheremetyevo airport to be flown to Amsterdam aboard a chartered Dutch plane on the first leg of its flight back home.

TABLES TURNED ON WIFE

SARNIA (CP) — City police, questioning Harold Wilton, 44, of Sarnia in connection with a charge of assault causing bodily harm laid against him by his wife Sunday, discovered a knife wound in his side and charged his wife. Mr. Wilton was in satisfactory condition in hospital.

Freddie Stone, 180 Herchimer Avenue, shown above, will be one of the competitors when the Canadian fiddlers' open contest for the championship of Canada is held in Shelburne, Ont., on Aug. 5 and 6. The winner will receive $1,000, two large trophies and the chance to appear on television and in movies. Second prize is $400 and third prize, $200. Stone, whose teacher is Mrs. George M. Stratton of this city, is no stranger to competitive fiddling. He won three times on Country Hoedown on the CBC and twice on the Ken Soble show in Toronto and has also won fiddling contests in Brantford, Galt and Kitchener. He has played over Radio Station CJBQ here with the late Walter Taylor, with Rusty Reuben's Ranch Boys over WLS, Chicago, and with Pick the Stars in Rochester, N.Y., in 1953.

Premier Names Herself to Two Ministries

COLOMBO, Ceylon (Reuters)—Ceylon's new woman premier named her cabinet Saturday and the new finance minister announced an investigation of the press and possible expropriation of a privately-owned newspaper.

In the first definitive statement of the ruling Sri Lanka Freedom Party's policy, Finance Minister Felix Bandaranaike said the press would be investigated, possibly by a commission.

Earlier, Mrs. Sirimavo Bandaranaike, 44, the world's first woman premier and widow of assassinated premier Solomon Bandaranaike, named herself to two ministries and seven others to cabinet posts. She holds the defence and external affairs portfolios.

PLANTATION POLICY

Felix Bandaranaike, cousin of the late premier, pledged that British - owned tea and rubber plantations on the island would be neither nationalized nor expropriated. The policy would be "not nationalization, but Ceylonization.' This meant the government wanted 100-per-cent Ceylonese labor but did not propose to interfere with management.

He said the government might get some control over the press "but not a stranglehold."

Mrs. Bandaranaike did not contest any of the 151 seats in Wednesday's election, in which the S.L.F.P. won 75 seats. She probably will be named as one of the six non-elected members of Parliament before the House of Representatives meets Aug. 5.

The finance minister said Ceylon was committed to form a republic but probably would always remain in the Commonwealth.

FROST

about $319,000,000 a year.

Mr. Frost said the tax-collection agency would be operative in the fields of personal income tax, corporation tax and succession duties to avoid "duplication, waste and inconvenience on the part of both the taxpayer and the governments concerned."

He said Ontario would collect all federal succession duties and corporation taxes within the province and make all its records available to the federal government. Alternatively, Ontario would discuss the federal collection of either tax or both taxes at rates levied by Ontario.

Mr. Frost said an equal tax sharing plan could be worked out progressively during the next five years.

"Corporation and personal income tax rates are already very higher, perhaps too high at the present time. The only effective way by which the provinces can obtain their rights . . . is by the federal government progressively withdrawing from the provinces' half share of these fields."

Today, 45 per cent of the revenues collected in Ontario were allotted to the municipalities compared to 18 per cent in 1945.

"The problem for the province and the municipalities over the next 20 years is nothing less than staggering."

Mr. Frost said Ontario should have a definite decision in the next six months on existing fiscal arrangements. The present Dominion-provincial agreements expire March 31, 1962.

Ontario should not be forced into a sales tax or other consumer taxation.

But if Ontario were forced into a sales tax an indirect tax would provide more economy in collection and convenience to taxpayers, he said.

'WANT OUR OWN'

"Ontario is not seeking payments from the government of Canada; we are only seeking what is positively our own—our rights under the constitution."

Three Persons Killed in Crash

NORANDA, Que. (CP)—Three persons were reported killed today when the car in which they were riding went out of control near Noranda.

A fourth person was reported to be in critical condition. All four are believed to be from Orangeville, Ont.

Further details were not immediately available.

Beautiful Robe Presented to Prime Minister

OTTAWA (CP)—To a chorus of oohs and ahs from his staff, Prime Minister Diefenbaker parated with evident delight in a bright green velvet robe trimmed in silver thread and sequins, presented him today by the premier of Northern Nigeria.

In a ceremony in the prime minister's office, Sir Ahmadu Bello and a colorfully-robed delegation of Northern Nigerians visited Mr. Diefenbaker to present him with the robe.

The floor-length garment, lined with purple silk, resembles a university gown and hood.

"I want you to promise to wear it," said Sir Ahmadu, a tall, regal figure in pink, turban-like headdress and long flowing robes of many colors.

"I will indeed," replied the prime minister, again donning the garment.

Sir Ahmadu told the prime minister that the robe is for special ceremonial occasions and is worn by royalty or ruling emirs in the African state.

No Red-Painted Bears in Park Says Keeper

EDMONTON (CP)—There are no red-painted bears in Jasper National Park this year, J. H. Atkinson, park superintendent, said Saturday.

He was commenting on a statement made in Ottawa by Resources Minister Alvin Hamilton that troublesome bears in the national parks are trapped, given a splotch of red paint on the hindquarters, and taken to remote areas from tourist traffic.

Mr. Atkinson said that on "one or two occasions" in former years bears have been given the paint treatment as a means of identifying them as unfriendly, but this year Jasper has had "very little trouble" with bears.

Park officials feel all bears are potentially dangerous.

They are wild animals, Mr. Atkinson said, but some tourists make the mistake of thinking they are tame.

Meanwhile, at Cardston, Smith Parratt, 10, who was mauled by a grizzly bear in Glacier National Park in Montana July 18, still was reported in serious condition Sunday.

The son of Glacier Park ranger Lloyd Parratt, the boy was with a party of five when the bear, mother of two cubs, attacked.

Cardston is 135 miles southwest of Calgary and 20 miles north of the Alberta-Montana border near Glacier Park.

AID FOR

for which the previous government prepared the budget.

The prime minister listed other measures by which the federal treasury has relieved the burden on provincial treasuries, including increased assistance for unemployed, winter works, earlier inauguration of hospital insurance, roads to resources, Atlantic power development, the South Saskatchewan dam, the Trans-Canada Highway extension.

"These increased payments by the government of Canada have materially assisted many of the provinces to reach national standards in the service they supply.

"The question as to how far one government should go in financing the activities of another government warrants careful review of both policy and practice in this regard."

The tax-rental agreements had always been framed "with due regard to the financial need of the renting provinces as well as to their tax potential, by which I mean the capacity to obtain revenue through taxes."

"I think it is fair to say that to some extent, these arrangements have transferred the interest of provincial premiers and their treasurers from their own taxpayers to the federal treasury, and that from the federal standpoint this is one of the disadvantages."

Hold Party

TRENTON — Members of the Small Fry Stamp Club held a wiener roast and party Saturday afternoon at the home of their founder, B. L. Copeland, 102 West St. The party began with a visit to Trenton theatres, and then after the youngsters had enjoyed the wiener roast, they played games in the Copeland garden. Since its recent inception, the stamp club has had much success among the younger Trenton philatelists.

Inquest Called

TRENTON— An inquest will be held tomorrow night at the town hall into the death of an elderly Trenton resident who plunged down cellar stairs in her wheel chair some weeks ago, sustaining fatal injuries. The woman was living in a local nursing home at the time.

Trenton Legion Notes

TRENTON — Ken Craddock, vice-president of the Trenton branch is vacationing for two weeks in the Picton area and while there has invited the Picton branch to visit Trenton for Labor Day Jamboree at the Government Dock. It is expected that entries for competitions will be received from branches throughout the area, as well as from the public.

Plans have been completed for the annual children's picnic to be held Aug. 7 at Cedardale Beach. This outing is one of the major attractions of the year in which entire families can take part. It has always enjoyed wide popularity. Specials on the program, as well as children's events, include a ball game between members and a "catch-a-greased-pig" competition.

Child Killed When Car Hits Side of Tent

BANCROFT (Special) — Eighteen - months - old Constance Sutherland of Woodstock was killed Sunday when a car struck the side of a tent in which she was sleeping. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Sutherland.

An inquest will be held Aug. 17.

Police said the Sutherlands had pitched a tent beside a driveway at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James McKay, eight miles west of Bancroft at the junction of Highways 28 and 109. The accident occurred when Dorilla Pare, R. R. 3 Bancroft, drove his car between the tent and Mr. Sutherland's car which was parked in the driveway. Mr. Pare was taking Mrs. Sutherland and Mrs. McKay home after visiting friends on Highway 109.

Police said no charges were laid.

Cuba Contracts To Sell Reds Third of Sugar

HAVANA (AP)—Fidel Castro has bound one-third of the Cuban sugar crop—cornerstone of the country's economy—to the Communist bloc.

For the next five years Cuba has agreed to supply the Soviet Union and Communist China 1,500,000 tons of sugar annually out of a harvest that this year is set at 5,700,000 tons. Shipments to other Communist countries will bring the total Cuban sugar going behind the Iron Curtain to nearly 2,000,000 tons a year.

The Russians also have bought the 70,000 tons of sugar President Eisenhower cut from Cuba's 1960 sales to the United States.

The Castro deals with the Communists are largely a barter basis pegged to world prices. The United States long has been Cuba's best customer at premium prices of two to 2½ cents a pound above the world market price.

Maj. Enesto Guevara, president of the Cuban National Bank, signed a five-year pact with a Peking trade mission Saturday night to supply Red China 500,000 tons of sugar a year.

The terms were along the lines of the earlier agreement to send the Soviet Union 1,000,000 tons a year.

RECOGNIZE REDS

The Cuban-Soviet pact led to the establishment of diplomatic relations between the two countries. The trade agreement with Red China is expected to follow the same course, making Cuba the first country in the Western hemisphere to recognize the Peking regime.

The deals provide for payment mostly in machinery, oil and other goods, with only a small amount of cash to be paid.

Red China has agreed to put up sterling for 20 per cent of the Cuban sugar shipped during the first year of the five-year agreement. Russia will pay dollars for 20 per cent of its sugar for all five years.

The deal with Red China calls for Cuba to trade also iron, Nickel, copper, chrome, cobalt, fibres and some food. Concessions for Cuba's nickel and cobalt are held by American interests, and the new agreement would seem to indicate Castro intends to take over soon the concessions and the plants to process the ores.

Electioneering Too Costly

Senator W. Ross Macdonald, opposition leader in the Canadian Senate, declares that "to stand for election (to the House of Commons) is becoming too great a luxury."

"Election costs now are four or five times what they were when I was first elected in 1926, and I wonder how anyone but a millionaire is bold enough today to offer himself as a candidate."

Insofar as Senator Macdonald's observations are true, they indicate that Canada is in danger of becoming an oligarchy.

In a true democracy it is as essential that anybody should be able to run for office as it is that everybody of age should have a vote.

There was a time when members of the British Parliament received little or no remuneration. That was remedied because, despite extensions of the franchise, Tory squires and Whig industrialists were still monopolizing the seats, since only they could afford to serve without adequate pay.

Of late, a different complaint has been heard in Canada. Men of ability were being barred from politics, we were told, because their salaries as members of the Commons would be only a fraction of what they could earn in private industry or by the practise of their professions.

Important as is this question of adequate remuneration of members, so that the rich and poor can both afford to hold office, it is obvious that it is equally important that poverty should not be an effective bar to seeking office in the first place.

The fact that many, if not most, candidates get considerable financial help from those of similar political beliefs is not an adequate answer to Senator Macdonald's criticism.

The cost of electioneering should not be so high that the man without an organization behind him cannot afford to enter the contest unless he is wealthy.

"Only the Kennedys and the Rockefellers can run in the United States, and we are reaching the stage when their counterparts will be the only ones able to do so in Canada," charges Senator Macdonald.

If that day ever dawns, democracy will be as dead in Canada as it would be if the vote were restricted to those of some particular race, creed or political party. The fact that some of the "Kennedys" and "Rockefellers" may be industrial workers backed by unions will not alter the situation one iota.

Wealth should be no key to public office and the lack of it no barrier.

The Weak Silent Type

The recent ruckus at Claremont where some motorcycle hoodlums managed to inflict a few wounds on a few youths is another incident whereby the activities of this type come to light. We have no sympathy for this type of person or his activities. On the other hand we have as little regard or respect for the people who react to such activities by clamming-up.

The Oshawa Times reports that "Residents of Claremont when asked to comment about the situation, refused, claiming that they would be afraid of becoming targets for retaliation." This splendid display of fortitude resulted in the police being powerless to lay any charges against the culprits through lack of identifying witnesses.

What sort of a society have we got when citizens in a community so fear a bunch of out-of-town toughs they place no confidence in the law of the land and its enforcement agencies? We might also ask just what kind of citizens have we who will not try to rid themselves of a social cancer by supporting the spirit of the law.

Nothing is to be gained by acting as an ostrich would act. If anything such action encourages the thugs to further boldness just to find out how far they can go. If the residents of Claremont wish to remain silent because of a fear of becoming "targets of retaliation" this is their decision. They will probably find that they have put themselves in an awkward position when they look to the humoring of thugs in order to preserve the peace.

Their reluctance in this respect will serve as a basis for further blackmail by the very type of person with whom they want no association.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

EXAMINE THOSE MOTIVES

"God, give me guidance."

Most people who make this request make it sincerely. But there is the danger in the case of everyone of us that what we long for is not the guidance of God but the confirmation of our own conclusions. More often than we suspect we arrive at our conclusions rapidly. Our determination is quickly fixed to do a certain thing or not to do it. Then we may begin asking God for guidance — and doing it in all sincerity. But if we could only look into the bottom of our hearts, we would see that what we are asking for is not God's guidance, but a confirmation of our desires. Shall I take this course or that? Yet down in our hearts we are as determined as we can be about anything that we will take a certain definite course.

To say this is not to condemn ourselves or to cast aspersion on the general run of human honesty. Just as the greater part of an iceberg is submerged, so most of our reasons and motives operate in a realm far below consciousness. Psychology sometimes calls this the subconscious. What the subconscious is no one knows, but certainly many of our acts and opinions stem from motives which emerge from beneath consciousness.

Try once in a while instead of asking God for guidance to ask Him for the capacity to look into your own life and take a realistic appraisal of your motives.

Oil Kills Many Sea Birds

By Eric A. Seymour writing from Newfoundland in the Windsor Star.

Ships dumping oil off Eastern Canada are causing the death of thousands of seabirds along the Newfoundland coast. The birds landing in the slick near the shore become immobilized and die quickly. A spot of oil will ruffle insulating feathers, thus leaving the birds open to die from exposure. On their wings, the slick makes it impossible for them to fly.

The situation is becoming worse each year as more ships, apparently dump waste oil indiscriminately, not only near or within the three - mile limit, but not too far beyond and the slick is brought shoreward by tides, waves and wind.

The Department of Transport's steamship inspection branch has been conducting an extensive survey of oil pollution in the coastal waters of Newfoundland and Labrador. It is hoped to present a strongly - worded brief to the second international convention on the Law of the Sea, opening in Geneva, Switzerland, next March 18 and continuing through to mid-April.

It is hoped that international law will be established to permit oil dumping at sea at a zone 300 to 400 miles from any shoreline. A lot of crankcase oil and other waste oil is dumped into waters around Newfoundland, even though it has been made law that such action must not be undertaken within the three-mile limit. In the past year three or four small vessel owners were prosecuted for not observing the regulation.

Sea birds are important to many Newfoundland communities in winter and provide additional fresh food. Murres predominate, but other seabirds in the area are the razor - billed auk and the puffin. All are delectable if cooked properly. Wild life officials in Newfoundland say that the mortality rate this year will run into "hundreds of thousands" and it is the worst slaughter in the history of oil pollution.

While Canada, through various agencies, will try to cut down on the seabird slaughter by invoking legislation already in effect, the principal aid, if it is to come, must emanate from the Geneva conference. Should a world - wide ruling be established, there is a chance that seabirds, not only off Eastern Canada but in the North Sea region and other parts of the world, will be saved.

Man seems to be fast becoming his own executioner or worst enemy by despoiling his own nest.

The accepted range for oil waste dumping seems to be 50 miles off any coast .This distance may not be enough, judging by reports here of competent authorities. The often turbulent Atlantic, especially in stormy seasons, can roll water shoreward from greater distances,, In other words, oil dumped 100 miles at sea could reach the coast in a few days on the billowing seas. It has been suggested here that several hundred miles at sea would be more beneficial and with less likelihood of the bulk of the oil dumped reaching shore — at least to any harmful degree.

Most American shipping companies have gentleman's agreement to refrain from dumping oil or oil waste in water less than 50 miles off shore. Newfoundland may be receiving more oil than usual from foreign fishing trawlers and some of her own coastal vessels. Trawler fishing off Newfoundland is on the increase with a score of foreign countries sending ships to the rich fishing grounds in the North Atlantic. Perhaps more federal patrol ships could be used or the R.C.N., in a slack period, could help in policing the shores and aid in tracing oil slick to the culprits.

The oil pollution is not a new tonic, but it is growing worse with increased shipping using oil as bunker fuel. In the old days when ships were coal-burners there was no worry about the seabirds.

Famous Books Once Banned

Brantford Expositor

When we said, in an editorial on censorship the other day, that most of the books we now regard and revere as classics or near-classics have been banned or burned or placed on the forbidden list at one time or place, we were not making a sweeping exaggeration.

The practice of book-banning is as old as it is reprehensible. It was, for instance in 387 B.C., in Greece, that Plato recommended expurgating Homer's "Odyssey" for younger readers.

In 66 A.D. Plutarch declared the comedies of Aristophanes obscene.

The Synod of Canterbury, England, in 1409, forbade the translation of the Scripture from one language to another. In 1555 a decree of Queen Mary 1 set forth that "no manner of persons presume to bring into this realm any manuscripts, books, papers, etc., in the name of Martin Luther, John Calvin, Miles Coverdale, Erasmus, Tyndale, et al."

In 1926 the Index of the Soviet Inquisition instructed all libraries that "the section on religion must contain solely anti religious books. Religiously dogmatic books, such as the Gospel, the Koran, the Talmud etc., must be left in the large libraries but removed from the smaller ones."

This is not the place to go into the subject in detail, but, picked at random, here are some books that have been banned: "The Decameron" by Boccacio; "The Divine Comedy" by Dante; "The Birth, Life and Acts of King Arthur and His Noble Knights of the Round Table" by Sir Thomas Malory; "Pantagruel" and "Gargantua" by Rabelais; "Advancement of Learning" by Sir Francis Bacon; "Dialogo sopra i due Massimi Sistemi del Mondo" by Galileo, many of the works and passages of Shakespeare; "Areopagitica", "Paradise Lost", etc., by Milton; "Gulliver's Travels" by Swift; "Don Quixote" by Cervantes; "Abraham Nights" in Burton's and other translations; "Confessions" of Rousseau; "A Sentimental Journey" by Laurence Sterne; "Critique of Pure Reason' by Kant; "The Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire" by Gibbon; "The Rights of Man" and "The Age of Reason" by Paine; "Memoirs" of Cagliostro; "Droll Tales" by Balzac; "Principles of Political Economy" by John Stuart Mill; "On the Origin of Species' by Charles Darwin; "Uncle Tom's Cabin" by Harriet Beecher Stowe; "Adam Bede" by George Eliot (Mary Anne Evans); "Leaves of Grass" by Walt Whitman; "Flowers of Evil" by Baudelaire; "Madame Bovary" by Flaubert; "Alice's Adventures in Wonderland" by Lewis Carroll (Rev. Charles L. Dodgson); "Tom Sawyer" and "Huckleberry Finn" by Mark Twain; "The Mikado" by Gilbert and Sullivan; "Tess of the D'Urbervilles" by Thomas Hardy; "J'Accuse" by Zola; "Mrs. Warren's Profession", "Man and Superman" and "The Adventures of the Black Girl in her Search for God" by Bernard Shaw; "Salome" by Oscar Wilde; "The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes" by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle; "Studies in the Psychology of Sex" by Havelock Ellis; "An American Tragedy' by Dreiser; "Ulysses' 'by James Joyce; "Elmer Gantry" by Sinclair Lewis; "Antic Hay" and "Brave New World" by Aldous Huxley; "Sanctuary" etc., by William Faulkner; "A Farewell to Arms" by Ernest Hemingway; "All Quiet on the Western Front" by Erich Maria Remarque; "Grapes of Wrath" by Steinbeck.

We could go on and on, but perhaps you see the point by now.

Motorists Get Belted by An Expert

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

A man I know is an executive for a company that makes the webbing for safety belts in automobiles. I told him I had safety belts installed in my new car, and asked him how business was.

"It could be better," he shrugged, "but motorists still aren't convinced that the belts are essential. And the newspapers are largely to blame for it."

"What do you mean?" I exclaimed indignantly. "We give thousands of columns of free space to accident prevention in the papers. Whenever we can, we run a picture of an auto crash as a warning to motorists."

"That's just it," he said. "Auto accidents get plenty of publicity, but mostly of the wrong kind. It's the dramatic family-of-five-killed story that people read about, not the thousands of nonfatal injuries a month."

"What has that got to do with it?" I asked.

"Simply that people have become fatalistic about auto accidents. They think of them in terms of death-or-nothing. Most of the fatal crashes in news photos would not have been helped by safety belts — so the readers dismiss belts as being of little value."

"And that's the wrong emphasis?" I inquired.

"It certainly is," he said. "For every fatal accident, there are a hundred in which the neck is broken, or the leg bones crack, or the head is smashed open. These people may not die, but they live for years in expensive misery. And those are the casualties that could be helped most by safety belts."

"Why do you suppose the public hasn't taken to them?" I persisted.

"A number of reasons, some of them superstitious. A lot of people feel that if they ignore the whole matter, accidents won't happen to them. By admitting the possibility through purchase of a belt, they feel they are inviting trouble. We're as irrational as all that.

"For another thing, the auto companies, and the dealers, and the repair shops are very wary about bringing up the question of accidents. The car is sold as a symbol of pleasure and status, and they don't want the ugly aroma of death floating around the sales atmosphere. If they plugged safety belts as ardently as they do white-wall tires, the public would buy them."

"Well, I'm glad the newspapers aren't the only ones to blame," I said. "And you're probably right — but this is the first time I've heard of too much publicity hurting a good cause."

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

SUFFERERS OF DUODENUM ULCER MUST FOLLOW RULES FOR CURE

"Dear Dr. Molner: Please tell about an ulcer of the duodenum. It is supposed to be active but not bleeding. Can this be cured by diet alone without medication?

"Could it become cancerous? Does smoking harm such a patient? And what does the ulcer come from?— Mrs. J. S."

An ulcer is a superficial sore (as distinguished from a festering, discharging one that starts below the surface)and a duodenal ulcer is a superficial sore in the duodenum, or that part of the intestinal tract which is immediately below the stomach.

Let's suppose you had a sore, or ulcer, on your finger. What would you do? Well, you'd keep it covered, put some medication on it, and avoid irritating the spot, or spilling irritating things on it.

That's exactly what you do with a duodenal ulcer. You go on a diet of foods that will be least irritating. No highly spiced foods, because the peppery, vinegary, spicy things will irritate it. So you go on a "bland" diet. "Bland" means "not drastic or irritating; not stimulating".

You can't rub a healing salve on an ulcer inside, so you do the next best thing: You use medications which keep the normal stomach acids at a minimum, and also help to keep the stomach (and duodenum) activity and spasm at a minimum. You know how it is. A sore on a finger heals quickly if you don't move the finger too much. But if the sore is at a joint, where it is constantly being moved, it takes longer to heal. So that's why you use medications which reduce the stomach motion or activity to a minimum in cases of ulcers of the duodenum.

Smoking? The nicotine, or the smoke, or whatever, has a tendency to irritate, to incite the stomach juices. The best experts say "no smoking" gives the duodenum more opportunity to rest, and a better chance to heal. Indeed, some say that an occasional drink — I repeat "occasional" and that's what I mean — may do less harm than smoking.

If people follow the rules (and I've given you the reasons) cure of a duodenal ulcer is frequent. True, some ulcers are stubborn and recurrent and the most stubborn are those possessed by people who think up a lot of reasons for not doing what they are told to do. The chance of cure is pretty good if you follow the rules; poor if you don't.

Cancer? For reasons I don't know, and I guess nobody yet knows, duodenal ulcers infrequently become cancerous. Gastric ulcers (ulcers in the stomach proper, rather than the duodenum) are another matter, and should be watched closely by your doctor. However, duodenal ulcers are far more prevalent than gastric ulcers.

"Dear Dr. Molner: How long can a person live with only one kidney? — Mrs. W. C."

Indefinitely! The remaining kidney becomes larger, as a rule, to do the required work for the body. However, the person with only one kidney obviously should observe the rules of good health: Eat properly, get adequate rest, drink plenty of liquids and avoid excessive fatigue — good rules for all of us. Pay particular attention to any sign of urinary infection so it can be treated at once.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Please describe trichobezoar and phytobezoar. Where do these originate? Are they ever found in the human stomach? What is the cure? — F. C. E."

Bezoars are hard balls of substances such as hair (trichobezoars) and certain vegetable fibres (phytobezoars). They are found in human as well as animal stomachs. The cure: Removal by surgery, and correction of whatever psychological quirk that causes the eating of hair or fibres which cannot be digested or passed on through the digestive tract.

Head-Tapping Verboten

Bonn, West Germany, Bulletin

"Tapping one's forehead in a manner meant to suggest that another motorist has 'bats in the belfry' or 'rocks in his head' as the picturesque terms go, and thereby implying one's disapproval of the motorist's conduct in traffic; must be viewed as an open insult in terms of the law. While manifestations of discourtesy and rudeness need not in every instance be considered to have an insulting character, they must be taken as such when practised between total strangers in a public place".

This was the ruling recently given by a court at Dusseldorf. It had to decide whether "showing the bird", as the head-tapping gesture is known in Germany, did or did not constitute an insult. The Court rejected the plea of the defendant that such behavior was not unusual in present-day traffic conditions. The judge conceded that it was unfortunately true that there were "frequent cases of tactlessness" and "gross lack of self-discipline" in modern city traffic. But such instances, he continued, merely showed that a minority of the public no longer considered themselves bound by the generally accepted codes of courtesy and consideration for others.

The fact that one motorist might tap his head, however, in no way established it as the standard of etiquette on the highways.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

GOD'S GREAT GARDEN

All through my life the golden gleam of beauty has softened every footstep in God's Great Garden, which is His Earth. What a divine purpose is spread out in great letters no matter where we go.

When that new 50-star flag was recently raised above our U.S. Capitol I was glad I had had the opportunity to visit Hawaii when I did. I looked long upon it then, and it blesses me now with my memory of its rare beauties. I think of every beautiful spot and the happy welcome to those who call — and how they decorate visitors with flowers, and the fragrance that one never forgets. I would say that Hawaii — our latest state — could well be described as God's sample of Heaven!

Beauty is everywhere, if we will use our eye-sight and the love of beauty that could be ours at will by just carrying the image with us in our heart. Beauty is an undying thing.

The earth is given to the humblest inhabitant. With each one of us in tune with the infinite we become allied with all truth and all beauty. We make our own world and can spread it far and wide.

God's great Garden is at our feet at all times. Let us never despoil it!

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

One of my female relatives goes for a trip to Britain each spring and tours around the back roads looking for all the places that aren't in the guide books. One of her favorite inns is in a little travelled section of Derbyshire. It is operated by two middle-aged women as a sort of hobby. They have at heart the preservation of the old feeling of the country.

This being her third visit to the inn, where she stays a week at a time, my relative felt she had reached a basis of personal friendship with the two proprietresses, which allowed her the privileges of intimacy.

"One thing," she said to them over the tea in the garden, "you don't charge enough. Your rates are not half what they are everywhere else."

"Well," apologized the gentle inn-keepers, "we get a good many regular guests, young people who can't afford more expensive places. We try to keep a place people will want to come back to. And when they do, we are happy."

"In other words", said my relative, "the people who can afford more are the kind of people you don't want here."

Looking slightly shocked, the two smiled and said:

"Exactly."

20 Crippled Children Enjoy Afternoon at Roblin Lake

Sunshine glinted the sparkling waters of Roblin Lake on Saturday. Not a cloud speckled the sky. A warm midsummer breeze rippled the surface of the lake.

The sunshine of sheer enjoyment sparkled in the eyes of some twenty crippled children of the city. It was reflected in the smiling faces of members of the Camel Herders' Stable of the Belleville Shrine Club.

Chief Camel Herder George Mueller and Mrs. Mueller proved perfect hosts. They opened their well - appointed cottage and grounds to the kiddies. They, with other Herders and their ladies, saw to it the children lacked for nothing.

Pretty Sharon Rushlow "The Sweetheart of the Shrine" smiled her happiness. "This is simply wonderful", she said. "I am having a grand time — and I know all of the children are."

Foresighted Shriners prepared a variety of events for the kiddies. Some of them splashed in the warm water of the lake. Others waded.

A novelty thrill for them came with the pony rides. Owners of the Parks Pony Farm brought some of their fine shetlands complete with saddles and equipment. And some of the kiddies had their first ride atop a horse.

Eric Cooper's fine houseboat was kept busy. The children were taken around the lake on several trips. Other water outings with a little more speed included, came with rides in Cecil Read's handsome power speedster.

Nor was that important phase the "inner child" forgotten. During the afternoon they were treated to soft drinks and ice cream.

Around five o'clock a battery of charcoal - burning barbecues went into action. And hungry kiddies took avid opportunity of hot dogs, hamburgs, toasted and otherwise, with all the trimmings. Herder Stu Hibbard won his spurs as a "hamburg and hot dog chef".

Then came the big surprise. Under Herder "Mickey" MacDonald's supervision, special gifts were presented to the youngsters. Each received a fine present with the compliments of "The Stable".

It was one of those days just like any other day, but an extra special one for the kiddies. They had a wonderful time and appreciation shone on smiling faces.

Their next "big day" comes next month when they will be the guests of the Shrine at the Shrine Circus, scheduled this year for the Canadian National Exhibition.

Westbrook Girl, Kingston Woman Drown in Lake

KINGSTON (CP) — A four-year-old girl and an elderly woman who tried to save her were drowned Sunday in Bob's Lake, about 27 miles northwest of here.

Karen's three-year-old brother, Edward, with whom she was playing when the accident occurred, was also pulled from the water by rescuers. He was the only one to respond to a resuscitator.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Wallace, the children's parents, were farther out on the lake when the accident occurred.

Wheat on Farms Less Than 100 Million Bushels

WINNIPEG (CP) — For the first time since July 31, 1954, wheat stocks on Canadian farms will be less than 100,000,000 bushels, a Canadian Wheat Board spokesman said Sunday.

Total farm stocks at the end of the current crop year, July 31, would be approximately 90,000,000 bushels, but may drop to as low as 75,000,000.

The farm carryover into the 1959-60 crop year was 130,000,000 bushels. The record farm carryover was 323,000,000 bushels in 1958.

Canada will have an estimated 510,000,000 bushels of wheat stored, in transit and on the farms at the end of the current crop year, compared to the 538,000,000-bushel surplus last July 31.

The spokesman said total export sales for the year will be at least 275,000,000 bushels compared with 289,000,000 for the 1958-59 crop year.

Hate of White Paternalism Main Cause of Congo Revolt

By ANDREW BOROWIEC

SONGOLOLO, The Congo (AP) The main driving force of the black man's revolt in The Congo was hatred of the white man's paternalism.

The uprising of the 25,000-man Force Publique — The Congo's Belgian - trained army—came just a week after the June 30 proclamation of independence from Belgian rule.

The revolt spread like a flame throughout The Congo bush and jungle fanned by the pent-up feelings of inferiority, the 80 years of servility.

"To the average Negro in the first week of independence, nothing had changed. Belgian officials continued to reign. Belgian officers commanded the troops. Big ships continued to carry Congo products to Belgium.

"Is that independence?" men were asking one another in shacks with thatched roofs and in barrack-like homes in Negro sections of the gleaming white cities built by the Belgians.

When the soldiers screamed demands at rallies, the new Congo government did not know what to do. In a nation of more than 13,000,000, only a dozen Negroes had been to a university. Few had administrative or leadership experience.

Despite pleas and promises from their own government officials, the soldiers went on a rampage against the whites.

In this lower Congo capital of an administrative region bordering on Portuguese Angola, soldiers with the naive eyes of children and an ever-ready smile tried to explain why they revolted.

"Yes, our men raped white women," one said. "They were bad women. They walked around in shorts showing their legs. But when black men came to them they refused to shake hands. Belgian officers slept with our women all the time. But we could never sleep with theirs."

MAIN JOB

For the officials of the new nation, the task is to make sure that the people will listen to their orders, that the people have work and enough to eat.

United Nations troops control the port cities of the lower Congo. But the interior continues to be torn by tribal strife, internal squabbles, disorder and uncertainty.

Will peace and order reign soon in The Congo?

"You must help us," a Congolese official said. "We do not hate the white man, but we don't want the Belgians back. . . . Give us Americans, Russians, anybody. Don't leave us alone. We are young and we need help, or else blood will flow again in The Congo."

Tennis Club Clean-Sweeps Oshawa Series

Belleville tennis players completed a grand slam in the home and home series with Oshawa with 11 victories on Oshawa courts yesterday. The Quinte Club team won the opener 14-0 on home courts for a 25-0 shutout.

Winning singles players for Belleville were Doug Grant, John Black, Art Bestic, Tim Cook, Mike Black and Larry Black.

In the doubles, Tim Cook did double duty scoring wins with John Black and Larry Black. Art Bestic—Mike Black, and Doug Grant—Bill Redquest also scored wins although the latter pair dropped the only set of the series in a close struggle decided by some stinging placements by Redquest.

13 Canadians Attend Showing Of Fall Clothes

Written for The Canadian Press
By MARGARET NESS

NEW YORK (CP) — Thirteen Canadians were among the 230 fashion editors who attended the 35th National Press Week of the New York couture group. Cities represented were Vancouver, Brandon, Kitchener, Toronto and Montreal.

Thirty - five collections of fall clothes were viewed. Now that everything, including the last-day showing Friday by Dior of New York, has been seen.

A roundup of the trends may be helpful to Canadian housewives.

More natural waistlines were in evidence than the much - discussed lowered hipline look. A few designers even included the high - bosomed, waist-skipping silhouette. David Kidd, the only Scot in New York's garment district, called his version of this look "the Armstrong - Jones" silhouette.

Skirts are predominantly slim in effect. Dior endorses this trend and is always a pace-setter. But there was a wide diversity of skirt widths in almost all the collections.

TREND TO PLEATS

Pleats certainly are a definite trend for fall. They, too, have variety. There seemed to be equal interest in box and soft pleats. On the box pleated skirts the New York deisigners did agree. They lie flatteringly flat to the hips.

The longer jacket was definitely the suit prediction but every length was represented, except the very short snug - fitting bolero.

Coats are big and dramatic, with dropped sleeve treatment. It is a controlled fullness, however, that is gradually shaped towards the hemline, far-removed from the "tent" coat of a few years ago.

From the standpoint of fabric, velvet is back, mostly in a combination with satin or brocade, as a velvet skirt with the other fabric as a top. But the real news is in the resplendent brocades woven so they look carved.

Practically all the New York designers agreed on fall colorings, with high fashion interest in the whole range from lavender to deepest plum. Grey, an early fall forecast, was very prevalent in suits and dresses.

As New York fashions go, so go Canadian fashions. So this is the fall fashion picture for Canada as well.

Checkered Coverage

By TRACY ADRIAN

This bold, checkerboard, wool-blend cardigan designed with a carefree air will move you breezily through spring and into summer. A wardrobe boon, it magically converts separate skirts into suits, and dresses into costumes.

The little jacket with its rounded neckline is a perfect foil for jewelry necklaces and perky scarves. With its three-quarter sleeves it will prove a good cover-up for sleeveless blouses and dresses, too.

Mr., Mrs. T. E. Hall Celebrate Golden Wedding Anniversary

CAMPBELLFORD — Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Hall of 16 Canrobert Street, Cambellford, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on Sunday, when 32 relatives enjoyed a turkey dinner at the Riviera Inn.

The dining room was decorated with baskets of carnations and 'mums and a three-tiered anniversary cake with gold candles centred the head table.

Guests were present from Toronto, Peterborough, Trenton, Roseneath and Campbellford. Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Nicol of Roseneath, bridesmaid and groomsman for Mr. and Mrs. Hall at their wedding 50 years ago, were present, as well as Mr. and Mrs. Archie Mouncey of Roseneath, who celebrated their golden wedding three years ago. Mrs. Hall had been bridesmaid at their wedding.

Mr. Harry Sager of Trenton, officiated as master of ceremonies. Following a toast to the Queen and the invocation, Mr. Harry proposed a toast to the bride and bridegroom and outlined their life history, mentioning many of their accomplishments. Mr. Hall graciously responded. Several guests gave short addresses.

Following the dinner all were invited to the Hall residence, where they enjoyed an informal get-together on the lawn.

"AT HOME"

On Saturday evening, prior to the celebration, Mr. and Mrs. Hall were at home to their friends. Their home was beautifully decorated with baskets of flowers and gold candles, and over 100 guests signed the register.

Mrs. Hall was the former Millie Robins of Roseneath. The couple were married in the rectory at Hastings Church by Rev. J. Burns. They lived for a time in Peterborough where Mr. Hall was employed by CGE as an accountant and draftsman and later as a toolmaker for an English sash and door firm.

Following this they moved to Campbellford where Mr. Hall worked during the first war, as a salesman and bookkeeper for a car dealer prior to buying the business which he operated for 11 years. During the second war, cars were scarce and Mr. Hall gave up his business and worked in Ajax as a supervisor.

After the war he was employed in Oshawa as an accountant for two years, when he moved back to Campbellford and opened an automotive supply business.

Mr. and Mrs. Hall have three children, two girls and a boy. They are: Mrs. Darwin Sager (Thelma) of Trenton; Mrs. Ron Hazell (Eileen) and Preston, both of Campbellford.

Women's Institute

MADOC W.I.

MADOC — The July meeting of the Madoc Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Emil Wannamaker in the evening of July 15. The meeting was opened by the president, Mrs. George McCrimmon.

Roll call was answered by 14 members and visitors.

It was decided to put the flag that was donated by Mrs. Smith, of Belleville, up at the park.

In the absence of Mrs. Herrington, Mrs. C. Whytock gave the report of the district annual convention for North Hastings held at the Presbyterian church in Madoc, in May.

Mrs. B. Tanner moved a resolution that manufacturers of children's wear, especially overalls, include a piece of the same material stapled onto the garment for repairs.

Mrs. Livingstone gave the motto, "Life is a Grindstone, Whether It Polishes You Up, or Wears You Down, Depends on What You are Made of".

Mrs. Beatty moved that Mrs. B. Tanner and Mrs. Livingstone make preparations for a bus trip later in the year.

Mrs. M. Reynolds, of Cooper, was the guest speaker for the evening. She spoke on her trip to Guelph to the convention on 'Public Relations'. She enjoyed the trip very much and brought back many interesting highlights and useful information to the W.I.

A 'buzz' session was held to get the 'members' views on whether teenage children should be allowed to buy on the credit plan which is now in many stores and it was decided that they should not be allowed to buy on credit.

There was a contest name of flowers which was won by Mrs. B. Tanner, each member drew a slip of paper on which was written interesting subjects to give a minute's speech on. The subjects were most varied and most interesting.

Mrs. C. Whytock thanked the guest speaker for her part of the program and the hostess for the use of her home for the meeting, after which refreshments were served by the hostess and her assistants.

Mr., Mrs. R. Mitchell Mark 40th Anniversary by Coastal Trip

FRANKFORD — Mr. and Mrs. Orval Berry of Frankford, recently entertained at their home in honor of 40th wedding anniversary of Mrs. Berry's father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mitchell of Oshawa district.

Eighty guests were present from Peterborough, Cobourg, Toronto, Bowmanville and Oshawa. Special guests for the occasion were Mrs. Berry's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs Thomas H. Mitchell, from Alberquerque, New Mexico.

A bounteous buffet luncheon was featured by a three-tiered anniversary cake. Floral decorations included carnations, 'mums and snapdragons.

The guests of honor were presented with a set of dishes and a honeymoon trip to the east coast.

BUSY OLDTIMER

SCOTSTOWN, Que. (CP)—Celebrating her 97th birthday, Miss Jennie Hanright said that "keeping busy and making the best of one's lot" is the best recipe for a long life. WEDDINGS

WALLACE — WALKOM

Tall standards of white gladioli and white chrysanthemums, interspersed with ferns, formed a lovely setting in Bridge Street United Church, Belleville, for a very pretty double-ring wedding on Saturday, July 16, at 3.00 p.m. when Margaret Evelyn Walkom, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Walkom, was united in marriage to Ronald Potter Wallace, of Kars. Ontario, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Wallace. The Reverend Harry M. Davis, pastor of the church, officiated.

Mr. Egerton Boyce, guest organist, provided the traditional wedding music, which included the "Wedding March", "Praise My Soul, the King of Heaven", and accompanied the soloist, Miss Margaret Hillis, of Belleville, who sang before the ceremony, "The Wedding Prayer" and "O Lord Most Holy", during the signing of the register.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was radiant in her white organza bridal gown over taffeta, fashioned in floor-length, with fitted bodice, having a boat-shaped neckline, accented with appliqued roses dotted with seed pearls and iridescent sequins, and short sleeves complemented by organza mitts, "V"-pointed over the hand with similar applique. The graceful skirt was also enhanced by like appliques. She wore a chapel-type veil of silk tulle illusion held by a seed pearl encrusted tiara, and carried a Colonial bouquet of dark pink roses, mingled with white snowdrift 'mums, outlined with white satin loops.

She was attended by her sister Miss Donalda Walkom, of Kingston, wearing pale turquoise organza with small matching headdress, and carrying a nosegay of white and turquoise-tinted 'mums.

Mr. Marvin Collins, of Toronto, attended the bridegroom, while Mr. Arnold Swerdfeger, of Ottawa, and Mr. Leslie Wallace, of Manotick, Ontario cousin of the bridegroom, were ushers.

The reception was held at Maple Inn, Bloomfield, where the bride's table, with its white damask, centred by a three-tier wedding cake, topped by a tiny bride and bridegroom, and clouded about the base with white tulle and scattered red rosebuds, and the bridal bouquets formed a most attractive nuptial setting.

The bride's mother received, wearing a sheath style gown in a soft shade of blue with matching feather hat, white accessories, and corsage of pink Sweetheart roses and stephanotis.

She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who was attired in navy blue with pink accessories, and corsage of pink Sweetheart roses mingled with tiny 'mums.

For the wedding trip to Gaspe Peninsula, the bride chose a powder-blue dress with matching jacket and hat, bone-colored accessories and corsage of yellow Sweetheart roses. Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace will make their home in Ottawa, Ontario.

Guests were present from Kars. Peterborough; Kingston; Toronto; Paris, Ontario; Danford Lake, Quebec; Ottawa; Streetsville; Napanee; Markham; Stittsville, Winchester; Manotick; Vernon and Belleville.

The bride was entertained at several presentations, previous to her marriage, in Toronto.

DEATH UNEXPLAINED

GODERICH (CP)—A post mortem examination into the death of Mrs. Steve Palacz, 36, whose body was found in her home here Friday night, has failed to reveal its cause, coroner Dr. N. C. Jackson, said Sunday night. Dr. Jackson said "some materials" have been forwarded to the attorney-general's laboratory in Toronto for further analysis. Mrs. Palacz's husband works away from Goderich and had not been home since June 17.

WHITE — CROWE

FRANKFORD — A pretty wedding was solemnized in Frankford United Church on Saturday, July 16, at 2.30 p.m. when Rev. C. Judd united in marriage Annie Marlene Crowe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ferris Crowe, of Frankford, Ontario, R.R. 3, and George Franklin White, son of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar White of Detlor, Ontario. The church was decorated with vases of delphiniums and snowballs.

The traditional wedding music was rendered by Miss Margaret Sine; soloist was Miss Myrna Sine.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a floor-length gown of white net and French lace over taffeta, trimmed with seed pearls and matching shoulder length veil. She carried a white Bible with a bridal bouquet of baby pink roses.

Maid of honor, Miss Edith Crowe, sister of the bride, wore a lilac ballerina length gown with white accessories and carried a nosegay of yellow cascade 'mums.

The bridesmaids, Miss Lillian Crowe and Miss Alice Crowe, sisters of the bride, wore lilac ballerina length gowns with white accessories and carried nosegays of white shasta 'mums.

The groomsman was Mr. Melville White, brother of the bridegroom of Detlor, Ont. Ushers were Mr. Glen Crowe, brother of the bride, and Mr. Lloyd White, cousin of the bridegroom.

The reception was held in the community hall, Frankford, where the bride's mother received in a blue crepe dress with beige accessories, wearing a corsage of pink carnations. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother in a dress of pale green with white accessories and wearing a corsage of pink carnations.

For the wedding trip to Niagara Falls and the U.S.A., the bride chose a dress of aqua organza over aqua taffeta trimmed with aqua rose and wore white accessories. They will reside at Frankford, R.R. 3.

Out-of-town guests were present from Toronto, Madoc, Plainfield, Detlor, Cooper, Harold, Stirling and Belleville.

Ladies Win Golf Awards At Napanee

Bay of Quinte Country Club lady golfers brought home some trophies of the chase from the Napanee Golf Club over the weekend, but not too many.

At the Napanee Ladies Field Day held Saturday, Barbara Graham won the putting award while Helen Lewis came home with the fourth flight third low gross prize.

Sarah Armstrong won the fourth flight putting award with Hilda Dolan the recipient of a door prize.

At the club's "Mr. and Mrs." Tournament played Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Walker won the closest to hole and highest score on one hole prizes.

Val and Helen Smith took the most pars award.

Mrs. Carrie Mahoney playing with a "substitute husband" also came home with an award.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by [illegible] agencies and counsellors.

Harriet E. — Why should he choose a divorcee with children?

Dan J. — Is it really a nutty idea?

Harriet E. — I am a married woman, trying to help my bachelor brother who makes his home with me.

Dan is nearly 40. He is good looking and has a fine job. He has dated many girls but never seems to find his ideal. I have always told him he is too choosy, but he says he can't help it.

Naturally, I would like to encourage his interest in almost any woman. But I find myself unable to approve his recent choice. Flora is a divorcee with three children. He says he cares more for her than anyone he has ever met. What I can't understand is why he should choose such a woman when there are so many younger, more attractive single girls around.

Dan J. — I'll agree that it's kind of odd for a bachelor to care for a woman with three kids, but that's the way it goes. I can't explain it.

Harriet really wants me to marry one of her single friends, but I never could care for that girl. She's pretty, I'll agree, but she doesn't appeal to me.

Harriet seems scared now that I'm really thinking of taking the plunge. But there's nothing to worry about. I'm still playing the field and I haven't asked Flora to marry me. I figure with three kids on her hands, she isn't going to disappear very fast. In the meantime I can take lots of time to think about it. Is it really a nutty idea?

The Council: We see nothing wrong or "nutty" about a bachelor falling for a woman with children. Certainly many happy marriages of this sort have been made.

But we do find Dan's attitude peculiar and not at all promising for the woman involved.

A man who finds himself attracted to a woman with children usually makes a fairly quick decision. If he feels he doesn't want to start married life with a ready-made family, he ducks away fast.

If the attraction is very strong he makes up his mind that he must be ready to offer himself as a father as well as a husband. Although the children's father is still living, any sensible man recognizes that he cannot be married to the mother of young children without taking some responsibilities as a father.

Dan shows none of the concern of a man in love. He seems quite gleeful that Flora's situation isn't a particularly happy one, that she may be anxiously awaiting his decision. At the same time he is upsetting his sister and possibly the single girl Harriet would like him to marry. So he has at least three women in quite a tizzy.

We get the impression that Dan is serious about nothing but his need to hurt or frustrate women. Possibly this makes him feel like a big shot. And he needs to feel like a big shot because his real valuation of himself is mighty low. If it were not, he would inevitably find a woman he could care for.

What it comes to is that Dan is teasing. Teasing is cruelty disguised as fun. Any woman, including his sister, who takes him seriously, lets herself in for pain.

QUESTION BOX

Question: My daughter is to be married soon and is being honored at a tea to be given by two of her aunts. (Please note I said "tea," not "shower"! I followed your advice about no relative giving such a party.) Is it proper for her future mother-in-law, and me, to pour the tea and coffee?

Answer: Of course! Being asked to serve as hostess at a tea or coffee table is considered an honor and I see no reason why you should not take turns assisting. You should not serve all afternoon, however, never longer than twenty minutes at a time. Then you should mingle with the guests, letting the hostesses assign someone to take your place.

Question: I recently received an invitation (a very formal one) to a Golden Anniversary. At the bottom of the card it said "Pot of Gold." I hadn't the faintest idea what this meant. My husband and I went to the party taking no present, as we did not know these people well. We were very upset to find that everyone else had brought gifts. Everything went into a big pot that had been painted gold! Lots of folks just put money in it. (My husband sneaked five dollars into it when no one was looking). What do you think of this idea?

Answer: I don't like it! It is extremely unfair to put acquaintances, which you obviously were, in this position. It is perfectly all right to have fun with such an idea, but only when family and close friends are invited and all know about it. To begin with, no formal invitation should have been sent for such an obviously informal affair, and they should not have been sent to those not in on the game!

Question: My daughter is getting married next month. I would like to know if it would be proper, when we send out the invitations, to say that we would prefer money rather than gifts. The young couple needs money much more than coffee pots and china! Would this be wrong?

Answer: It most certainly would! To do so will only bring criticism. This is a form that is never followed. However, it is perfectly acceptable to tell relatives and very close friends that money gifts are preferred. But don't mention it to anyone else!

To Be or Not To Be Consistent

By Mary Moore

To be honest this is a personal talk — a little bit of a confessional.

From an important reader-editor I have received an admonition: "Consistency thou art a jewel".

To explain: I believe that the obvious object and duty of food writers is to help their readers to improve their cooking.

It may be that we (1) take it for granted too often that you know how to do the common things. Goodness knows I have given recipes for such common Canadian favorites as mashed potaotes apple pie, macaroni and cheese, poached eggs, Swiss steak, chocolate cake and lemon pie, etc., so often that most of you should know how to make them with one hand tied.

by Mary Moore

MONDAY

Pineapple Juice; Jellied Veal; Cabbage Salad; Pickled Beets; Cornmeal Muffins; Cantaloupe Halves filled with Raspberries or Sliced Bananas; Coffee.

So frequently I permit myself flights of fancier and exotic cooking — high class stuff for senior cooks.

The point is that this important reader-editor desires more consistency — I believe he means more common and more economical recipes.

Now I am going to permit myself the luxury of an alibi. If your son came home for the weekend and said "for breakfast tomorrow morning I want Eggs Benedict — I'm sick of those cafeteria fried eggs" — wouldn't you tell about the lovely foolproof Hollandaise Sauce you made to go over the eggs and ham for him?

Sure you would — especially if you made your living writing about food.

So I'm going to do just that. On a lovely summer Saturday morning I served to Pete for breakfast.

EGGE BENEDICT:

(I wish I could make this for my reader-editor — maybe I could win him over.)

For each person to be served call on your nearest helper to fry one 1-8" thick slice of smoked ham or 2 slices smoked back bacon, toast 1 slice bread or split and toast an English muffin and poach an egg. Meanwhile you make

UNCOOKED HOLLANDAISE SAUCE:

2 egg yolks, 1-2 teaspoon salt, speck cayenne, 3-8 cup melted but not hot butter, 1 tablespoon lemon juice.

With rotary or electric beater at high speed, beat egg yolks until thick and lemon-colored. Add salt and pepper. Then add 3 tablespoons of the warm melted butter, a little at a time, alternately with the lemon juice beating constantly. May be served at once over hot eggs (below) (or vegetables). Serve a generous portion over the eggs which have been placed on top of the ham on top of the toast or bun.

NOTE:

We had some leftover so I covered it in the refrgerator. It hardened omewhat because of the butter content. For dinner I served the remainder cold over some hot fresh perch and hot fresh green peas. Try that for soul satisfyingl flavor combinations.

Do you want me to be more consistent?

Season Spanners

Butter-yellow and luxuriously soft is this leather jacket, a good season spanner that's useful almost any time of year except the dog days. Here it combines with a shaggy orlon sweater of the pullover variety in bittersweet tone.

The skirt is of bold orange, yellow and black nubby tweed, ready for its fall tour of duty.

Things Girls Must Do To Be Good Private Secretaries

VANCOUVER (CP) — So your typing is good, your shorthand adequate and you want to be a private secretary.

Fair enough, now you start your training. You must learn to bully your boss, inform him, chase him, jollycoddle him, be something of a valet and—like him.

It will help if you can make a good cup of tea at the right "psychological moment."

These qualities, included in a list of 16 qualifications compiled by Miss C. M. Goldring of Vancouver, who has as many as 40 private secretaries under her wing at one time, help make "the perfect secretary."

To be a perfect secretary a girl must:

1. Keep up to date and anticipate all business.
2. Fill in all omissions.
3. Interpret management statements to a bewildered staff.
4. Watch all staff potentials and relay such information to the boss as well as anything that will help him cope with unexpected staff situations.
5. Keep out people who disturb the tenor of his ways.
6. Soothe lacerated feelings and keep everyone in the office as good tempered as possible.
7. See that the boss doesn't leave with dust on his hat or coat.
8. Keep the boss replenished with cigarets, matches and other personal needs.
9. Provide tea or coffee at the psychological moment when a storm may be brewing.
10. Keep newspaper and trade journals in a conciliated mood without giving them any information.
11. Find out what your boss' movements are likely to be and make covering arrangements, as he may likely forget to advise you.
12. Keep appointments organized, assuring neglected visitors that undue pressure of business is the cause, meanwhile supplying newspapers or coffee to ease the situation.
13. Smile and appear calm no matter how infuriated you may be (as you will) at continual stupidities.
14. Produce the right arguments at the right time to convince him he is right, even though you know it was your idea in the first place.
15. Lie without qualm or restraint on your boss' behalf whenever necessary.
16. Run the business.

If you can do that you're perfect.

Salaries? Well, girls, there you are on your own.

Sport Slices...

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

(The second of a series on the Harmsworth Trophy Race being held in Picton, August 19-20 and 22.)

At this writing, "Miss Supertest III," Canada's Queen of the Unlimited Hydroplanes, lies snugly in Hayward's Hideaway, a large farm building near London, Ont.

At this moment the royal beauty, all three tons of her, may be enroute to Picton. She even might be there now. She is scheduled to appear for test trials over the Harmsworth Trophy Race course "sometime during the week of July 25."

That is the word received by this reporter from "Miss Supertest" headquarters in London.

This is dress rehearsal week for the glamor queen of the world's unlimited propeller-driven hydroplanes. The big question "Is she ready?" will be answered on Picton's beautiful Long Reach, Canada's Yankee Stadium, for this nautical world series, some time between now and Saturday.

Two people, three at the most, will know that answer. It probably will be kept secret until a day or so before the first heat of the three-heat classic scheduled for Friday, August 19.

Following the test runs, "Miss Supertest III" will be rushed back to Hayward's Hideaway. If changes in her delicate construction, her mighty 2,000 horsepower Rolls-Royce Griffon engine or other parts are necessary, they will be completed there.

Bob Hayward, whose superb driving hurled the magnificent boat to her thrilling victory on the Detroit River last August, and his chief mechanic Vic Leghorn, tough wiry Englishman, will, if necessary, work day and night to bring the champion to the peak of mechanical perfection for the big day.

Whether the champion is "ready" now or not, Canada and Canadians can rest assured she will be champing at the bit in perfect form when the fateful five-minute gun barks a warning shortly after five p.m. August 19.

Around her, in various strategic positions will be three grim American challengers. The numerical odds therefor are three-to-one against the champion. Various observers, however, believe that other circumstances favor "Miss Supertest."

For the first time in Harmsworth Trophy history, the famous race is being contested in Canadian waters. This, and the fact it is being run on a somewhat sheltered course such as the Bay of Quinte's Long Reach, is in the favor of the sleek Canadian champion.

Last year's race, when "Supertest" wrested the "trophy" from its 38-year American defenders, was run on a choppy, wind-gusted, triangular-shape course on the Detroit River.

This year, the Canadians selected the course since Harmsworth rules state the Trophy must be defended in the country of the winning boat.

"And," smiles Hayward, "we have laid it out in such a way that it should be to our advantage." A prediction? Grim-faced Hayward said "We want to win, badly." That yas all.

Another factor that could be in "Supertest's" favor is that the 1959 American champion "Maverick" is not eligible for Harmsworth racing this year. Something about her power-plant rules her out.

But Hayward and Thompson are not forgetting the fact that the Americans are worthy and clever "foemen." Last-minute Yankee strategy helped them retain the Harmsworth on more than one occasion.

At this time, a scant four weeks before the race, a dozen or more American potential contenders are being put through severe tests for the honor of becoming one of the three national challengers.

Such famous American Gold Cup winners and participants as "Miss Thriftway"; "Miss Spokane," which has been equipped with a brand new power-plant; "Miss Bardahl," well known to Detroit hydroplane racers; "Coral Reef"; "Thriftway Too"; "Miss Kol-Roy"; "Dollar Bill"; "Nitrogen"; "Miss U.S." and "Wahoo", are being tested in gruelling races and trials for the honor of bringing back the Harmsworth.

Hayward and Jim Thompson, designer and owner of "Supertest" know these boats and know what they can do. They are not selling them short.

They realize too what the 3-1 numerical odds carry. Accident and mechanical hazards can force two American boats out of the race. The United States will still be a contender. That is the main reason why "Miss Supertest III" must be in perfect condition for the big day. She alone carries the Canadian standard.

This reporter believes "Miss Supertest" will retain her crown. She established a Harmsworth Race record of 107.465 mph last year.

And didn't Bob Hayward say with a smile, "I actually do not know how fast she can go. I have never had her all out."

Grba Saves Clean Sweep

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Staff Writer

Eli Grba is a name not calculated to strike terror into the hearts of American League hitters, yet this 25-year-old righthander, recalled from the Richmond farm in early June, has saved the New York Yankees at a crucial stage.

The Yanks were moaning low Sunday after losing the first game of a doubleheader to Chicago 6-3. The White Sox came into town in second place and proceeded to win three straight from New York. One more defeat and the proud Yanks would have been three games back.

Desperate after the failures of Bob Turley, Whitey Ford and Jim Coates, the Yankees called on Grba. He came through with the first complete game of his brief major league career and his second victory over the White Sox 8-2. As a result the White Sox's lead was cut to one game. In fact, he has a total of four victories over two seasons in the majors and three of them have been at the expense of Chicago.

BALTIMORE THIRD

Baltimore Orioles sneaked into third place, three games back, by edging Detroit Tigers 2-1 in 11 innings on Jackie Brandt's fourth hit of the day. Boston Red Sox dropped Cleveland into fourth place by taking two from the Indians who spent most of the day jawing with the umpires. The Scores were 10-6 and 7-6.

Washington came within one error of a major league record by making five in the seventh inning while losing the first game to Kansas City 6-3. The Senators snapped back 10-2 behind Camilo Pascual.

Saturday, Detroit and Baltimore split a doubleheader, Detroit winning the first 4-3 and losing the second 3-1; Washington walloped Kansas City 8-3, Chicago shaded Detroit 5-3 and Cleveland defeated Boston 4-2.

The Yankee-White Sox double drew the season's largest Yankee Stadium crowd, 60,002. The fans saw Billy Pierce whip the Yanks with relief help from Turk Lown and Frank Baumann as the Sox pounded Yank pitching for 12 hits, including Roy Sievers' 16th homer.

MANTLE'S 24TH HOMER

Grba went all the way in the second game while New York ruined Herb Score's comeback hopes by knocking him out in the fourth inning. Mickey Mantle hit his 24th homer off Russ Kemmerer, the first relief man, in the fifth.

Bill Monbouquette and Mike Fournieles, working in relief of Frank Sullivan, were the Boston winners on a day of unorthodox developments at Fenway Park. Ted Williams beat out a bunt and Jimmy Piersall, fined $100 and called on the carpet for Saturday's argument, hid behind the flag-pole in centre field during one of the many arguments between Indians and umps. Gary Bell and Jack Harshman were the Cleveland losers although the Red Sox were outhit in both games.

In that wild inning at Washington, shortstop Jose Valdivielso made three errors. Second baseman Bill Gardner and right fielder Dan Dobbek each made one. The Senators lashed out with 16 hits in the second game, won by Pascual with eighth-inning relief from Ray Moore.

Leafs Defeat Royals Twice; Bisons Beaten

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Richmond Vees literally muscled their way into second place in the International League Sunday—and a pair of young outfielders proved to be the big musclemen.

Kent Hunt and Lee Thomas each hit two home runs as Richmond swept a doubleheader from Columbus 8-6 and 9-6. At the same time, Rochester sent the Buffalo Bisons tumbling to third place with a 13-10, 10-inning victory, and an easier 7-2 triumph.

The double victories moved the Red Wings into fourth place past Jersey City, which lost a pair to Miami 2-1 and 4-3. League-leading Toronto dumped Montreal twice, 3-2 and 7-0, the latter on Bob Chakales' one-hitter.

Hunt, whose two homers paced the Vees' 14-hit first game attack, also added a double in a four-run third inning that helped winner Art Ceccarelli.

UNLOADED 12 HITS

Thomas smacked his pair in the nightcap as the Vees unloaded 12 hits. Each of the round-trippers came with a man on as Bill Short won his third in four decisions. Don Dobrino lost.

Rochester, now two games ahead of Jersey City, won its seventh straight from Buffalo as successive 10th inning home runs by pinch-hitter Leon Wagner and Ellis Burton beat Art Mahaffey. Burton also homered in the nightcap.

Jerry Adair's sacrifice fly drove in the winning Miami run in the nightcap at Barry Shetrone's three-run homer brought the Marlins a tie in the sixth. Jim Archer was the winner after first-game winner Rube Gomez held Jersey City to seven hits in his first starting assignment for the Marlins after coming from Buffalo.

Chakales faced just 24 men in winning his sixth against two setbacks. His no-hit effort was spoiled by Dick Sanders' solid single in the fifth inning of the seven-inning nightcap. Tim Thompson hit his sixth homer with a man on as Rene Valdes (6-11) lost.

Ron Negray (8-4) won his third without a loss against Montreal in the opener as four consecutive singles triggered a two-run sixth inning that overcame a 2-1 Montreal lead. Bill Kunkel (7-11) was the loser.

In a doubleheader at Toronto Saturday, the Leafs defeated Montreal 7-3 in the opener but lost 3-2 in the nightcap. Richmond downed hometown Columbus 3-1, Miami left Jersey City with a 9-2 win and visiting Rochester swamped Buffalo 17-9.

Braves Grab Loop Lead From Bucs

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Staff Writer

For the first time since May 30, the National League has a new leader. Pittsburgh Pirates have given way to the charge of the Milwaukee Braves.

Just before the all-star break, the Pirate lead measured 5½ games. The wise men along Broadway had tabbed the Bucs as 1 to 4 favorites to win the pennant.

Milwaukee closed the gap Sunday by whipping Chicago twice 7-5 and 1-0 behind a couple of familiar names, Warren Spahn and Bob Buhl. The Pirates, trailing 6-0, scared San Francisco with three runs in the ninth and had manager Tom Sheehan digging deep into his bullpen for three pitchers before the Giants finally nailed down a 6-3 victory.

PHILS BLANKED AGAIN

Los Angeles, blazing hot with 29 consecutive innings of shutout pitching (27 against the Phillies), blanked the Phils again 9-0. Stan Williams, the big man of the Dodger staff, hit a two-run homer during an eight-run spurt in the third inning and then pitched a 10-hit shutout.

St. Louis came up with two in the ninth with the help of an error by Roy McMillan and a double by Bill White and nipped Cincinnati 6-5. The result left the Cards in fourth place but only one percentage point behind the third-place Dodgers. Each is four games behind the Braves.

The Braves gave Spahn the support of a 12-hit attack including home runs by Johnny Logan and Joe Adcock as the veteran won his 11th. Buhl tied up with rookie Jim Brewer, up from Houston, in a real pitching duel until Mel Roach doubled with two out in the ninth inning of the second game. Logan was given an intentional pass and Al Spangler, running for Roach, stole third. Dark then laced a single to left for the run. It was Buhl's 10th victory.

The Giants were rolling along with a 6-0 lead on homers by Willie Mays and Bob Schmidt when a blister developed on Billy O'Dell's pitching hand after he walked Dick Groat to lead off the ninth. Johnny Antonelli, the first relief man, was knocked out. Billy Loes, next in line, was thumbed out for arguing with the plate umpire. Mike McCormick finally got the side out.

33 SCORELESS INNINGS

Williams' shutout ran Philadelphia's scoreless string to 33 innings.

In the big third inning, Los Angeles sent 11 men to the plate against John Buzhardt and Jim Owens and eight of them got hits. Norm Larker regained the league batting lead at .34 with two of the Dodgers' 15 hits.

Cincinnati appeared to have locked up the game with St. Louis when it scored two in the seventh for a 5-3 edge but Stan Musial's homer cut the edge to one run in the eighth and the Cards pulled it out with a rally against Jay Hook and Bill Henry in the ninth. McMillan's error let one run in and White's double scored the other. Bob Gibson was the winner on relief and Hook was the loser.

Sleepy Dawe Tosses No-Hitter

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Jim "Sleepy" Dawe chalked up the first no-hitter of the season in the B. and D. softball league yesterday afternoon, a seven-inning, 11-10 victory over the Deseronto Athletics that gave Cobourg Merchants half share of second place.

The win completed a sweep of the Saturday-Sunday doubleheader between the two clubs, Cobourg having downed the Athletics 10-3 on Saturday night. Both games had been postponed earlier in the schedule.

Only one game remains to be played in the schedule, a postponed tilt at the air station between Bobcats and the RCAF Flyers. The game is a key one for the Flyers who trail Deseronto by one point in the race for the fourth and final playoff spot. It will likely be played tonight or Tuesday.

Cobourg and Trenton are tied for second place and it is expected a sudden-death game will be ordered by the league to determine the second and third positions.

Dawe faced only 23 men in the abbreviated no-hitter after the clubs had agreed prior to the game to play only seven innings. His control was perfect, not walking a batter, and he blew third strikes past 13 men.

Deseronto's only runners reached base in the fourth and fifth frames via errors.

Meanwhile the Merchants climbed all over Frank Morton for 15 hits, giving them 29 in the two weekend games.

Gary Goyer slammed his second and third home runs of the campaign and also singled while Dawe helped himself with a triple and two singles. Claude Carr also had three hits, including a double, giving him seven in two games. Mike Harrison banged a home run while Leo O'Brien, Chuck Kingston, Jackie Elliott, Rex McGahan and Lance "Barney" Mills had singles.

Morton struck out four and walked five before Pat Maracle came in to get the final two batters.

Harrison hit his homer in the second frame, making it 3-0, while Goyer's first was a two-run blast in the four-run fourth. His second round-tripper in the seventh, a three-run shot, gave him five RBI for the afternoon.

Fantastic Shot Won It

Bill Thompson Nips Gray For Millar

TORONTO (CP)—The victory hopes of a 51-year-old veteran in the twilight of his golfing career was shattered in the $5,500 Millar Trophy tournament Saturday with a ball that sailed 175 yards, landed on the green and rolled 20 feet into the cup.

The fantastic shot defeated Bob Gray of Toronto Scarboro, four-time Millar king, and gave Vancouver's Bill Thompson the crown and $1,000 first prize.

Thompson, 36, turned back by Bob Cunningham, Jr. of Toronto in last year's final round, beat Gray two up. The shocker came on the par-four, 403-yard 18th when he canned a three-iron shot for an eagle two.

Gray, who had scrambled back from the brink of extinction all day, was dead. His second shot was in a trap beside the green and he had no chance of winning. He picked up $650 for second place.

BIG COMEBACK

Gray, who took the Millar in 1940-42-43-49, got into a big hole when he lost three of the first four holes but recovered to even the match on the 14th.

Thompson needed two putts from 15 feet on the par-three 13th and missed a 15-incher on the 14th. On the 15th, however, he sank a 22-footer. The next two holes were halved and that set the stage for Thompson's windup.

Gray went through a gruelling four-hour semi-final in the morning to eliminate Murray Tucker of Toronto 3 and 1.

Thompson started on the road to the victory at the suburban Cedar Brae course by leading 101 qualifiers with a three-under-par 141 in medal play Wednesday. In the quarter-finals he knocked out Frank Whibley of Kitchener 3 and 2 and in the semi-final eliminated Moe Norman of Kitchener and Toronto two up.

Norman took third-place money of $475 by beating Tucker 4 and 3 in consolation play Saturday. Tucker won $375.

Fifth place and $300 went to Al Balding, Toronto touring pro beaten on the 19th hole Friday by Tucker. Whibley received $250 for sixth place and John Hearick of London, Ont., got $225 for seventh.

Record Entry For Royal Canadian Henley

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—The largest entry in the 78-year history of the Royal Canadian Henley Regatta will be rowing here this week.

Some 700 oarsmen and scullers from 23 clubs and 12 schools in 19 American and Canadian cities will compete in the annual four-day rowing championships.

They'll row in 39 heats and 41 finals July 27-30 over the historic mile, 550 - yard Henley Course laid along the sheltered waters of the Old Welland Canal here.

"It's a terrific entry, the biggest in Henley history," said F. F. (Ted) Nelson of St. Catharines, president of the Canadian Association of Amateur Oarsmen, the governing body of rowing in Canada.

"They're coming from as far west as Stanford, California and as far east as Dartmouth, Nova Scotia. You couldn't get anything better than that . . . both ends of the country."

The regatta opens Wednesday morning with five heats in sculling events. It continues with 16 races that afternoon, 24 Thursday, 19 Friday and the 16 senior finals Saturday afternoon.

The West Side Rowing Club of Buffalo has the largest entry of the 23 participating clubs with 33 crews and scullers.

Detroit, champions of the Henley for the past two years, is next with 34, Hamilton Leanders have 22 and the host St. Catharines Rowing Club has 20 going.

Other Canadian clubs participating are Argonauts of Toronto, Brockville, Ottawa, Winnipeg and North Star of Dartmouth.

Toronto Police Defeat Detroit At Field Day

TORONTO (CP) — A record-breaking performance by Stan Raike played a big part in a Toronto police victory over Detroit by 94-68 points Saturday. It was Toronto's second win in a row in the annual police field day.

The 37-year-old sergeant, who set a native Canadian discus recrod, scored 30 of Toronto's 94 points and took the individual championship at the event. Detroit's leading athlete, Elmer Coleman, had 24 points.

Among the 11 records set at the meet was Raike's 165 - foot one inch discus throw, 2.7 inches farther than former Sudbury athlete Roy Pella's previous Canadian record.

Bruce Kidd, 17, of suburban East York, set native and Canadian records when he ran two miles in nine minutes 18.6 seconds, beating Rich Ferguson's previous record by 4.2 seconds.

Alex Oakley, 31, of Oshawa proved the biggest record breaker of the day by setting four. He walked 5,000 metres in 22 minutes 13.8 seconds, and three miles in 26 minutes 21 seconds, both Canadian and native records.

Detroit won the tug-of-war with two straight pulls out of three.

Snead, Ferrier Trail

Jay Hebert Wins PG Crown

By FRITZ HOWELL

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—Jay Hebert finally got even with his kid brother.

The 37 - year - old ex-marine stormed out of a four-way crush Sunday to win the 42nd Professional Golfers Association championship by a stroke, leaving 1947 champion Jim Ferrier, three-time champion Sam Snead, and third - round leader Doug Sanders in his wake.

That should put a stop to the "needling" Jay has been getting down around his bayou home in Lafayette, La., ever since his 32-year-old brother Lionel won the same title three years ago.

The Hebert boys, on the tour only five years, are the only brother act to grab a big-time title since the Smith brothers, Alex and Willie, did it in the National Open around the turn of the century.

Both hit the heights on Ohio courses. Lionel won at Dayton in 1957, the last match play PGA tourney. Jay did it on Firestone Country Club's 7,165-yard "monster" over which par was bettered only 13 times in four days.

Hebert wound up with a par 70 and a 72-hole total of 281, one over par, with birides on two of the last four holes. Ferrier, an ex-Australian, was second at 282, and Snead and Sanders deadlocked at 283.

Arnold Palmer, famed for his finishes in winning the Masters and Open crowns this year, couldn't make up a stroke on the final 18 with a par 70 and wound up tied for seventh with ex-champion Doug Ford at 286.

With two holes to play Snead held a stroke lead in a four-way fight for the finish. But he bogied the last two to lose three strokes to Hebert.

Hebert picked up $11,000 of the record $63,000 purse, boosting his year's earnings to $33,002. Ferrier almost doubled his previous take with the $5,500 second prize. Snead and Sanders collected $3,350. Snead, appearing in only 10 tournaments this season, has won $16,916.

Quinte Pigeon Racing Club

Clarke Steele's birds finished first, fourth and sixth positions in the second district young birds' race Saturday.

Second, third and fifth positions went to Walt Wardhaugh of this city while Tom Woodcock's birds finished 7th, 8th and ninth, Jack Salmon's bird finished in 10th spot.

Fifty-seven pigeons competed in the 120-mile air trip. They were liberated at Huntsville at 8.30 a.m. the first birds arriving here at 12.05 p.m.

The next race is scheduled for July 30 also from Huntsville.

Ellis Printers took a 9-5 decision over Joyce Real Estate in a Commercial League game over the weekend.

Scoring four in the third the winners tied the count then went on to win with two in the fourth and three in the fifth. Joyces scored singles in the second and fourth and three in the third.

Holway went the route for the winners whiffing five and walking four. Smith took the loss with four strikeouts and seven free tickets.

For the Printers, Gary Duggan had a double and two singles Larry McMaster and Cliff McGrimmon a triple and single and Bob Duggan a double and single. Larry Campbell doubled and Joe Robitaille and Sonny Holway singled.

Canning doubled for the losers with Miller, Woods, Smith and Garvin hitting safely.

Mackay Wins Clay Court Tennis Crown

CHICAGO (AP)—Barry Mackay blasted his United States Davis Cup teammate Bernard Bartzen 4-6, 7-5, 6-4, 6-0 Sunday to win the national clay courts tennis championship.

Mrs. Dorothy Head Knode of Panama City, Panama, took the women's singles title by trimming 19-year-old Gwyn Thomas of Shaker Heights, Ohio, 6-3, 6-3.

The top-seeded 24-year-old Mackay overpowered his 32-year-old southpaw opponent by scoring 13 service aces, three of them in a row, during the second set.

In the last set Mackay had four service aces and broke Bartzen's service in the second and fourth games.

Bartzen was seeking his third straight national clay courts title and fourth over-all.

Lacrosse

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — St. Catharines Athletics Saturday night defeated Peterborough Mercurys 17-6 in an Ontario Lacrosse Association Senior game here. It was Peterborough's ninth loss in 10 starts.

Ron Ray scored six goals and two assists for St. Catharines. Teammates Dave Hall and Garry Tarr each scored four goals. Singles went to Joe McNulty, Norm Corcoran and Doug Smith.

Swim Records Smashed at Stratford Meet

STRATFORD (CP) — Canadian and Ontario records were toppled here Saturday as Toronto's Etibicoke Memorial Aquatic Club swam to victory in a Canadian Swimming Association meet.

Etobicoke swimmers set records in six events. The second place team, London YMCA-YWCA, broke one Canadian and one Ontario record.

Hamilton Aquatic Club took third place overall.

In the girls 10 and under class J. Ferguson of Etobicoke swam the 50-yard free style in 31.6. The old Canadian and Ontario records were 32.9. In the 50-yard butterfly she went in a flat 40 seconds to crack the existing Canadian 41.7 record.

D. Sherry of Hamilton cracked the existing 26.5 Ontario record for boys 13 and 14 freestyle 50-yards with 25.1.

M. Lackowicz of Etobicoke won the boys 11 and 12 butterfly for 50 yards in 32.2 to shatter the 37.6 Canadian record. He also won the 50-yard free style in 28 seconds against the record of 29.6.

Brantford star Sara Barber broke the 1:07.6 Canadian record for women's 100-yard backstroke with 1:07. In girls 10 and under 50-yard backstroke L. Kennedy of London equalled the Canadian 37.5 and broke the Ontario 40.2.

The 35.4 Canadian record fell in girls 11 and 12 butterfly to M. Humeniuk, Etobicoke, with 34 seconds flat. And E. Weir, Etobicoke, swam the girls 13 and 14 backstroke in 31.1 to better the Canadian mark of 33 seconds.

A. Guthrie of Woodstock won the men's 100-yard butterfly with a time of 1:02.5.

Cracks Own World Record

TOKYO (AP)—Satoko Tanaka, 18-year - old high school girl, cracked her world record in the women's 200-metre backstroke final at the Japan national swimming championships Sunday. She covered the distance in 2:33.3, shaving 3.8 seconds off her world mark of 2:37.1 set last July.

Tsuyoshi Yamanaka bettered the listed world record for the 1,500-metre event Saturday with a time of 17 minutes 25 seconds. Jon Konrads of Australia holds the listed mark of 17:28.7.

The young Australian, however, is seeking approval of a 17:11 clocking made earlier this year.

Will Build Hall of Fame In Kingston

KINGSTON (CP)—Members of the International Hockey Hall of Fame Inc., in Kingston have agreed to go forward with a decision to build a Hall of Fame auditorium here.

It will mean Canada will have two halls, here and at the Canadian National Exhibition grounds in Toronto.

Kingston first received endorsement as a hall site in 1943, but delays in starting construction led to organized hockey groups withdrawing their support and putting it behind a city of Toronto proposal.

18-Year-Old Big Surprise At 'Cat' Camp

NORTH BAY (CP)—Peter Howard, an 18-year-old quarterback from London, Ont., proved one of the big and pleasant surprises at the training camp of Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Big Four Saturday.

Howard provided some standout ball handling and cool field generalship in an intra - squad football game. The 235-pounder was on the winning black team which dumped the opposing whites 48-21.

Howard, a discovery of Ticat assistant coach Indian Jack Jacobs, fired a wobbly pass to Tommy Grant for a 55-yard pass-and-run score in the fourth quarter. In the final minutes, Howard rolled out, evaded would-be tacklers and lugged the ball 35 yards before lateralling to Gerry McDougall, who went over for the score.

Ticat coach Jim Trimble, who thinks Howard might take over when quarterback Bernie Faloney retires, says he will coach the young London quarter himself.

Sports Car Relay Won by Toronto Team

JARVIS (CP) — A Toronto Volvo team set a blistering pace at nearby Harewood Acres Saturday to beat 28 teams for Canada's sports car relay race championship.

Faultless driving by Jerry Polivka and George Schon, coupled with fast expert pit work, sent the Swedish sports sedan to victory in the gruelling four-hour grind.

The team covered 175.5 actual miles and 298.3 miles including their credit laps. They toured the course 157 times for the longest distance of the day. A credit lap is like a handicap in golf.

The Volvos were given 12 credit laps in the race that allows the smallest family sedans to compete on even terms with sports and pure racing machinery. A record 170 cars were entered in the day's events.

Brownlee Wins Over Morland

SUDBURY (CP)—Phil Brownlee of Toronto Scarboro won the 3th annual Idylwylde invitational golf tournament here Sunday with a 4 and 3 victory over North Bay's Bill Morland.

Brownlee, a former Ontario amateur champion, won the International Nickel Company Trophy in his first visit to the Sudbury tourney. The 160 contestants made it the second largest tourney in Ontario this year.

Little Phil topped Ontario amateur champion Dave Morland and former Canadian amateur champion Bruce Castator in winning the title.

Bettor Runs Parlay to $30,536.80

An inidentified bettor selected the final six winners Saturday for a parlay worth $30,536.80.

The only favorite of the six was Mike Hudson Jr., ($4.40) in the featured Andover Handicap. The other winning horses were Reluctant Lady ($16.80), Foxy Silver ($31.20), Class Will Tell ($36.40) Destiny Unknown ($11.80) and Minister ($21.40).

Umpire-Baiting Criticized

Indians on Warpath Against Piersall

BOSTON (AP) — Cleveland Indians are on the warpath and the object of their ire is teammate Jimmy Piersall, the excitable centre fielder.

Piersall remained in Boston today for an appearance before American League president Joe Cronin while the Indians left for a series against the Yankees in New York.

Piersall was fined $100 by Cronin for his actions in Saturday's game here against Boston Red Sox and faces possible drastic disciplinary action. Cronin has the authority to suspend him indefinitely.

Team members said they may send a committee to general manager Frank Lane to demand action to curb Piersall's umpire-baiting tactics.

NEAR REVOLT

One irate player told a reporter the team is on the verge of a revolt, adding that "Lane has got to do something or the entire team will fall apart."

A veteran Tribesman said the fourth-place Indians "still have a good chance to win the pennant but not if Piersall remains unchecked."

"We got a lot of rough decisions from umpires in the Boston series," he said. "They lean over backward when Piersall is concerned but take it out on the rest of the players."

Team members said they thought Piersall's fines will have little effect and that neither Cronin nor Lane will take any action unless the team issues an ultimatum.

"They talk about the $350 he has paid in fines this season," said one player. "That's big joke. He will make far more than that making personal appearances. But we aren't going to make any extra money unless we win the pennant."

PRESIDENT BECKONS

Cronin called Piersall on the carpet to explain his antics. He also told the player to bring his wife, Mary, to the meeting.

"Sure I'm going," Jim said Sunday after receiving Cronin's telegram. "I've got to go. It's an order."

"I'm just going to speak my mind," Jim said. "I've got a lot to tell him."

Concerning his wife, Piersall balked at bringing her.

"That's utterly ridiculous," he snorted. "I'm not going to take her. She's pregnant and not feeling well. She's upset about this whole thing and I'm just not going to do it."

Mary is regarded by friends of the family as a steadying, soothing influence on Piersall. Cronin has the authority to suspend him indefinitely.

"They all think I'm nuts," Piersall said. "I'm just high-strung. They (the umpires) gave me a lot of bad calls and they give the team a lot of bad calls . . . ."

Earlier this season Lane ordered Piersall to take a rest after umpire-batting troubles.

Gary Bowerman Wins Brockville Golf Tourney

Gary Bowerman, former junior champion of the Bay of Quinte Country Club won his first outside tournament on Saturday.

Bowerman carded a two - over-par 74 low gross to shade White's 75. The match was won in a thriller, the victory being decided on the last hole.

At that White won the field low net with a 69.

Val Smith was close behind taking second low gross with a 76.

On the Track

NEW YORK (CP) — Pappa's All, a Californian two-year old, got back into the winning trail at Hollywood Park Saturday with a thrilling finish in the $143,200 Hollywood juvenile championship.

The second favorite won by a nose over Sullivan's Bud with Big Smoky, ridden by Johnny Longden, third.

Pappa's All paid $7, $4 and $3.60 after running the six furlong event in 1:10. Sullivan's Bud paid $20 and $10 and Big Smoky $4.40.

At other U.S. tracks Saturday: T.V. Lark won the $135,600 Arlington Classic at Chicago by three-quarters of a length over John William. The even-money favorite, Venetian Way, finished third.

T.V. Lark returned $35.40, $16.60 and $6, John William $13.60 and $5.80, and Venetian Way $2.80.

Teacation ($21.60) won the 57,000 Monmouth Oaks at Oceanport, N.J. Refute was second and Rash Statement, the Delaware Oaks winner, third.

Francis S. ($6.20) won the $54,100 Dwyer Handicap at Squeduct, Irish Lancer came in second ahead of Weatherwise.

At Stanton, Del., Quill ($5.20) won the $35,800 New Castle Stakes.

FORT ERIE (CP) — Hidden Treasure, owned by W. R. Beasley of Toronto and ridden by Alfonso Coy, ran 6½ furlongs in a brilliant 1.17 Saturday as he captured the $8,790 Bison City Stakes at the Fort Erie Jockey Club.

Hidden Treasure was forced to the limit to defeat Admiral Armbro by a head. Men at Play finished third.

Hidden Treasure, an entry with Champagne Velvet paid $3.60, $2.70 and $2.40. His time of 1.17 was only one-fifth of a second behind the track record.

Crashes Into Crowd

Race Driver Killed, 19 Hurt

SALERNO, Italy (AP) — A Dutch driver, competing under an assumed Belgian name, was killed Sunday when he crashed into a crowd of spectators during an auto race won by Briton Colin Davis. Nineteen spectators were injured, five seriously.

The driver died of burns after pulling himself out of his blazing British-made Cooper automobile.

He was at first identified by race officials as Jean Blanck, a 27-year-old Belgian.

But police later said the dead man's real name was Sorghelos Saveners, champion of the Netherlands in formula three auto racing.

Police said Saveners assumed the name Blanck in order to defend the colors of Belgium in the junior formula City of Salerno Cup race at this southern Italian town.

Race officials said the 27-year-old driver's car suddenly began to zigzag and plowed into the crowd.

Forty - nine drivers from a dozen nations took part in the race.

Davis was the winner in a Fiat-Osca. New Zealander Dennis Hulme, in a Cooper DKW, was second.

PREDICTS KAYO WIN

MONTREAL (CP)—Bob Cleroux, bouyed by two knockouts administered to sparring partners during training Sunday, says he will defeat Roy Harris of Cut and Shoot, Tex., the same way Wednesday night.

The Montrealer knocked out sparring mates Floyd McKay and Larry Renault during training Sunday. He put McKay away in the second round and Renault about a minute after the start of the first.

After the bouts he said he feels he can beat Harris, 10th ranked heavyweight in the United States, with a kayo.

Has No Fear of Broadway If Show Story Is Truthful

By JOSEPH MACSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK (CP) — Percy Rodriguez, a man with a level eye and powerful hands, says he has no fear of Broadway so long as the story he works in is presented "truthfully."

Rodriguez, one of Canada's most versatile Negro actors, somehow managed to convey in an interview—about the hit play Toys in the Attic—the smooth bearing of a stage man as well as the challenging approach of a boxer who has fought for 10 years.

If a sense of humor is a sense of proportion, the handsome actor and former pugilist from Montreal knows about it because he told a reporter:

"Every actor wants to appear on Broadway, and this was my first time, so I was thrilled and proud.

"Then one day I heard a little fellow ask one of my boys what his father did for a living:

"'My father's an actor on Broadway. What's your father?'

"'He drives a subway train.'"

LOST STATUS

Rodriguez says his boy—one of three children—was shattered that his friend's daddy drove subway trains while our hero was merely a Broadway actor.

"I'm glad my youngster thinks it's more important to drive a locomotive than to be an actor," said Rodriguez. "That's as it should be."

Rodriguez now is riding high with an important part in Toys which won the New York critics' award as the best show of the season. But he ruefully recalls failures.

Spreading his big hands, Percy showed how a buzz saw in a Quebec lumber camp sliced vital tendons and ruined his chances for an important Detroit fight during his boxing days—"that was a real disappointment."

"These things warn me not to plan too far ahead," said Percy, with a somewhat fatalistic recollection of how he was selected to an all-Canada cricket team to go to Britain in 1939—just before the war cancelled the idea.

LONG CLIMB

Rodriguez, 42, tells an inspiring story about his path to Broadway — it includes boxing, wrestling, cricket and baseball.

He says—with pride—that he didn't really make a living in acting comparable to his earnings as machinist and later as tool applicator in a Montreal aircraft factory during early acting days.

Rodriguez started acting with a theatre group in a United Church in Montreal where he taught Sunday school. Now he plays opposite such stars as Irene Worth, well known in Canada for her roles at the Stratford Shakespearean Festival.

CONTROVERSIAL ROLE

His talent was recognized in 1950 when he won the best actor award for the title part in Emperor Jones at the Dominion Drama Festival. Countless radio and TV parts in Canada led to his present part in Toys where he plays a controversial role as the Negro lover of a white woman in New Orleans.

Sometimes in the play he is referred to as a "nigger fancy man." Rodriguez's role seems to be to stand quietly by and show the virtues and strength of his race.

"In a part where one doesn't speak a great deal," says the actor, "You concentrate on making sure it goes over truthfully. Try not for a minute to be distracted."

On the racial matter, Percy is succinct:

"I never have found race had any place. It's infantile. It hasn't reached me in Canada or here. I have been given all kinds of roles that didn't call for a Negro actor.

"They tell me that Broadway show people are tough. I haven't found that. They have been fine ladies and gentlemen to me."

Dobie Gillis Got First Taste Of Acting From His Brother

By DWAYNE HICKMAN

My brother Darryl is an actor. Been one for a long time—much longer than I have. In fact, it wasn't until recently that the truth dawned on me that I might as well make show business a career. (The moment of truth just happened to be when Dobie Gillis was renewed for next season.)

But to get back to my brother Darryl. I got my first taste of show business through him. We were just kids and it was a rainy Saturday afternoon. My mother, unappreciative of the artistic impressions we were adding to the new bathroom wallpaper, suggested that Darryl, my sister Dierdre and I repair to the attic and put on a play.

In short order Darryl had devised a plot, if you can call a monologue a plot, which called for him to be on stage the entire time. My sister, who was all of three years old, had to be the love interest.

Me? Darryl assured me my role was all-important to the action. I was to be "horses approach."

MOM RECONSIDERED

I'm sure I was the most enthusiastic six-year-old in history to simulate the approach of an entire cavalry division. Mother soon arrived in the attic with a piece of the ceiling in one hand and a box of crayons in the other. Her advice: Go back to redecorating the bathroom wallpaper.

Later Darryl transferred his enthusiasm into actual cash and made a name for himself as a boy actor. Since I had not quite lost the urge to decorate wallpaper, my mother, in the interests of the household, used to take me to the studios whenever Darryl obtained a role.

Well, I started my film career the day I removed the hinges from a door on the set and the star made a most unusual entrance. I thought the scene hilarious but mother explained it would have to be reshot because the star had invented some new words and the sound track was, therefore, unusable. To prevent further incidents, I was given a small role and told to study it. If memory serves me, I became "a crippled waif of the streets."

As time passed I became one of "a group of children playing in the distance", "a newsboy . . . seen briefly", and "a little child's hand hanging limply from beneath the covers."

APPEARED WITH STARS

Eventually I even played scenes with such famous stars as Jeanette Macdonald and Claudette Colbert. But Alas, the days of "horses approach" were over and the fun seemed to have gone out of it for me. I found myself going to school on a regular basis.

Years later I was given a part on The Bob Cummings Show.

I learned a lot from Bob during those five years but sometimes felt I was back in the "horses approach" days. I'd be there to open a door and spill some milk, and then I'd go home.

Dobie Gillis, on the other hand, would be a character which would give me great scope and the chance to do a variety of things. And so, after receiving the blessings of Max Shulman, the creator of Dobie Gillis, and several executives at 20th Century-Fox, I found my head in a bucket of bleach. I emerged as Dobie.

World Record Is Nullified

BERLIN (AP) — Manfred Steinbach, a lean German doctor, broad-jumped farther than any man in history Sunday—bettering the 25-year-old record of Jesse Owens—only to have the mark nullified by a technicality.

Officials ruled out recognition of the titanic effort because of a 3.2-metre following wind. The rules say the wind can't exceed two metres (six feet, 6.75 inches) a second.

Competing in the West German Olympic trials and in the same arena where the Great Owens won four gold medals in 1936, Steinbach leaped 8.14 metres (26 feet 8.64 inches) to top the American Negro's effort by .39 of an inch, Owen's record, set May 25, 1935, at Ann Arbor, Mich., is the oldest track and field mark on the books.

AT THE BELLEVILLE DRIVE-IN — Pat Boone and Diane Baker in a scene from "Journey to the Centre of the Earth", CinemaScope and Color production opening tonight at the Belleville Drive-In Theatre: 2nd feature also in color and CinemaScope is "Stopover Tokyo", and features Robert Wagner, Joan Collins and Edmond O'Brien.

AT THE BELLE — James Stewart, Janet Leigh and Robert Ryan, co-star in MGM's outdoor classic, "The Naked Spur", in Color and CinemaScope. Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINNIPEG (CP) — Most observers of Candian football seem to agree that success on the field is based on a well - organized front office.

But owner-president Ted Workman of Montreal Alouettes has raised the question of the best way to organize the front office.

Workman heads one of the three privately - owned clubs in the nine-team Canadian Football League. The others are Toronto Argonauts and Ottawa Rough Riders.

DOING WELL

With their executive material drawn from business and professional ranks backing fulltime front office officials and coaches, the westerners have done well for themselves with five Canadian championships in six years.

The private enterprisers of the east in recent years have not found the gridiron combinations to match the success of those headed by such men as Moe Lieberman in Edmonton, unpaid president of the Eskimos while they won three straight Grey cups, and Ralph Parliament of Winnipeg, the meatpacking official who was president of Winnipeg Blue Bombers when they took two straight Canadian titles.

Hamilton Tiger-Cats, the only community club in the east, were the only Big Four representatives to break the western string with their win in 1957.

But anyway, Workman has a beef. In an interview here with Hal (Winnipeg Free Press) Sigurdson, he said the trouble with western football is that every second year it gets a whole new slate of club presidents.

LEAVE IT TO PROS

Every time east and west business office types sit down at a table, the easterners deal with inexperienced men.

Workman said he would prefer to see negotiations left to professionals—club presidents who have their money invested or the hired professional managers. He made it clear that he has nothing against professional front office types such as Jim Ausley in Winnipeg, Jim Finks in Calgary and Herb Capozzi in Vancouver.

"I'd like to see it all done by the general managers, to be honest with you. They have to look at the situation with a broader view than merely their own club.

"If the Canadian football league ceases to operate, they're out of work. It makes sense that they're not going to do anything to undermine their own jobs."

Workman made a veiled suggestion that western executives are in the game for the glory they can get during their terms of office.

"If I didn't have money invested in this club, I'd just be in the game for glory," he said. "But I do, and investments are made on a long-term basis. I'm in the game for glory and money —maybe to make a little, but more important, not to lose it."

Workman also had a suggestion calculated to bring him favor among some sports writers who have clashed with the bare-facts-and - no - nonsense approach of CFL Commissioner Sydney Halter.

"What this league needs is a fulltime public relations officer and co-ordinator working out of the commissioner's office," he said.

"One thing we could do is make people in the United States more aware of our game. That way, signing new imports would be easier for everyone."

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Tuesday, July 26, 1960.

General tendencies: Now you have a day at last when you can take all of those big and comprehensive ideas that have been coursing through your mind and really reduce them to a workable expression. Your new policies are fine, but by putting them on a practical basis, you and all about will be able to see the results of your planning.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) Much can be accomplished today, whether at place of business, around the house, creatively, or taking care of infants or pets properly, etc. Get an early start and clear the decks for the busy and profitable days ahead.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) An ideal day for perfecting hobbies and making your appearance more charming too. Later, get into the busy world of activity and accomplish what you set out to do. You can have real moments of fun at the same time.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) Focus your attention during morning hours on the most basic affairs of your life .Then put your home in better order and be sure tonight you buy little gifts for the ones you love the most. Be cheerful and amusing with all.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) A fine day to get out and shop, since you can find just exactly what you need. Buy the gadgets that will make you more efficient and happier. Please your partners. P.M. go out socially and put dull cares behind you.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) A real abundance can soon be yours if you concentrate early upon all financial and property interests you may have. Invest wisely and set up a good bookkeeping system. P.M. take whatever treatments you need to improve health.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) A day to think pretty much of yourself. Be sure you first improve your appearance, then go after what you most desire in a determined fashion. Evening is then ideal for social pleasures and meeting wonderful people.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) All private and personal affairs should be handled wisely today. There is every possibility to garner all the data you need from higher-ups. P.M. assist those in need.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) If you contact that progressive and intelligent friend you admire, you will get the right advice just how to become more efficient and successful yourself. P.M. be sure you entertain him, or her at some charming spot.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) If you keep that appointment with higher-ups, be certain you discuss any vital affairs from the practical standpoint. This is the only way you can get the support you need in oorder to achieve greater success and fame.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) This can be a day for real advancement if you get out early and meet the right people, go to the right places and get the new equipment that you need. Plan your itinerary — then labor methodically, use the positive approach.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You can handle all those monetary affairs, especially taxes, bonds, reports, etc., so efficiently now that you will start an upswing in all of your affairs. Set up a better budget, too. P.M. fine for romantic leanings.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) A day for long talk with any partner with whom you have had any misunderstanding. Cement better relations by being co-operative, kind. Tonight is then fine for a little jeunt with compatibles to places you enjoy.

If your child is born today . . he, or she, will be a very practical-minded individual, so it behooves you to give early the right training along these lines. There can be a tremendous success in business here, provided you also see to it that the Golden Rule is learned very early in life and much religious teaching is given your clever and fastidious progeny. Be a good example to your youngster and the possibilities in this chart are almost without limit.

Sport in Brief

THIRD TRY

ERIE, Pa. (AP)—Mary Hafey will make her third attempt to swim the 28-mile width of Lake Erie next Wednesday. "I am confident of completing the swim in 18 to 20 hours," the 25-year-old Erie, Pa., native said Sunday. She plans to start out early in the day from Long Point in Ontario and come ashore somewhere along Peninsula Park in Erie.

BETTOR DIES

FORT ERIE (CP) — Marvin Froelich, 55, of New York, one of 43 persons who held winning tickets on Friday's $680.90 daily double at Fort Erie race track, died Saturday after suffering a cerebral hemmorhage. A doctor said his blood pressure was 280 shortly after he collected on the daily double. Normal blood pressure in an adult ranges from 90 to 150.

BLIND GOLFERS COMPETE

BAR HARBOR, Me. (CP)—Phil Lederhouse of Prince Albert, Sask., and Nick Genovese of Dundas, Ont., finished fourth and fifth in the American national blind golfers championship Saturday. Charlie Boswell of Birmingham, Ala., won the title for the 11th time with 100-103—203. Lederhouse scored 103-113-216 and Genovese 114-104—218.

EDDOLLS TO COACH

BUFFALO (AP) — Frank Eddolls, former Chicago Black Hawks coach, will coach Buffalo Bisons of the American Hockey League next season, it was announced Sunday. Eddolls, who piloted the Bisons to the American Hockey League title in 1954, will resume bench direction after three years as manager of the club. He succeeds Dit Clapper.

SIGN MONTREALER

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh Pirates announced Sunday the signing of Steven L. Oleschuk 18 - year- old shortstop from Montreal. Oleschuk is to report to the Pirate farm club at Dubuque, Iowa, in the class D midwest league.

TOP CYCLIST

TORONTO (CP) — Alex Messina, one of two Canadian cyclists picked to compete in the Rome Olympics, won the Canadian 100-mile championship Sunday. The Toronto Italia cyclist covered the road course around the Woodbine racetrack in 4:13:37.

LUMUMBA MEETS HAMMARSKJOLD—Congo Premier Patrice Lumumba, left, and Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold of the United Nations shake hands at U.N. headquarters in New York City Sunday after a conference lasting more than two and a half hours. The Congo premier said he is on a mission to win friends and finances for his strife-torn land. He arrived in New York early Sunday. (AP Wirephoto).

OASA Has Record Entry In Playoffs

HAMILTON (CP)—The Ontario Amateur Softball Association announced at an executive committee meeting here this weekend that a record 231 affiliated clubs are competing for playoff spots this year.

Of this total, 127 are in series below junior. The number exceeds the previous high, in 1954, by six teams.

Playoffs commence Aug. 13 in some series. All-Ontario championships are scheduled for Thanksgiving weekend Oct. 8-10.

The committee decided to extend its affiliation with the Ontario Sports Federation for at least one more year.

Three players, B. Carr and G. Christo, both of New Liskeard, and W. Fraser from Picton, were reinstated.

Twenty - four executive members, including president Cy Perkins of Simcoe, sat in on the two-day sessions.

Pioneer Movie Comic 50 Years In Show Business

VINELAND (CP)—Edawrd Everett Horton, pioneer movie comic famed for his hilarious "double talk", is celebrating his 50th anniversary in show business.

At the Garden Centre Theatre here, where he stars this week in a production of The Reluctant Debutante, the 74-year-old star said in an interview, "All I want to do is keep on working".

His acting career didn't begin until college days at Columbia University, New York.

"But I guess I always wanted to do it", he said. "When I was a littel boy at home in Brooklyn, my mother had to keep telling me to be quiet because father was sleeping—he worked nights".

WAS A PEST

He added: "I used to recite little pieces and mother would tell me to stop making funny faces. I was a pest".

At Columbia, he starred in the annual show and his group also did something that year that had never been done at Columbia bebore", he said.

"After the show closed at our school we took it to a nearby girl's college. That school has never been the same since".

Mr. Horton left school to become an understudy in Lewis Mann's travelling company.

"Each time I acted a bit part, I'd go to Mr. Mann after the show and ask him how I did. Every time, Mr. Mann would say, 'Horton, why don't you go see Mr. so-and-so—he's looking for street cleaners'."

But he went on to become the leading actor in another company at $10 weekly and began his film career.

SILENT FILM DAYS

He made six silent films and appeared in the second talking film ever made, The Terror. That was the beginning of my downfall, he said.

Mr. Horton's downfall has seen him make more than 75 films since 1918. His favorite is Springtime for Henry.

Mr. Horton has played in Canadian cities including Montreal, Toronto and Vancouver. He is making his first appearance here.

Male Menopause?

- Body Odor
- Rifle Deafness

Q. Do men go through a change of life?

A. Some men, though not many, go through a "change" similar to the female menopause. Onset is later than in women and symptoms, if any, are usually vague. The "change," if it is noted at all, occurs gradually and without any effect as dramatic as the cessation of menstruation in the female. Doctors have effective ways of relieving male "change of life" symptoms as well as those experienced by the female during menopause.

Q. Are food odors, such as garlic and beer, given off through the skin?

A. Food odors may emanate from sweat, and hence may come "through" the skin.

Q. Is the loss of hearing due to firing of a rifle or pistol temporary or permanent? Should ear plugs be used?

A. It is generally stated that if the loss of hearing caused by firing of guns lasts longer than a week or so, it will be permanent. Once the condition has become permanent, there is no effective treatment. Ear plugs help prevent ear injury due to loud noises.

Otter Aircraft Ply Lifeline To Remote Jungle Villages

By RUSSELL ELMAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LAE, New Guinea (CP)—Otter aircraft, proven workhorses of Canada's northland, today ply an aerial lifeline to remote jungle settlements in one of the world's largest and least known islands.

Providing a service no other plane at present can fulfil, a fleet of four Canadian-built de Havilland Otters in two years' service with Australia's Qantas airlines has earned a new reputation for its part in the opening up of New Guinea and Papua.

In often fierce tropical heat or downpours, safety factors permitting, Otters fly scheduled cargo, mail and passenger services to communities whose only regular access to civilization is by air. They link mission and government posts in the rugged mountains of New Guinea and islands off Papua with the main centres of Lae and Port Moresby.

In New Guinea's highlands pilots weave the small single-engine plane through winding valleys between ranges of peaks which tower up to three miles high. Landing strips at altitudes of over 5,000 feet and sometimes no more than hillside clearings are not always easy to locate in uncertain weather. Within a few minutes sunshine can be cloaked in mist.

But New Guinea pilots have an enviable safety record, while the Otter is specially designed to take off and land on short runways. Its low-pressure tires enable it to land on soggy, muddy fields.

"The Otter is doing a first-class job in the Highlands," said Capt. Phil Miller, Qantas operations manager at Lae. "Economically the plane has a good pay load, and can carry bulky articles, such as timbers, boxes, bridge materials."

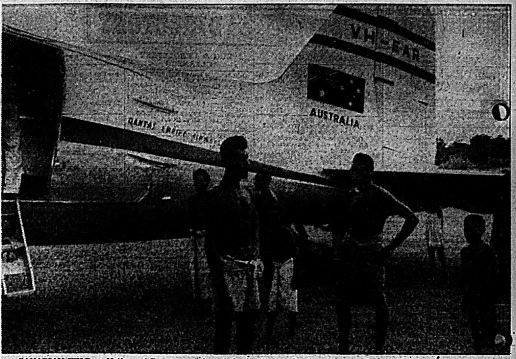
An amphibian Otter is less economical to run because of its heavy floats and wheels, but performs a specialized job in coastal areas. It has proved particularly useful in sickness and emergencies, helping transport Papuans to hospital quickly.

In less than 10 years air transport has opened up the New Guinea highlands to the outside world. Home of a people among the most primitive surviving aborigines anywhere, this area now is being penetrated by modern agriculture.

Australian settlers have pioneered coffee and dairy farms. Goroka has grown from an outpost of a dozen Europeans to a busy airport, commercial and government centre of 700.

Everything was and is flown in, including building supplies, jeeps, and food. There still is no satisfactory all - weather road from the Highlands to the coast.

Settlers, New Guinea tribesmen, government officials all rely on the plane to keep in contact with the outside. The passenger across the aisle in the Otter may be an Australian going home on leave to Sydney or a native making his first flight.



CANADIAN HELP — Natives of Papua, a section of the island of New Guinea north of Australia, crowd around to gaze at a Canadian-built Otter bringing supplies to a remote jungle outpost. Four of the single-engined planes, built by de Havilland Aircraft of Canada, are the backbone of the Australian Qantas Empire Airways' fleet supplying remote settlements of New Guinea and Papua. For these natives, who have never seen a bus or train, the Otters provide the only cargo, mail and passenger link with civilization. (CP Photo).

DEMANDS WIDEN BREACH WITH OTTAWA

Troops Seal Off Negro Townships After Riotings

Ban on Political Meetings Cause of Disturbances

BULAWAYO, Southern Rhodesia (Reuters) — Police opened fire on a crowd of Negroes here today as rioting against a ban of political meetings broke out for the third consecutive day.

At least one person was reported killed in the new clash, bringing to at least seven the number of Negroes killed in the wave of violence sweeping this city.

A police spokesman said the Negro killed today was a looter caught in the act.

A cordon of 2,000 troops ringed the smoldering Negro townships as the wave of looting, arson and violence continued. Loudspeaker trucks appealed to workers to return to work, but only a small number heeded the call as the city's native labor force protested white rule.

SIX KILLED

At least six Negroes were killed Monday and scores more were injured in battles with police.

About 72 Negroes were held without bail today and a police spokesman said the number of injured probably would go higher than early estimates of between 50 and 60. There were no white casualties.

The sky above the townships glowed orange all night as burnings continued.

The Rhodesian federal defence ministry ordered four battalions of troops to duty in the area. The troops will support three companies flown in Monday from Salisbury to aid police forces. The move was officially termed "precautionary."

Thousands of Negroes have been running riot since Sunday morning.

Many of Bulawayo's 45,000 whites locked themselves in their homes for the night and armed themselves, fearful that the government hasn't enough troops to stop a full-scale uprising.

Authorities have called up all territorial army reservists in Southern Rhodesia. A battalion of native regulars sent to Salisbury during disturbances there last week was rushed back.

Police made two sorties into one native township but were forced to withdraw after pitched battles.

The native quarters were ablaze as rioters, many drunk after a day of looting beer halls, set fire to cars and houses.

Government industrial officers were stoned today when they attempted to persuade a crowd of more than 7,000 Negroes to disperse and return to work.

The crowd called for the immediate release of detained leaders of the National Democratic Party and refused to listen to the government officials.

A spokesman said the situation was developing into a military operation, with the Negroes defiantly refusing to end their protests against the crackdown on the NDP.

The Negro sections presented a scene of wrecked buildings, autos, shops and houses. Even a medical clinic was burned.

Mayors, Reeves Heard Groaning At Conference

OTTAWA (CP) — The prime ministers and the premiers spoke, but the groans of the mayors and reeves were clearly heard in the Dominion-provincial conference's opening session Monday.

The leaders of the federal and provincial governments emphasized in their speeches that the problems of the municipal councils and the home-owning taxpayers were much in mind.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker set the tone in his opening speech recalling an "informal" conference the federal government had two years ago with the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities. It was called, he said, because the federal government recognizes that many of its policies affect all municipalities.

"The government wishes to have an understanding of the manner in which federal laws and activities impinge upon municipalities," he said, "but we shall avoid scrupulously any interference with or invasion of provincial jurisdiction over municipalities."

Because municipal governments are created by provincial law only, the federal government issues no invitations directly to them. The provincial delegations included municipal representation, however. Premier Frost of Ontario said he brought representatives of six municipal organizations in his province.

"The problem for the province and the municipalities over the next 20 years is nothing less than staggering," Premier Frost told the conference. Since 1945, the proportion of provincial revenues going to municipal grants had risen to 45 per cent from 18.

10 Canadian Bases Now Being Used by U.S.

OTTAWA (CP) — At least 10 Canadian air bases now are being used periodically by United States jet interceptors, officials said Monday.

This number does not include three Newfoundland bases—Harmon Field, Argentia and Goose Bay—on which the U.S. holds leases, or airfields being prepared for use by refuelling tankers of the U.S. Air Force's Strategic Air Command.

Refuelling and minor repairs of American interceptors now can be done on bases at Chatham, N.B., Bagotville, Que., St. Hubert, Que., Ottawa, North Bay, Winnipeg, Portage la Prairie, Man., Saskatoon, Cold Lake, Alta., and Comox, B.C.

So far, American interceptors cannot be re-armed at these 10 bases but use of these fields has extended their range considerably to the north.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis:—Southern Ontario's spell of fine weather appears to be drawing to an end today as a broad band of scattered showers and thunderstorms over Michigan, Illinois and Wisconsin continues to move slowly eastward. Arrival of drier but only slightly cooler air in Northern Ontario promises pleasant sunny weather for northern regions today and Wednesday.

ANTI-COMBINES LEGISLATION GETS ROUGH PASSAGE

Justice Minister Has Tough Time

They fired 10 amendments—five from each opposition party—in a determined assault on the government's bill dealing with mergers, monopolies, combines and retail business practices.

Eight if them went to a standing vote and all were defeated, some by the Progressive Conservative majority against the joint opposition, others by Conservative - Liberal combinations and one by a Conservative-CCF alliance against a Liberal motion.

For the Commons, it was a slow, snail-like crawl through the 23-clause bill.

After eight hours, the MPs were only half-way through their clause - by-clause consideration, prior to third and final reading. Still to come were 11 more clauses—including the most contentious one dealing with resale price maintenance.

MORE AMENDMENTS

And still to come as well were more amendments. Both Liberal and CCF parties appeared to have a handful of new changes in store for Mr. Fulton, who was facing their attack almost singlehandedly.

One amendment from Frank Howard (CCF—Skeena) who led the CCF fight on the bill's provisions was accepted—pending any second thoughts—by Mr. Fulton. Carried without a vote, it broadened the bill's definition of merger to include fields not spelled out specifically in the legislation.

The bill amends the Combines Investigation Act and the Criminal Code came under fire at 24 meetings of the House banking committee.

Mr. Fulton maintained that much of the 400,000 words of evidence before the committee confirmed his opinion that the bill was "good legislation." Many of the 39 witnesses endorsed much of the bill's provisions, he said.

NOTES OPPOSITION

Not so, said Alexis Caron (L—Hull) who put on what J. W. Pickersgill (L — Bonavista-Twillingate) called a three-act tragicomedy to say that most witnesses had opposed the government amendments in one way or another.

The hottest part of the anti-combines legislation is a government amendment to allow manufacturers or suppliers to refuse to distribute their products to merchants who use them as loss-leaders, a below-cost lure to patrons. Products could also be withheld from merchants who use misleading advertising or who refuse to supply proper services.

Prophets Failed to Predict Their Eviction From Farm

CHINGFORD, England (AP) White-bearded Malcolm Cholmondeley and his six disciples claim they can predict world disasters.

But they failed to predict the disaster that overtook them Monday.

They got evicted from a 20-acre farm where they have lived in seclusion for 25 years.

To Cholmondeley and his followers, members of a religious sect known as the British Interplanetary Time and Space Society, it came as a surprise.

A crowd of local people, who long had wondered what went on at the farm, watched as Cholmondeley led out his disciples — three men and three women—down the muddy lane between the bramble bushes.

Cholmondeley, known as Mr. X to his followers, pushed a rusty old motorcycle.

Then he checked his scientific instruments, a collection of wires and cogs and tubes, as the bailiffs carried them out.

Every Sunday Cholmondeley conducted a religious service in a converted chapel at the farm.

"We have managed to combine religion with our scientific research," he said.

And Cholmondeley— Mr. X—boasted he had been able to warn the authorities in 1935 that the seas would break through Britain's east coast area in 1953, if they did not improve the seawalls.

"We predicted the date of the Second World War and the Chile Earthquake," he claimed.

But the eviction came as a shock.

Their lease had run out. But because of a misunderstanding Cholmondeley and his followers thought it had another two years to run.

They are staying with friends until they can find another headquarters.

Premier Says Hammarskjold Promised to Get Belgians Out

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP) Congolese Premier Patrice Lumumba says UN Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold has promised him to "spare no effort" to get Belgian troops out of the Congo.

The Congo leader scheduled final talks with Hammarskjold this morning, prior to the secretary-general's departure tonight for discussions with the Belgian government in Brussels and a survey of the Congo situation from Leopoldville.

Lumumba told a press conference Monday he would go to Washington and to Canada to seek French-speaking technicians for the Congo and then fly back to Leopoldville for another meeting with Hammarskjold Aug. 5.

He said he was unable to be more specific about his Canadian trip. "I think that in the course of this week I shall probably be able to go to Canada," he declared. "It is because this country has always drawn me to it and because I have special sympathies for it and I hope to be able to meet friends there and to see whether I might there not find some French - speaking technicians and specialists who might be willing to come and work in the Congo."

The Congo premier said he had asked Hammarskjold to set a deadline for the withdrawal of Belgian troops. He said Hammarskjold "assured me he will spare no effort and it is in that spirit that he will negotiate in Brussels with the government of Belgium." It seemed unlikely that Hammarskjold would try to set any deadline, however, since the Security Council in calling for the Belgian withdrawal put no time limit.

Lumumba accused the Belgians of provoking the mutiny in the Congo Army by failing to give promotions to native personnel when independence was granted June 30. He also accused the Belgians of trying to detach the rich province of Katanga, whose government has declared its independence of the central government.

"There is no problem of Katanga," Lumumba said. "There is only the problem of the withdrawal of the Belgian troops."

The Belgian soldiers, sent into Congolese cities after the native troops mutinied, now are slowly pulling back to their bases in the Congo as a UN force of 12,000 moves in to keep order.

Lumumba called again on Belgium to pull her troops entirely out of the Congo, claiming the Belgiums had "violated and destroyed" the friendship treaty under which they retained two bases in their former African colony.

Asked if he would renew his threat to call in Soviet troops if the Belgian troops did not quit his country, he said he was convinced Belgium "will have to bow before the Security Council's decision and will have to leave our territory."

The UN force, he said, should remain "for a while" after Belgian withdrawal to re - establish order completely and help the Congolese army get organized.

Lumumba denied he had signed a 50-year contract with American financier L. Edgar Detwiler—as Detwiler had announced—for development of the Congo's resources by Detwiler's new Congo International Management Corp.

The premier said he had only an "agreement in principle" with the American promoter for Detwiler to submit a plan for development of power resources. Lumumba said a contract could be "finally signed" only after a ministerial commission and the Congo parliament had approved the plan.

Nikita Again Accuses West Of Obstructing Disarmament

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Nikita Khrushchev has again accused the West of following "a obstructionist policy with regard to disarmament."

The Soviet premier has said the latest American disarmament proposals "do not have disarmament as their real aim but are designed to deceive world public opinion."

His views were contained in letters to Prime Ministers Macmillan and Diefenbaker. The letters were sent three days ago and published here Monday night.

The two Western leaders had asked Khrushchev to reconsider the Soviet decisions last month to withdraw from the work of the 10-nation East-West disarmament commission in Geneva and to refer the matter to the United Nations General Assembly.

Khrushchev told Diefenbaker that the Western plan did not have real disarmament as its aim.

Khrushchev charged that Canada's delegate at Geneva, Lt.-Gen. E. L. M. Burns, hadn't discussed Russian proposals in a concrete manner and had made extremely vague dissertations on the subject of "balanced concessions."

The problem had been referred to the next UN assembly session, he told Macmillan, because the Soviet side believed discussions there "will facilitate a positive solution."

The American proposals did not provide for the liquidation of the means of delivering nuclear weapons, the prohibition of the weapons themselves, the liquidation of "foreign war bases," or the withdrawal of foreign troops, he added.

At the same time, Khrushchev said, the United States "tries to place under foreign control all the armed forces and armaments of the U.S.S.R. and other states." This "is nothing but an attempt to collect espionage information under the guise of international control."

Group of Governors Launches New Appeal for Rockefeller

CHICAGO (AP)—Governor Nelson Rockefeller urged fellow Republican governors today to support the 14-point statement of principles he drafted with Vice-President Richard Nixon.

Governor Mark Hatfield of Oregon, arriving at a breakfast meeting of governors attending the Republican national convention, said he and others would try once more to change Rockefeller's decision against running for vice-president on the ticket Nixon is to head.

The New York governor has said repeatedly he will not take the second spot.

Other governors invited to the meeting were Robert Stafford of Vermont, Christopher Del Sesto of Rhode Island, William Quinn of Hawaii, John Reed of Maine and J. Caleb Boggs of Delaware.

Meanwhile, the New York State delegation was poised to leap into the Nixon presidential camp.

The delegates needed only the word from Rockefeller, chairman of the 96-vote delegation.

The governor has held the delegation uncommitted, first against the possibility he might be a presidential candidate himself, later to back him up in a fight for a party platform acceptable to him.

But with selection of a presidential candidate imminent, the New York delegates were growing increasingly restless over their neutral status in a one-man race.

The delegation meets this afternoon and it appeared likely there would be a major change then.

The convention will nominate presidential and vice-presidential candidates Wednesday night.

Rockefeller planned meetings today with delegates from New Jersey, the District of Columbia, Louisiana and North Dakota as part of his continuing campaign to win support for a 14-point platform agreed upon by himself and Nixon.

Some of these proposals, especially on civil rights, ran into opposition from members of the platform committee who contended they were too far-reaching.

The Republicans set their normal convention ritual aside today to worship at the feet of President Eisenhower, still the party's greatest attraction and most magnetic personality.

RCR OF LONDON MAY NOT GET TRIP TO CONGO

Different Kind of Personnel Needed

OTTAWA (CP)—The 2nd Battalion of the Royal Canadian Regiment at London, Ont., probably is beginning to feel that it is always the best man, never the groom.

The 900-man infantry battalion is Canada's standby force on call night or day for United Nations duty anywhere in the world.

But every time the UN has asked Canada for assistance, with the exception of Korea, the request has not been for infantrymen but for much less glamorous administrative personnel.

This has happened again in the UN's handling of the current Congo situation and thus called into question the makeup of Canada's standby UN force.

External Affairs Minister Green informed the Commons Monday that the UN has asked for supply personnel as well as signallers and that Canadian soldiers in these trades are being inoculated against tropical diseases.

UN FORCE PROBLEM

Some officials said the government will have to give serious consideration, once the latest tangle is straightened out, to reconstitution of this country's UN force.

During the 1956 Suez crisis, the then Liberal government assigned an infantry battalion, the Queen's Own Rifles, to UN duty in Egypt. But neither Egypt nor the UN wanted a Canadian infantry battalion and it was sent home after weeks of waiting at Halifax.

The government in the meantime had to scramble around and hurriedly put together the administrative unit which the UN wanted. It was collected from various commands and units throughout Canada. Some men were called out for duty by midnight telephone calls.

Despite this unseeming haste, it was the Canadian administrative unit—signallers, supply officers, engineers, transport drivers, medicals—which made the UN Emergency Force in Egypt tick.

When the Congo situation arose about three weeks ago, Canada had its infantry battalion ready to go.

But, again, the UN didn't want Canadian infantry. It wanted the Canadian Army's administrative know-how.

FROM VARIOUS UNITS

And again the government, this time a Progressive Conservative administration, had to tell the army to round up the necessary men from various units across Canada.

The 2nd Battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment, is ready to move on short notice and is equipped for tropical or Arctic operations.

But administrative personnel can't be moved as quickly, even if the RCAF had enough transport planes handy.

Some officials suggested that a nucleus of administrative troops be kept together for immediate UN duty.

But others said this would be wasteful: The army could not very well keep a group of administrative personnel waiting around with nothing to administer.

Mother's Kiss Could Blind Baby Says Royal Specialist

LONDON (AP) — The Queen's eye specialist warned today that a kiss from its mother could send a baby blind.

"There seems little doubt," said Sir Stewart Duke-Elder, "that the herpes virus is among external eye infections the most common cause of damage to the sight today in Britain."

The herpes virus is the virus which causes cold sores mainly on the lips.

Writing in the first issue of the London Clinic's new Medical Journal, Sir Stewat says that in children herpetic conjunctivitis could occur through contact with one of the multitude of herpes carriers in Britain.

"The most common mode of infection is through kissing," he warned.

"Two-age-peaks are obvious, marking the times when young people are commonly kissed—in infancy when relations, friends and neighbors express their adoration in this extravagant and unhygienic way: And, if this ordeal has been safely negotiated, in adolescence when the patient is usually responsible for his or her own fate."

The royal specialist said the herpes virus had proved resistant to all antibiotics.

In an editorial comment on Sir Stewart's article, the London Clinic's Medical Journal added:

"It is doubtful if infants relish being kissed by people other than their nearest and dearest. They would like it a lot less if they knew that certain kisses could make them blind."

Ontario's Huge Claims Dwarf Those Of Others

Four More Provinces Table Proposals Today

OTTAWA (CP) — More provincial demands for added federal aid were piled on the table today as the three-day conference on federal-provincial tax relations moves into its second day.

But the proposals from four more provincial premiers were dwarfed by the huge demands of Ontario Monday that Ottawa yield the provinces a whopping share of the tax fields at stake in these tax-sharing talks.

Premier Walter Shaw of Prince Edward Island opened today's proceedings in the conference chamber — the high-ceilinged Commons railway committee room—by completing a statement interrupted by adjournment late Monday.

Premiers Manning of Alberta, Douglas of Saskatchewan and Smallwood of Newfoundland followed, rounding out the formal submissions from the 10 provinces before the conference goes behind closed doors.

WILL MEET AGAIN

One more conference, perhaps two, is expected to be held before a final solution is reached on a new tax-sharing deal to replace the present five-year arrangement that expires March 31, 1962.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker, conference chairman, gave no indication of what specific proposals the federal government may make when he opened the conference Monday.

But he urged the provinces to keep in mind the "very large increases" made by Ottawa in both unconditional tax - share payments and abatements and in conditional payments for shared-cost programs like highways, welfare and hospital insurance. These had risen to an estimated total of $1,258,000,000 this year from $64,000,000 four years ago.

The Ontario's Premier Frost rose to make a blockbuster demand. His province should get half of personal and corporation income taxes collected within its boundaries.

The old argument about federal inability to pay, he declared, "does not apply."

An Ontario official later indicated that Premier Frost's proposal, applied to all provinces, would more than triple their take from personal and corporate income tax—to $1,833,000,000 from $563,000,000 on the basis of this year's figures.

BREAKS PRACTICE

Quebec's new Liberal premier, Jean Lesage, broke from the practice of his Union Nationale predecessors by presenting the first tax-share proposal ever to come from that province.

He called for a provincial share of one-quarter of the take from personal and corporation income taxes and all of the succession duty.

The present tax-share deal provides the provinces with roughly one-seventh of personal income tax, one-fifth of corporation in-

Premier Frost Gives Reason For Demands

OTTAWA (CP)—Premier Frost of Ontario said Monday at a press conference that the 50-50 split of personal income and corporation taxes he demands from the federal government would leave the provinces completely free to manage their own financial affairs.

Earlier, he told the Dominion-provincial fiscal conference that the only alternative in Ontario to such a formula is an indirect provincial sales tax.

He declined to estimate the amount of money that would accrue to the Ontario treasury if the federal government agreed to the new tax-sharing arrangement he proposed, but he said it would result in lower municipal taxes.

Any surplus monies would be returned to the Ontario taxpayer by way of tax reductions, he added.

RUN OWN SHOW

"Keeping things centralized in Ottawa is all wrong," Premier Frost said. "They should give us our constitutional rights and let the provinces run their own show."

In his brief to the conference, he also proposed a reciprocal tax collection arrangement and one tax collection agency, either at the provincial or federal level, in the fields of income tax, corporation tax and succession duties.

Ontario would even agree to collect all federal succession duties and corporation taxes within the province and make all its records available to the federal government.

Failing an equal tax split, the federal government should agree to an amendment of the British North America Act so the provinces would have authority to impose an indirect sales tax.

The provinces would be able to support their own hospital insurance schemes and many other needy services if they had adequate funds, he told reporters.

"On equalization payments to the Atlantic provinces, I would settle that once and for all," he said. "I would give them generous treatment."

The federal government should have no difficulty in getting other revenue because it has "immense powers of taxation in the direct and indirect fields."

"Let them give their own money to the poorer governments," he said, adding that under the present arrangement Ontario is subsidizing the have-not provinces at the expense of its own growth.

Additional revenues would mean that Ontario could contribute more to municipalities and expand industry and business.

Two Drowned In Rideau River

OTTAWA (CP)—Italian immigrants Pietro Bardini, 31, and Eugene Constandino, 21, of Toronto, were drowned Monday while swimming in the Rideau River at South Ottawa Brewer Park.

Bardini, construction worker father of two children, and unmarried Constandino, were unnoticed by the bathers as they disappeared below the surface of the river outside booms marking off the bathing area.

Bowling Notes

On Thursday afternoon the women's section of the bowling club enjoyed the afternoon session at their favorite pastime. Mrs. M. Edgar and Mrs. Laura Hyde won the high score of the afternoon with Mrs. Pearl Legault and Mrs. Helen Putnam second and Mrs. Anne Avery and Mrs. Ciela Gilbert in the third spot.

The tea hostesses were Miss Winnie Smith, Mrs. Reta Coleman and Mrs. Marge MacKay.

Two rinks of mixed doubles journeyed to Madoc on Saturday and as usual a local rink came home with some of the prizes. Mr. William Fuller and Mrs. Al Boyce won the tournament, while Mr. and Mrs. Percy Locke were second three-game high. Mr. and Mrs. Bob Stringer of Kingston won the two-game high score, while Miss Marg Fairbairn and Wally Lavergne captured the one-game high count. There were sixteen rinks in play and all report an enjoyable time. The other local rink was Mrs. Anne Avery and Ralph Tuck. Also on Saturday a trebles rink of William VanTassel, Gordon Vince with Gordon Watkin as skipper went to Brockville and missed the prize money by just one point.

Preparations are being made for the monster jitney to be held on Wednesday evening at the local greens. Jerry Hyde is in charge of this event and it will be an interesting one. To get acquainted there will be a pot luck supper at six o'clock sharp and bowling will start at seven thirty and the price for the full course will be a half a dollar. Those who cannot come to supper but who would like to bowl please phone before seven o'clock so that the draw can be made. The greens are excellent, the companionship is splendid so come on out and enjoy an evening.

Camper Drowns At Moira Lake, Inquest Ordered

MADOC (Special) — Thirteen-year-old Shirley Ireland of Hilton, was drowned Monday night at Moira Lake while swimming at Camp Quin-Mo-Lac, a summer camp operated by the United Church.

She was among a group of girls at a CGIT camp and was noticed missing during a swim period. Provincial police were called and her body was found two hours later.

The crown attorney, John A. Pringle, has ordered an inquest, police said.

City Minister Writes Baptist Meditation

Scripture: Isaiah 35: 1-6.

Thought for Today: Then . . . the ears of the deaf shall be unstopped . . . and the tongue of the dumb sing. Isa. 35: 5-6.

The School for the Deaf was holding open house. One group of children had formed a rhythm band. With great skill they played each note as the conductor brought in each instrument at precisely the right moment. The tragedy was in the fact that the players could not hear. It was not "a song without words," but a song without notes: the children could not hear what they were playing. One wished the ancient prophecy could be fulfilled for these children, "Then shall the ears of the deaf be unstopped."

Many people are thus handicapped, spiritually. Jesus saw them and said, "Having ears they hear not." And they are with us today. They go through the motions of worship, and attend church, but their ears are deaf to the beautiful notes of the Spirit's voice. Their souls do not respond to the music of Christian faith and service. But miracles have happened.

We are thankful that God has unstopped the ears of great hosts of people. They rejoice in the truth that "There is no speech nor language where their voice is not heard." Like the boy Samuel they have said, "Speak, Lord, for Thy servant heareth."

Prayer: O God, open our ears that we may hear Thy voice. Make us willing to obey and glad to serve that our lives may be a blessing to others this day. For Jesus' sake. Amen.

Gordon B. Woodcock,
Belleville.

Rev. Gordon B. Woodcock of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church is the author of a meditation to be used Wednesday by 1¼ million people around the world who are readers of "The Secret Place," a daily devotional quarterly for family and individual use, published by The American Baptist Publication Society and The Christian Board of Publication.

Mr. Woodcock based the meditation on Isaiah 35: 5-6.

Title of the meditation is "Hearing The Divine."

It furnished a Scripture lesson, a Bible thought for the day a brief meditation out of life's experiences, and a suggested prayer.

Mr. Woodcock's meditation in the July-August-September issue of "The Secret Place" is part of the ministry of about 14,000 churches in Canada and the United States.

Higher Farm Income Boosts Investment

The more a farmer earns the more he invests in non-residential construction, machinery, equipment and repairs, it appears from a recent study of capital-income expenditure undertaken by the agriculture department's economics division.

In 1935 for instance, net farm income totalled only $237.6 million and capital expenditures amounted to $71.5 million, or 30 per cent of net farm income. In 1958 when net farm income had risen to $1,277 million capital expenditures rose to $649 million, or half of net farm income.

These ratios indicate that 35 per cent of net farm income was reinvested in agriculture during the 1935-58 period and supports the assumption that income is the major factor in determining the size of farm investment. Another factor is, of course, the farmer's ability to channel income into productive investment opportunities.

Obituaries

MRS. ELLEN (ELLA) MOTT

The funeral of Mrs. Ellen (Ella) Mott, was held from the John R. Bush Funeral Home on Monday afternoon. The service in the chapel and the committal rites at Victoria Cemetery were conducted by Rev. J. S. A. Spearman.

The bearers were, Lionel and Donald Holmes, Milton, Donald, Douglas and Edward Philips.

HARVEY C. BADGLEY

The funeral of Harvey C. Badgley was held from the John R. Bush Funeral Home on Monday morning. Rev. C. W. Coleman conducted the service in the chapel and also the committal rites at Albury cemetery.

The bearers were, Claude Carter, Archie Hill, Keith Kimmett, Alfred McArthur, Denny Rosatte and George Badgley.

ROY MATTHEWS

In failing health for some time, Roy Matthews, 7 Porter Avenue, died in the Belleville General Hospital on Monday evening. He was born at Lakeport, near Colborne, 73 years ago, being the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Donald C. Matthews and has resided in this city for the past 25 years.

Mr. Matthews formerly lived near Colborne and was a successful fruit grower in that district for many years. He was well known in the district and this particular community and his death will be sincerely regretted by a wide circle of friends. Mr. Matthews was a kindly man, a splendid neighbor and an outstanding citizen.

He was a member of St. Thomas' Church and is survived by two sons, Clifford B. Matthews, assistant assessment commissioner at the city hall, Norman J. Matthews of the RCAF at St. Bruno, Quebec, three daughters, Miss Dorothy and Miss Doris Matthews, at home, Mrs. W. S. (Marguerite) Kennedy of Ottawa and three brothers, Fred Matthews of Hamilton, Claude and Isaac Matthews of Colborne. Also surviving are four grandchildren. His wife, the former Mildred May Harden, died some years ago.

Resting at the John R. Bush Funeral Home, 80 Highland Avenue. The funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this edition.

WILLIAM A. FORBES
Frankford

TRENTON — A funeral service was held Monday for William A. Forbes, who died Friday at the residence of his son, Harry Forbes, Frankford, in his 77th year.

A native of Northumberland County, Mr. Forbes had lived in both Trenton and Frankford for many years, and was a highly respected resident of the district.

Mr. Forbes, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Forbes, had been in failing health for the past three years. He had been an employee of the RCAF at Trenton until his retirement. He was predeceased by his wife, Etta May Fitzgerald in 1956.

Surviving are eight sons, Russell, Roland, Maurice and Lorne, all of Trenton, Donald and Reginald both of Toronto, Harry of Frankford and James of Picton; seven daughters, Mrs. Gilbert Heaphy, Waukegan, Ill., Mrs. Charles Haynes, Castleton, Ont., Mrs. Alex Watson, Newburg, Ont., Mrs. Blake Moore, Deseronto, Miss Marjorie Forbes, Frankford, Mrs. Charles Griffiths, Trenton, Mrs. Cyril Bertrand, Clinton; 42 grandchildren and 28 great-grandchildren.

Mr. Forbes rested at the Weaver Funeral Home Trenton until time of service, which was conducted by Senior Captain Arthur Robinson of the Salvation Army Citadel, Trenton.

Interment was in Friends Cemetery, Wooler.

Bearers, all sons of Mr. Forbes, were Roland, James, Harry, Lorne, Reginald and Donald Forbes.

ASK EQUIPMENT

MORRISBURG (CP)—A panel of five jurists recommended at a coroner's inquest Monday night that life-saving equipment be made mandatory at all Ontario St. Lawrence Development Commission park beaches. The jury also recommended that personnel familiar with the equipment be on hand when the beaches are open to the public. The inquest followed the July 3 drownings of May Patterson Moonie, 14, of Chesterville, Ont., and Raymond Watson, 23, of Ottawa.

Lawn Bowlers Entertain Trenton Golfers

TRENTON — Local Lawn Bowlers entertained members of the Trenton Golf and Country Club and the curling club Monday night.

Participating in the lawn bowling were 64 players, making up eight rinks. Each rink was comprised of two bowlers and two guests.

High score went to Fred Hendricks' rink; second high, J. McKenzie's rink; one-game winner, Steve Way's rink; two-game winner Joe Chouinard's rink.

Following the games the women served lunch in the club room.

Bill Fuller, Bob Haker, Ken Peacock and Steve Way will compete Saturday in the Eastern Ontario championship matches at Toronto. The rink, skipped by Bill Fuller, won the district playoffs at Peterborough last week.

Start $19,000 School Addition

TRENTON — Work has been started on a two-room addition to Calvin School on Fourth Ave. The addition will be two storeys tall, like the existing building. It will be 25 feet by 49 feet. Estimated cost is $19,000.

The addition is being erected on the south side of the building, between the school and Ebenezer Christian Reformed Church. Two lavatories will be included in the new section of the school.

Fourth RCAF Transport Lands At Leopoldville

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (AP)— The last of four RCAF North Star transports dispatched from Trenton, Ontario with cargoes of tinned pork and powdered milk for Congo relief arrived here today.

The plane had been held up for repairs at Dakar.

All four Canadian planes have been loaned to the United Nations mission to carry troops to interior Congo points and they have already started this chore.

Make Efforts To Improve Gardens' Status

TRENTON — Efforts to improve the status of the Trenton Community Gardens are being made by various organizations and persons in town. The Gardens, which has been referred to as "a white elephant" and likened to the "poor, ungainly beast" in "Beauty and the Beast" at different periods during the four deficit-ridden years since its erection, has been included in the general landscaping work of the Parks Board this year.

Flowers have been planted along the front of the building, parts of the lawn covered with top soil and grass sown.

At present, dressing rooms used by hockey teams during the winter are being repainted. Doors, windows and spectator seats are being checked and repaired.

Manager Ron Thornton and the Gardens' promotion committee have been racking their brains for attractions "guaranteed" to draw crowds at a minimum expense to the commission. One of the most successful drawing cards to date has been medium weight wrestling. Tomorrow night will see a return match between the Great Kudo and Wild Cat Osborne.

Roller skating is featured Tuesday, Thursday, Saturday and Sunday. The Saturday night rock-'n-roll dances to the music of the Wildwoods, have proved popular with the younger set.

Starting about the middle of August special attractions will be featured each week, leading off with Doc Williams, a modern singer with a western flavor.

Members of the commission are concerning themselves with hockey schedules for the winter months. Hockey will commence October 1.

Coca Cola Introduces New Soft Drink 'Fanta'

Today, Coca-Cola Ltd. has introduced Fanta in Belleville after tests in several markets. Fanta is a popular soft drink marketed in over seventy foreign countries and in the United States. Described as "tangy and refreshing," the drinks come in lemon-lime and golden orange flavors. The king size bottles with distinctive blue and white labels will now appear in blue, white and gold six bottle cartons.

L. T. McKee, manager of Coca-Cola Ltd., Belleville when interviewed said: "We are extremely optimistic about the early acceptance of Fanta and are confident that the distinctive new flavors will be as enthusiatically accepted by Canadians as they have been everywhere else."

WON'T OBJECT

OTTAWA (CP)—Premier Jean Lesage said Monday he has turned over the question of the Polish treasures held in the Provincial Museum on the Quebec City Plains of Abraham to Attorney-General Georges Lapalme for action and personally sees no objection to returning them to Poland. The treasures were brought to Canada by the Poles at the start of the Second World War.

IN MEMORIAM

MARACLE. — In loving memory of a dear sister-in-law, Betty Maracle, who passed away July 26th, 1959.

Days of sadness still come o'er us,
Tears in silence often flow;
For memory keeps you ever near us,
Though you died one year ago.
—Always remembered by sister-in-law Mary and family.

MARACLE. — In ever loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Anna Betty Joyce, who passed away July 26th, 1959.

We are sad within our memory,
Lonely are our hearts today;
For the one we loved so dearly,
Has forever been called away.
We think of her in silence,
No eye may see us weep;
But many silent tears are shed,
When others are asleep.
—Sadly missed by husband Leonard and children.

MARACLE. — In loving memory of my dear daughter, Mrs. Anna Betty Joyce Maracle, who passed away July 26th, 1959.

Though her smile is gone forever,
And her hand I cannot touch;
Still I have so many memories,
Of the one I loved so much.
Her memory is a keepsake,
With which I'll never part,
God has her in His keeping,
But I still have her in my heart.
—Always remembered by Mother.

MARACLE. — In loving memory of a dear sister and aunt, who passed away July 26th, 1959.

One long and lonely year has passed,
Since our great sorrow fell;
The shock that we received that day,
Will always with us dwell.
When we are sad and lonely,
And everything goes wrong;
We seem to hear her whisper,
Cheer up and carry on.
Each time we see your photo,
You seem to smile and say;
Don't cry, I'm only sleeping,
We'll meet again some day.
—Sadly missed and always remembered, Stew and Aletha and Stewy.

THOMPSON. — In loving memory of a dear wife, Grace Pearl Thompson, who passed away July 26th, 1958.

I have lost my soul's companion,
A life linked with my own;
And day by day I miss her more,
As I walk through life alone.
—Sadly missed and always remembered by husband William.

THOMPSON. — In loving memory of my mother, Mrs. William (Grace) Thompson, who passed away July 26th, 1958.

"Too dearly loved to ever be forgotten."
—Sadly missed by daughter Helen.

CARDS OF THANKS

May I convey thanks to my friends and neighbors for their kindness while I was a patient in the Belleville General Hospital. Your visits, cards, flowers, fruit and other gifts brought much joy. Canada's Queen on Water Given Airing

By GEORGE CARVER
Sports Editor

PICTON — "Miss Supertest III" Canada's Queen of the Unlimited Hydroplanes dipped her sleek mahogany hull in battlefield baptism at Long Reach near here this morning.

The nautical beauty, in her first water test since winning the Harmsworth Trophy on Detroit river last August, roared her appreciation as she ripped over a seven-inch chop over the Long Reach course twelve miles north of this town.

Driven by Bob Hayward, who piloted her to her international victory over American defenders, the three-ton hydroplane hit a speed of 130 miles per hour on a straightaway run over the same waters which will see her defend the Harmsworth here on Aug. 19, 20 and 22 if necessary.

"She seems to be all right" smiled Hayward when he stepped ashore after the first test run. "There may be something that needs a slight change, but she behaved like a perfect little lady".

The Canadian and world champion was put through her paces again this afternoon and she seemed to be in tip-top order.

Only a handful of spectators including some newspaper men were around when the boat was derricked into the water at 11 a.m. She was readied at the pits a quarter mile north of the start line.

The start line itself is approximately ten miles north of Picton on the High Shore Road or Highway No. 41.

The sun glinted off the choppy waters as "Miss Supertest" wetted her hull. A brisk breeze blew out of the southwest as she rocked gently at her moorings. From Picton trudged a sturdy freighter loaded to the plimsoll mark her stack streaming a whirling torch of dirty black smoke.

Jim Thompson, owner and designer of the champion, looked at the rippling water of the Reach.

"Just a mite too choppy—but it will do" he said.

"Miss Supertest's" 2,000 horse-power Rolls-Royce Griffon engine sputtered. It sputtered again and drifted out with the push. Then she "caught".

Hayward nursed her gently to the first turn of the course over which she will defend her hard-won world laurels.

Thompson spoke again. "The chop seems to be all right," he said. "What she needs is a six-inch ripple, but a slow swell could be deadly".

The freighter loomed up the centre of the course. Hayward roared "Supertest" around the far turn to the straightaway across the Reach.

Her "rooster-tail" arched higher and higher etching a white lacy curtain against the lovely dark green of the wooded slopes of the shoreline.

Hayward took the speeding champion around the Reach, cutting across and straightening away until he was satisfied.

On his last run he opened the throttle.

Asked the speed, he said "I had her at 130 miles per hour"

"How fast can she go"?

"I don't know, I have never had her at full throttle."

50 Policemen Held at Bay By Young Girl

CHICAGO (AP)—A 16-year-old girl holed up in an apartment with an arsenal of pistols and rifles Monday and held off 50 policemen for 20 minutes.

She finally was disarmed by a detective—but not before she held him captive for 15 minutes with two pistols levelled at his head.

Police identified the girl as Amelia Valasquez who had run away from home and was traced to the apartment, occupied by James Adam Cuming.

Cuming said he was a gun collector. In the apartment were the pistols, 10 rifles, a shotgun, 700 rounds of ammunition, knives and swords.

Police said the girl, wearing a white bath robe, fired 12 shots from the third-floor apartment before Lieut. Michael Foley talked his way in.

Foley talked with the girl—with the pistols pointed at his head—trying to persuade her to surrender.

He overpowered her only when another detective burst into the apartment, diverting her attention.

Three Persons Killed as Truck Jumps Ravine

ROUYN, Que. (CP) — Three persons were killed here Monday when their pickup truck plunged over a ravine on an unmarked dead-end street and caught fire.

Dead are Stan Coulter, 24, of Malton, Ont., Steve Simpson of Toronto, and Estella Seamore, believed to have lived in Timmins.

Tufts-Stapley Clan Holds 35th Unbroken Family Reunion

Well over 100 relatives gathered at Tweed Memorial Park for the recent 35th annual Tufts - Stapley reunion. Lovely weather, with blue skies and fluffy clouds, was a harbinger of good times to come for those from near and as far away as England.

Many memories of loved ones, who had founded this reunion, long years ago, came flooding back. Without the firm foundation laid then, this occasion would not have been possible to continue for 35 years without a break. Some were present who had been at the first reunion in 1926.

OLDEST MAN

Mr. Murney Stapley, who attended the first picnic, was present this year; while Mr. Frank Stapley, the oldest man present this year, was unable to attend the first reunion. Since then, he has been a faithful attendant.

Mrs. Alberta Tufts (81) was the oldest lady attending this year, and was present at the picnic at its inception.

As usual, all enjoyed a hearty dinner at tables laden with good things, after which a business session was held, with the president, Mr. Elmer Tufts, in charge. It was unanimously decided to hold the next reunion at Tweed Park on the third Saturday in July, 1961.

RESEARCH ON TUFTS' TREE

A letter was read by the secretary from Mr. Jay Franklin Tufts, of 2502 Noble Road, Apt. 2, Cleveland Heights, Ohio, 21, U.S.A. Mr. Tufts is doing research on the Tufts family, and has found the common ancestor to be a Peter Tufts, 1617-1700, born in Norfolk County, England. He has records of Tufts boys and girls dating back to the 1500's, whose descendants are scattered over the world: Tufts' University, U.S.A.; Tufts' Cove, Nova Scotia, originated from the name.

It was decided that a letter of thanks be sent to Mr. Tufts for his information, and for a book he will soon have on sale of the research.

The children's games, in charge of Miss Elizabeth Hamilton, were a decided success, and enjoyed by both the children and parents.

PRIZES AWARDED

Prizes for the largest family present went to Mr. and Mrs. Milroy Horton (six children). Other prizes caused much merriment, one being for the lady with the largest earrings. A tie between Mrs. Russell Stapley and Mrs. Mina (Stapley) Smith, for the largest which measured eight inches long, and three inches wide.

A guessing contest, in charge of Mrs. Hazel Tufts, was won by Mrs. Walter Hamilton (the combined weights of three girls).

About 5.00 p.m. the happy company, proud of its unbroken 35 years' record, prepared for the homeward trek. A number of years the reunion received honorable mention for its age in a large Toronto newspaper.

Frightening Atmosphere

The current issue of Maclean's Magazine carries a frightening article by its Washington correspondent, Ian Sclanders.

Mr. Sclanders compares the reaction of Canada and the U.S. to the cold war, dealing not so much with policy as with atmosphere.

Basically, the difference seems to be that Canadians still wonder whether there will be a nuclear war; U.S. citizens are more concerned with the "when" than the "whether."

It may be argued that, while hoping for the best, as Canadians do, we should prepare for the worst, as do the citizens of the U.S.

It is a moot point, though, whether one can continue to hope when every action belies the existence of hope.

When we resolutely prepare for the worst, are we not, perhaps, in the case of a nuclear war, making it more likely, if not inevitable?

Mr. Sclanders cites several instances of general U.S. acceptance of the theory that a nuclear war is inevitable. He quotes not only generals, notably fire-eaters, but also the action of the House which agreed with a report that the power necessary to deter war should include the power to start one. Preventive war is a dirty phrase, but pre-emptive war is not. The difference is nil.

With growing acceptance of the theory that the U.S. should be prepared to strike first when it is evident that aggression by Russia is imminent, we are reduced to the position of depending on the ability of those in authority to read the future—and the Russian mind.

Paradoxically enough, idealism is becoming mankind's most formidable foe. If domestic politics is the art of the possible, this is doubly true of international politics. It is idealistic, but it is not practical, to demand today a world in which justice reigns. In the past, it is possible to argue, more good than harm was done by idealism. While it started some wars, it also produced remedies. Reforms followed the shattering of the status quo. It is questionable whether this will be true of the aftermath of the world's first full-scale nuclear war. Dead men make no reforms.

The only practical policy today is peaceful co-existence, not in the mere hope that time will change world conditions, not with this possibility, or even this probability, in mind, but in the certainty that this is so. What is not certain, of course, is that this certain change will be for the better. But it can hardly be for the worse if the world is to continue to exist.

The difficulty with co-existence is that it is essential that it be conditional—otherwise the more ruthless power would win by default. There must be a well defined boundary, a standard of conduct, which both sides know they must respect if war is to be avoided.

It is difficult to suggest how such a standard can be established if both sides regard war as inevitable.

There was a time when adherence to Marxist theories made it appear probable that Russia regarded war as inevitable. Today, though, Khrushchev denies that he holds this belief and there is no sound reason to doubt him. He is wise enough to know that a nuclear war would destroy Russia, just as surely as it would destroy the United States. It is almost certain that, if he ever believes war inevitable, he will strike first, following the policy now being advocated by generals and others in the U.S. But such a policy is less dangerous when followed by Russia than when followed by the U.S. for the very reason that Russia is not a democracy.

The judgment as to whether war is inevitable will be made in Russia by a few ruthless and able men. No matter how much they attempt to avoid it, the rulers of the U.S., on the other hand, will be influenced to some extent by public opinion and public opinion is volatile in a country where speech is free. Moreover, as Sclanders points out in his article, there are several groups in the U.S. with a vested interest in promoting a war scare, not only the armed services, vying with each other for appropriations of public funds, but also the extremely large section of the nation's industries dependent on defence orders.

Meanwhile there lurks in the background the gravest, potential threat of all—the hundreds of millions of Chinese, excluded from participation in the normal round of international consultations, poor, proud and hard working, taught to hate and with some reason to hate—a time-bomb which could perhaps be defused today were the U.S. and Russia to attempt the task together but which could attempt to dominate the whole world a decade or two hence.

'Deep Hormoney'

There's a whale of a tale from Yale.

Scientists there have discovered one hormone which can darken the color of human skin and another which can lighten a frog's skin.

Next step is to test the skin-lightening hormone on humans. That will be done this fall.

If it works, a two-way transformation will be possible and the UN ought to consider the possibility of using the Yale discoveries to promote more hormoneous relations in such parts of the world as Africa and the Deep South.

Finns Name the Months

By Alan Blair in Finlandia Pictorial

Come to think of it, how dull the names of our English months are! We proceed through the year in a declining Latin scale from gods and wordly rulers to mere numerals — which are wrong anyway: October should be the eighth month of the year. If only it had been left to Shakespeare to name the months! How English they would have been! And how full of country sights and smells!

In England the month names have a close affinity with the soil and reflect the changing seasons. They have evolved naturally out of everyday life and the process has been very simple. the characteristic of each monht has been added to the word for moon or month — kuu.

May is the sowing month — Toukokuu. May is also the month when the cows are put out to pasture. They have had to be kept shut up in the cowshed all the winter — in fact ever since the end of September — and their joy is great when they are let out to graze in the spring air. There is an old country belief that the cows must be let out into their summer pastures only when the soft south wind is blowing. The Goddess of the South Wind will then put her arms round the cows in protection and they will be happy in every way.

June is the summer month — Kesakuu. June brings with it the longed-for festival of midsummer, when it is still the custom in many places to erect birch trees on either side of the steps beside the door. One old country record says. "The farm is adorned with leafy arbors and floral wreaths, coffee is drunk in the arbors, all are joyful at the loveliness of summer, young and old thank God for His goodness."

Sprigs of flowering rowan (Finland's sacred tree of old) are fastened on the walls and in Northern Finland branches of bird-cherry in full bloom.

On midsummer's eve huge bonfires are lighted on the lakeshores all over Finland. Sometimes the wood is piled high on a raft, which is then towed out in the middle of the lake, where the leaping flames are reflected in the water. It is a sight of magic beauty, when flying over the Finnish countryside on midsummer's eve, to look down and see hundreds of fires twinkling far below on the shores of the countless lakes.

July is the hay month, August the harvest month, October the mud month, November the dead month. In July, young and old lend a hand with the haymaking; day and night the swish of the scythe and the rattle of the hay-cutter are heard, as the precious winter fodder is gathered.

In August the harvest is got in —rye, oats, barley and wheat— and in September the potatoes are lifted. Nature, before going to sleep, has provided for man and beast.

October brings rain and mud, and, in the north the first snow. It was held to bode a sickly winter and a long spring if the snow fell when leaves were still on the trees. Of the rowan it was said that "it cannot carry two burdens".

By November all is grey and dead. But brightness and light come with the snow, and by the time the sun has turned on its axis, the cycle of the year is ready to begin again.

Strictly Personal

I Am Choosy, You're a Snob, He Is Bigoted

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

My child has "a little reading difficulty"; your child is "a touch slow"; his child is "mentally backward."

I am hopeful; you are indulging in wishful thinking; he is starry-eyed.

When I buy something I cannot afford, I am "keeping the wheels of industry humming"; when you buy something you can't afford, you are "living over your head."

I am "choosy" about my friends; you are snobbish; he is bigoted.

What I call "horse sense" in myself, I call "lack of imagination" in you.

I have a poor memory; you are careless in paying your debts; he is a deadbeat.

When something good happens to me, I call it "Providence"; when something bad happens, I call it "Fate."

It's just a "summer shower" when rain threatens to keep me from doing something I enjoy doing; but it's a "torrential downpour" when rain promises to prevent me from doing something I don't want to do.

A homely woman I dislike has a face "as plain as a mud fence"; but a homely women I like has a face "with lots of character in it."

When a man has a "pet peeve" it's remarkable how often he pets it.

We speak of "light summer reading," as though we read heavily the rest of the year.

Whenever I hear an orator praise "our Founding Fathers," I know he is going to comment their conservative position without endorsing their revolutionary position.

I don't mind being called an "average" man, but I bristle if I'm called a "mediocre" man— yet both terms mean the same, statistically.

The person who says, "There's no point in being too honest," doesn't know what honesty is.

A Sage is a man we admire without imitating; a Success is a man we imitate without admiring.

When someone is obsessed with the notion of "standing up for my rights," he can usually be found standing up for his wrongs just as often.

An "affair of the heart" rarely rises to the level of the head.

Biggest Ranch In World Sold

Kitchener-Waterloo Record

The recent purchase of an Australian cattle and sheep empire, said to be the world's largest, by a real estate company is expected to open a new empire in the Australian livestock industry.

According to a Reuters dispatch, the string of cattle and sheep ranches comprising 7,000,000 acres was sold by William Buckland, one of Australia's richest men to the L. J. Hooker Investment Corporation.

The transaction covers eight cattle and sheep stations spread over the six Australian states and the Northern Territory. They carry 170,000 cattle and 55,000 merino sheep.

The properties were bought for £5,000,000 Australian ($11,200,000). The Hooker Corporation intends to inject more capital into its new land empire and raise production through better livestock management.

Included in the transaction is what is said to be the world's bigest ranch, the 5,494-square-mile Victoria River Downs. It is about twice the area of our province of Prince Edward Island. Victoria Downs lies along 120 miles of the Victoria and Wickham Rivers in the Northern Territory, and suports 90,000 cattle. It was the jewel of the Buckland empire.

"Its millions of acres have always excited people's imagination", author James A. Michener wrote after visiting it "and no man has ever seen all its pastures".

Ranches of such huge size are seldom measured in acres. And it is quite understandable how cattle become lost as they graze on such vast areas.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

HARD ROAD FOR NEW TRUTH

New truth always has a hard time getting accepted.

Several centuries before the ministry of Jesus began, Socrates had tried to get certain new truths into the minds of his contemporaries in Athens. He was put to death, and he accepted the judgment of the court gladly because he knew that new truth is always advanced at great cost.

The suffering of Jesus and His immediate disciples are known to every Christian believer. There was an immense suffering during the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries over the matter of religious differences. George Washington and his colleagues pressed new political truth upon a generation which found it hard to believe that common men could govern themselves. Pasteur was threatened with a murder indictment if his anti-rabies injection failed to work. The Wright brothers were classed with Darius Green and His Flying Machine. Even as recently as fifty years ago Dr. Albert Einstein, because of his theory of relativeity, was largely looked upon as a crackpot.

Perhaps if new truth did not have to fight for the possession of our minds, it would never possess them. But the more man beats down truth the more does it appear to rise up in majestic strength and splendor. People are certainly right in holding to old truth until new truth demonstrates its value. But new truth has always had a hard time — and in the nature of things pobably always will.

BLACKOUTS CAUSED BY MANY DIFFERENT THINGS

"Dear Dr. Molner: I have had blackouts for as long as I can remember, but in the last year they have become more frequent. I suffer from dizziness and everything turns black when I stand up. Sometimes my head feels full and hot inside. The spells last from a few seconds to perhaps a full minute. Although they occur at different times, they seem most severe after my menstrual period. — Mrs. J.T."

There are many causes of "blackouts" — momentary loss of consciousness which can occur without a person actually fainting or collapsing.

This type of problem as a rule is indeed annoying and may be serious, and it can, of course, be embarrassing.

Some blackouts are mild convulsive disorders — often what we call the petit mal type of epilepsy. (The grand mal type involves the violent seizures.) In the petit mal type, the attacks are very brief and sometimes extremely numerous. For example, an individual with petit mal may halt in the middle of a sentence for a few seconds, then go on and complete the sentence, sometimes not even realizing the pause has occurred.

Another type of blackout can be due to changes in circulation. There is a sensitive spot in the neck which, in certain people, can cause a slowing of the circulation. A tight collar, or looking over the shoulder can touch off this sort of thing. (It is called an "irritable cartoid sinus," that being part of an artery serving the brain.)

Another cause is a slowing of the heart action due to a "heart block," or interference with the impulses causing the heart beats. This is called Stokes-Adams Syndrome.

In older people with hardening of the arteries, blackouts can result from narrowing of the carotid artery.

Still another is what we call "postural hypotension," or moments of low blood pressure which occur when one in changing position, from sitting or lying down, to standing. This can occur in young as well as old people.

Some of these blackouts (or other blackouts which may have nothing in common with any I've just listed may be triggered by other conditions. The menstrual cycle, since it brings extensive physical changes (fluid balance in the body, glandular activity, etc.) as well as psychological stresses, is a not-unusual factor in women. Fatigue and emotional disturbances also are common factors in blackouts.

Treatment, hence, varies. If there is a suspicion of petit mal (preceded, perhaps, by a head injury or severe infection which may have occurred so far back that you can't remember it) the use of one or another of the anti-convulsant drugs sometimes puts an end to, or lessens frequency of, the blackouts. If the blackouts are primarily related to the menstrual cycle, some of the newer medicines to prevent "water-logging" of the system at that time may help.

If circulatory or other causes are the apparent cause, still other special drugs may have a place in treatment to minimize the trouble. Age, sex, condition of arteries and other elements, you see, often need to be taken into account to track down the cause, and then the treatment, when blackouts are troublesome.

"Dear Dr. Molner: My teenaged daughter does not break out excessively on her face, but her back is all broken out. What could cause this, and how can it be cleared up? — Mrs. M. K."

It sounds like acne, common in teen - agers and not necessarily always on the face. For acne, scrupulous cleanliness is essential — warm soap and water and rinsing with plenty of clear water. Avoiding chocolate, sea-fgood and excessive fats in the diet may help.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Is there any way to remove a scar or incision from an operation that causes embarrassment to a child? — A.C.S."

Plastic surgery can reduce such scars and sometimes make them virtually invisible. Your doctor can refer you to the proper surgeon to have this done.

Order by TV Latest Plan

Financial Post

To his woe, the bill-paying husband knows how easy it is for the little woman to go wild with charge accounts, credit cards and such treacherous inducement to heavy spending.

But, husbands, beware! It's going to get easier and easier for stay-at-home wives to part you from your income.

Note what a leading industrial designer in the U.S. has to say about the merchandising techniques of tomorrow.

"A housewife sees an ad for a percolator in a national magazine or outlet and asks to have a five-minute demonstration put on the TV set. The film is dialed in by telephone and after the housewife decides, she dials back and orders. The outlet teletypes the factory where the percolator is made to order. This gives the customer a styling option and minimizes inventory costs. When ready, the percolator is air-expressed to the customer and charged on a universal credit card".

This, says a writer in the U.S. monthly, Nation's Business, is part of the growing trend for manufacturers to sell directly to the consumer.

If this is, indeed, the shape of things to come, independent retailers might well ponder its implications for their businesses. The answer for them may be greater emphasis on specialty shop operations.

But whatever the outcome, husbands would be wise to dole out those universal credit cards with care.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

PAST PERFORMANCE

I once heard a famous orator begin a speech with these words: "I would rather have been a monkey 2,000 years ago, and a man now, than to have been a man then and a monkey now!"

All events pass quickly — to make way for new ones. No man or woman can long stand on past performance.

It is what you are today that counts! Yesterday is merely a part of the road that leads through today — to tomorrow. We must be interested only in how we walk over the path today.

You may heve stumbled yesterday — but be thankful to God that you can walk straight today! Hinge nothing on past performance.

If what you did yesterday holds merit, use its inspiration to lead you further on today. Find in your work the glory that only work can hold. Keep going forward. Never stand still. Never allow mistakes to hold you up. Pass on — pass on.

Many a man or woman lives into years of idle deadness, trying to make the performances of the past stand for his, or her present. But, You — leave your past performances as outgrown shells. Enter into newer endeavor with heart and zest.

Take life with you hour by hour. Always try to leave your best behind. But keep before you the vision of that which shall be better than your best!

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Long years ago, I had a college chum who was the life of all parties. He was by long odds the best looking, most intelligent, quickest-witted of our year, sophisticated, gallant, gay. His motto was "Live dangerously!" and he led us in all escapades, Hallowe'en riots, unauthorized parades after football games, hilarious disturbances on theatre nights and at public meetings during political campaigns. He was up before the caput various times and risked suspension more than once.

But his natural cleverness allowed him to pass with honors in all examinations, and his theory of living dangerously had an allure for all us less gifted and plodding students that was a sore temptation.

I lost track of him when student days were over; but many a time in fifty years I have wondered in what far part of the world, in what gay capital, Paris, London, Hollywood, he was living dangerously, and how.

Last week, in a small town, I met him on the street. He is an old soak. He has lived his entire life in the small town as a municipal employee growing more withered and shrunken with the years in his struggle to get himself inside a bottle. Copyright: Canada Wide

Town Treasurer to Produce Statements to Disclose Profits On Dress Shop That She Owns

EASTVIEW, Ont. (CP)—Town treasurer Mrs. Adrienne Laroche has been ordered to return to an inquiry into the town's financial affairs with her bank statements.

Commissioners conducting the government-ordered inquiry ordered the bank statements Monday when Mrs. Laroche was unable to disclose profits made by a dress shop she owns.

She is the second woman appearing before the commissioners—F. G. Blake and Charles W. Yates—to suffer a loss of memory.

The commissioners last week ordered Mrs. Laurette Robert, wife of Reeve Marcel Robert, to return with personal bank statements when she could not remember details of a 1953 land deal. She has not yet returned.

Mrs. Laroche, in her middle 50s, said the dress shop is managed by a married daughter. She said she made a profit from the business but she couldn't say without her bank statements what her profits were. Her salary as treasurer is $5,490 a year.

Commissioner Blake told her to return with statements dating back to 1955.

ROOM IS PACKED

The council chambers in this town situated within the boundaries of Ottawa were packed as Mrs. Laroche, wearing a smart white dress, earrings and a pearl necklace, gave her testimony.

She was composed and relaxed, but drew chuckles from spectators as she said several times in the day "everyone in the town hall is honest."

Mrs. Laroche denied that either she or Mayor Gordon Lavergne said anything to a provincial official in an attempt to cover up a shortage in the parking meter account.

William Bolton, supervisor of auditing and accounting in the municipal affairs department, said last week that he had been asked whether $1,900 he found missing had to be reported by him if the money were replaced.

He testified that he told the mayor and treasurer the report had to go in.

Mrs. Laroche said she told Mr. Bolton there must have been a mistake and asked what should be done about it. "I didn't suggest that he keep it out of his report."

Mayor Lavergne, yet to be called as a witness before the inquiry, Monday for the first time spoke to reporters about the inquiry which swung into its second week of criticism of his administration.

Asked if he is going to resign, the mayor, also a member of the Ontario legislature for Russell County, snapped back:

"Why should I resign? I have done nothing wrong."

A total of 28 witnesses have been heard by the inquiry and another 26 are expected to appear.

Good Judgment Needed to Run Small Business

Vision and good judgment are the two important factors which contribute to operating a successful small business, said Alderman Ben Corke in addressing local Rotarians at their weekly dinner meeting in the Hotel Quinte yesterday afternoon. He suggested that this field offered a career with unlimited possibilities for young people without requiring the advanced education necessary for such fields as law or medicine.

Making sales and guarding one's assets are the prime responsibilities of a small businessman, said the speaker, but pointed out that there were several qualities besides good salesmanship required in order to run a successful business. Wise buying, good merchandising, a good knowledge of bookkeeping or accounting and a keen appreciation or knowledge of the trade, its practices and the firms engaged in it were also cited as necessary by Mr. Corke.

The speaker also pointed out that the successful businessman makes a vital contribution to a community. Not only does he have a small industry which pays taxes to a municipality but he also employs a number of local people. Personally the small businessman is usually found active in local affairs and contributes to the betterment of the community through his personal experience and efforts in various clubs or civic projects, said the Front St. merchant.

The speaker, who was introduced by Perc McGuire, was thanked by Jack Yanover, who made a presentation. The birthdays of George Lanning and George McIlhern were honored.

A special raspberry and roses social, provided by Enos David and Judge J. C. Anderson also highlighted the meeting.

Among the guests and visiting Rotarians present was Bert Gray of Toronto, who was keeping up a perfect attendance record, which has stretched out for almost 33 years. Mr. Gray, who is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Les Gnaedinger of Shannonville, joined Rotary in 1927 and would "hate to miss a meeting after all these years."

Charge Prisoner With Murder

VANCOUVER (CP)—David Richard Duke, 30, a former Toronto piano tuner released from Oakalla prison Saturday, has been charged with the murder two years ago of another Canadian in Mississippi.

Duke appeared in Supreme Court Monday and was remanded until Aug. 2 for an extradition hearing. Defence counsel Harry Rankin said an application of the Mississippi attorney-general for extradition will be opposed.

Duke is charged with the June, 1958, murder of John C. Loncharte at Gulfport. Loncharte's body, which had been weighted with scrap iron and dumped into the Gulf of Mexico, was recovered near Gulfport harbor.

Duke had served a six-month jail term for a burglary.

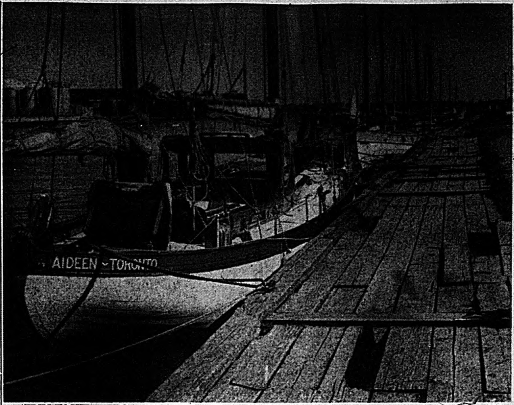
Victim Identified

LEAMINGTON (CP) — Police Monday night identified Kenneth Woods, 45, of Detroit as the drowning victim in a boating accident here Monday.

Nester P. Sanvvlovich, 44, of Dearborn, Mich., escaped injury. Police said the two were riding in the centre seat of the boat when it was hit by a swell and they were thrown into the water.

SEKS RECRUITS

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP) Premier Patrice Lumumba said Monday he hopes to recruit French-speaking Canadian technicians to go to the Congo. He told a press conference he "should probably be able to go to Canada" in the course of this week. He gave no specific date.



'TRIM YACHT . . . ROTTING DOCK — The yacht Aideen of Toronto, tied up in Belleville harbor over the weekend alongside the boardwalk. Those on board had to step carefully to avoid holes, rotten boards and tilting planks in order to reach land safely. The Aideen was but one of 31 yachts which visited here this past weekend.

Take It Easy Over Weekend Say Police

W. J. Clark of Toronto, commissioner of police for Ontario, today asked motorists to take it easy over the coming long weekend.

In a directive to OPP Inspector A. McDougall of Belleville, Commissioner Clark said: "The forthcoming civic holiday weekend will no doubt bring about a decided increase in vehicular movement over the highways. You are hereby authorized to employ the services of every available officer under your supervision in traffic law enforcement and patrol duty during that time."

The directive continued: "Greater travel and extra hazardous driving conditions brought about by resultant congestion are obtained during any holiday period, and the officers should be directed to pay particular attention to those types of offences which most frequently cause accidents."

He noted that for the first six months of the year, 233 persons died in accidents on highways patrolled by the OPP as compared with 288 for the same period in 1959. "This change represents a decrease of 55 or 19 per cent, and is a clear indication that we are at least making progress for the time being in our endeavor to reduce the number of highway accidents and the tragic loss of lives they cause."

Figures for the "heavily travelled" month of July, however, "indicate that fatalities are increasing in numbers at an alarming rate and the attorney-general is extremely anxious that an all-out effort be put forth by members of the OPP over the civic holiday weekend with a view to making the highways safe for motorists and pedestrians alike."

CLOSE UP . . . of a broken up boardwalk running along the length of the harbor dock reveals the rotting and dangerous condition of this structure which finds heavy use by both yachtsmen and spectators during the summer. Loose, broken and missing planks together with rotten, crumbling timbers and exposed nails and spikes pose a hazard for the unwary.

Boardwalk, Dock Unsightly Mess at Belleville Harbor

Belleville harbor had 31 visiting cruisers and sailing craft over the past weekend. A striking contrast was to be seen between the sizes of the craft and also the luxury of their fittings. Another most striking contrast was to be seen in the quality of the docks available. While at the south end of the harbor some excellent moorings are available, which were erected this spring, the dock and boardwalk toward the centre of the west side of the harbor are rotting and falling apart.

The condition of this walk, alongside of which numerous attractive yachts have tied up, is in a dangerous state of repair. While looking at boats alongside the unwary user is liable to find himself stepping into a hole just large enough to catch his foot or onto a plank which is loose at both ends. Either is enough to cause physical injury to those not keeping a very close look-out as to where their feet are going.

Although no injury due to the condition of the structure has been reported it is probably but a matter of time before some local person or child or a visitor coming up alongside steps in the wrong place. It presents a sorry contrast with the rest of the harbor's facilities, which visitors wax enthusiastic over.

Halt Congolese Threat With 80 Paratroopers

BRUSSELS (Reuters)—Eighty Belgian paratroopers dropped on the Tshikapa diamond centre near Luluabourg in the Congo and halted African tribesmen from molesting Euopeans, the Belgian defence ministry announced today.

The statement said the paratroopers dropped Monday following reports Congolese had swarmed into the European district of Tshikapa.

There were no casualties.

According to the announcement, the United Nations commander of troops which moved into Luluabourg two days ago realized the "gravity" of the situation and sent his men by road to Tshikapa.

But the local Belgian commander decided their arrival would be too late and ordered the paratroopers to go in.

The defence ministry statement said the Belgian paratroopers control the town and airport.

Two Fishermen Credit Lives to Safety Cushions

PICTON — Two Ohio fishermen who were thrown into the waters of West Lake when their boat overturned, credit two life preserver cushions with saving their lives. The couple, Rudy Halpate of East Liverpool, and Don Walker of Columbus, were able to swim 150 yards, though hampered by heavy clothing, only because they had the assistance of the cushions. As it was, both were exhausted when they reached shore. They were unable to cling to their 14-foot aluminum boat which sank along with the motor.

The men had rounded an island in the lake and were met by a strong gust of wind.

"The boat went over in a flash and we went down like a ton of bricks," Mr. Halpate related.

"We were wearing heavy clothing and boots and we thought we were goners. We got back to the boat but it sank beneath us. I got hold of an oil tank but Walker managed to get two cushions and we used them instead. We are not strong swimmers and it took us 45 minutes to reach shore against the strong currents.

"When I reached shore I was so exhausted that I passed out for a few minutes. When I came to I saw that Walker had not made it. I got a log and waded out as far as I could and pushed it to him and he managed to get in. We were both thankful to be alive."

Mr. Halpate stated that as a result of his experience he is a firm believer in the use of safety jackets and other such equipment. They should be used regardless of the weather when one sets out, he declared.

Scene of the accident was near the spot where a woman was drowned in a similar accident last year.

Gash Suffered When Boy's Head Hit Heater

PICTON — A cut over the eye and a three-inch gash on the head were suffered by nine-year-old Gary Cook of Brighton, who was visiting his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Haggarty of Cherry Valley. He was admitted to the Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital here for treatment.

The boy was playing with the dog at the farm and in a race to the truck, the boy got in first. As the dog bounded in behind him, the door slammed shut. The dog's foot and tail were caught. In threshing around, the dog bit the boy on the forehead. To escape the boy dropped to the floor and in so doing cut his head on the open door of the truck heater. He was rushed to hospital by his grandfather. No danger of rabies is feared as the dog had been inoculated.

Gary is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Cook of Brighton. A few days ago, their other son, Douglas, was in an accident when he was pulled into a pea viner in that village. His sweater was torn off before he was released and he suffered injuries to the arms.

Catholic Boy Will Be Taken From Home

WINNIPEG (CP)—A five-year-old Roman Catholic boy will be taken from a Protestant foster home even though the foster parents are willing to become Catholics to adopt him, a Children's Aid Society spokesman said Monday.

Henry Rogers, executive director of the society, commented on the case of five-year-old Bobby, who has lived for most of his life with Mr. and Mrs. Ken Hallas, Protestants. The society plans to place the boy with Roman Catholic parents.

When the Hallas family and their neighbors protested the move earlier, the society was forced to postpone action.

However, Mr. Rogers said Monday in a statement: "The question has arisen about whether his foster parents' plan to seek instruction in Bobby's faith would enable them to keep him. The society regrets that this cannot be so."

The period of Roman Catholic instruction is lengthy and does not necessarily mean admission into the faith, he said.

"During this period of instruction the society would be subject to the possibility of a court order requiring that Bobby he moved. Thus, if Bobby was to stay his future would be uncertain for a fairly long period of time as opposed to a certain future in an adoption home that is ready and waiting."

Wedding

STEPHENSON — DIFRUSCIO

St. Thomas' Anglican Church Belleville, was the scene of a quiet but interesting wedding ceremony on Saturday afternoon, July 16, when Mrs. Dorothy DiFruscio of Trenton, became the bride of Reg. Stephenson, of Belleville.

The bridal couple were attended by the bridegroom's son, Robert Stephenson, of London, Ontario and the bride's daughter, Mrs. Mel (Hilda) Leland, of Trenton.

Following the ceremony, the bridal party were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Stephenson, Belleville, where a reception was held.

Guests were present from Detroit, Michigan; London; Belleville and Trenton.

Wooler W.I. Formulates Bus Trips

The July meeting of the Wooler Women's Institute was held in their Club Room on Wednesday evening.

It was decided that the Institute would purchase an 8 foot slide for the Wooler Park. There was some discussion on serving dinners at the Hoard's Station sale barn next spring. Plans were made for the Institute bus trip. This year the ladies decided to visit the Adelaide Hoodless Home at Stoney Creek and Niagara Falls. The W. I. again plans to sponsor the annual bus trip to the Canadian Home at Stoney Creek and Niagara Falls. The W. I. also plans to sponsor the annual bus trip to the Canadian National Exhibition. They decided to send two buses and have Wednesday August 31st as their date.

Mrs. Hilliard Morrow consented to take the names for the trip.

Mrs. G. Finlan, convener for the evening read the history of the Holiness Movement Church and Saint Alphonsus' Roman Catholic Church in Wooler. These histories had been prepared for the Tweedsmuir Book and the readings proved most interesting.

Mrs. A. G. Austin played a medley of old favorites on the piano.

Anne Morrow gave a most interesting talk on her recent trip to Guelph. Anne was one of four girls chosen to represent the 4-H Girls Clubs from Northumberland, at this conference.

Mrs. A. G. Austin was prize winner in a contest on "old sayings."

A delicious lunch was served by the committee.

Women's Institutes

UNIONDALE W. I.

5TH OF SIDNEY — The July meeting of Uniondale Women's Institute (Hastings West) was held at the home of Mrs. Joses Janca, 5th concession of Sidney with 34 members present, also visitors and a few gentlemen. All were met at the door by Mrs. K. Faul, who, wore her new hat, (that she had learned to make at an Extension Service a few weeks ago) and a matching dress. Mrs. Janca made everyone welcome, and to show her wonderful hostess ability, she passed a treat of black cherries to all, part way through the meeting.

The business part of the meeting was read by Mrs. A. Martyn, which consisted of a letter from Department, stating the new home economist, would be Miss Lane Julia, of Manitoulin Island.

Mrs. Lymburner and Miss Helen McKercher also had sent letters in connection with the coming F.W.I.O. meeting. "Thank-you" cards were from Walter Watson who had received flowers at the time of his wife's death, (Joyce Morris Watson) and Earl and Jean Dafoe, for a spoon sent to their new son, (Billie).

Boxes of fruit and flowers sent to Jean Platt; Mary Sine; W. Rose; Betty Elaine and Cathy Sine, who had been "shut in" with mumps.

Mrs. Edison Sine gave a report of the "Sunshine Committee."

A display of the showing of "Sew to Save Dollars and Make Sense," sewing class will be on display at Belleville Fair; Mrs. M. Grills and Mrs. M. Dodds being responsible for this project.

Mrs. M. Bird, convener for July meeting had as her topic, "The Royal Wedding".

A splendid paper was prepared and read by Mrs. M. Bird; a quiz and the procedure before the wedding also the young life of Princess Margaret leading up to her wedding day to Antony-Armstrong Jones. Mrs. G. Bird gave part of the wedding ceremony and stressed on the reaction of the Queen and Queen Mother also Prince Phillip.

Demonstrations were of a snuff box by Mrs. W. Snider; a crystal hand-cut cookie and cheese dish; a cushion cover, handmade thread, (multi-colored) picture frame by the Janca family from Czechoslovakia; a year book from Queen's University.

Mrs. Janca was thanked for opening her home.

Lunch was served and social time was enjoyed by all.

August meeting will be at Mrs. G. Halsall with roll call, "A Short Cut on Canning," with Mrs. K. Faul as convener, topic, "Home Hints on Canning".

Lunch in charge of Mesdames, M. Dodds, R. Fleming, K. Bush, A. Martyn, W. Rose and G Pollard.

WELLINGTON W.I.

WELLINGTON — The regular meeting of the Wellington W.I. was held in the town hall on Tuesday evening. Mrs. S. Tripp, president, welcomed all the members and guests.

Two minutes silence was observed for the late Mrs. Carl Bryant, who was a faithful member of the W.W.I. for many years.

Letters of thanks were received from the Plainfield Home for Retarded Infants; Mrs. Clifford Barber; Mrs. L. D. Garratt, Mrs. Keith Hubbard, Mrs. W. Baverstock; Mrs. Carley and Mrs. Foster. Letters received from the Belleville Fair Board and Mrs. F. Wallis, Belleville, were attended to. Cards were to be sent to Mrs. R. Ellis. Bills were moved to be paid and it was decided to cater to a dinner on August 30th.

The next meeting will be the annual picnic supper at 6.30, ladies please bring your own dishes. Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Ogilvy who have birthdays in July, replenished the birthday box. This ended the business period.

Mrs. Denard and Mrs. Spencer hostesses for the evening took over the meeting and presented the following program: Poem of the month, "Wellington Park", this was written by Wellington's late poetess, Helen B. Anderson, and was read by Mrs. Charles Wannamaker. Current events were given by Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. Denard spoke a few words on "Safety in the Home" and gave each lady phamphlets on the subject.

Miss Dorothy Alexander gave some fine selections on her guitar and mouth organ. She also sang, "Paper Roses", which was appreciated by all. A piano solo, "The Mocking Bird", was played by this talented young lady.

The ladies in charge served dainty refreshments and all enjoyed a half hour visiting.

GOOD SALESWOMAN

QUEBEC (CP)—Mrs. Suzanne Audet, who has worked as a full-time insurance saleswoman since 1942, says her sex is no handicap, but most of her clients are men. "Initial contacts are made over the telephone," she explained, "and a man—perhaps out of politeness or curiosity—will agree to see a woman."

FUN IN WHEELCHAIRS — Camp Namohi near Haney, B.C., has special facilities that make it as much fun for its handicapped youngsters as any other summer camp. Sponsored by the Crippled Children's Society, the Easter Seal camp takes pride in this old barge that can carry as many as six wheelchairs. Children suffering from asthma or rheumatoid arthritis, on crutches or in wheelchairs, regularly set out in the barge in make-believe games as pirates or exploring Vikings. (CP Photo).

Pierre Balmain Favorite for Dane's Clothes

MONTREAL (CP) — North American women dress a little more youthfully than those in Denmark, says Tove Castenskiold, fashion editor of the Danish magazine Tidens Kvinder (Women of Today).

In Canada to represent Scandinavian countries at Zonta Clubs' international convention in Toronto, she said Pierre Balmain of Paris is the Danes' favorite designer.

"He makes such ladylike clothes. His designs make women beautiful and elegant, but never elaborate."

Mrs. Castenskiold keeps a close watch on European fashions and also finds time to study North American styles.

"I read American fashion magazines and keep in touch with the adaptations which U.S. designers evolve from Paris fashions. On the whole I think we dress in similar style, though perhaps with somewhat less trimming."

She said the Italians are working hard to achieve fashion prominence but when it comes to creating, "no country can touch Paris."

"In Denmark we prefer evolution, not revolution. We don't really have any foremost designers of our own but we have excellent copyists who adapt Parisian fashions to our liking."

Easter Seal Camp in B.C. Splendid Place for Children

HANEY, B.C. (CP)—At Camp Nahomi disabled children are showing that handicaps do not stifle the imagination.

The Easter Seal camp near this town 50 miles east of Vancouver provides outdoor fun for 27 boys between 8 and 15. Their disabilities range from asthma to rheumatoid arthrities.

Some on crutches, others in wheelchairs, they do almost everything that normally healthy children do at summer camp.

Their imagination can transform them into Vikings, pirates or Indians, change an old barge into a ship on the high seas and a woodland into a Wild West battleground.

A 50 - mile forest overlooking Loon Lake, Camp Nahomi is sponsored by the Crippled Children's Society.

There are hikes and cook-outs and overnight trips at an island in the middle of the lake.

"Sometimes we go on the warpath, too," said one youngster. "We make Indian head dresses from turkey feathers and tree bark."

There is an old barge which may be a galleon one day and a fishing boat the next. Six wheelchairs can be fitted into it. The lads catch tadpoles and salamanders, check birds nests and collect nature specimens.

"Everything is planned to do the things the children would never do in the city," said Dr. John Read, assistant professor of pediatrics at the University of British Columbia who is camp director.

A staff trained in the needs of the handicapped includes medical students, teachers, physical education graduates and even a graduate in political science.

After the boys leave, 31 girls move in.

Returned Vacationist Wishes He Had Stayed Away Longer

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Office remarks that make a returned vacationist wish he had stayed away longer:

"Where you been hiding yourself lately? I haven't seen you in a couple of weeks."

"Been away?"

"I'll bet you're glad to be back."

"Where'd you stay — under a rock? I can get a better tan than that just sitting on my front porch."

"Everybody kept asking about you. They wanted to know when you'd get back and start paying what you owe them."

"Everybody got a good laugh from the post card you mailed from that night club—except nobody could figure out what you were trying to say. What happened to your handwriting?"

"Don't bother to take off your coat. The boss said he wanted to see you the minute you came in. Boy, is he mad about something!"

"I saved $350 on my vacation. I just stayed home to listen to my wife—instead of going away to do it."

LATE AGAIN

"Well, Smithers, I'll say one thing about you—you're consistent. Even on the first day back from a vacation you still show up half an hour late."

"One day while you were gone the boss came out and asked, 'just what does Smithers do around here anyway?' We were kinda stuck. Nobody knew just what to tell him."

"Hey, that new credit card outfit you joined phoned the day after you left. They said that, after thinking it over, they want you to turn in your card."

"Remember that kid office boy you used to needle a couple of years ago? Well, the boss called him in off the road and made him his new assistant. You'll be reporting to him now."

GRATEFUL STUDENTS

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP)—Members of the Sudbury separate school board were surprised to receive cards from students expressing "thanks for all the things you have given us over the years." One trustee asked: "What have we given them?" Another replied: "Education."

Salad Days

by Mary Moore

Our local market is exciting, especially in mid-morning on Saturday.

I think I should be the provider for a big family for it is cheaper to feed them by the dozen. I want to buy everything. Luckily Pete was with me and enjoys it too and carried my market basket. In went a cabbage, cauliflower, lettuce, French endive, parsley, watercress, green onions shelled green peas (40c a pint as compared to 25c a quart in shells — and it takes 2 quarts to make 1 pint shelled out and did not have to do the work!) — berries and cherries and gooseberries went in too, When we reached home all this had to be washed and stored or frozen or cooked or eaten — and there were just 2 of us.

Dinner Menus

by Mary Moore

TUESDAY

We solved some of this superfluity by eating 4 salads in 2 days.

Pete had gone overboard for Iceberg lettuce salads made with big chunks of the crunchy stuff and a little green onion, dressed with just a little oil and lemon and salt and black pepper and then a big dollop of commercial sour cream. I think this comes from Zeni's European influence.

Needless to say if your hydrator or vegetable crisper are well stocked with crisp greens you will make a salad for every lunch and supper too.

The classic tossed green salad beloved by salad addicts has countless variation but these proportions will guide you.

TOSSED GREEN SALADS:

To serve 4, cut half head of Iceberg lettuce into bite-size chuncks. Add 1 small sliced tomato, 1-4 unpeeled cucumber sliced wafer-thin, 1 tablespoon chopped chives (or green onions). Drizzle French Dressing over and toss with 2 forks until ingredients are coated. The amount of dressing is optional. Some salad experts insist on rubbing the bowl with a cut clove of garlic, but this depends on whom you kiss goodnight.

A main course salad that needs only some hot rolls for companions follows.

SEAFOOD CITRUS SALAD:

1 pound fresh or frozen shrimp, cleaned and cooked, cooled, 2 cups orange pieces (4 medium), approx. 4 cups shredded lettuce, 1 cup watercress, 1-2 cup salad dressing, 1 teaspoon prepared mustard, 1 tablespoon drained capers (optional).

Combine shrimp ,oranges, lettuce and watercress in large salad bowl. Blend salad dressing with mustard and capers. Toss salad with dressing.

For guest meals good tricks to do to make salads sensational are to use vegetables and fruits that you can scoop out and use as containers for the appropriate salad. Some of these are firm cabbage, tomatoes, and pineapple.

Shrimp salad is good when served in a big bowl made from scooping out a hard cabbage. (Use the scooped out part for cooking or slaw). Chicken salad is delicious served in scooped-out tomatoes. Fruit salad is sensational served in scooped out pineapple halves.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Question: My daughter is to be married in September at a formal church wedding. I always understood that the mother of the bride was the last to be seated before the ceremony started. The bridegroom insists that I be seated first and that he will escort his mother down the aisle after me, seat her, and then go to the altar, join the best man and wait for the bride to come down the aisle. Is he right in this?

Answer: He most emphatically isn't! In all the years that I have been advising on the proper thing to do, I have never had this question come up. For over a century it has been considered the prerogative of the bride's mother to be the last one seated just before the bridal procession starts down the aisle. It is an honor that should not be taken from her. This young man should be told a thing or two! His mother is important, of course, but she is seated immediately upon her arrival by the head usher, certainly not by her son! He makes his entrance, with his best man and stands before the altar after the bride's mother has been seated and just before the bridal party starts down the aisle.

Question: A man who worked for our firm for many years, and was beloved by everybody, died recently. As president of the company, I wanted to show our respect and express how much we had thought of him. So I insisted that we be allowed to present a blanket of flowers to cover his casket. His wife was extremely upset and didn't take it the way I meant it at all. She was hurt because she wanted to cover the casket with her own flowers. After some unpleasantness we ended up sending two large baskets of flowers, one for each end of the casket. Was I wrong in handling this the way I did?

Answer: I'm afraid you were! Your heart was certainly in the right place but you failed to take into consideration the wishes of the widow. It is up to her to decide what she wants to provide. In a case like this it is wise to find out from a relative of the family just what is being planned. You should not have insisted under any condition. Why not go and see her when she has had time to recover a little, and tell her what your intentions were. I'm sure she will understand that you meant well and any hard feelings will be wiped out.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Janet T. — They treat me like a child.

Mrs. L. T. — She's a strange difficult girl.

Janet T. — I am 17 and about to go into my senior year at high school. I have a summer job, which I have been told I'm handling very well.

I think that because of my age and the fact that I'm practically independent, my parents should learn to treat me like a grown-up. Instead, they treat me like a 12-year-old.

My mother is worse than my father. She criticizes everything I do. I feel I should be allowed to spend my hard-earned money any way I please, but she always has something to say about it. The other day I bought some clothes and she returned them without even telling me. I love my mother very much, but sometimes I wish I didn't have to live with her.

Mrs. L. T. — Janet is the strangest, most difficult girl I've ever seen. In many ways she is sensible and mature, but at times she acts even younger than 12 years old.

We were proud of her for having gotten a good job all by herself and I was prepared to let her use her money as she liked, but she started spending so foolishly I had to interfere.

For example, she fell in love with a particular kind of shoe. She ordered it in seven colors — even though she is so uncomfortable in it she has to hobble around. She knows she is expected to buy part of her school wardrobe for fall with her earnings, but so far she has saved practically nothing. She breaks into tears if I point that out.

The Council: Although Janet does appear to be more uneven in her development than most girls her age, she exhibits the typical lack of balance that so unnerves the parents of most teenagers.

Since Janet has shown enough judgement and sense of responsibility to get and hold a good job for the summer, it is safe to assume she has enough mental development to do much better at spending than she has done.

From her actions as described by both herself and her mother we get the impression that despite her demands to be treated like a grownup she would really prefer to be treated like a little girl. Like most teenagers, Janet finds the thought of becoming an adult thrilling and frightening. She still isn't sure she'll ever make the grade and she wants to remind her parents that she is still a child and needs their care.

Mrs. L. T. is sot helping her by playing into her hands and treating her like a child. Certainly, she should have given her daughter her opinion of the seven pairs of shoes, but she should have dropped it at that. It would have done Janet good to know that nobody is going to fish her out of her troubles. If she buys seven pairs of uncomfortable shoes and finds herself with no money for a fall wardrobe, she should be forced to live with the situation.

The L. T.'s shouldn't give in to Janet's desire to be treated like a child. Gradually, she will learn that it is the essence of grownupness not to worry about how one is treated, but to act like an adult.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Some critics have levelled their shafts at this department for occasionally bringing up the topic of hockey, which they say, is as timely as trying to crash a boarding-house bathroom at 8.15 a.m.

Admittedly the theme is slightly off-season, but with the unsteadiness of the senior "A" situation and rumor piling upon rumor the majority of hockey fans are curious to know what is developing—if anything.

After the last OHA meeting in Toronto everything with the senior "A" circuit looked hunkey-dory. Wren Blair was doing, he said, a job of work trying to expand the league, and to quote, "It appears to be in a very healthy condition."

True, the spectre of professional interference hung over the meeting and a sharp verbal clash between Blair and the then manager of the Kitchener Dutchmen, Ernie Goman, in which charge and counter-charge were hurled across the board seemed to warrant the misty presence.

As things happened the Goman argument bore more scyntillas of truth than did the Blair defence. The New York Rangers moved in boldly, as was planned, and tossed an Eastern Professional League franchise into Kitchener Auditorium Commission hands that were anything but unwilling.

And according to Dutchmen officials, they got a financial deal that the amateur club had been seeking for years. The professional die, it appears, is cast in Kitchener—but the amateur body is far from lifeless.

A group of Dutchmen players are fighting hard to keep the amateur club alive. We do not know what the score is at present, but fans can take a little comfort from Lloyd Pollock, Windsor, convener of the senior 'A" loop who stated the other day, "I'm optimistic about the league's 1960-61 future. I've been talking to the Dutchmen and it seems they have a good chance. We may know within the next few days what the score is."

Jim MacKay, Windsor sports writer, says if the Dutchies cannot play at home they would very well shift their scene of operations to Galt. They have about 15-20 strong players at their disposal and it would be a shame not to have them organized somewhere.

Be that as it may. We have not reached Gordie Bell for a comment but the story is going the rounds in Windsor, Chatham and Whitby that these centres will not operate in a four-team league. If such is the case and the Dutchmen fail to get re-organized or Galt does not consider an entry, it could mean the demise of the league, for next year at least.

That should satisfy the hungry maw of the professional octopus that has now reached out and snatched two of the senior leagues best arenas—plus its best hockey brains.

Bill Butcher, general manager of the Windsor Bulldogs, had a few blistering words for the amateur hockey organizations.

"Our set-up (the CAHA)," he said, "must be awfully weak when they let the pros walk into Kitchener and take over. They want a good team to represent Canada in world competition each year and they usually want it from this league.

"Well, I didn't notice any CAHA activity in trying to stop the Ranger movement and therein trying to keep the league together. The CAHA and OHA got about $15,000 from our league last year but it seems to me we're not getting much return on our money."

Speaking of money and returns, the Kingston Frontenacs, according to the club's acting president, James Maver, dropped some $10,142.63 for the nine months ending May 31, 1960. Actually the club lost nearly $18,000, for it drew $7,635.03 from the EPL pool. The poor showing of the team caused gate receipts to fall some $20,000 below the figure anticipated at the beginning of the schedule, Maver said.

That should be something for the Kitchener Auditorium Commission to mull over in its off moments.

NAME RACE WINNER

MARSTRAND, Sweden (AP)—The American yawl Figaro, owned and sailed by William Snaith of Weston, Conn., won the King of Sweden Cup, first prize in this year's transatlantic race from Bermuda to Sweden, it was announced Monday. Figaro's corrected time, allowing for handicap, was 16 days 20 hours 20 minutes 28 seconds. [illegible] Joseph Johnston of New York was second, Swedish-owned Anitra third.

Three Pirate Homers Trump Card Aces

Clemente, Face Clinch Win

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Staff Writer

They said the trouble with the Pittsburgh Pirates is that they're just a bunch of singles hitters. They lacked the ingredient that helps win pennants — the long ball.

So what did the Bucs do about getting back to first place Monday night? They banged out three home runs and halted the oncoming St. Louis Cardinals with a 4-2 victory that gave them a half game lead over the idle second place Milwaukee Braves.

Bill Virdon, Bob Skinner and Roberto Clemente provided the long ball. Virdon hit his homer in the sixth. The blow came off Larry Jackson and tied the score at 1-1. Pittsburgh went ahead 2-1 in the sixth and St. Louis tied it 2-2 in the seventh, when Jackson went out for a pinch hitter.

In the eighth, with Ronnie Kline, a former Pirate on the mound, Skinner hit one into the seats to regain the lead for the Pirates. Then, for insurance, Roberto Clemente homered in the ninth and relief artist Elroy Face came in to seal Bob Friend's 11th triumph of the season.

REDS WIN HECTIC GAME

In the only other game scheduled in either league, the Cincinnati Reds overcame a 5-0 deficit to defeat the Chicago Cubs 6-5.

The Cincinnati triumph, achieved with two runs in the ninth, climaxed an action-packed game in which Ernie Banks of the Cubs was carried off the field after being hit with a pitch and Cincinnati pitcher Joe Nuxhall had to be restrained from assaulting umpire Ed Vargo.

Banks, batting against Don Newcombe in the second inning, was struck on the left knee by a pitch. He fell writhing to the ground and it was feared he had suffered serious injury. Examination showed only a bruise and he was expected to be in the lineup today for his 589th consecutive game.

Nuxhall's big blowup came in the eighth when George Altman, who had hit a three-run homer off Newcombe earlier, beat out an infield hit. Nuxhall, covering first on the play, took the throw from first baseman Gordon Coleman. When Varga called Altman safe, Nuxhall charged him and nearly knocked him off his feet.

WRESTLED TO GROUND

Manager Fred Hutchinson had to restrain Nuxhall. Then Billy Martin and Coleman jumped on the southpaw pitcher and wrestled him to the ground.

The Cubs carried a 3-0 lead into the seventh when a walk and two singles gave Cincinnati a run. Cub starter Bob Anderson was shelled in a three - run eighth sparked by singles by Eddie Kasko and Vada Pinson and Frank Robinson's double.

The Reds' winning runs in the ninth came on singles by Chico Cardenas, rookie shortstop, pinch hitter Gus Bell and Pinson, plus sacrifice flies by Kaso and Harry Anderson.

The victory snapped a four-game losing streak for the Reds. The loss for the last place Cubs put them a game and half behind the seventh place Philadelphia Phillies.

Giants' New Rookie

Marichal Mound Sensation

By JACK STEVENSON

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—"Marichal's miracle" not only provides a catchy phrase for San Francisco baseball followers; it gives them more hope than they've enjoyed for weeks.

Just six nights ago 21-year-old Juan Antonio Marichal (pronounced mahr-ee-chahl with the accent on the last syllable) made his major league debut.

The slumping Giants were fifth, 8½ games behind the pace-setting Pittsburgh Pirates. Fans were razzing the club. The crowd of 13,279 when Marichal took the pitcher's mound against Philadelphia last Tuesday was the smallest night gathering of the year at Candlestick Park.

Until two batters were out in the eighth inning, the solidly built righthander who signed with the Giants for just $500, didn't allow a hit. Then pinch-batter Clay Dalrymple got a single. The Giants won 2-0.

WINS ACCLAIM

The soft-spoken youngster from the Dominican Republic who became the first rookie in modern National League history to obtain a one-hitter in his debut received a standing ovation.

Phillies manager Gene Mauch observed, "He changed speeds better than any pitcher I've seen in the league this year."

Came Saturday and Marichal took the mound against Pittsburgh Pirates before 30,228. With his high-kick delivery that reminded many of ex-Giant Ruben Gomez, he set the Pirates down on four hits. He didn't allow a run until the seventh. The Giants won 3-1.

STARTED AT 15

The son of a ranch worker, Juan started pitching at 15. He was 19 when he broke into organized baseball at Michigan City of the Midwest League in 1958 with a 21-8 record. In 1959 with Springfield, Mass., of the Eastern League he was 18-13, leading the loop in six pitching departments.

Last year with Tacoma of the Pacific Coast League, he compiled an 11-5 record as the strikeout king with 123.

In his major league debut he fanned 12, high for the Giants staff this year, and put six Pirates down on strikes in his second start. His repertoire includes the fast ball, curve, slider and change-up.

FINISHES FIRST

MACKINAC ISLAND, Mich. (AP)—Ralph Brotz's Sabre finished first Monday in the Chicago-to-Mackinac yacht race. The sleek yawl from the Sheboygan, Wis., Yachting Club crossed the finish line at 1:24.35 p.m., followed by Freebooter at 2:[illegible]. The winner will not be determined until [illegible] computed and Sabre does not appear to have much chance.

Riders Clubs Meet Tonight In Exhibition

OTTAWA (CP) — Modest Ken Carpenter, embarking on his first year as coach of Saskatchewan Roughriders, hopes Ottawa coach Frank Clair "will keep the score down" in tonight's exhibition game.

But Carpenter, veteran football player, chuckles when he says it and indicates that perhaps it should be Clair hoping for a break.

The Western Interprovincial Football Union Roughriders were on the practice field within two hours after their arrival by plane Monday and "the boys displayed a lot of spirit."

Carpenter brought 42 players here with him and expected two more to arrive today. "All are going to play tonight" against the Big Four Rough Riders.

Carpenter's team went through seven quarterbacks last year and finished at the bottom of the WIFU.

HIGH HOPES

Carpenter, one of the casualties who broke his arm last season, is more optimistic about this year's chances. "The boys have a desire to go a long way and we could make it to the playoffs."

Carpenter has high hopes for College alumni who played for Ottawa last year.

Clair said he wanted to give some new hopefuls plenty of action tonight but indicated he hated to take chances on spoiling his record of no exhibition defeats since coming here in 1956.

The hopefuls include halfbacks Mike Hagler from the University of Iowa, Tom Smolanovich from Youngstown University, and backs Doug Daigneault from Clemson Usiversity and Jim Conroy, University of Southern California.

Quarterback duty will be divided between holdovers Russ Jackson and Babe Parilli and newcomers Mitch Ogiego from Iowa and Ron Lancaster from Wittenberg College.

Race Trainer Is Suspended

VANCOUVER (CP) — Trainer Leo Ballistreri Monday was suspended 60 days by the Lansdowne Park board of stewards as a result of a positive test on the horse Ivor.

Ivor, ridden by Enrique De Alba, was an upset winner of the featured seventh race at Lansdowne Thursday and paid $121.40 to win.

Officials said tests disclosed the presence of a stimulant.

A Gentleman Named Maris Says . .

Maris Is Not In Class With Ruth

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP) — Roger Maris was a thoroughly frustrated athlete a year ago.

His batting average was falling and his ego was keeping pace.

But today, the soft-spoken, shy and seemingly scared young man is the American League's most formidable defensive weapon.

Through games of Sunday, the handsome, 25-year-old left-handed slugger, was contending for top honors in all power departments with a .315 batting average and such league-leading figures as 31 home runs and 78 runs batted in.

What has brought about this change in such a comparatively short time?

SEVERAL THINGS

Maris isn't sure he knows, although he thinks it may be a combination of experience, maturity, the good fortune to avoid serious injury or illness, and the challenge that comes with becoming associated with New York Yankees.

"I wasn't particularly pleased when I learned last winter that I was traded from Kansas City to the Yankees," said the six foot 190-pounder. "I was happily situated, I had made a lot of friends and my wife, Patricia, had grown to like it very much where we were . . .

"The Yankees have been accustomed to winning pennants and having top-flight stars. I knew the pressure would be tremendous and I suppose that made me more determined than ever."

Maris shies away from interviews, and when he does consent to one he tends to talk himself down. As a youngster, he had a terrible inferiority complex despite the fact he was an all-around athlete at high school in Fargo, N.D.

WON'T COMPARE

"Please don't ask me whether I think I can break Babe Ruth's record," he pleaded. "Ever since I passed the 20-mark, I've been asked that question. I'm not even thinking of Ruth's record. Where does a fellow like me dare think of myself in any category with Ruth?"

Up to the two all-star games break, Maris was running ahead of Ruth's pace when he slammed his record 60 home runs in 1927. But a wrist injury has slowed him up. It wasn't until after the all-star games, during which Maris failed to hit safely in five official times at bat, that he disclosed he had been playing with torn ligaments in the right wrist.

Maris's hitting is not the only thing that has made him the most exciting figure in the American League. He has proved to be a great all-around performer. He is fast and eager, has a fine arm, and knows how to use it.

Richmond Has Eyes on Second; Shade Bisons

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Like any enterprising organization, the Richmond Vees are trying to strengthen and consolidate their position.

For them it is second place in the International League, and today they have the spot for at least two more games after Monday night's 3-2 victory over third-place Buffalo. The two meet twice more this week but Richmond will stay in second place no matter what happens.

First-place Toronto, 13 games in front, fell before Jersey City 5-4 while Rochester edged Columbus 7-4 in 15 innings on home runs by Jim Frey and Ben Mateosky. Miami defeated Montreal 5-1.

Richmond scored three runs with two out in the fourth inning against loser Bud Podbielan, making his first start for the Bisons. Winner Gary Blaylock doubled in the first run, and scored along with Wayne Terwilliger, a moment later on Jim Pisoni's single.

RIDZIK A LOSER

Jersey City erased a 3-1 deficit with four runs in the eighth inning against Toronto and loser Steve Ridzik (10-6). Jersey City bunched four hits, two errors, a pair of walks and a hit batsman to do the damage. Bob Miller (8-9) was the winner in relief. Jim Pendleton homered for Jersey City and Ridzik hit one for Toronto.

Frey's homer, his eighth, came after he failed twice to sacrifice Ellis Burton along. Mateosky then followed with his eighth home run, both coming against losing reliever George Spencer. Burton hit a two-run homer for Rochester in the 13th but the Jets tied it on Pidge Browne's single, a triple by Ray Mejias and Dick Gray's single. Bob Tiefenauer won his eighth in nine decisions. Leon Wagner also had a two-run inside-the-park homer for the Wings.

Miami outfielder Leo Burke's home run broke a 1-1 tie in the seventh and Dick Brown added a two-on shot in the eighth as Rodolfo Arias scattered seven Montreal hits. Babe Birrer lost.

Name Amateur Golf Team

TORONTO (CP)—Seven amateur golfers from Ontario, Alberta and British Columbia have been selected to represent Canada in the Americas Cup matches with Mexico and the United States, it was announced Monday. The matches will be played at Ottawa Aug. 11-12.

Team personnel, annousced by the Royal Canadian Golf Association, is:

Phil Brownlee and Gary Cowan, Toronto; Nick Weslock, Burlington; Bob Wylie and Keith Alexander, Calgary; Johnny Johnston, Vancouver, and Ron Willey, North Burnaby, B.C.

Non-playing captain is E. D. Millican of Montreal.

Reid Tosses No-Hitter Against Juniors

Latta's Stan Reid rose to pitching heights Saturday when he tossed the first no-hitter of the season in the South Hastings Baseball League.

Reid, with fine support, turned back the Belleville Juniors' sluggers with no hits, whiffing 11 and walking three. The score was 1-0.

Asselstine went the route for the Juniors, allowing but six hits, none of the extra base variety. He struck out seven and issued five walks.

The victory brought Latta to within one point of the league leading juniors.

Latta scored the only run of the game in the first inning and from there on the game developed into one of the best of the season.

Bush walked, as did Rollins, and an error and a putout sent Bush across the plate for the winning run.

Frank Gow had two singles for the winners, with Cam Buskard, Howie Meeks, Lorne Cronkwright and Doug Rollins hitting safely.

The standing as of now sees Belleville with 28 points; Latta 27; Cannifton 25; Read 21; Shannonville 14, and Foxboro with three.

McLean Stars For S. Africans

MANCHESTER, England (Reuters)—A century by Roy McLean—first for either side in the series—helped South Africa get within 31 runs of England's first-innings score of 260 on the fourth day of the fourth test here.

McLean contributed 109 to South Africa's total of 229. At the close of play, England had scored 50 for two in their second innings.

Coming in at 57 for three, McLean resisted fast bowlers Brian Statham and Freddie Trueman, who had seemed likely to rout the side.

He reached 100 out of 123 in company with Sid O'Linn (26), taking only two hours 28 minutes over the century.

Allen Mott Second in Bantams

Panasiuk Wins Junior Golf Crown

TORONTO (CP) — Windsor's Bobby Panasiuk fired a four-under-par 68 Monday to come from behind and win the Ontario junior golf championship at suburban Islington golf course.

Panasiuk, 18, started out in the morning with a 76, two strokes behind John Kindred of Peterborough and Gerry Dornhoeffer of Kitchener. But no one could match his second-round shooting in the afternoon. He ended with even-par 144.

Ernie Hauser of Kitchener Rockway had an afternoon 71 to go with a morning 77 for a 148 in second place behind Panasiuk. Kindred had an afternoon 75 for a 149 total and Dornhoeffer blew to 83 for 157.

Panasiuk, who won the title in 1958, tied for second with Kindred last year behind Phil Brownlee of Toronto.

JUVENILE CHAMP

Peter Knechtel of Kitchener shot 85-77 for a 162 to win the Juvenile title for boys 14 and 15. Ziggy Nowakonish of Timmins had 81-85—166 for second spot.

Thirteen-year-old Randy Dunk took the bantam title with an 86 for 18 holes, well ahead of Allen Mott of the Bay of Quinte with a 95.

Panasiuk, Hauser and Kindred qualified automatically for Ontario's Junior Willingdon Cup team, made up of the four low shooters from Monday's play. Bruce Wilcox and Brian Gardner, both of Toronto, will play off for the fourth position. Both shot 152 Monday.

Ontario's 10-player interprovincial team with two players from each of the 14-to-18 age group, was also determined Monday. It plays Quebec juniors here Aug. 9.

Panasiuk and Gardner represent the 18-year-olds, Hauser and Kindred the 17-year-old, Wilcox and Bob Jamieson of Peterborough, the age-16 group, Knetchel and Nowakonish the 15-year-olds. Bob Forsworthy of London is one of the 14-year-old players and James Moore and Jerry Powell, both of Toronto, will play off to decide the other.

Gerry Doucette Has New Job With Stamps

TORONTO (CP)—Gerry Doucette, long time second string quarterback with Toronto Argonauts of the Big Four Football League, may have nailed down a corner linebacker's slot with his new team, Calgary Stampeders of the Western Conference.

Jim Finks, Calgary general manager, said here Monday Doucette has looked good on defence since his trade to the Stamps.

"When we made the deal, Gerry told me he wanted to play defence and thought he could do a job at that spot (corner linebacker)," said Finks, who is here to drum up interest in Wednesday's Argo-Stampeders exhibition game.

"We had him at halfback but his speed wasn't sufficient. So we moved him up and he's done everything expected of him in our intrasquad game and our 17-4 win over Edmonton."

Doucette spent six years as Argo's second - string quarterback after joining the team at 18.

Jap, American Swim Marks Concern Aussies

SYDNEY (AP)—Record swims by Japanese and United States stars the last few days have thrown a scare into the Australians for the Olympic Games starting in Rome next month.

Australian swimmers are training for the Olympic trials Aug. 2-6.

Commenting on American and Japanese times, coach Sam Herford said: "The game is up . . . we are back to 1954 and trailing at least two other nations." He meant Japan and the U.S.

Don Talbot, coach of Jon and Ilsa Konrads, freestyle record-holders, said: "The other nations are catching up because of our complacency. Australian swimming is in a bit of a rut. Time is running short and I don't know if we have enough time to get out of the rut before the Rome games."

Australia is expected to dominate the Olympics in the men's and women's freestyle events but appears vulnerable in the butterfly, breaststroke and backstroke.

TO CHOOSE BOATS

DETROIT (AP) — The hydroplane team that will try to recapture the Harmsworth Trophy from Canada will be named today by the Yachtsmen's Association of Detroit.

It looks like the association will select Gale V, Miss Detroit and Nitrogen to race against the Canadian defender, Miss Supertest III, owned by Jim Thompson of London, Ont. The Harmsworth, at Picton Aug. 19, 20 and 22, will be a best-of-three competition involving races of 35 nautical miles.

Gale V won the St. Clair Regatta Sunday, taking all three heats. Miss Detroit has showed good speed all season and Nitrogen, though not a winner, has been picking up points in previous races.

British Racing

Starts New Doping Probe

LONDON (AP) — A race in which a colt owned by United States Ambassador John Hay Whitney defeated a sluggish odds-on favorite touched off a new probe of doping in Britain's multi-million dollar racing industry Monday.

Scotland Yard was asked to take a hand.

England's highest placed stables were involved and trainers hinted guardedly at a mysterious ring of gangsters.

Attention now centres on Goodwood where the season's meeting starting today has attracted Queen Elizabeth as the guest of the Duke and Duchess of Norfolk.

The duke declared two of his horses, Skymaster beaten at Ascot, and Red Letter, who lost at Kempton Park, definitely were doped. Skymaster lost to Whitney's Good Old Days and for 48 hours after that was dazed and ill. Both of the duke's horses started as favorites.

Veterinarians have taken specimens from both and will send reports to Scotland Yard. The duke's trainer, Willie Smyth, asserted "There is obviously a ring at work. That is the feeling among all the trainers."

Whitney, who has eight horses in his English stable, has not reported any doping attempts but other owners have come forward, mostly with suspicions.

Col. William Stirling told authorities his champion, Sing Sing, definitely was doped before the July Cup at Newmarket. At Epsom, police inquired into the suspected doping of Columbus, owned by Capt. William Harvey, who was backed at 2 to 1 at Hurst Park on June 6 and lost by 20 lengths.

On the Tracks

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (CP)—Dotted Swiss, Cornelius V. Whitney's big chestnut colt, completed one of the finest seasons in California track history Monday when he easily won his second $100,000 added race on the final day of the 55-day Hollywood Park meet.

He scored by nearly four lengths in the $109,200 sunset handicap over the one-mile, five-furlong distance. Held back until the final turn, Dotted Swiss was fighting for his head. When jockey Eddie Burns let the 3-to-5 favorite loose, the four-year-old swept to victory over Nickel Boy from the Elmendorf Farm.

Johnny Longden came in third on the pacesetter, Turin, with King's Canasta fourth in the field of seven. Dotted Swiss paid $3.20, $2.60 and $2.40; Nickel Boy $5.80 and $4, and Turin $3.60.

The 19th running of the Sunset Handicap was witnessed by a crowd estimated at 40,000.

Dotted Swiss' victory followed by a little more than a week his triumph in the $162,100 Hollywood Gold Cup. He thus became the fourth horse in the track's history to take the two big races for handicap performers. Cover Up in 1947, Swaps in 1956 and Gallant Man in 1958 turned the trick.

It was Dotted Swiss' fifth straight victory and brought his owner $83,100 and a total of $194,350 for the entire Hollywood Park season.

In Third Round

HAMILTON (CP) — Ned Stafford, Niagara Falls, N.Y., defeated Brian Bixley, Toronto, 6-3, 6-3 in the third round of the men's singles of the Southern Ontario tennis tournament here Monday.

WAS RING CHAMP

BOSTON (AP) — William W. Blaikie, 60, retired navy man and one-time boxing champion of Nova Scotia, died Monday while painting a catwalk on the roof of his Charlestown home. He was lightweight boxing champion of Nova Scotia in 1921 and served in the U.S. Navy for 30 years.

Griffith Wins Over Fernandez

NEW YORK (AP)—Emile Griffith showed dazzling footwork and speed of hand Monday night in winning a unanimous decision over Argentina's Jorge Fernandez in a 10-round boxing match at Madison Square Garden. Griffith weighed 150 pounds to Fernandez's 148½.

There were no knockdowns in the hard-fought rematch of a disputed June 3 battle that almost touched off a riot at St. Nicholas Arena.

All three officials called this the same way—Griffith by a 5-4-1 margin in rounds.

In the final analysis, Fernandez lost the fight when he was penalized in the fourth round for repeated low blows.

Will Discuss Indemnities For Franchises

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Directors of the American Association will meet here Thursday to discuss the Continental League's latest proposal regarding indemnity for franchises.

Ed Doherty, association president, said the meeting would discuss the latest plan proposed by Branch Rickey, Continental president.

Rickey's counter proposal to the association's request for $800,000 per franchise lost is 40 cents on each paid admission in the first year the Continental operates.

Association teams that would be taken over by the Continental are Denver, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Dallas - Fort Worth and Houston.

Murray Oliver Signs Contract

DETROIT (AP)—Centre Murray Oliver, signed his 1960-61 contract with Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League Monday.

Oliver, 22, played in only 54 games last season after being called up from Edmonton Flyers of the Western League in November, but still ran up 59 points on 20 goals and 19 assists to make him the team's fifth highest scorer.

Oliver, a native of Hamilton, agreed to terms Saturday at Port Weller, Ont., at the christening of the Red Wings, a converted 730-foot freighter. The ship is owned by the Norris Grain Company, whose president is Bruce Norris, owner of the Red Wings.

Bob Cleroux, Harris Finish Glove Training

MONTREAL (CP) — Robert Cleroux and Roy Harris finished their glove-work training Monday in preparation for their 10-round heavyweight meeting Wednesday in the Montreal baseball park.

Harris, from Cut 'n' Shoot, Tex., is 7-to-5 favorite to win over the Montreal fighter.

The two plan a little loosening-up work in the east-end Immaculate Conception Gymnasium today. The weigh-in will be at noon Wednesday. Cleroux is expected to enter the ring at about 208 pounds, Harris at 192.

Cleroux is rated a heavy puncher who is inclined to leave himself open but can absorb punishment. Harris gets a higher rating on cleverness.

The promoters said a crowd of about 10,000 is expected, with a gate of $40,000-$45,000.

Approve List Canadian Team For Olympics

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada will send 97 competitors to the Olympic Games in Rome along with 21 officials connected with the various teams and six general officials.

The full list of 124 was approved Saturday at a meeting of the Canadian Olympic Association executive.

The athletes will compete in 14 sports classifications. Numerically the teams are: Rowing, 15; track and field, 15; basketball, 12; yachting, 11; swimming, 10; shooting, 7; paddling, 6; equestrianship, 5; boxing, 4; wrestling, 3; weightlifting, 3; gymnastics, 3; cycling, 2; fencing, 1.

Cleveland Players Call Off Meeting With Jim Piersall

Weightlifters Not Satisfied With Manager

MONTREAL (CP) — Weightlifters who will represent Canada at the Olympic Games in Rome next month are reported dissatisfied with the choice of their manager, George Thomson of Transcona, Man.

It was reported at a meeting of the Canadian Olympic Association here Saturday that letters expressing weightlifters' dissatisfaction had been received.

Ken Farmer, president of the association, said a rule in the constitution of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada provides that the national chairman of each sport may manage his sport's team if he desires.

The association, still in need of $36,000 to meet its budget of $211,000, passed a resolution that no additions to the 124-member Canadian team be made. There were representations from the swimming, weightlifting, rowing, wrestling and fencing teams for additions to their rosters.

The team is scheduled to fly to Rome from Montreal Aug. 17.

Three Top Stars Lured Away

TORONTO (CP)—Three of the top stars scheduled to play in Ontario junior tennis championships here have been lured away by the call of Kalamazoo.

The tournament got under way Monday minus the two top-seeded players and the defending champion in the junior men's class.

Top-seed John Fraser of Vancouver, fifth ranking junior player in Canada and Toronto's Bob Jacob, seeded second, both decided at the last minute to try their luck in the United States junior nationals at Kalamazoo, Mich., this week. Jacob is ranked seventh in Ontario.

Toronto's Harry Fauquier, 17, defending Ontario men's junior champion, has let both the Ontario and Quebec titles slide in favor of Kalamazoo. He plans to return to Ottawa next week to defend his Canadian open junior championship.

If Fraser and Jacob strike it rich in Kalamazoo, they will be defaulted out of the Ontario tournament. If they are knocked out in the early rounds they will head back Wednesday for their matches here. The five-day Ontario tournament ends Friday.

Meanwhile Brian Flood, of London, Ont., seeded fourth in the tournament and ranked six in Ontario, pushed to an easy 6-0 victory over Toronto's Casey Soden.

Olympic Village Opened Monday

ROME (AP) — The Olympic Village was opened Monday with an appeal to nations to put aside cold war rivalries at least for the duration of the Games, Aug. 25-Sept. 11.

Giulio Andreotti, Italian defence minister and president of the Olympic organizing committee, made the plea as he formally inaugurated the village where athletes from 87 countries will live and train.

He recalled that the ancient Greeks suspended all wars and hostilities during their Olympic Games so the athletes could participate in peace — even those from warring rivals.

DURABLE VETERAN

Jimmy Durante, veteran of the movies, stage and television, at age 67 in 1960 is still active on the night club circuit.

NEW YORK (AP)—The Jim Piersall baseball controversy has calmed down—on the surface at least.

A scheduled meeting today involving Cleveland Indian players and manager Joe Gordon to discuss the perplexing Piersall problem was called off Monday night. But there's no guarantee another meeting will not be arranged in the future.

Player representative Harvey Kuenn, after a talk with Piersall, Cleveland centre fielder, said there was no longer any necessity to have a meeting. Piersall, distressed when he learned the players planned to hold a meeting concerning him, voiced pleasure over the decision to abandon it.

"Piersall convinced me that his talk with president Joe Cronin had given him a new outlook," said Kuenn. "Jim promised me that he would mend his ways and his teammates are going to give him a chance to prove it. We're very glad we didn't have to have the meeting."

LINGERS ON

On the surface everybody is happy. But resentment apparently lingers on.

The latest Piersall episode began Monday when Kuenn disclosed he had requested a meeting of players and Gordon to discuss what should be done about Piersall because of his numerous wrangles with umpires.

Jimmy's latest squabble, which resulted in his sixth ejection from a game last Saturday, resulted in a summons to Boston Monday by American League president Joe Cronin. He received a fatherly talk from Cronin and was fined $100.

He learned of the proposed meeting when he arrived here Monday night.

"I WAS DISTURBED"

"I had just told Mr. Cronin that I was wrong and I promised him I would cut out the horseplay and concentrate on baseball. Then I come to New York and see where they were going to have a meeting about me. I don't mind telling you I was terribly disturbed."

Piersall, 30-year-old star outfielder, had a talk with Kuenn.

"I asked Harvey what it was all about. He told me the players felt I was making them nervous with my actions on the field and they wanted to talk the situation over with the manager.

"I told him it's all right with me if that's what the fellows wanted, but I resented all the talk about my hurting the club's chances to win the pennant. I told him nobody on the club wants to win more than I . . .

"From now on the only thing for me to do is to prove I can keep quiet and play ball."

IS BITTER

Earlier he expressed bitterness over what he felt were unjust charges against him by his teammates.

"All of a sudden, I'm the goat. We lost a few games and it's all my fault. Why are they picking on me? I didn't pop up with the bases loaded. I didn't throw the home run ball for the pitchers.

"They claim I'm upsetting them. Apparently I didn't upset them when I hit those two home runs and we were winning. It's only when we're losing that I upset them . . . Why can't they accept some of the blame for the club's losses?"

City Commercial Softball Results

Behind Day's 7-2 hit pitching the Belleville Cleaners defeated Bishop's Seeds 4-0 last night.

Burrows on the mound deserved a better fate, letting the winners down with two clouts.

St. Denis and Brooks were the hitters for the winners with Donovan who had two singles, Burrows, Garvin and Knott hitting safely for Bishop's.

Acting Is Snap to Baseball Says Star of 'Rifleman'

By CHUCK CONNORS

Compared to playing baseball, acting's a snap.

Say I'm batting .300, which is pretty good for me. That's pretty good hitting. But in acting I have to be batting 1.000. This is possible because if I misplay a scene or strike out on a speech, they re-shoot it. Simple, no?

As a rookie I learned early about the expendability of a player who doesn't consistently post a good batting average.

I always had my heart set on playing first base for the Dodgers. But Gil Hodges, with 32 home runs under his belt that year, had it sewed up. This, combined with my nemesis, manager Burt Shotton's violent disapproval of my clowning and brashness, made me expendable. I was sold to the Chicago Cubs.

The Cubs farmed me out to the Los Angeles Angels. I eventually went through the revolving door, returning to the Cubs and back to the Angels again. That's when one of my Los Angeles fans, MG casting director Billy Grady, offered me a part in a motion picture.

SWELL RACKET

Believe it or not, the thought of acting held no terror for me. That first part—playing a state trooper in P[illegible] and Mike—paid me $500 for three days' work. This, I thought, was a great racket. So, during the subsequent off-season I got some more little jobs which paid anywhere from $100 to $750 a week.

All told, during that off-season, I earned over $11,000 for my movie work. It sure didn't take a genius to figure this was better than the $6,200 I was getting playing first base for 6½ months.

That's when (in 1952) I quit baseball to become a full-time actor.

Sport Snapshots

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Bob Cunningham is a big, good-natured chap who studiously avoids arguments.

He leaves his golf game in the locker room, but out on the course he belts the ball with the same authority he used to hit the line in professional football, so he has the necessary credentials to back up any statement about the two games.

"Football," he says without any ideas of provoking an argument, "is far and away a lot easier to play than golf."

If there are any who wish to argue the point, they should deal with this 225-pounder from Toronto who made quite a name for himself in the Big Four Football league and whose tee shots, usually around 300 yards, are probably the longest in the country.

ROOM FOR ERROR

"Let's look at it this way," the 32-year-old Cunningham said the other day when someone brought up the subject of football versus golf. "If you make a mistake in football, you've got a few chances to make up for it. Make a mistake in golf and you're dead. The ball goes in the hole or it doesn't.

"In football when you carry the ball and miss a hole in the line or there is no hole there you've got two more chances. Number one: you're not going to miss that hole the next time; and number two: you're going to give the lineman hell if he doesn't make a hole for you.

"In football, you'll see a bunch of guys cake-walk when they get three or four touchdowns in front. In golf, the pressure is always on and no one ever gets so far out in front that he can relax.

"There is no such thing as being three putts down and 10 minutes to go. You're a loner out on the course and you never know who's going to come along and catch you."

STARTED AT 17

Cunningham knows what he is talking about. He played senior football with the old Toronto Balmy Beach club in the Ontario Rugby Football Union when he was only 17, which must be something of a record in Canada.

He played four years with Montreal Alouettes of the Big Four, 1948 to 1951, and was a terror in the Montreal backfield in 1949 when the Als beat Calgary Stampeders 28-15 to win the Grey Cup.

He sat out the 1952 season because of a knee injury, switched to Ottawa Rough Riders for 1953 when he won the Jeff Russel trophy as the outstanding player in the league, a rare honor for a Canadian since imports of Americans started on a large scale in 1950.

He turned to golf as a business in 1954, was a "resounding financial flop," and rejoined the Riders for one season, 1955.

Since then he has concentrated solely on golf. He spends most of his time giving lessons although he did take a fling at the golf trail in the spring of 1959. He tied two course records, a 65 at the Lakeview club in Los Angeles and a 66 over the Wigwam course in Phoenix, Ariz.

"I didn't make a nickel in the two months, which just goes to show how tough golf can be. I tied two course records and still ended up with nothing.

"In any golf tournament 15 or 20 or more players are capable of taking the lead. Miss a putt, which is the big equalizer, or relax on any hole and the next thing you know you're an also-ran.

"In football, you are usually playing the same 12 guys over a season. That's a lot different than looking at 60 or 70 fellows in a golf tournament and knowing you have to fight everyone of them."

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Wednesday, July 27

General Tendencies: The morning finds you able to work out any mental or business problems in a careful and meticulous manner. However, the afternoon and evening find in the atmosphere a tendency to break promises or to make changes that are unwise. Stick to what you know is right and don't show discontent to those about you.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — Morning hours are ideal for making your surroundings more orderly and beautiful and also to attend to any wants or errands fo[illegible]mily ties. P.M. seek out more modern ways of operating so that you can become more successful.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — Be sure you get to beautician or barber shop early so that you still have time for a little fun in A.M. Spend afternoon at profitable activities. Then the evening is fine for amusements that are not expensive. Do not irk good friend.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — Listen attentively to the good ideas one of own clan gives you that will help you to advance more quickly. Seek for greater harmony in that sphere of your life, now. P.M. Be wise in handling argument between tie and a stranger.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — Seeking more modern and efficient ways to handle your affairs, buying, selling, conferences — all excellent in A.M. Lat[illegible] care you do not lose prestige or harmony now enjoyed with others. Have fun with family.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — You can easily get your private affairs adjusted sensibly and secretly in A.M. if you apply yourself early. Be sure to set up a better bookkeeping system, too. P.M. Be jolly, have fun socially, but spend very little.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — Concentrate upon your most cherished goals in A.M., but also seek the assistance of a loyal and dear pal. P.M. be very diplomatic with everyone, especially where civic affairs are concerned. Be patriotic.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — Attend to personal affairs in A.M. that will make a good impression on executives later. The remainder of the day requires that you use extreme care while driving or in contacts with others.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — You can plan how to reach your goals far more easily now if you sit down and discuss them with a good friend who will have some fine ideas to offer, too. P.M. see that you do not gamble with any of your holdings.

..Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — If you get your business affairs attended to more wisely this A.M., you can make a fine impression upon higher-ups, which is important at this time. P.M. see that you do not become cocky, however. Be kind.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — Be sure you pay attention to a clever partner who has good ideas for advancing more quickly — this will be beneficial to both. P.M. don't worry over the picayunish: Think big so that you can get big.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)— Morning would be well spent making an outline of your debts, whether monetary or otherwise, to others, and deciding how best to clear them up. P.M. be of real help to a good comrade who is upset and nervous.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — Morning is ideal for getting off to some charming spot with associate so that you may work out any current plans or problems. P.M. partner may be in quite a dither over something with a higher-up. Be neutral — all will be well.

If your child is born today . . . there is apt to be a great ability to bring all projects down to a practical and workable basis. Early give the benefits of religious education too, so that the life becomes ideally happy and sucessful. This is very important, since earning power will start very early in life and the latter years could be difficult if the power of faith is not instilled during most provocative and formative years.

come tax, and half of succession duty.

Ottawa also makes equalization payments to the less-wealthy provinces to boost their per-capita yield from this "standard tax" share to the average level of the two wealthiest provinces, Ontario and British Columbia.

Premier Lesage also handed Ottawa the expected news that his province intends — for now anyway—to collect federal funds available for hospital insurance and the Trans-Canada Highway—two programs from which Quebec has heretofore held aloof.

Quebec's announced plans to launch a hospital insurance program Jan. 1 struck another blow at Finance Minister Fleming's hopes for a $12,000,000 budget surplus in the fiscal year ending next March 31. These hopes have already been dimmed by a lag in the expected rate of economic growth.

Quebec's entry into hospital insurance—at an estimated $70,000,000 annual cost to the federal treasury—would take a big bite from Mr. Fleming's budget in the last quarter of this fiscal year.

The Ontario and Quebec proposals would involve a major departure from the complex system of federal grants for a wide variety of shared-cost programs.

Premier Lesage said Ottawa should get out of this field completely, yielding the provinces added tax - raising powers to carry these programs alone.

Premier Frost made no such proposal at the conference. But at a press conference he indicated he feels Ottawa should get out of some of these programs, including hospital insurance, provided Ontario gets its tax-share demand.

Other provincial premiers speaking Monday took an opposite approach, calling for added payments by Ottawa in this shared-cost field.

As well, the other premiers all had proposals for a sweetening of the tax-share and fiscal-aid payments Ottawa makes to them.

DEMANDS SUMMARIZED

In summary, these were some of their main requests:

Premier Stanfield of Nova Scotia — "Substantially increased revenues" from a new tax deal; expanded equalization payments based on a province's tax-raising ability; greater federal grants for health, hospital construction, hospital insurance, highways.

Premier Robichaud of New Brunswick (A better tax-sharing deal; boosting of equalization payments to match the tax yield in Ontario; easier credit policies in the Atlantic provinces; tax concessions and capital grants to encourage industrial development; federal construction of the Chignecto Canal across the narrow neck of land between New Brunswick and Nova Scotia.

Premier Shaw of P.E.I.: A "substantial increase" in federal aid to boost the Atlantic economy, improve services and raise taxing capacity "to a level . . . where special financial assistance will no longer be necessary."

Premier Bennett of British Columbia: A tax share giving the provinces one-quarter of the personal and corporate income tax fields and half of succession duty; federal contributions to a new national medical care insurance plan; joint action to expand transportation and communications services; trade - boosting moves including a reduction in the Canadian dollar's exchange value.

Premier Roblin of Manitoba: Broadening of federal fiscal-aid measures to overcome "economic inequalities" among provinces; more revenue sources to pay for education; inclusion of mental and tuberculosis hospital costs in hospital insurance; more federal payments for hydro power generation, highway building and vocational training for the unemployed.

Premier Shaw proposed today a double-barrelled attack on Canada's fiscal poblems based on an immediate increase in federal payments to the provinces and a sources of federal, provincial and municipal governments.

Concluding an address interrupted Monday when the Dominion-provincial conference adjourned, Premier Shaw proposed these changes in the current tax-sharing arrangements:

1. A payment to the provinces of 15 per cent of federal personal income tax collections, 15 per cent of corporation profits and 50 per cent of succession duties instead of the current 13-9-50 formula.

2. Equalization payments based on the wealthiest province — Ontario — instead of on the two wealthiest — Ontario and British Columbia.

3. These two changes to be made for the final year of the current arrangement which expires March 31, 1962.

4. An adjustment grant, supplementary to the tax-rental payments, considerably higher than the present annual adjustment grant paid to each Atlantic province. P.E.I. now gets $2,500,000 and the other Atlantic provinces $7,500,000 each in annual adjustment grants ending March 31, 1962.

Premier Douglas followed Premier Shaw by urging the federal government to increase its payments to the provinces to one-third of total revenue from personal and corporation income taxes and succession duties.

He told the conference that failure to increase the payments to at least one-third will mean provinces and municipalities will be unable to discharge their responsibilities or will have to boost property and sales taxes, "thus further aggravating the inequity of our present tax structure."

The CCF premier said that unless Canada is to return to the tax jungle of the 1930s a high degree of equalization payments must be maintained in tax-sharing arrangements.

Dr. Otto Holden, Hydro's Chief Engineer, Reviews Planning of Power Project

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

On July 1, 1958, Dr. Otto Holden pressed a button.

With that simple action he marked his most dramatic experience in a 47 - year career with the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario.

The button did a big job—it set off the charge that blew up the coffer dam that loosed the water which was to create the new Lake St. Lawrence and set into operation the St. Lawrence power and seaway project.

It was a dramatic moment for Dr. Holden, not only because of the size and importance of the work, nor because it was the completion of something for which he had first made a drawing in 1919.

PERFECT TIMING

It was also dramatic because the exact date of the button-pushing had been set four years before when the first sod was turned, and the ceremony marked a perfection of timing.

As chief engineer for Ontario Hydro for most of the period, Dr. Holden was in charge of general design on the Canadian side of the power job, and was in continuous negotiation with the New York Power Authority, the seaway authorities, the International Joint Commission and many other bodies.

Work on the St. Lawrence river-bottom had to proceed in such a manner that it would not affect the levels of Lake Ontario nor interrupt the flow of water downstream—and navigation had to be maintained through the existing 14-foot canals.

Commenting on the experience in an interview just before his retirement on July 15, Dr. Holden said:

"It called for close scheduling of every operation and interlocking arrangements with the contractors and all other interests—watching everybody's progress and seeing that things were done in their proper sequence".

CREDIT TO TEAM

Then, lest he be given too much credit, Dr. Holden — a quiet, almost shy - mannered man, with a warm smile that lights up his face—added:

"Such jobs are not the product of any one person but of a team—and no one, no matter who he is, is better than the team he has with him.

"One of the most memorable things was the wonderful partners we had in the New York Power Authority—Robert Moses, chairman; W. S. Chapin, general manager; J. B. McMorran, chief engineer, and all their staff.

"There were no frictions, no quibbling. We spent $800,000,000 together and we are all good friends. We started the water flowing July 1 and it was at operation level July 4 — so we celebrated both national holidays."

To Dr. Holden the St. Lawrence project may be his most dramatic moment, but to his co-workers and friends it was just the culmination of a career of many accomplishments. One friend commented:

"His work is all over Ontario—and he can't be given too much credit for what he did on the St. Lawrence. As a citizen he is tops; as a man and an engineer he is the ultimate in integrity; at all levels he generates warmth with a smile; he greets an office boy the same way as he would the head of a firm. And, behind the twinkle in his eye, he is a diplomat too — he knows when to press and when to give."

As a young engineer just out of the University of Toronto, Dr. Holden joined the hydraulic section of Ontario Hydro as a draughtsman in 1913.

In that year Hydro had at its diposal a capacity of 57,770 horsepower, all of it purchased from other companies. Today its capacity is some 8,250,000 horsepower—90 per cent of which it develops itself.

Dr. Holden's career has been part of that growth and his hand as a designer and engineer may be seen at Niagara and the Ottawa River as well as on the St. Lawrence, and wherever Hydro has set a plant. One plant on the Ottawa River is named after him.

He became chief hydraulic engineer in 1937; assistant general manager, engineering, in 1947, and chief engineer in 1955.

Besides his work in Ontario, he has visited installations across Canada; was a consultant in 1954 on the Australian Snowy Mountains projects; and visited Europe seven times in the last 10 years, including a visit to Russia in 1958.

Among important hydro developments during his career, he lists:

Great improvement in the quality of concrete—resulting in longer life and lower maintenance costs.

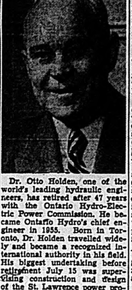
Changes in water wheels with introduction of propeller - type turbines with fixed or moving blades — enabling operation at higher speeds and less costs.

Powerhouses without superstructures as in the St. Lawrence development, where each unit has over it a metal cover and which may be serviced, when necessary, by a travelling crane which provides its own enclosure.

Lengthening of the distance over which power may be transmitted.

In Russia he was impressed with the "tremendous research" which has gone into the placing of big plants on earth foundations instead of rock—requiring "nice design to take care of settlement."

Dr. Holden met his wife—the former Florence Hill and a native of Winnipeg — when they were both at high school in Toronto.



Dr. Otto Holden, one of the world's leading hydraulic engineers, has retired after 47 years with the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission. He became Ontario Hydro's chief engineer in 1955. Born in Toronto, Dr. Holden travelled widely and became a recognized international authority in his field. His biggest undertaking before retirement July 15 was supervising construction and design of the St. Lawrence power project near Cornwall, Ont. (CP Photo).

It will be a day of street processions and cheers for Ike and Mamie; a day in which residents of this traditionally Democratic city will join with Republicans to pay homage to the wartime Allied commander who leaves the White House next January ending an eight-year tenancy.

Beyond the tumult and the hoopla, in sombre committee rooms, a gruelling inter - party struggle will reach a climactic stage, to indicate the amount of control Nixon has over the party.

This is the day Nixon hopes to end southern opposition to his controversial Negro - rights platform plank proposal which he worked out in agreement with Rockefeller.

The key issue is whether the convention platform committee will write in some form of endorsement of the Negro demonstrations against southern lunch counters which catered to white persons only and refused to serve Negro customers.

Southern delegates are passionately opposed to such an endorsement though they agreed to such other pledges as protection of Negro voting rights and bringing an end to desegregation of southern schools. In other words, they want a moderate Negro plank, whereas Nixon and Rockefeller want a strong one.

Science Now Shrinks Piles Without Pain Or Discomfort
Finds Healing Substance That Relieves Pain And Itching As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain and itching. Thousands have been relieved with this inexpensive substance right in the privacy of their own home without any discomfort or inconvenience.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was promptly relieved. And while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of even 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—the discovery of a famous scientific institute. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug stores. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

By EON FRASER
Canadian Press Correspondent

CHURCHILL, Man. (CP)—"Kokjuak okakpok" — Churchill calling.

With these words spoken in his native tongue, a 22-year-old Eskimo disc jockey introduces a weekly half-hour program of recorded music beamed to residents of the sub-Arctic tundra surrounding this Hudson Bay port.

The program, broadcast by the CBC's 250-watt Churchill radio station, CHFC, is handled by Simeon Akgunark, a native of Wager Bay, N.W.T., 550 miles north of here near the Arctic Circle.

Working from a few notes pencilled in Eskimo script, he adlibs soft-spoken comments between records.

COWBOY MUSIC

The music Simeon plays is mainly in the western cowboy and country style, with a few rollicking Scottish dances thrown in. These, he says, are his people's favorites.

Simeon, who dresses nattily in sports jacket and slacks, works regularly as an interpreter for the federal northern affairs department officials who administer a model Eskimo village near here.

The village was built by the government to house Eskimo employees of government agencies and their families. It has a permanent population of about 150, plus 70 transient residents.

Simeon, who last year married a 17-year-old Eskimo girl and now is the father of a three-months-old son, fell into his interpreting career through a series of misfortunes.

HAD POLIO

In 1948, when 12, he was a victim of a northern polio epidemic. He was taken to Winnipeg, together with many other Eskimos, for treatment in an isolation hospital. It was there that he started to learn English.

Simeon returned to the north, only to be stricken by tuberculosis in 1954. This time, he spent four years in hospitals at Winnipeg and Brandon. While recuperating, he completed his Grade 8 education.

Shortly after his release from hospital two years ago, Simeon started work as an interpreter here. He now is virtually right-hand man to the federal administrator at the village.

Simeon's disc jockey career began about two months ago when the CBC station began its first Eskimo-language program.

WELL RECEIVED

From its studios at Fort Churchill, the nearby military base, the station's beam reaches as far north as Rankin Inlet, on the western shore of Hudson Bay, 300 miles north of here. There, about 400 Eskimos are employed by a nickel mine.

Station manager R. R. Bear says the Churchill Calling program is being well received. Simeon, he says, has plenty of confidence in front of the microphone and shows great promise.

The manager said he is considering putting the young announcer in charge of a weekly news broadcast for Eskimo listeners.

TRAVELLING HIGH — Roy Melanson, 22, commutes to and from work in Montreal on his unicycle, weaving in and out to skirt around traffic jams. Shown pulling up at an intersection alongside a bus, he has been riding the unicycle from his suburban home for three years. A native of Montreal, he was an entertainer before becoming a clerical worker. (CP Photo).

Young Clerk Beats Traffic By Riding Unicycle to Work

MONTREAL (CP) — Roy Melanson has come up with an unusual solution to the commuter problem—he rides a unicycle.

The 22-year-old clerical worker and former entertainer may be seen bobbing and weaving through downtown Montreal traffic on his single-wheeled vehicle each morning on his way to work.

The envy of the fuming car driver caught in a four-way traffic jam, Roy bounces onto the sidewalk, skirts the trouble area, bumps back onto the street, whizzes by a bus and tips his hat to the astonished rookie policeman at the corner.

Roy has been riding high for about three years. He has become a regular feature in the lives of Montrealers along St. Catherine Street whose cheery hellos are always returned with a bright smile.

Three years ago he worked days in the chemical division of the Shell Oil company, took evening courses at Sir George Williams University and entertained in nightclubs after lectures.

His schedule was so cramped that he didn't have time to go home and pick up the unicycle, an essential part of his juggling act, so he had to take it with him. And he would have looked pretty silly carrying it.

Professional entertaining now is a thing of the past for the resident of suburban Westmount but he still thinks the unicycle is tops for getting around.

A typical morning sees Roy enjoying a second cup of coffee before starting his 20-minute jaunt—30 minutes by bus—to the office. At 7:40 he clambers onto his neighbor's porch rail, swings into the saddle and speeds off.

On arrival at his office building, he rides through the main entrance. His antics are commonplace to his fellow workers and they exchange chatter riding up in the elevator—Roy still balances in the saddle.

He rides down the hall, ducks under the door frame and pedals over to his desk. The student clerk balances atop the cycle for a moment, then jumps down, plunks himself in his chair—normal height—and starts balancing figures.

His present unicycle is seven feet high but he is having a 10-footer constructed and plans to test drive it to New York City on a six-day holiday.

He doesn't understand why more people don't adopt this method of transportation. Any well-balanced individual can master the art after a year's practice, he says.

"All it takes is perseverance and a desire to get to the top."

Skillful Nixon Wins Support Of Rockefeller

Soothes Party Clashes Over Election Platform

CHICAGO (CP) — The battle over the platform seemed to be over and the way was being cleared to crown Richard M. Nixon the new king of the Republicans tonight.

Skirmishes on the Republican convention floor still were possible. But skillful manoeuvring by the vice-president appeared to have soothed party clashes over the shaping of campaign promises to the voters in the November general election.

The man he appeased was Nelson Rockefeller, the powerful liberal Republican governor of New York who might have caused Nixon a little trouble in capturing the party's presidential nomination.

But Rockefeller quit the battle Tuesday and made Nixon's nomination on the first ballot by acclamation late tonight a certainty.

The New York governor put his delegation's 96 votes behind Nixon after expressing confidence that the urgent issues for which he had fought would be accepted in basic content by the convention.

He urged those who had sought a draft call for the governor to stand aside.

He said he would campaign vigorously for Nixon in the 1960 presidential fight but skirted the question of whether he would be willing to second the motion for Nixon's nomination.

A total of 1,331 delegates are eligible for vote and the successful candidate must obtain a minimum of 666 to win. Nixon's forces estimate he has more than 1,000 votes pledged to him, many of them made months ago.

Behind his legions of delegate votes Nixon had the solid, still glamorous figure of President Eisenhower, winding up eight years in the White House.

To thunderous applause, Eisenhower told the convention Tuesday night that his administration had "employed the whole might of our military, economic, political and moral strength to prevent war and to build a solid structure of peace."

Then, in passing the baton of party leadership to Nixon, Eisenhower added:

"If we can be blessed with experience and steady leadership in Washington, the possibility of the outbreak of future war will be minimized and we can eventually win the peace."

Nixon was in full command of the convention. It was Nixon who told the platform committee

Russians Veto Plane Probe in Security Council

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — UN Security Council debate on the American RB-47 reconnaissance plane shot down by the Russians ended Tuesday night with a 9-to-2 council vote rejecting Soviet charges against the United States and a Russian veto of the U.S. proposal for an international investigation.

The Russians also vetoed an Italian proposal that the International Red Cross be allowed to see the two surviving crew members of the American plane who are being held by the Russians for trial as spies.

Despite the official impasse, UN diplomats chalked up the outcome as a defeat for Russia and a victory for the United States. They noted that on all three resolutions the vote was 9 to 2, with Russia and Poland opposed by all nine non-Communist members of the council.

The vetoes brought the Soviet total to 89 in the council's history.

Security Forces Hoping to End Rhodesia Riots

BULAWAYO (Reuters)— Security forces were on guard in this Southern Rhodesia city today in the hope of ending a wave of violence, arson and looting which has led to the death of nine Negroes here in the last three days.

Army and police forces set up strongpoints in the nearby Negro townships where the rioting broke out Sunday over a ban on a political meeting.

These were intended as centres of safety to which Negroes planning to report back to work in the city itself could report for army escorts to their jobs.

So far, some 60 persons have been injured and more than 300 arrested in the disturbances. No whites have been killed.

The Associated Press placed the injured toll as high as 118.

Call Bloodhounds Into Search

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — Two bloodhounds from Iron Mountain, Mich., have been called into the search for Mrs. Frances Lacey of Dearborn, Mich., missing since Monday on Mackinac Island, south of here in Lake Huron.

Mrs. Lacey started on a five-mile walk Sunday and has been missing since.

A 60-man search party failed to find her and they have now left the hunt to avoid confusing the bloodhounds.

CAPETOWN (Reuters)—South Africa's largest fish exporting firm has laid off about half its 300 Negro workers at a dried fish factory near here because of boycotts, a company spokesman said Tuesday. The spokesman, for Messrs. Irvin and Johnson Ltd., blamed boycotts of South African goods in Ghana and Nigeria and a "trade union - inspired" consumer boycott in Australia for the layoffs.

Think Escapee Being Covered By Underworld

KINGSTON (CP)—Police today began a search of Kingston's "tight little underworld" for Dorothy Mills, 17-year-old escapee from Kingston penitentiary women's prison.

The girl, serving a three-year sentence for armed robbery and car theft, Sunday night lowered herself over a prison wall with a blanket. Police first thought she had hitch-hiked toward Toronto or Montreal, but now are aiming their search on this city.

One police official said a girl could "vanish into thin air once she has stepped into the protective custody of this underworld."

The girl is the first woman escapee in Kingston penitentiary history.

CLOSURE CRIES BY OPPOSITION ECHO IN HOUSE

Backbenchers Take Over in Debate

OTTAWA (CP)—Sixteen hours of paliamentary tedium finally snapped in the Commons Tuesday night as manoeuvring by both sides produced cries of opposition closure and government filibuster.

This novel, paradoxical twist to the usual pattern of Commons disputes came in the late stages of the night sitting, when the House appeared almost ready to wind up two days of dull, committee-stage debate on the complexities of the government's proposed anti - combines amendments.

The opposition had fired its last of 19 attempted amendments to the government bill. The government had introduced an 11th-hour amendment designed to protect export companies from conspiracy convictions. The Liberals accepted the move. The CCF made its objections clear.

Then government backbenchers, who had spoken little in the early going, took the floor and read extensively from evidence presented when the bill was before the House banking committee for a month. Two of them spoke before J. W. Pickersgill (L—Bonavista - Twillingate) demanded:

"Are we going to have this Parliament turned into a farce?"

COULD HAVE WOUND UP

Backgrounding his interjection was the fact that, under House rules, the government could have wound up the combines bill in committee and used the last two hours of the night sitting to call a supply motion standing over from last Tuesday.

In non-confidence amendments to that motion, the CCF had called for a $75-a-month old age pension payable to everyone at age 70, and the Liberals advocated pension increases in co-operation with the provinces plus a national contributory pension scheme.

Complicating the situation was the House rule requiring the government to make supply motions only on Mondays and Tuesdays. The rest of the week, it can bring departmental estimates before the House without such a motion. Thus, Tuesday night was the week's last chance for a debate on the pension amendment.

Mr. Pickersgill implied that the government supporters were debating the combines legislation through the final two hours of the night sitting to avoid having to vote against the non-confidence motions and thus appear

Three Killed As Fire Truck, Car Collide

GALT (CP) — Three were killed and five injured, two severely, when a fire truck and car crashed head-on during a rain storm near here Tuesday night. All the dead and injured were in the car.

The dead: Sarah Frohlinger, 50, Agnes Frohlinger, 17, and Pauline Baum, 6, all of Toronto.

In hospital in critical condition were Anna Baum, 34, and Linda Baum, 4. Reta Baum, 11, and Judith Bayer, 10, were in satisfactory condition. All are from Toronto.

Ilenne Tyman, 17, of Philadelphia, was in fair condition.

The crash happened on Highway 8 about four miles south of here when a fire truck from Stratford, being driven to Waterdown, Ont., for display purposes, collided with the northbound car.

Transatlantic Jet Airliner Makes 'Miraculous' Landing at Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — A Pan-American World Airways Boeing 707 jet airliner on a transatlantic flight from London to Chicago made what was termed a "miraculous" landing Tuesday night on an airstrip owned by Canadair Limited at Cartierville district in north-end Montreal.

The giant airliner with 93 passengers aboard was scheduled to land at Montreal airport in suburban Dorval.

Captain Fred Ralph brought the plane down on a strip 3,000 feet shorter than the one at Dorval. The landing was made without [illegible] no injuries were reported.

Department of transport officials declined to comment on the apparent confusion and Pan-American officials could not be reached.

Immediately after the plane landed passengers got off and were checked by Montreal customs officials before being loaded on to buses.

It was doubtful the huge liner could have taken off with all her passengers aboard so they were transported to Dorval. The plane picked them up a short time later and they continued their flight to Chicago.

FAMILY DISAPPEARS — When the Children's Aid Society ordered Mr. and Mrs. Ken Hallas of Winnipeg to give up the five-year-old boy they had been caring for since he was nine months old, they held a farewell party for him—then disappeared with him, their own son and two infants for whom they have been caring. The Hallas family is Protestant. The mother of the boy, Bobby, is Roman Catholic, and CAS regulations say he must be placed with a Catholic family. (CP Wirephoto).

Winnipeg Family Disappears, Trying to Keep Foster Child

WINNIPEG (CP)— A Winnipeg man who took his family into hiding to avoid surrendering a five-year-old ward to the Children's Aid Society says he is prepared to remain hidden "as long as the food holds out".

Ken Hallas made the statement in an interview Tuesday night with a Tribune reporter at the family's hiding place in Winnipeg.

Mr. and Mrs. Hallas, a Protestant couple, have cared for the young ward, Bobby, since he was nine months old. Because Bobby's mother was Roman Catholic, Manitoba law required that he be placed with a Catholic family.

The Hallas', who have a 10-year-old son of their own and also are caring for two infant Children's Aid wards, disappeared from their north-end home Tuesday in a surprise move shortly before a society official was to pick up the boy.

Mr. Hallas, a city parks board employee, said in the interview: "We are more than ever determined to keep Bobby.

"I am prepared to stay in hiding as long as the food holds out and I am on holidays".

He said he is on vacation until Aug. 3.

Mrs. Hallas, pale but apparently calm, said she "would not be surprised if we still lose Bobby. But we won't give up until the bitter end".

Mr. Hallas said he has a secret rendezvous planned today with lawyer Sydney Schwartz when he will sign a formal application for adoption of Bobby.

The couple slept in sleeping bags while the children occupied beds and a chesterfield in the hiding place. During the interview, they frequently glanced out a window to watch passing cars.

"The police are trying to trace the taxi that brought Bobby out", Mr. Hallas said.

The Chilldren's Aid Society asked police Tuesday to help locate the family.

The society said that under provincial law it had no choice but to take the boy from his temporary home and place him in a Roman Catholic home.

Police were asked by the society to help locate the family, which includes the Hallas' 10-year-old son Tommy and two infants they are caring for under an arrangements with the society.

Harry Yanofsky, lawyer for the society, said "efforts are being made to locate" the family.

"Then we'll remove the child with the assistance of the police. If necessary, we'll get a warrant for the police to execute if they won't co-operate with us."

Mr. and Mrs. Hallas, who have looked after 38 other children for the society during the last eight years, offered to become Roman Catholics so they could keep the boy.

The society said that according to law this was not possible.

The period of instruction before entering the Roman Catholic religion would be lengthy and there was no guarantee the family would become Catholic. The society said that in the interests of the child's future, delay should be avoided.

Ike Hints Cold War May Be Shifted to Russia's Doorstep

CHICAGO (CP) — President Eisenhower has hinted at the possibility of shifting the cold war to Russia's own doorstep by stirring up new thoughts of freedom among Soviet satellite states.

Mixing politics with diplomacy, the 69-year-old American leader addressed the Republican convention Tuesday night and noted the Russians had boasted of shooting down the RB-47 plane in cold blood; had wecked the summit conference and threatened the U.S. wijh missiles.

Intimating an end of American patience with Khushchev's tactics, Eisenhower indicated he will plan new moves after consulting with congressional leaders of the Democratic and Republican parties and added:

"High in our thinking about the future of the world must be the fact that millions of people are crushed under the heavy heel of Communist imperialism. The conscience of America can never be completely clear until the precious right of freedom of choice is extended to all people everywhere."

In a speech that frequently was interrupted by cheers and standing ovations, Eisenhower said Khrushchev had boasted emptily that he had damaged American prestige abroad. He dared Khrushchev to allow free elections among Soviet satellites and allow the captive states to choose for themselves whether they wanted to live under communism or freedom.

"Are the Soviets willing to measure their world prestige by the results of such elections? You know the answer to that."

To many an observer it seemed possible Eisehower had in mind stirring up of unrest among the Satellites and perhaps to foment a situation such as the 1956 bloody revolt in Hungary, a revolt the Russians were forced to crush through the use of tanks and troops.

The president also challenged the Soviet Union to a United Nations-sponsored plebiscite among all people of the world whether they would rather live under communism or under democracy.

"Are the Soviets willing to measure their world prestige by the results of such elections?

"The United States would gladly do so."

TO LAY CHARGES AGAINST LAWYER IN DIVORCE CASES

Attorney General Announces Move

OTTAWA (CP) — Attorney-General Roberts of Ontario says a charge of obstructing, perverting and defeating the course of justice will be laid against a Toronto lawyer today in connection with three Ontario divorce cases.

Mr. Roberts, attending the Dominion-provincial fiscal conference here, said Tuesday night the charge will be laid against Theodore Nasimok. He is the lawyer who handled the divorce case of 29-year-old Toronto school teacher, Mrs. Eleanor Cass.

The announcement came after the attorney-general held a meeting here with Elliot Pepper, Queen's proctor for divorce cases, and Inspector Herbert Purdy of the provincial police criminal investigation bureau.

Both men drove to Ottawa Tuesday night at the request of Mr. Roberts to report the latest information in Ontario's divorce investigation.

UNDER CRIMINAL CODE

The charge will be laid under Section 119 of the Criminal Code which states that everyone who willfully attempts to obstruct, prevent or defeat the course of justice is guilty of an indictable offence and liable to two years' imprisonment.

Mr. Roberts said the lawyer represented Mrs. Cass in a divorce action two years ago. He also acted for the plaintiffs, the attorney-general said, in the divorces of Donell versus Donell, Lumley versus Lumley and Paszat versus Paszat, all from the Toronto area.

Decree absolute has been granted in two of the cases but Mr. Roberts said the case of Donell versus Donell will be investigated because only a decree nisi was granted.

The Ontario divorce investigation began after the CBC-TV program Close-Up in May featured Toronto model Joan Johnson, claiming she was paid divorce co-respondent in 120 cases for $100 a case. Later she said her story was a hoax.

SOUGHT PICTURES

The attorney-general's department dug through divorce files at Toronto's Osgoode Hall in search of a picture of the model in connection with divorce actions.

They came up with the photograph of Mrs. Cass attached to three divorce records. The department later said the photographs were used without her knowledge.

Mr. Pepper said Mrs. Cass told him that a lawyer who represented her in her own divorce action two years ago had asked for her photograph.

The department in its investigation has gone through a sampling of some 6,000 divorce records.

CLOSES EMBASSY

CAIRO (AP) — President Gamal Abdel Nasser said Tuesday the United Arab Republic is closing its embassy in Tehran in protest against Iran's policy toward Israel. Soon after, the Middle East News Agency said Iran's ambassador to Cairo, Djamchid Gharib, and members of his staff were expelled from the U.A.R.

Three Tigers, Two Lions Freed As Circus Truck Upsets in Ditch

MERRITT, B.C. (CP) — Bushland bordering the quiet little community of Merritt was plunged into jungle-like atmosphere Tuesday when a circus truck upset in a ditch, freeing three tigers and two lions.

Two of the tigers and a lion were rounded up and prodded back into cages with sharpened poles. The other two big cats had to be shot.

The slain tiger was cut down with rifles as it tried to attack James Wilkinson, 26-year-old circus worker from Texas who said the animal "was more scared than I was."

RCMP and district hunters shot Sheilah; an old lioness, after she roamed the bush for six hours. Sheilah had given the circus 22 cubs, including some of the animals in the L.G. Kelly and Miller Brothers Circus, which moved into Merritt, 150 miles northeast of Vancouver, and set up its show while the hunt was in progress.

Three men were injured in the truck accident, which occurred on a six-mile-long hill where driver Earl C. Nichols of Coldwater, Mich., said his transmission broke down.

The tractor-trailer overturned is a mass of broken cages, animals and smashed timbers. Cages holding a baby lion, two hyenas and a mountain lion remained intact.

Three of the animals were recaptured within minutes. A short time later Wilkinson and several other circus hands circled the tiger, Beauty, in a gully.

"The leopard sprang at me and I fell backwards to avoid him," Wilkinson said. "He was about a foot from me when I gave him a good kick in the mouth and he turned around."

Two circus workers then fired at the animal, killing it.

The lioness, with a bullet hole through her right front paw and buckshot pellets in her face and nose from being shot while trying to attack one of the escaped tigers, was surrounded by RCMP and district hunters who killed it with rifle shots.

Circus Manager Glen Jarmes said damage to the vehicle and value of the dead animals totalled about $30,000.

Premiers May Meet In Fall On Constitution

Final Step to Complete Legislative Autonomy

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal and provincial governments, occupied by big money talks on tax-sharing, have taken time out to set their sights on an historic move—the final step to complete legislative autonomy.

Prime Minister Diefenbakekr told the 10 premiers Tuesday he will call an initial Dominion-provincial meeting this fall on ways of Canada amending its own constitution, if they agree to the talks.

There seemed little doubt this agreement will be forthcoming for the proposal, broached Monday by Quebec Premier Lesage in calling for a move to end the last "vestige of colonialism"—the need to refer constitutional amendments to the British Parliament.

"The proposal has been supported by all but two premiers, anl those two have merely reserved judgment.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the next step, once Canada has this full constitutional autonomy, could be joint talks on a constitutional bill of rights binding in both federal and provincial fields.

THE PRICE TAG

This development—shaping up since Premier Lesage's surprise speech Monday — almost overshadowed happenings in the financial talks at the Dominion-provincial conference where Finance Minister Fleming ruffled some premiers with his price tag on what it would cost to implement their proposals.

Mr. Fleming set at $2,000,000,-000 the total cost of provincial demands for more tax revenues and federal aid which have been voiced during the first two days of the three-day conference.

Ontario's Premier Frost — who made the biggest fiscal demand of any premier — and Saskatchewan's Premier Douglas both disputed the figure.

The conference today spends its final day behind closed doors in the big Commons railway committee room.

Constitutional reform has been added to its heavy agenda which spans the whole field of federal-provincial financial relations.

Mr. Fleming's statement, together with the prime minister's description of provincial demands as involving "fabulous sums," obviously did nothing to buoy the premiers' hopes.

Informants said the federal financial proposal in reply won't be made before another conference expected later this year.

STIRS DISPUTE

Tuesday's meeting was marked by a heated dispute stirred up by Premier Smallwood of Newfoundland, who charged federal repudiation of the "solemn, moral" obligations involved in his province's 1949 Confederation agreement with Canada.

His fiery oratory flamed up over the federal decision to pay only until 1962 a special $8,000,000 annual grant recommended by a

100 Signallers To Be in Congo Canadian Force

OTTAWA (CP) — Hundreds of Canadian soldiers are expected to be serving with the United Nations Congo force by the end of next month, informants said Tuesday.

The number will be somewhere between 300 and 800 and will include some 100 signallers and several hundred supply personnel.

External Affairs Minister Green said Tuesday in the Commons that he was not yet able to announce the exact numbers going to the Congo.

The delay has been caused, informants said, by the fact that UN planning for the makeup of the force has not been completed.

However, a Canadian government announcement is expected this week on composition and size of the Canadian force.

Mr. Green did announce that four Canadian Army officers in the UN Emergency Force in Egypt left Cairo Tuesday for Leopoldville where they will join five other Canadians sent earlier from the emergency force.

Two RCAF officers are in Leopoldville to look after the activities of four air force North Star transport planes carrying supplies from the UN staging area at Pisa, Italy, to the Congo.

Mr. Green also announced today that two Canadian Red Cross teams are expected to leave Canada by the end of this week for the Congo.

The teams will each comprise one surgeon, one physician skilled in tropical diseases and three nurses. All will be bilingual.

Mr. Green said these teams will remain in the Congo about three months. Some European medical personnel have fled the Congo troubles.

Brantford Mail Truck Robbed Of Sixteen Bags

SIMCOE (CP) — Two armed men held up a mail truck near this Brantford area town today and escaped with 16 bags of first class mail.

Driver Harold Bennett of Brantford was tied up and dumped into the rear of the truck which was abandoned in a lonely gravel pit.

No estimate of the value of the mail was available immediately.

Bennett said he had stopped for a highway crossing on a county road when the men jumped him. One held him at gunpoint while the other tied him up.

The driver, who managed to free himself after the bandits fled said he believed they escaped in a car driven by a third man.

The truck was on a route it follows every day delivering mail to points between Brantford and London.

In London, an official at postal district headquarters reported some registered mail was included in the loot.

Local firefighters answered a two-alarm fire at 75 Dundas St. East early yesterday evening. The first call came in at 6.09 p.m. from the apartment above Curson's Used Clothing store. At 6.12 o'clock another alarm was turned in for assistance. Some $2,500 damage was done in the apartment, which was occupied by a Mr. Frank McGraw and owned by Mr. Curson. The latter had insurance on the building.

Another call brought out the fire department at 10.38 p.m. when a car generator caught fire in a vehicle parked at 9 Wickett St. The only damage appeared to be to the generator.

Coin Dealer Offers $2,000 For Two Stamps

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto man who accidentally came across two five-cent seaway commemorative issue postage stamps with inverted centres said Tuesday night Toronto coin dealer Albert Rosen has offered to buy them for $2,000.

He said he is undecided about accepting the offer.

George Stevens bought the five-cent stamps in Picton, about 15 miles southeast of Belleville, about two months ago and had been carrying them around ever since without realizing their value.

The inverted centres on the stamps are the result of a printing error. The latest find raises the number of the freak issue found so far to 61, Mr. Rosen said.

The remaining 59 stamps were found in Picton and Winnipeg. The government said 150 of the inverted centre stamps were sold at post offices.

United Appeal Sets $80,000 As This Year's Objective

This year's United Appeal will be conducted between October 17th and October 28th, with a one-night household blitz being held on November 1st. The dates were announced by Mr. R. S. Robb, campaign chairman, at a meeting of the Belleville United Appeal last Monday night in the local YMCA. Other plans for this year's campaign to raise funds to support the eleven participating agencies were rounded out into almost final shape at the meeting which was presided over by president Archie S. Lewis. The objective for the 1960 campaign has been set at $80,000. This amount, if met, will provide the agencies with their operating funds for 1961.

No additional agencies have applied for inclusion in this year's campaign so that the same eleven agencies that participated last year will again make their one and only appeal for funds from the citizens of Belleville to enable them to carry out their work.

The amounts required by each agency were submitted and were carefully scrutinized by the budget committee of the appeal. After most careful consideration it has been agreed that the following are the minimum requirements for each agency and these amounts have therefore been included in the total amount to be raised this year.

Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society, $5,860; Canadian Red Cross, $18,000; Boy Scouts, $1,500; Canadian National Institute for the Blind, $8,825; Children's Aid Society, $6,500; Royal Canadian Sea Cadets, $2,600; St. John Ambulance Corps, $4,270; Victorian Order of Nurses, $5,000; YMCA, $20,000; IODE (St. Julien), $450; IODE (Argyll), $450.

SOME UNFILLED PLEDGES

The actual amounts required by the eleven agencies total $70,325; to which must be added an amount to cover campaign expenses such as stationery, publicity, part-time office help, etc., estimated at $5,000, and a further sum of $4,675 to make provision for unfulfilled pledges and to finance any other possible agency which might be accepted into the appeal before the next annual campaign. This brings the total amount to be raised by the campaign this year to $80,000.

Mr. A. S. Robb, campaign chairman, stated that industry, commercial establishments, etc., will be canvassed during the general campaign period Oct. 17th to 28th. Special plans are being made by the ladies for a one-night blitz residential canvass.

Every house in Belleville will be called upon by a canvasser on the night of November 1st and an appeal will be made for each householder to either be at home or to make arrangements so that a donation may be given when the canvasser calls.

RECRUIT CANVASSERS

Canvassers are now being recruited for all divisions of the campaign. All United Appeal canvassers are volunteers who work without remuneration.

These eleven agencies appeal once and once only each year to the citizens of this city. The United Way, which they have adopted, raises more money at less cost with less effort and with less inconvenience to the givers, said Mr. Ernie Gurnett, vice-president in charge of public relations.

Mr. Robb also announced that the following citizens are heading up the various divisions of the campaign. Each of these division heads has enlisted the voluntary aid of many more who act as team captains, group captains and canvassers. Among those contributing their time and personal effort to the campaign are the divisional chairmen, E. P. Hughes, Dr. R. S. Morphy, J. N. Yanover, George Wishart, B. Johnson, A. O. Drysdale, Bryce Philp, T. A. Carruthers, W. L. Turner, Charles Wilson, Mrs. G. Wishart and Mrs. D. McDonald.

Divisional vice chairmen include R. Freestone, Earl Dickneother, Charles Landy and Mrs. A. S. Lewis. Acting in the capacity of vice chairman in charge of public relations is Ernie Gurnett with R. Freestone also serving as vice campaign chairman.

The vice president in charge of the campaign is yet to be appointed following the recent resignation of James Hunter who has filled this position during 1959 and 1960.

Mr. Robb, the campaign chairman, has requested that people start now to plan to give all the help they can to have this city for at least once to reach the objective set which is necessary if these welfare agencies are to do the work that cries out to be done in this city.

Swimming Meet Will Be Held At Kinsmen Pool

This evening the Kinsmen Community Swimming Pool will be the scene of another swimming meet for the youth of this community. The meet is being held for lads and lassies between the ages of eight to 18, inclusive, who would like to try out for spots on a team to represent this city in various swim meets scheduled for this summer.

A similar meet was held two weeks ago at which some 68 swimmers and over 250 spectators attended. Not all age groups were filled, however, and it is hoped that the events this evening will be filled to capacity with eager swimmers.

Swimmers are divided according to their age and may compete in four different events if enough entrants are present. Parents of the swimmers are welcome to attend, there being bleacher accommodation sufficient for up to 600 persons available.

Crushed by Tractor

BROWNSVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Wallace Williamson, 19, was killed Tuesday night when he was crushed beneath a tractor on his parents farm, two miles west of here. It is believed the tractor slipped from a ramp leading to a barn.

Brownsville is about seven miles southwest of Tillsonburg.

Start Construction in Fall Of East End Shopping Centre

Construction of Belleville's first shopping centre is expected to start this fall, real estate agent Donald Whalen said Tuesday.

The centre will be built on what now is 15 acres of orchard between East Bridge St. and the dual lane highway, just east of Herchimer Ave.

"Principle Investments of Toronto, which has more than $300,000 tied up in land for the shopping centre, expects to level the ground and put in footings this fall," he said. "The shopping centre is to be opened by September, 1961."

The centre will have outlets for appliances and furniture, gifts and toys, shoes, men's wear, women's wear, children's and maternity wear, cameras, baking and pastry, fabrics, dry cleaning, books and cards, millinery, cosmetics, shoe repairing, music and records. It will also have a barber shop, beauty salon, bowling alley, reducing salon, florist shop, restaurant, delicatessen, bank, two variety stores, drugstore and two large grocery stores.

Mr. Whalen said some businesses have already signed leases for space.

"Motorists will be able to drive in off either the highway or Bridge St." he said. The centre will have parking facilities for 1,500 cars — twice the size of the parking lot at Kingston's west-end shopping centre.

Mr. Whalen said the shopping centre will be air - conditioned and have a landscaped mall.

It was learned from a reliable source that the A and P, Dominion Stores, Zellers and Woolworths will have outlets at the centre. Identity of the bank is unknown. Principle Investments will operate the bowling alley. The drug store will be a member of a chain.

Summer School On Religious Education Here

For the third successive year a summer school in religious education for public and secondary school teachers and clergy is being held at Albert College from Aug. 8 to Aug. 11. The school is under the joint auspices of the Inter-Church Committee on Religious Education in Schools and the Religious Education section of the Ontario Educational Association.

The Dean of the Summer School is the well-known assistant minister of Yorkminister Baptist Church, Toronto, the Rev. L. A. Gregory, D.D. Assisting as Bible Study leader is the Rev. Elton Scott, M.A. assistant rector of Grace Church on-the-Hill, while the special speaker on the second day of the school will be Dr. A. F. Skinner, Professor of Education at the Ontario College of Education.

The delegates — of whom there were 100 in attendance during each of the past two years — will meet in six separate workshops, Miss Ivy Hunt, a kindergarten teacher of St. Catharines, will be leader of the Grades 1-6 group; Mr. D. A. Clec, of the Toronto Teachers' College, the grades 4-6 group; Mr. A. A. Martin, inspector of public schools for south Peel, the grades 7-8 group and Mr. George L. Gray, a former high school inspector, the grades 11-12 group.

Two additional workshops have been added this year. One is under the leadership of Mrs. Dorothy Parsons of Cayuga, for public school teachers and clergy who give religious instruction in all of the grades of the public school. The other is on teaching methods only, rather than on content, and is designed primarily for, and at the request of, members of the clergy. The leader is a former teacher and inspector, Mr. W. J. McCordic, at present executive - secretary of the Metropolitan School Board, Toronto. A small group of Belleville teen - agers will participate in this workshop.

The responsibility for arrangements has been carried by Dr. A. E. MacKenzie and Mr. Taylor Franklin of the Albert College staff and by Mr. Orville Matthews, teacher of mathematics at Quinte Secondary School.

Registrations to date point to another very successful Summer School.

Board Loses Services of Two Members

This year the board of the Belleville United Appeal has lost the services of two of its members. At last Monday night's meeting the resignations of James Hunter, vice-president of the campaign, and J. C. R. Punchard, chairman of the payroll giving division, were regretfully accepted by the board.

Both have had several years' experience in the work of the United Appeal. Mr. Punchard, former manager of the Northern Electric plant here, was in charge of payroll donations for two years prior to which he served as president of the former Community Chest for two years. He had been most active in the setting up of the United Appeal in 1958. His transfer to Ottawa to head a new division of his company occasioned his resignation. A vote of thanks was made by the United Appeal board for his valuable services. Mr. George Wishart has been appointed to take over Mr. Punchard's former work in the board.

Mr. Hunter, an employee of the Canadian National Railways and president of the Belleville Trades and Labor Council for two years, served the United Appeal as vice-president of the campaign for 1959 and 1960. His recent transfer to Toronto has necessitated the tender of his resignation which the board regretfully accepted. A vote of thanks was made to Mr. Hunter for his services.

As yet no person has been appointed to fill the vacancy left by Mr. Hunter's resignation. The United Appeal board has requested the Trades and Labor Council to make an appointment to this post.

Bank of Montreal's 'Final' Offer of Assistance to Clear Indebtedness Wins Approval

City council today accepted the Bank of Montreal's "final" offer to assist the city in retiring its floating indebtedness.

Chief point of discussion at the special council meeting centred on the bank's offer to purchase at par the city's $250,000 4-year serial debenture issue covering the balance of the deficit and to purchase the parking committee's $80,000 nine-year serial debentures, both bearing interest at 5¾ per cent.

City Manager J. R. Reynolds recommended that instead of the bank offering to purchase approximate amounts of the floating indebtedness, council should ask it to provide the total amount required. Council agreed. However, the exact amount required is not yet known.

Council approved Ald. George Wishart's recommendation that debentures to be raised to cover the indebtedness should be in the amount of the indebtedness and be due in their entirety (including any necessary reserves) on Nov. 1, 1960. Unpaid balances should be charged interest at the rate of six per cent.

Ald. Ben Corke, a member of council's special committee which met with bank officials, said that "in effect, we're accepting the bank's offer word for word."

The bank has already reimbursed the city with $25,076.31 for hockey transfers and it has also absorbed an additional $9,363 of the city's bank overdraft. But it also has offered to purchase at par from the city that portion of city debentures held by the city which bear interest at 5 3/4 per cent and amount to about $22,000. In addition, the bank has offered to purchase on a 5 3/4 per cent yield basis the balance of city debentures held by the city amounting to about $38,000.

Council also approved the proclamation of Aug. 1 and Sept. 5 as municipal holidays.

SKILLFUL NIXON

what to do. If would be Nixon who chose his vice - presidential running mate.

The odds were heavy that Nixon will pick Henry Cabot Lodge, the chief U.S. delegate to the United Nations, to run with him.

LEADERS MEET TONIGHT

Nixon summoned a score or more of the party's leaders to meet with him in his hotel suite tonight on the vice - presidential choice. That made it almost certain the convention will not act on that until Thursday.

The convention was expected to adopt the platform tonight before the nomination for the presidency.

Rockefeller's delegation had withheld endorsement of Nixon while it waged its battle for a platform that pledged an acceleration of defence spending and a reduction of discrimination against Negroes in American social life.

It was the Negro issue that gave the platform - makers the most trouble. Nixon had agreed specifically with Rockefeller to work for party support for the "objectives" of the Negro "sit-down" demonstrations against segregated lunch counters in the south.

DELEGATES BALKED

Southern delegates balked at this and the final version that came out of the platform committee fell short of the specific language Rockefeller sought. It reaffirmed the constitutional right of Negroes to assemble peaceably to protest discrimination "in private business establishments."

Rockefeller early today said he was gratified with the result.

Rockefeller also sought to have the party pledge to spend another $3,500,000,000 a year for defence, atop the present $40,000,000,000-a-year annual defence budget.

The revised defence plank urged a speedup, as the New York governor had advocated.

The plank said the United States must "accelerate, as necessary, the development of hardening, mobility and dispersal of bases and production programs for new and advanced generations of missiles and anti-missile missiles."

This came close to Rockefeller's viewpoint and seemed to provide Nixon with a bridge to advance beyond the Eisenhower program without seeming to repudiate the president's views that present spending was adequate.

PREMIERS

royal commission under the terms of union. He claims Ottawa is honor-bound to pay the grant indefinitely.

ASK IMPROVEMENTS

The conference has heard all premiers but one—Premier Manning of Alberta—demand sizable improvements in the present tax-share plan.

The current five-year arrangement provides provinces with this "standard tax" share of the three direct tax fields: 13 per cent of personal income tax, nine per cent of corporate profits and 50 per cent of succession duties. This 13-9-50 formula works out to about one-seventh of personal income tax yield, one-fifth of corporation income tax and half of succession duty.

There has been general approval, however, of the principle of equalization payments to less-wealthy provinces to help them provide a "standard level" of basic services to their people.

These federal payments, under the present scheme, bring the per capita yield from the "standard taxes" in all provinces up to the level of the average yield in Ontario and British Columbia, the top provinces.

GREATER YIELD

The tax-share plan, plus equalization payments and an income-stabilization factor mean an estimated $802,300,000 to the provinces is the current year. Another $389,000,000 goes in federal payments for shared - cost programs such as hospital insurance, highways and social welfare.

Mr. Fleming said these figures mean a return to the provinces of 37 per cent of the total take from the three direct tax fields. The new provincial proposals, he estimated, would push this to more than 80 per cent.

Premier Douglas challenged him to give a breakdown of the $2,000,000,000 cost estimate, and said it unfairly included payments for cost-sharing programs which Ottawa had urged on the provinces.

Later, at a press conference, Premier Lesage said it would be much less because the Ontario and Quebec tax-share proposals envisage the provinces taking shared-cost programs.

ONTARIO DEMAND

Federal informants said $1,600,000,000 of the total is represented by Ontario's demand for a 50-50 split of the income tax fields. The rest of the $2,000,000,000 was made up of various other provincial demands for greater federal payments for shared - cost programs and other benefits.

Mr. Fleming's statement contained a fresh indication the federal government itself isn't happy over the joint fiscal arrangements with the provinces.

Ottawa, he said, has to stand between the taxpayers and the provinces, levying taxes and handing over a share to the provinces.

This position "is not always a pleasant one," said Mr. Fleming.

Mr. Fleming recalled that complaints were made about the premium on the Canadian dollar in relation to the United States dollar.

"It is no policy of the federal government to maintain the Canadian dollar at a premium," he said. His budget had already contributed to a substantial reduction in the premium in recent months.

CLOSURE CRIES

ing to vote against higher old age pensions.

Opposition Leader Pearson said the final amendment to the combines bill already had been accepted by both sides of the House—the CCF excluded—and a vote was all that barred committee-stage approval of the legislation, required before final reading.

He accused government backbenchers of a filibuster to keep the pensions motions from coming to a vote.

Justice Minister Fulton replied hotly that the opposition had spent two days making "extraordinary and unreasonable strictures" on the combines bill. Now the Liberals were attempting to apply closure on government supporters.

Paul Martin (L—Essex East) called it "the worst filibuster of the session." He said the government backbenchers had displayed "meaningful smiles" as they spoke, indicating pride at being able to obstruct the opposition.

When the fray ended with the House rising at 11 p.m., the combines bill still was in committee stage. The debate was to resume today, climaxing one of the most bitter legislative fights since the 1956 pipeline debate where "closure" became a byword.

Jury Finds Woman's Death After Fall Was Accidental; Got No Medical Attention

TRENTON — At Trenton last night a coroner's jury, at an inquest into the death of Mrs. Katherine Nancy Foster of the Township of Thurlow, returned a verdict of accidental death. Mrs. Foster died at the Panda Villa Rest Home, Dundas Street East, in Trenton, on July 7th.

The conclusion reached by the jury was that the 91-year-old woman died "as the result of injuries and shock sustained when she fell down the cellar stairs in the home on July 6th." Witnesses testified that Mrs. Foster, who was a partial cripple, plunged in her wheel chair down the steps into the cellar. She complained about pains in various parts of her body during the night following the accident and at intervals the next day up until the time of her death.

Mrs. James Pandachuck, proprietor of the nursing home, testified that she had tried to call two doctors, but that no one had answered the telephones in their offices. Dr. J. V. Byrne, coroner, said that he could not understand this in the case of Dr. Griffiths, one of the doctors called, because he had a telephone answering service.

"It's awful trying to get a doctor in Trenton on Wednesdays," said Mrs. Pandachuck. "If they are home, they won't even come to your home."

MULTIPLE INJURIES

Dr. A. Roto of Belleville, regional pathologist with the Attorney General's office, testified that during the post mortem examination of the deceased he had found that Mrs. Foster had sustained a fractured left knee above the knee, several broken ribs, fractured vertebrae, and evidence of hemorrhages in the region of the spine, the right lung and the left kidney. He said that the fractured leg was quite evident in a visual examination.

Mrs. Pandachuck said that she had examined Mrs. Foster and had found no evidence of a fracture in any part of her body. She said that she had taken a St. John Ambulance course "in the old days of the Red Cross."

Questioned by Crown Attorney John A. Pringle concerning the fact that the cellar door, which opened inwards, was not kept locked, Mrs. Pandachuck said that "the door was kept nailed shut until the last inspection of the home by the Trenton fire department." She said that the department had recommended that all doors in the home be kept unlocked in case of fire and the cellar door had been opened following the recommendation.

Several witnesses testified that after Mrs. Pandachuck had failed to get answers to her telephone calls on Wednesday, the day of the accident, no further attempts had been made to get a doctor, and that the registered nurse "on call" had not been called. in:

GROANED ALL NIGHT

Following Mrs. Foster's plunge into the cellar, she had been carried upstairs and put to bed by Mrs. Pandachuck and two nursing assistants. She had not eaten any supper and had been sick at her stomach during the night. Mrs. Olive Hansen, nursing assistant, said that Mrs. Foster had "groaned all night" and seemed cold. She had brought the injured woman an extra blanket.

Mrs. Vivian Fawcett said that she had been in Mrs. Foster's room on the afternoon following the accident, cleaning. Mrs. Foster had asked to have her radio turned on and had twisted the dial herself to change the station. A short time later, Mrs. Fawcett and Miss Helen Lowery, a nursing assistant in the home, had discovered that Mrs. Foster had died. Mrs. Pandachuck was not at home at this time.

Mrs. Martha Badgerow, who had been employed as cook in the establishment, said that Mrs. Foster had been "in bad shape" on the morning of July 7, when she had taken her breakfast into her at 8 a.m. Mrs. Badgerow said that Mrs. Foster had asked her to "do something for me". She said that she had telephoned to a friend of Mrs. Foster's in Belleville and told her that Mrs. Foster had been injured. Later in the day she said that she had tried to get a doctor for the injured woman, but that Mrs. Foster had died before the doctor called had received the message from his secretary.

Asked by Douglas Whitley, foreman of the jury if she "had any ill feeling towards Mrs. Pandachuck", Mrs. Badgerow replied that she "didn't have very much respect for anyone who would leave a patient like that without any attention."

Recalled to the stand, Mrs. Pandachuck testified that she had dismissed Mrs. Badgerow, following an argument between the cook and another employee, during which Mrs. Badgerow had "hit" the other woman with a serving tray.

Frank Johnson of the 3rd line of Sidney testified that he was a family friend and that Mrs. Foster, who was self-supporting, had given him the power of attorney to pay all bills and conduct other business. He said that he had visited Mrs. Foster on the same day as the accident. He had not been notified of the accident until after the death of the deceased.

After almost an hour's deliberation, the jury, comprised of Douglas Whitley, Ernest Alymey, Alec Wilson, Arthur Collette, and Gordon Hemstreet, returned the verdict of accidental death, with the recommendations that if the cellar door were not to be locked, it be clearly marked and provision made for greater safety; that a registered nurse be hired for at least one eight-hour shift a day and that all members of the staff be given a St. John's Ambulance course, with a refresher course annually.

Crown Attorney Pringle complimented the jury on its recommendations. He said that it was "refreshing" to have a jury take such an interest in matters of this kind.

Cadi Takes Week To Consider Case

TRENTON — In magistrate's court at Trenton yesterday, Magistrate T. Y. Wills decided to take a week to consider the sentence merited by Ronald Taylor, 18, who pleaded guilty to a charge of driving while prohibited.

F. L. Ward, appearing for the accused, said that the youth "shouldn't go to jail, because of jeopardizing a highly lucrative job." He said that Taylor had purchased a car for his girl friend and that he was merely taking the car to a garage to have the carburetor fixed, when he was apprehended by the Trenton police. "If your officers weren't so vigilant, he'd have got away with it," Mr. Ward said.

Crown Attorney John Pringle pointed out to the court that this was the second time in less than a year that the accused had committed the same offence.

"He's car crazy," observed the magistrate.

"Let him who is without sin cast the first stone," replied Mr. Ward.

"His stones may hurt someone," retorted Magistrate Wills, "This one more chance you ask for him may result in someone being sent to the hospital. How can I reconcile letting him off when others are sent to jail?"

The magistrate enlarged the case for one week, and gave instructions that someone be found to fill in for the youth at work if a jail sentence were forthcoming.

Gordon Brooks was given one week to find someone who would guarantee the repayment of $225 to Lyle Hartman in connection with a car deal. The accused pleaded guilty to fraud.

Charles Ward of Brighton, formerly of Belleville, asked for and received a remand of three weeks to seek legal advice. He was charged with failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

Robert Simpson was fined $15 plus court costs of $13.50. He pleaded guilty to the charge of failing to report an accident.

400 Squadron Entertained on End of Course

TRENTON — Members of 400 Squadron, Toronto, who have been participating in a two-week summer training course at RCAF Station Trenton were entertained at a farewell party last Friday by RCAF personnel from 6 Repair Depot and RCAF Station Trenton.

Honored guests at the party were G/C J. W. P. Draper, commander of No. 14 Auxiliary Wing of which 400 Squadron is a part; G/C G. J. J. Edwards, Chief Staff Officer, operations, Air Transport Command; G/C W. H. Schroeder, Chief Staff Officer, administration at Air Transport Command; G/C D. J. Williams, commanding officer at RCAF Station, Trenton.

Wing Commander B. A. Howard, commanding officer of the squadron, expressed appreciation for the co-operation shown to squadron members during their stay at Trenton. Group Captain Williams complimented the squadron on its exercise.

A highlight of the evening was the presentation of a traditional mug to retiring officer Flight Lieutenant H. A. Hornell, who began his RCAF service in 1938 at a summer camp held by 400 Squadron (then known as No. 10 Army Co-operation Squadron) at Station Trenton and terminated it at a similar camp with the same squadron. F/L Hornell is a cousin of F/L D. E. Hornell, who was Canada's first Victoria Cross winner.

The purpose of the two-week camp was to provide the squadron with concentrated training for its role as an emergency and rescue force.

The squadron was the first of three squadrons authorized in 1932 to create an RCAF Auxiliary Force. It was the first RCAF squadron to go overseas in 1940. During the war its chief role was photo reconnaissance. Disbanded in 1946, the squadron was reorganized in 1948 as a fighter support unit, In 1958 the role of the squadron was changed to that of rescue and emergency force.

The squadron is looking forward to another first when, this fall, it will be the first Canadian auxiliary squadron to be presented with the Queen's Standard.

Council Pays $1,800 Subsidy For Service

TRENTON — At a special meeting of Trenton council yesterday, councillors decided that "discretion was the better part of valor" and tendered a proposal to the Weaver Ambulance Service that a subsidy of $1,800 be paid to the firm by the town to provide ambulance service for the remainder of 1960. The proposal was accepted by Ralph Weaver, on behalf of the firm. Mr. Weaver stressed the point that he was reluctant to enter into the agreement, but felt that it was a public duty to do so.

The ratepayers will be asked to vote on the matter in the December elections. Several courses are open to the town. The police department or the fire department could be set up to provide this service, but in both cases, this would require the hiring of additional staff.

Too Many People Voting?

Are too many people voting in Canada?

That is the reverse of the customary complaint.

But John Lindblad, writing in the Windsor Star, presents some statistics (for another purpose), which should make us pause.

In the last six Federal elections, at least two-thirds of Canadian voters have gone to the polls. This was the low mark, in 1953. The high mark was in the last election, in 1958, when 80.5 per cent of the voters cast their ballots. Other results: 1940, 70.9 per cent; 1945, 76.3 per cent; 1949, 74.7 per cent; 1957, 75.1 per cent.

By contrast, the highest number of U.S. voters who have cast their ballots in a presidential election in two decades was 62.7 per cent, when Eisenhower was first elected in 1952. The lowest number was 51.5 per cent when Truman won his upset victory in 1948. Other percentages: 1936 (Roosevelt) 57 per cent; 1940 (Roosevelt) 59.1 per cent; 1944 (Roosevelt) 53 per cent; 1956 (Eisenhower) 60.4 per cent.

The figures are intriguing. It is amazing, for instance, that during the depth of the depression there were fewer U. S. citizens interested in selecting a president, in 1936, than there were when Eisenhower was seeking his second term in 1956.

But we are primarily concerned with the comparison between the Canadian and U.S. figures. The highest percentage vote in the U.S. is lower than the lowest percentage vote in Canada.

This makes the U.S. look bad in many people's books. But we wonder. Talk politics casually with a couple of dozen people. If, after that experience, you can honestly say that four out of every five of these people displayed a knowledge of the fundamentals of Canadian politics, then there is no reason for worry. But if, as we suspect, you find that many more than 20 per cent knew little or nothing about political issues, is there any reason to be happy with the fact that four out of five voters cast their ballots at the last Federal election? Does not that merely mean that a great many people voted without knowing what they were voting about?

Out Of The Paper Basket

Professor C. Northcote Parkinson spoke to the Ontario Legislature's Select Committee on Organization of Government. For those who might express some surprise on learning that government could ever consider being organized it should be heartening to realize that at least an effort is being made.

Professor Parkinson, originator of the law which bears his name, spoke on the folly of governmental excesses in the fields of paperwork and spending of money. It would appear that the meeting was a sort of summit gathering of the experts in either field. We hope that Professor Parkinson won out for not only are his arguments and propositions quite logical but they are also quite applicable.

The latter case was admitted, inadvertently perhaps, by the Speaker of the Legislature, William Murdoch, when he asked whether unemployment would be created if mountains of paper work were eliminated. The same gentleman suggested that if the government were to follow Professor Parkinson's suggestions there would be a 25 per cent increase in the province's unemployed.

Surely it would be better to pay these people twenty or thirty dollars a week through unemployment benefits than to subsidize them in jobs which waste the taxpayers' paper, money and time at sixty to ninety dollars a week. If we must pay a price for idleness or futile labor let it be at the cheapest price possible. After all some of us have to work for a living.

Stung Again

There's only one thing worse than to be wearing one of those loose-fitting, wide-necked sport shirts when the swarms of mosquitoes start making their evening calls. That's to be caught in close-buttoned shirt complete with tie after a single ant has found an entry.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE MAN IN THE GLASS

Someone gave me recently a short poem entitled "The Man in the Glass." It is a reminder that the person whose respect we most need is the person we see in the mirror every morning as we wash our face. He needs to be our friend in the best sense of the term, he needs to have our respect, and we need to respect him if we are ever to be happy. If we can't look him straight in the eye, then we have failed to pass life's most difficult test. The poem ends with these words:

"You may fool the whole world
down the pathway of years,
And get pats on the back as you pass,
But your final reward will be
heartaches and tears,
If you cheated the man in the glass."

We speak a great deal about the necessity of forgetting oneself This, indeed, is at the base of our righteous and useful living. But there is a way in which we need to think a great deal about ourselves. We need to ask ourselves repeatedly just what that person in the glass really thinks of us and what we think of him. To have a successful life one has to come to the end of his life with self-respect. He looks back on many mistakes. He looks back on sins, on circumstances of which he is ashamed. But the question at issue is, "What did he make out of these sins and mistakes." Did he learn anything as the result of passing through them? Did he have a teachable heart? This is overwhelmingly important.

Historic Hastings

The Iroquois Confederacy

Concluded

By DEANNA HILL

(Article 127 in the series sponsored by the Hastings County Historical Society.

Then came the American Revolutionary War. Would the Confederacy fight for the Crown or for the colonists? The colonists hoped that if the Indians did not support them, at least they would remain neutral.

When the question of declaring for the English came up, the Oneidas alone resisted the proposal. Their refusal defeated the war measure as unanimous approval was a fundamental law in the legislation of the league.

It was finally decided that each tribe might engage in the war upon its own responsibility. The Mohawks, Onondagas, Cayugas, and Senecas took up the tomahawk for the English.

In the terms of the peace treaty between Great Britain and the United States, no provision was made for the Iroquois who were left to make such terms as they could with the victors.

This was the end of the league as a political entity; henceforth its members were a dependent people. Their loyalty to the crown was to cost them the rich lands of New York state, Pennysivania and parts of Ohio. It makes us wonder sometimes whether any other group of United Empire Loyalists sacrificed more than they.

To describe his federation and its purpose, Deganawidah created one of the most picturesque symbols contained in world literature. Deganawidah told the people he had planted for them a Great Tree of Peace and all people who sought it out could live under its protection. Spreading out from the tree would be the White Roots of Peace. They would be spread across the world and all nations would marvel and trace them back to their source and find peace under the tree's shade. On the top of the tree, Deganawidah placed an eagle to stand on guard and give a warning whenever evil people approched to destroy the Great Peace.

George Washington admired the eagle, the Iroquois emblem, and asked if he could borrow it for the United States to be used as their ebmlem until they found one of their own. To this day the emblem has not been returned by the United States and the tree of peace has no guarding sentinel. During the absence of this "eagle" the tree has been confonted with many approaching foes and the white roots of peace were quickly stained with blood.

When the eagle of the Iroquois is returned and takes its rightful position as guard on the tree of peace the Great White Roots may grow again and the world will increase its knowledge of the Great Law of Deganawidah and indeed the world could make use of this knowledge.

Says Trent Road, Logical, Natural

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

With regard to your recent article on renaming the Trent Road I would like to add that the name Trent Road is not only historical but informative.

The Trent Road leads to and from Trenton, wherefore its name is only logical and natural. — I for one, and I am sure the majority of us in this district, will continue to call it Trent Road regardless of what the name-changers will do with it.

Revisit Former Home Get Royal Welcome

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

Recently, I spent twelve days in Belleville visiting many friends whom my husband and I were fortunate to know, in the years spent in your city. We enjoyed people who are living, "according to what he is, and not what he has", all splendid solid citizens, helping in their own way, to further the happiness of the community.

No royalty could have been welcomed more warmly and graciously than we were. Thank God, we have people who are humble.

At this time, I'd like to add a few words of encouragement to hard working community committees, often referred to as "good doers" by the less conscious community helper.

As we grow older we realize our responsibilities with so much scope and opportunities, to do work in one's own time, work which the government cannot meet. Friendships made when working for communities last forever, for "one must share happiness", it is work shared.

The ordinary person's role is important as they give an individual effort for a hopeful futuro.

Homes Have Many Motors

Windsor Star

A good guessing game for a quiet moment is to count the number of electric motors in a modern home. Big items like refrigerators, vacuum cleaners, etc., come easily to mind, but it's easy to overlook the motors in things like an electric shaver or a record player.

While this is only a game, it has a serious side.

Toronto fire department inspectors report that more than two-thirds of the more than 27,000 homes they checked last year could be classified as fire hazards. In almost half of these, the hazards were overloaded electrical fuse boxes.

It's easy to add new appliances to the home, hard to remember that they may be adding too large a burden to the fuses whose purpose is to prevent electrical fires.

A check of wiring and fuse requirements now may prevent a serious fire tomorrow.

Strictly Personal

Sydney's Not Clowning Here Today

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Speaking about the circus, as I was the other day, I wondered if anyone else has the same negative feelings about circus clowns that I do?

With rare exceptions, they have never struck me as funny men. Indeed, there is something ugly and hateful about most of their antics. The clown seems to dislike people, and to express this dislike aggressively.

The children I took to the circus were much more amused by the animal acts than by the clowns. In fact, adults are more taken with clowns than children are — as witness the popularity of clown pictures. Almost any bad artist who paints a clown's face may be sure of selling it to some adult buyer.

Shakespeare understood clowns and jesters better than anybody. His clowns are uniformly bitter men, gibing at the world. The clown in "King Lear" is a complete cynic, who cruelly jeers at Lear's madness. And Shakespeare's court jesters conceal their hostility behind humor; there is little warmth or love in them, and even their humor is brittle and mocking.

It is a psychological cliche to say that the clown is a sad man at heart, but this observation does not strike at the central truth — the clown is a resentful man at heart.

A man becomes a buffoon when he is frustrated in his desire to be a hero. The small, the ugly, the misshapen, all learn to mask their resentment behind the clown's face, and safely attack the world from there. This is no less true of the emotionally crippled and stunted, who find protection and immunity behind the white paint and the gruesome grin.

It has been said that Charlie Chaplin was "the great clown" of our century, but Chaplin was the exact opposite of the circus clown. He never grinned or tried to be funny; he never inflicted injury on anyone else; he never made a bystander the butt of his antagonism. He was, instead, a wistful little man, always trying to do right and always doing wrong; always meaning well and acting ill. In short, he was an appealing and pathetic exaggeration of a part of ourselves.

The traditional clown, from the medieval court to the modern circus, embodies the spirit of animosity toward mankind: He hits his fellows on the head, runs over them, blows them up, kicks them in the pants, and symbolically kills off all his competition. He represents the dark undercurrent of human aggression — which may explain why his picture is so popular among the timid, the rancorous and the repressed.

A rarity in bird-life was discovered the other day by George Godden. It was the tiny nest of a humming bird, something rarely seen by human eyes. Fabricated from the softest down, the nest was about one and one-half inches in outside diameter. It's camouflage was almost perfect as it lay nestled in the crotch of two small branches of an apple tree.

Mr. Frank Garrett of North Bay was one of the old boys present at the reunion, who has been absent from the old home town for many years; he met many old timers who gave him a hearty welcome.

Sergt. Frank J. Naphan, the genial police officer, chaperoned the reunion parades at midnight and after. At one time he lost his helmet, but never lost his temper, and the captured headpiece was recovered without any casualties.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Edwards of Brockville, Ont., were here for the reunion and were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Austin.

The community dance on Front Street from Bridge Street to Victoria Avenue was a lively and enjoyable part of the Old Boys' Reunion.

Capt. William Robinson of Chicago, Ill., was welcomed by many old friends at the reunion.

The baseball match between the Old Timers from a distance and Old Timers at home was an interesting event on the program of the Old Boys' Reunion. The result was a victory for the Old Timers from a distance, the score being 19 to 7. The following were the players: Old Timers home for the reunion — Mark Dulmage, J. Holland, J. Ballantyne, J. Gibson, W. Oliphant, J. Wonnacott, J. E. Bulger, A. J. Parker and Hampton; Old Timers at home — W. Thompson, A. R. Symons, J. E. Parks, R. Mackie, R. H. Ketcheson, M. Lynch, Phil Harrison, George Moxam and A. Jones. The game afforded great amusement.

50 YEARS AGO

The Belleville Old Boys' Reunion for 1910 is now a thing of the past. Most of the old boys and girls have returned to their homes, many a great distance from the old home town; but many a long year will roll by ere either visitors to Belleville or residents thereof, forget the whole-hearted welcome, the gay festivities and the happy reunions of the past few days. And so we say good bye to the friends of other days; may fortune shine upon them in their homes wherever they may dwell and may they all be back to see us again at some future time.

All the officials of the reunion did excellent work, and the citizens in general did themselves proud.

MODERN LIVING DEMANDS THAT ELDERLY FOLK LEARN TO AVOID ACCIDENTS

Have you ever had any contact with an older person who has a broken hip? Well, I'm not going to talk especially about broken hips, today, except to remind you that a broken hip is still a long, tedious, painful and expensive affair. There is the expense of hospital care at first, and then wheelchairs, ambulance charges when it is necessary to go back to the hospital for an X-ray, the cost of a housekeeper if the patient lives alone, and so on.

Some years ago a broken hip was often a death sentence for an older person. Too often pneumonia or other diseases developed and caused death, because the patient had to lie in bed for month after month. The body processes simply could not be kept toned up through such long inactivity.

Today it is possible for a surgeon to "pin" a broken hip, so the patient can begin to move about, at least moderately, months sooner. Much of the deadly danger is averted. But it is still six months, a year, sometimes even longer before the patient can really walk again.

How do these accidents to older people occur? Usually you can't get a satisfying answer. "I slipped," or "I fell," or "I stumbled," or "I think I had a dizzy spell," or sometimes, "I just don't know"

Of course there are other injuries resulting from such falls, but a fractured hip is one of the chief ones of major peril. Others can range from damaged dignity or simple bruises to sprains, broken arms, cracked rib, wrenched backs and even head injuries.

Older bones are more brittle than they used to be. A painful and serious fracture can result from what seems to be a "slight" fall on a level surface.

So it is up to us, as we grow older, to realize that our bones may be brittle, that we do not react as quickly as we used to and that our balance is not what it used to be.

We've recently had a great deal of discussion in Congress and elsewhere about providing medical care for people over 65. We know, from statistics, that older people require more medical care. No small part of this stems from falls or other "simple" accidents.

It's a fact and we can save ourselves a great deal of pain and invalidism, not to mention expense, if we look the facts squarely in the eye. As more and more people live to advanced years, it's up to us to learn the risks and learn how to avoid them.

A hundred, or 200 years ago, smart people learned how to watch out for Indians, how to store food in the fall to ward off starvation in the winter, how to load a rifle, harness a horse, preserve meat and keep cabbage in a vegetable cellar.

Today one of the important lessons of daily living is to learn how to keep from falling down. It sounds simple doesn't it? Yet the National Safety Council has seen fit recently to publish a series of leaflets devoted solely to ways by which older people can avoid accidents.

Accidents are one of the major health risks of our senior citizens. Tomorrow I think I'll list some of the points which are stressed by the National Safety Council's leaflets.

Mr. K. Helps West Unity

Christian Science Monitor

Aggressive conduct of foreign policy continues to give Soviet leaders some gains at the short-term expense of the Western world, as in the case of American use of British air bases. But far from being permanent setbacks to Western unity the readjustments Moscow seems to be forcing in allied relations probably will be — certainly could be converted into permanent Western gains.

As a result of the U-2 spy plane incident plus the Soviet shooting down of an American reconnaissance plane over what the United States has declared are international waters, the British Government has bowed to new pressures from the Labor Party in Parliament to make American use of British bases subject to increased British control though more precise agreements.

It would have been a good thing if more such agreement had existed from the start. Western unity has suffered from a feeling throughout the alliance that decisions of peace and war, and on what sort of defence would be used in case of aggression against Western Europe, really lay in Washington. The power relationship has tended to make this inevitable, but this simply means that the psychological effect of the power relationship should be modified wherever possible by political means — by agreements covering use of power.

If this course is not followed then circumstances repeatedly provide through opposition parties political levers which Communist strategy can manipulate.

In forcing new agreements embodying a greater degree of equality between allies, as in the case of those now being discussed between Washington and London, Premier Khrushchev is not weakening but strengthening Western ties. This does not relieve Western nations of doing a little more in their own behalf along this same line.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THOREAU, THE THINKER

It is now that we talk about Thoreau, as though he had been our friend, lo these many years, but he was destined to be great as History's most outstanding lover and interpreter of Nature — a lone Giant among a mass of pretenders.

He talked of peace and goodwill among his contemporaries, but he led others in the path to great thoughts and fearless independent thinking. To a distant correspondent he wrote: "You may rely on it that you have the best of me in my books."

Emerson was Thoreau's good friend and often went to him for increased hope and understanding. Each year he grows in influence and sincerity of thought. He had great courage. Every time I think of Rodin's wonderful bronze "The Thinker" I think of Thoreau.

In Thoreau's walks, the simplest flower got his undivided attention and admiration. He was of it a part. All Nature was his garden that he loved. He had but one chair in his self-made cabin at Walden Pond. He liked single callers, on whom he could concentrate his thoughts.

He kept learning from Nature and treasured the opinions of others. He wanted all mankind to be free — and bound to no type of slavery. He got lonely when not communing with the forces of beauty and serenity. He took pride in his simple choices that enriched his life. Thoreau was a man who was decidedly — different — but Great!

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Sometimes the so-called cold war looks less like a cold war than a battle of wits. And somehow our side seems not as witty as they should be. There is a pious pomposity about many of our leaders' attitudes and utterances.

When you get into an altercation with a band of rowdies on the street, it does little good to stand upon your dignity. Since it is entirely unlikely that you can, by example, elevate the tone of the conservation to your gentlemanly level, the best thing to do is to forget your manners and deal with the rowdies on their own terms. And with a monkey wrench in your hand, if possible. If this is beneath you, then the only thing left is to lay back your head and holler for the police.

One of the funniest things about the present attitude of the communists is their loud encouragement of the various disturbed peoples of the earth to throw off the yoke of their masters who are exploiting them. Have we no wit among our leaders who can, in characteristic communist reverberant tones, come back with a description of the kind of yoke they will get in exchange?

I know a couple of regimental sergeant-majors who could describe that yoke in most exciting terms, and witty at that.

Says Picton Course Better Than Detroit

NAPANEE — James Thompson, owner of Miss Supertest, said here Tuesday the Long Reach, where the Harmsworth race will be held this year, will be a much better course than the river at Detroit, where Miss Supertest won the crown last year.

Speaking at a luncheon meeting of Napanee Rotary Club, the London Ont. head of Supertest Petroleums said the boat had been in the water at the Reach that morning for the first time since last year's Harmsworth and had been given a warm up at up to 130 miles per hour.

In actual competition Miss Supertest exceeds 160 miles per hour.

The Harmsworth International Speed boat racing's top event, is being held this year in Canada for the first time in its 39 year history. The course will be a five mile stretch of the Bay of Quinte between Napanee and Picton. The Harmsworth is a competition among Nations and Miss Supertest won it last year for Canada and is defending the title this year against three United States boats.

Mr. Thompson says speed and endurance are the main factors, with each race being a distance of 45 miles, or nine times around the loop. The first country to win two races takes the trophy. Last year the event went to three races and this year the first two races will be run on Aug. 19 and 20 and if a third is necessary it will be Aug. 22.

A movie was shown depicting the building of Miss Supertest and one of the Harmsworth at Detroit last year. Miss Supertest is the only boat in Canada qualified for this event. The 6,200 pound craft is equipped with a Rolls Royce Aircraft engine.

Mr. Thompson said he expected to have the boat out for trial runs each day this week. Many organizations and private persons are renting viewing space on the shore of the bay for the race. The Rotary Club here has rented space for 1,000 cars and will sell admission tickets.

Three Bush Pilots Rescue Canada's Waning Authority In Far Northern Islands

Tom Fairley, 41 - year-old Toronto author and student of the history of the Canadian North, has just returned from a trip to the Canadian government's Polar Continental Shelf project in the Arctic. In this story he tells of the part played by bush pilots in supplying the scientific team.
Written for The Canadian Press

By TOM FAIRLEY

ISACHSEN, Sverdrup Islands (CP) — Three unassuming bush pilots from Uranium City, Sask., have been instrumental this year in the rescue of Canadian sovereignty from the doubts into which it had sunk through neglect of the far northern islands.

They have lent all - essential mobility to scientists and their helpers over distances of three to 300 miles from the mud-packed airstrip at this remote weather station on Ellef Ringnes Island.

The pilots and scientists, with electronics experts, mechanics, cooks and others to a total of about 70, make up the 1960 field party of the Polar Continental Shelf Project of the Canadian government.

The project is the biggest survey and scientific investigation Canada has ever undertaken in the Arctic, combining the interests and skills of many government branches under the department of mines and technical surveys. Co - ordinator is Dr. E.F. (Fred) Roots of the Geological Survey of Canada.

ARCTIC FRONTIER

Preparatory work here last summer set the stage for the first full season in the field, which started in mid - March and ends in September. The scientists will use Isachsen as their base camp for another year or two, then will move to a new sector. The work will go on probably for a generation, until Canada has complete basic knowledge of her entire frontier facing the Arctic Ocean from Greenland to Alaska.

The primary task of the project is to examine and chart the sea bed between the outlying islands and beyond them as far as relatively shallow water extends to the northwest into the Arctic Ocean. Next in importance is the surveying of the islands themselves, for the first time in detail.

Facilities set up to make this work possible, including a Decca survey system with three widely-separated beacons on the tips of Meighen, Ellef Ringnes and Borden Islands, are being used at the same time by scientists in many other fields, such as geology, glaciology, geography, botany, biology and geophysics.

SHELF SOUNDINGS

Already significant results have been brought in and transmitted to Ottawa. The channels between the islands on a 300-mile stretch from Ellesmere Island to Prince Patrick Island have been sounded and the continental shelf has been located in the ocean sector off Ellef Ringnes by a party that made several soundings through the ice at distances up to 130 miles from the nearest land.

Work in other branches of science is proceeding smoothly from tent camps scattered over a 100-mile radius from Isachsen.

All of this depends on small aircraft. Three helicopters from Montreal have been in steady operation since late April, serving mainly smaller parties of scientists with light equipment over short distances.

But the real workhorses of the project — it could not function without them—are two Otter aircraft with their pilots from Uranium City who play a continuous, shrewd game with fog, snow, wind and ice, and get the better of them every time, setting parties of scientists down on mud or snow or ice at almost any chosen point.

THOUSAND LANDINGS

The Otter pilots are Bert Burry, his son George, and Stu Hill, who has 23,000 hours of bush - flying behind him. Bert, helping the project last year with its preliminary work here, made 43 landings on unprepared terrain, ranging from rubble and mud to clear ice and deep powdery snow. This season, with two Otters and three pilots, the number of such landings will run to well over a thousand.

It was Bert who this year took oceanographer Art Collins of London, Ont., out over the frozen ocean to discover the continental shelf.

There are no heroics, no accidents, in Arctic flying the way the Burrys and Stu Hill do it. Outwitting the infinitely fickle weather and surface conditions is brain work of the highest order. This camp's pace of work and, to a great extent, its confident good spirits, are set by the pilots.

Canadian sovereign interests were in jeopardy in these parts before the scientists began their work in March. The islands bordering on the Arctic Ocean have had no natural Eskimo settlements for hundreds of years.

For a little more than a decade there have been permanent weather stations at Isachsen and three other points but these are jointly operated with the United States and are not intended to dmonstrate Canadian sovereignty.

Meanwhile, the Russians, since 1937, and the Americans, since 1952, have been doing scientific work throughout the polar basin; and a new factor has recently been added with the detection of strong surface indications of oil and natural gas beneath the islands.

Easily the most significant effect of the polar shelf project is to clarify Canadian rights in the Arctic Islands and on the shelf of shallow ocean beyond them where oil is also likely to be found.

The scintists, merely by carrying on their work much of it academic, are providing the islands for the first time with Canadian inhabitants, at least for a good part of every year. The era of talk and theory about who owns the uninhabited islands has ended. They are Canadian now for the simple reason that Canadians live there.

Take Air Survey Of Waterfowl of Prince Edward

On Thursday last, a Department of Lands and Forests flight was carried out over the marsh land of Prince Edward County to determine the waterfowl production in the area.

Many broods were seen, but we generally believe the duck production is down somewhat from previous years. The reason for the decrease may be due to the large volume of waters being retained in the low wooded and swamp lands throughout the district which this year is far above normal.

Blacks, mallards and teal in order of abundance, were the most common species observed. Other game birds seen were woodducks, scaup, ring necked ducks, coots and snipes.

Designer Drops Fashion Bomb In Showing

By NADEANE WALKER

PARIS (AP)—Designers Yves Saint Laurent of Dior dropped a fashion bomb today by chopping skirts off short enough to show the kneecap and dropping the waistline nearly to the bottom of the hips.

Busts were flattened and waists swallowed up.

The line was basically a sack, or chemise, with a low-slung bag tacked on at the bottom.

Jackets, too, were dropped drastically to the bottom of the hip, where gathered-on melon skirts took over. Skirts were moderately tucked in at the hem, which usually hit mid-knee level.

Saint Laurent did not give his new shape a name, but it looked a bit like a bomb or elongated melon.

The flapper-era influence is strong, but to complicate matters there is an African theme in hats shaped like native huts or anthills and barbaric costume jewelry. Colors are dark for day—sober brown, black, prune and steel grey—with gold and silver lames, beading and bright shades for evening.

For cocktails and evening there are outright sacks—whatever they may choose to call them this time — and floor-length tents, sometimes dragging yards of mink hem along the floor.

To wear the lavish Dior evening creations, all you need is a castle to call HOME. They're known as "chateau styles," and they're full cut and all aglitter with jet, ball fringe bobbles, and beaded all-over embroidery.

Sole Fillets Can Be Made Most Tempting

OTTAWA (CP) — Seedless green grapes as a stuffing for sole are recommended by the department of fisheries for summer fare.

The department, constantly searching for interesting ways of preparing fish in the hope of tempting more Canadians to eat seafood, offers this recipe:

Separate and season sole fillets, then cover each with seedless halved green grapes. Roll the fillets, jellyroll fashion, and fasten with a pick.

Place in a shallow, greased baking dish, brush with melted butter and bake at 450 degrees for 15 minutes.

When the fillet rolls are cooked, transfer to a heated platter and remove the picks. Serve them topped with hot white sauce and garnished with half grapes and parsley.

WEDDINGS

MURPHY—PETERS

MADOC — Sacred Heart Church, Madoc, was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Saturday, July 9th, at 10.30 a.m. when Marna Darlene Peters, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Peters, Millbridge, became the bride of John Louis Murphy, son of Mrs. Charles Murphy, Steenburg, and the late Mr. Murphy. The Rev. J. E. Trainer officiated at the double ring ceremony. The altar was tastefully decorated with roses, 'mums, delphiniums and baby's breath.

Mrs. Hugh Brady of Marmora, presided at the organ and rendered several solos, "Mother At Thy Feet Is Kneeling," "O Sacred Heart," "Jesus, Jesus Come to Me" and "On This Day, O Beautiful Mother."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in a gown of nylon net and lace. The bodice featured applique of Chantilly lace and iridescent sequins with lily-point sleeves. The floor-length skirt featured panels of pleated nylon with an over-skirt of heavy lace caught up with rhinestones and seed pearl applique. Her floor-length veil of nylon net was caught by a tiara of rhinestones and seed pearls and she carried a cascade of roses and baby's breath.

Attending the bride as matron of honor was Mrs. Gerald Donaldson, sister of the bride, who chose a street-length gown of sea-green organza with white accessories and carried a nosegay of yellow and white 'mums.

The bridesmaid was Mrs. William Murphy of Shannonville, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, attired in street-length tulip-yellow organza, white accessories and a nosegay of yellow and white 'mums.

Six little flower girls, Dorothy Peters, sister of the bride; Annie Kelly, Peterborough; Marianne Ackerman, Belleville; Anne Murphy, Susan Murphy, and Theresa Calnan, all of Steenburg, nieces of the bridegroom, were gowned alike in powder-blue pleated nylon, white accessories and carried nosegays of pink rosebuds and baby's breath.

Mr. Patrick Hogan acted as groomsman and the ushers were Messrs. Raymond Peters, brother of the bride and William Murphy, brother of the bridegroom.

A reception was held in the Millbridge town hall where the guests were received by the bride's mother, who was gowned in blue and white printed jersey, white accessories and a corsage of pink roses. The groom's mother assisted, gowned in a grey and yellow printed jersey, white accessories with corsage of yellow roses.

The bride's table was decorated with pink and white streamers, forming an overhead arch, centred with pink and white wedding bells. The table was appointed with white linen decorated with pink roses and centred with a four-tier wedding cake, enhanced with silver leaves and turtle doves.

For the wedding trip to Eastern Canada, and the U.S.A., the bride chose a straight-cut beige tropical suit of linen with bone and deep tan accessories.

Out-of-town guests were present from Belleville, Haliburton, Peterborough, Lansdowne, Coe Hill, Bancroft, Shannonville and Apsley.

Mr. and Mrs. Murphy are residing at their summer cottage, Steenburg, for the summer months and will take up residence in Madoc in the fall.

Previous to her marriage the bride was an honored guest at at kitchen shower, held in the Millbridge hall.

JOHNSON — HERRON

KINGSTON — Standards of white snapdragons and white Shasta 'mums made a pretty setting in St. John's Church for the wedding of Miss Helen Anne Herron and William Clifford Johnson of Ottawa.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Delmar H. Herron of Kingston, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Johnson, of Belleville.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a ballerina-length gown of white corded faille designed on Princess lines with a scalloped Sabrina neckline, detailed with Alencon lace, short sleeves and a full skirt. A petal cap of sequins and seed pearls held her shoulder-length veil of tulle illusion. Her bouquet was a semi-cascade of white orchids, Stephanotis and lily-of-the-valley.

Attending her sister was Miss Eleanor Herron, in a gown of turquoise organza over taffeta, having a scooped neckline and full skirt wth a small matching headdress. She carried a crescent bouquet of yellow Shasta 'mums.

Mr. Robert Johnson of Belleville, was best man for his brother. Ushers were: Messrs Ernest Porrier and Howard Herron, brother of the bride.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the Shamrock Hotel, Kingston. The mother of the bride received the guests in delphinium blue lace over taffeta, with blue hat, white accessories and corsage of pink roses. She was assisted in the receiving line by the bridegroom's mother, who wore an attractive sheath gown of pink champagne lace, matching accessories and a corsage of red roses.

For travelling, the bride changed into a mauve shantung sheath dress and a three-quarter-length coat, flowered hat and white accessories. Her corsage was of white orchids.

On their return Mr. and Mrs. Johnson plan to live in Ottawa.

Out-of-town guests attended the wedding from Oshawa, Toronto, Tweed, Havelock, Kemptville, Belleville and Tamworth.

BUSY HOUSEKEEPER — Gertrude Macauley, former Charlottetown school teacher, considers she has the busiest job at the Banff Springs Hotel. Executive housekeeper at the Rocky Mountain resort hotel since 1946, she is in charage of maintenance of the hotel's 600 rooms. Through her office go all details of room upkeep, including plumbing and carpentry. (CP Photo).

Supervising Housekeeping Big Chore at Banff Hotel

By EDNA BLAKELY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

BANFF, Alta. (CP) — Like many women, Gertrude Macaulay sits with her morning coffee thinking that the beds have to be made.

Part of her job as executive housekeeper for Banff Springs hotel is the maintenance of its 600 rooms.

Most of the 148 staff members under her supervision are university students who spend the summer months working as chamber maids and housemen at the Rocky Mountain resort.

The former Charlottetown school teacher says hers is the busiest office in the hotel. Through it are routed all messages dealing with upkeep of the rooms, including carpentry and plumbing repairs.

BRIEF SEASON

Every room whether it is occupied or not is checked twice daily.

The only time she doesn't like the job is when the hotel is closing in September. "The weather is nice and it seems sad to leave it."

When Miss Macaulay first went to the hotel in 1946 the furniture was piled in the middle of each room and covered with dust sheets at closing time.

She decided this was pointless. Now the furniture is left in place. The blankets are washed and put in the bureau drawers in the room. This makes it easier when the hotel is opened the following year.

Her interest in hotel work began while she was still a teacher. During summer vacations she used to work as hostess at a Charlottetown area resort.

"Although I think teaching is a fine profession, this suits me better."

CONVENTIONS PROBLEM

During the winter she works in Calgary or Victoria and once a year visits her mother in Charlottetown. She prefers not to go to a hotel for her holidays, usually spending them with friends.

"I love hotel life but it's nice to go out and have a home-cooked meal once a while."

Most hectic time for her is when delegates from one large convention are leaving and those from another arriving the same day.

"They should see the flurry of activity behind the scenes."

She says she plans to start writing down all the funny things that happen—such as the time one guest left three ducklings in the bathtub.

Hot Potatoes in Summer Meals

By Mary Moore

My good neighbor, Howard, says that the dish of scalloped potatoes I sent down to them was the best he ever tasted. I liked them too, and they were from a box of oven - ready scalloped potatoes. For a quick meal any time, especially at the cottage when leisure time is so precious, this is a good package of good food to have on the shelf.

Dinner Menus
by Mary Moore.

WEDNESDAY
Chicken Chop Suey; (Tossed Salad (see Tuesday); Blueberry Cobbler; Coffee.

SCALLOPED POTATOES FROM A PACKAGE

To serve 8, empty contents of package of oven-ready scalloped potatoes into a 1 1-2-quart casserole (medium-size). Add 1 cup milk, 1 1-2 tablespoons butter or margarine and 2 cups boiling water. Mix gently, Bake uncovered at 400 deg. Fahr. for 40 or 50 minutes.

Another potato dish comes from Helen of Havelock.

HELEN'S POTATO LOGS

4 cups seasoned mashed potatoes
1-4 cup mashed canned pimiento
1 tablespoon Parmesan or other strong cheese dash cayenne
1 egg, beaten
crushed corn flakes
sliced side bacon

Mix the first five ingredients together and form into 16 to 24 log - shaped croquettes. Roll in crushed corn flakes, then wrap end over end, in half slices of side bacon cut lengthwise. Secure with toothpicks. Prepare these ahead of time and place in ungreased shallow pan; refrigerate until needed. Place in moderate oven 375 deg. Fahr. and bake about 20 minutes. Note: The long narrow slices of bacon, wrapped lengthwise around the logs, facilitates serving for it holds the soft centre snugly together.

On our fabulous local summer market I bought a long coil of farmers' pure pork sausage for Sunday dinner. Then I was confronted with the problem of making it look like a Sunday dinner. I decided to bake potatoes.

BAKED POTATOES

Scrub and dry choice uniform large potatoes. Spread the skin sparingly with butter and bake at 500 deg. Fahr. (extremely hot) about 40 minutes or until you can press in the sides easily. (Be sure to wear an oven glove.) (About 20 minutes before these were done I cut the farmers' sausage into 5" lengths, sprinkled it with garlic salt and put it in the hot oven too.) Do not split potatoes before serving. Let the diners do this, and fill them with butter. The skins on these potatoes are prepared to be eaten — and if you heed the advice of such Canadian nutritionists as Dr. Pett and Dr. McHenry you will eat the skins too, for they are high in vitamins and minerals.

HUSBAND DESERVES PRIVACY AT OFFICE

Mr. Inexperienced was having an extremely busy day at the office. Several conferences were on the calendar and, as invariably happens, a number of clients picked that particular day to need special attention. He gave orders to his secretary and the telephone operator that he was not to be disturbed for anything except something of the greatest importance.

A few moments after he retired to his office, the operator answered a call. The following conversation took place.

"This is Mrs. Inexperienced. I wish to speak to my husband."

Graciously the operator explained that he was in conference.

"That makes no difference," snapped Mrs. Inexperienced, "Let me speak to him at once. It is very important that I do so."

Again the operator tried to explain, only to hear, "If you don't get him to the phone young lady, I will suggest that you be dis charged for insubordination!" In desperation the operator put the call through.

Five minutes later Mr. Inexperienced stormed out to ask why his orders had been disobeyed. He said that his wife had called to ask him to pick up a package on the way home. Certainly, he said, this didn't come under the heading of "very important." After all, why did the operator think he was paying her? To protect him from petty annoyances, of course. With a glare at the poor defenceless girl, he disappeared into his office, slamming the door behind him.

Later on in the day, Mrs. Inexperienced put in a personal appearance at the office. The secretary asked her to wait, as Mr. Inexperienced was in an important meeting with a group of men. But his wife would have none of it. Opening the door without knocking, she sailed into the conference room and succeeded in completely disrupting the meeting, much to her husband's embarrassment. We will draw a curtain on the wrath that followed.

The moral of my little story is that wives should pay more attention to good manners in an office.

A telephone operator is really on the spot when the boss' wife demands to speak to him and the employee knows that it would be inconvenient to interrupt him. The wife should be considerate enough to give her name and ask if her husband is busy. If he is, she should leave a message or ask to have him call her when he is free.

In her husband's office, a wife should have no more prerogative than any other caller. The thoughtful woman will rarely, if ever, visit her husband at work. If absolute necessity makes it imperative that she do so, she should greet the secretary, ask that she be announced, and wait in the reception room until he comes to her. No woman with any tact will invade her husband's private office unannounced.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

Question: Please settle something for us. Several people say it is not proper to write condolence notes on informal stationery but it is all right on informal cards! To tell you the truth, I have done both.

—Miss J. W., Allentown, Pa.

Answer: You ought to be ashamed! Both informal stationery and the informal cards that you mention are completely wrong and in very bad taste. The only proper way to offer condolences is to use good, white (only white) stationery. Then it should be handwritten and never typed.

Question: I obtained my divorce decree last month. I do not want to take back my maiden name, so how should I have my visiting cards engraved?

Answer: There are two forms followed today. For example, if your name had been "Jean Marie Cole" and your husband's name was "James Parks," your cards may be engraved either "Mrs. Jean Cole Parks" or "Mrs. Cole Parks." The latter form is considered most correct.

Successful Combination

Shown is a slim sliver of a dress with its own jacket.

The dress is a sheath with shoe-string shoulder straps on the scooped neckline. It is of black and white cotton pique joined vertically in a zigzag band. The jacket actually slips over the head, poncho-fashion, the buttons being used for effect only. Narrow braid piping trims the edge of the zigzag line, accentuating the black and white color scheme.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Editor's Note: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Isabel R. — I want to move to protect my boy.

Charles R. — The secret will come out anyplace.

Isabel R. — I made a terrible marriage ten years ago when I was 17 and it looks as though I'm going to suffer because of it for the rest of my life.

I was divorced about two years after and married a good man, who has tried to be a father to my son by the first marriage. I also have three children by my present husband.

Recently I learned that my ex-husband has been sentenced to a life term in prison for murder. He is well known in our community as my boy Frank's real father. I haven't told Frank anything about this yet. He never asks questions about his father. I want to move someplace where he'll never hear about it, but my husband is against moving.

Charles R. — There's no sense trying to run away from trouble. The harder you run, the more it tries to keep up with you. This secret could come out no matter where we live. There are troublemakers everywhere.

I'm in favor of taking the bull by the horns and telling the kid what's what. O.K., his father's in jail, a convicted murderer. It's tough, but the kid has to learn to take it. It's not Frank's fault and it doesn't mean he has to be like his father.

I am willing to adopt Frank and I'm ready to defend him against anyone who might attack him because of his father. I want him to know that, and he can't know it if we try to hide everything from him. He's got to know the truth.

The Council: It is likely that Frank knows far more than Charles and Isabel believe he knows about his father. The fact that he asks no questions isn't a particularly good sign. He probably senses some horror involving his father and fears facing it.

We agree with Charles that it is the nature of secrets to someday be revealed—usually in the most hurtful possible way. But the answer is not in forcing the truth down Frank's throat.

The answer lies in creating a happy home for Frank — a home in which he can feel secure in the love of two parents. It is fortunate, indeed, that this is being offered to the boy.

Frank will undoubtedly feel some hurt in the course of his life because of his father, but those hurts don't have to scar him seriously. He can be brought to accept this misfortune in the same way other children must accept other family misfortunes.

Because he is only a child, Frank will naturally take his parents' attitude toward his misfortune. If they shrink in fear of the opinion of others he will do the same.

If, on the other hand, they can accept the broader religious view that there is good and evil in all of us and that we may choose one way or the other, they will do Frank the service of making him realize that neither he nor his father is basically different from other human beings. He will recognize that he has the same potentiality as others for being an upright person

Frank is now protecting himself from being hurt by half-truths bred in fear and hatred. When his mother can come to accept the situation in its proper perspective, he will sense that he can ask questions about his father. His parents should keep the answers short and simple. Frank will be able to deal with attacks from others if he can cope with the situation inside his own feelings.

This - - - and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

Fishing is an amazing pastime, recreation, sport, hobby, obsession — whichever of these it is to you. It is the only thing imaginable which could keep a number of people absolutely quiet and still confined in a small space, without any sign of boredom. It must have something when a small boy, a teenage boy, a young man and an older man in the above situation can remain in a state of hope and expectancy for hours.

The non-fisherman, watching this phenomenon, may wonder; but he may also find himself catching the tenseness and the thrill of hope merely by watching the fisherman. Of course, the setting and surroundings are conducive to this hypnotism — water, good air, sun part of the time, natural beauty — these give a sense of isolation and relaxation to soothe frayed nerves.

We rejoice with the little whitehaired six year old boy, a heavenly beam on his face, who calls out to a perfect stranger in another boat: "I caught four fishes!" Yet, when a fish hawk with some beautiful and acrobatic winging swoops down to get his supper and flies off over the trees with a fish wriggling in it claws, we are chilled by the cruelty of it. We are, indeed, odd creatures.

How many times have you been stranded, or have seen someone else stranded in the new post office without a pen. Did you ever think the day would come when you would be glad to see one of those horrible old scratchy pens that used to inhabit post offices? New Zealand is moving in the other direction. We read the following in the "Forefront," a monthly survey of New Zealand affairs: "A calligraphic treat awaits New Zealanders The much-abused post office pen, liable to scratch, blot and collect hairs, may soon give way to the modern ball-point pen."

"Threatening the continued provision of post office pens is a new, simplified vehicle relicensing form, to be introduced soon. To ensure legibility of all copies, the form must be completed with either a typewriter or a ball-point pen".

"The Postmaster-General said that ball pens would be provided at post office public desks at motor relicensing time this year". "He added: 'Should the venture prove a success it could well presage the disappearance of the traditional post office pen.' He is assuming that the public will not blot its copybook. 'For that reason, we don't intend to chain the new pens to the desks".

I believe the public will appreciate a change to this modern substitute for pen and ink — but not if we spoil the experiment by the archaic use of chains'."

Vacation time is here again. The first verse of The Typewriter's Song by Edwin Meade Robinson goes like this:

"Write me a verse, my old machine —
I lack for an inspiration;
The skies are blue and the trees are green,
And I long for a long vacation".

The Experts Say

Art of Glove-Making Goes Back Many Years

By EDNA BLAKELY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — The art of glove-making is said to go back to the time of prehistoric cave-dwellers.

But after all those years, the makers of gloves are still trying to convince all women they're not properly dressed without gloves.

"A well-dressed woman would not go anywhere without a hat and gloves," says W. A. Booth, head of the glove department for a large Toronto department store.

In an interview he went into the matter of fashion in the glove trade.

LONG AND SHORT

Fashion, he said, decrees the length of the sleeve, and the sleeve length determines the length of the glove. With the three-quarter sleeve in vogue, many long gloves are being worn. A teen-ager is the only one who can get away with wearing short gloves with even a sleeveless evening dress, he said.

Proper fitting, particularly of leather gloves, was important if they are to last.

"Some women just won't take the time to put their gloves on slowly the first few times until the gloves have adopted the shape of the hand.

"If a kid glove is too large it will wrinkle at the back and will never adhere to the hand and look as smart as it should."

In the last decade the average size had increased from 6½ to 7. The right hand is usually larger than the left so the right glove should be tried on first.

Nylon and cotton gloves should be washed in mild soap, not strong detergents. Leather gloves, once cleaned, cannot be washed afterwards. Chamois and doeskin may be washed in the ordinary way but other leather gloves should be washed while on the hands. Blow into the gloves to put them in shape and then dry indoors away from the heat.

On counters in Canadian stores these days gloves can be found from many countries. Some double-woven cottons are made in Hong Kong and Japan. Many of the better fabric gloves come from England, West Germany and Italy, Mr. Booth said. Some of the better woollen gloves come from Switzerland and France with Germany creeping into the market.

This year Italy introduced a glove designed for brides. The ring finger of the left hand has a button that can be unfastened for the marriage service.

When he started in the business 30 years ago fabric gloves were produced in beige, navy, black, white and brown. Now they are produced in a wide variety of colors to meet seasonable fashion changes.

Mr. Booth said 75 per cent of the business today is in short or fancies, gloves with cuffs or other adornment.

Canadians Take Conveniences For Granted

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) For Elizabeth Utting, returning home on furlough from Africa meant readjusting to many conveniences Canadians take for granted.

At her mission station in Angola, Portugese West Africa, there is no electricity and no telephone. Lighting is provided by oil lamps, clothes are washed by hand, cooking is done on a wood stove and messages are sent by telegraph with no assurance they will ever reach their destination.

Miss Utting, who began her preparation for a missionary career 10 years ago with a two-year course at the United Church Training School in Toronto and a year of language study in Portugal, formerly taught school here.

At Luttamo Station she has taught native children and supervised teaching over a 1,000-square mile area that includes 200 villages.

She says the modern missionary in Africa is vastly different from those early in the century who disappeared into the jungles and risked their lives among savage tribes.

"The natives are becoming more civilized every year. When I attended my first graduation at the girls school 10 years ago, not one wore shoes. At this year's graduation, they all wore shoes."

Of the 4,000,000 Angolans, 540,000 are Protestants and approximately an equal number are Roman Catholics, she said. The remainder are spirit worshipers.

She said the aim of the missionary program now is to help train natives to fill important jobs. One Angolan boy is in Lisbon studying to be a doctor. While Miss Utting is on a year's leave in Canada, her work is being done by a trained native.

BRIDE HONORED

ROSLIN — On Monday evening a miscellaneous shower was held at the home of Mrs. Lorne Reid, Roslin, with her sister, Mrs. Treverton, of Plainfield, as co-hostess in honor of Miss Margaret Brennan of Plainfield, a bride of the month.

Around 35 guests were present.

During the evening a bride's book was completed.

Margaret received many beautiful gifts for which she expressed her thanks and appreciation.

Refreshments were served, bringing a pleasant evening to a close.

The Women's Institute held their July meeting at the home of Mrs. Ted Hutson.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, WEDNESDAY, JULY 27, 1960

Quebec Premier Jostles Way Up to Strong Position in Dominion-Provincial Issue

OTTAWA (CP)—Jean Lesage, in office as Quebec premier only 22 days, has jostled his way up to a strong and dominant position around the Dominion - provincial conference table.

As the plenary fiscal talks entered the final phase today Mr. Lesage was securely in the position of being the only one of Canada's 10 provincial premiers to have scored gains on some of his proposals.

The gains are not at the dollars - and - cents level—something that may not be resolved until later conferences are held—but in a sensitive area of Canadian life — national autonomy and unity.

And these gains are not in the realm of things achieved or completed but in getting Canadians from all parts of the country together for three things:

1. Resuming talks — abandoned in 1950 — aimed at making it possible for Canada to amend its own constitution without the necessity of submitting changes to the British Parliament.

2. Examining the possibility of embodying a declaration of human rights in the Canadian constitution and applying to both federal and provincial jurisdictions.

3. Studying the possibility, at a Quebec - called interprovincial conference, of setting up a permanent council of the provinces and thrashing out issues common to all the provincial administrations — with federal representatives attending as observers.

The three suggestions focussed attention firmly on Quebec and its new liberal premier.

The position Mr. Lesage took seemed to cut across not only racial lines but political fences as well.

Not too surprisingly, the support was warmest from politically friendly quarters. Premier Joseph Smallwood of Newfoundland, a diehard grit, said he had waited 12 years to hear a speech of the importance Mr. Lesage made at the conference Monday. Liberal Premier Louis Robichaud of New Brunswick sounded a similar note.

But Mr. Lesage received support, cautious but real, from political adversaries as well.

Ontario's Premier Leslie Frost, a Conservative, went along with Mr. Lesage on his three points.

Premier T. C. Douglas, CCF premier of Saskatchewan, received the Quebec proposals warmly.

Social Credit Premier W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia stepped along with the proposals on constitution amendment and the declaration of rights. He took a guarded attitude on the interprovincial conference suggestion saying he would go only if federal representatives attended.

And on the more immediate and practical question of tax-sharing, Premier Lesage straddled a gulf that until now seemed impossible to bridge — the gulf between the traditional stand of Quebec that none of the province's tax rights can ever be leased to the federal government and the stand of most other Canadian provinces, exactly opposite.

Mr. Lesage avoided all talk that would offend other provinces. Yet his government will remain outside federal - provincial tax agreements, he told a press conference. His government will continue levying direct taxes.

One reason for the new look in Quebec's stand at this Dominion - provincial conference is that on the short-term Mr. Lesage is ready to accept immediately federal contributions under cost - sharing plans such as hospital insurance and the Trans-Canada Highway construction project.

The late Maurice Duplessis, long - time Union Nationale premier who represented Quebec at earlier Dominion-provincial conferences, remained aloof from virtually all cost - sharing programs.

Smallwood Will Not Budge Inch in Feud With Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — Newfoundland and Ottawa appear no closer to settling their two-year-old dispute centering on special assistance for the island province after March 31, 1962.

Now they seem to be headed toward a tete - a - tete, outside the Dominion - provincial conference, to thrash out their problem.

Premier Smallwood of Newfoundland demonstrated to the conferenceTuesday that he hasn't budged an inch from his contention that Ottawa failed to honor the spirit of the terms of union under which Newfoundland became Canada's 10th province in 1949.

He refused to have the question become part of the tax-sharing and other discussions between the provinces and the federal government, claiming it was a matter to be settled solely between his government and Ottawa.

On the federal side, Finance Minister Fleming was as unyielding in maintaining the Progressive Conservative government fully honored the terms of the union negotiated between the former Liberal government and Newfoundland.

He made an apparent gesture toward conciliation by saying that Newfoundland could tie her claims for special assistance to the terms of union or any other basis and raise them at this conference or wherever it is convenient.

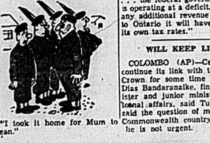
Later, Premier Smallwood told a reporter that Mr. Fleming's statement leaves his position unchanged. He would continue to participate in conference discussions on other matters but would insist on a separate meeting with the federal government on Newfoundland's claim for special assistance.

The Liberal premier indicated that a "convenient" time would not be this year, which would leave the two governments about 15 months to reach agreement before the $8,000,000 - a-year special assistance payment expires.

Mr. Smallwood's contention is that a royal commission — appointed in 1957 under Term 29 of the terms of union to set a figure for special assistance — intended the $8,000,000 to be paid annually for an indefinite period.

He also argues that the federal government is honor-bound to make the payments in perpetuity.

"Jest a Second"



"I took it home for Mum to clean."

Liberal Leader Says Demands Are Exorbitant

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer said Tuesday that money demands on the federal purse made by Premier Frost to the Dominion - provincial conference this week in Ottawa would result in ruination of the vast majority of ordinary taxpayers.

Mr. Wintermeyer said in a statement that the person of modest income in Ontario is currently paying about 18 per cent to 20 per cent of taxable income in taxes. A rise of 37 per cent needed to give Ontario half of the federal government tax revenue collected in the province would mean income taxes at 55 per cent to 57 per cent of taxable income.

"The significant feature of Mr. Frost's demand for $477,000,000 more per year for Ontario in federal tax rebate is the admission that Ontario badly needs more revenue," Mr. Wintermeyer said.

"To the extent that Mr. Frost's proposal admits a need for more money in Ontario I agree with him. I also agree that Ontario has an equal right with the federal government to tax the sources. But Mr. Frost's formula is unrealistic because Mr. Diefenbaker says the federal government does not have the money . . . the federal government now is operating at a deficit. To make any additional revenue available to Ontario it will have to raise its own tax rates."

WILL KEEP LINK

COLOMBO (AP)—Ceylon will continue its link with the British Crown for some time yet, Felix Dias Bandaranaike, finance minister and junior minister of external affairs, said Tuesday. He said the question of making this Commonwealth country a republic is not urgent.

Arnprior Faces Demand It Probe Some Employees

ARNPRIOR (CP)—Town council got out of one municipal hassle Tuesday night and then bounced right back into what appeared to be another one.

Council finally cleared up the Meadows subdivision squabble by drafting a second private bill for the Ontario legislature and then heard a report from the county seat demanding an investigation of "certain" town employees.

The Meadows trouble sparked an investigation earlier this year by two department of municipal affairs officials, F. G. Blake and E. W. Yates. They suggested the private bill.

The dispute arose when the town assessed the 22 property owners in the new subdivision with local improvement charges. The owners complained that they had been told by the builder, Arnprior Developments Company Limited, that the local improvements were covered in the cost of their houses.

The town bylaw was quashed by the Supreme Court and later a private bill trying to reinstate it was tossed out by the legislature.

The investigators settled the $21,000 issue by advising that the town issue 10-year debentures for $15,240 to be paid for by the town general tax rate; that the property owners pay $4,831 for their general improvements, and that the town place on the 1961 tax levy $1,028 to cover gravel roads in the subdivision.

The county then decided to request an investigation by a county court judge into allegations against some town employees concerning misuse of labor and materials.

The decision was made after H. Graham Walsh, Crown attorney at the Renfrew County seat of Pembroke, charged in a letter he had "certain information sufficient to lay charges of theft."

He called for the investigation by the county court judge and said if council didn't request it he would "order charges laid and possibly invoke an investigation by the attorney general."

No details of whom the allegations were against or what they alleged were given.

Father Drowns In Attempt to Save Daughter

CALEDONIA (CP)—A Hamilton man jumped into the Grand River and was drowned Tuesday in a futile attempt to save his daughter, whom he could have reached from shore with a fishing pole.

Firemen attempted in vain to revive Roy Mineard, 28, and his daughter Donna, 8. The two were fishing off a dam at this community 10 miles southwest of Hamilton and Donna fell in.

The child was bobbing only a few feet from shore, witnesses said, but Mineard jumped in fully clothed. He grabbed his daughter and made for shore but apparently was caught in a heavy overtow firemen said runs below the dam.

David Kindress, 14, and Peter Skinner went in after the girl but had to let her go to escape drowning themselves. Peter said Mineard was wearing heavy boots when he jumped in.

There has been no lifesaving equipment at the dam since belts, poles and other emergency equipment were stolen two years ago.

The Mineards have three other small daughters, the youngest two months old.

Accused Asks Leave to Appeal 13 Life Terms

TORONTO (CP)—Robert Mann 44, of Toronto, sentenced by Magistrate Fred Thompson May 20 to 13 concurrent life terms for housebreaking, applied Tuesday for leave to appeal the sentence before the Ontario Court of Appeal.

Mann, now in Kingston penitentiary, has appealed on the grounds that the sentence was exorbitant considering the nature of the offence.

"From the nature of Magistrate Thompson's remarks, it is evidence that the magistrate did not reach his decision to impose a life sentence after calm deliberation," Mann's application says. "In anger, he informed me that he was sending me to Kingston with a message for the boys."

Mann pleaded guilty to the offences at the May 20 trial. He was not represented by counsel.

Ontario, Quebec Are Opposed To Continuing Indefinitely Joint Tax-Sharing Projects

OTTAWA (CP) — Ontario and Quebec are in basic disagreement with most other provinces on whether joint Dominion-provincial cost - sharing projects should be continued—and if so, for how long.

Eight of the provinces are in favor of continuing and extending such sharing arrangements as now exist for the Trans-Canada Highway hospital insurance, municipal winter works and other programs.

But Ontario and Quebec are opposed to continuing them indefinitely.

Premier Frost, who wants a 50 - 50 split of the income, corporation and inheritance tax fields with the federal government, told the Dominion - provincial fiscal conference at its outset that he is prepared to step out of the joint projects.

"The soundest principle is for governments to levy taxation for the money that they spend," he said. "We in Ontario are prepared to assume responsibility for our people for raising the money that we spend. We have at no time asked the federal government to assume the responsibility of levying taxes and paying money over to us."

AGREES IN PRINCIPLE

Premier Lesage of Quebec agreed with Mr. Frost in principle, saying:

"Experience shows that often these joint programs do not permit the provinces to use their own revenues as they wish, nor to take local conditions sufficiently into account.

"These programs now are sufficiently well established on the provincial scale to enable the federal government to cease taking part in them and to vacate these fields."

WANTS ENTRY

But since the joint projects are operating, and there is no immediate sign of throwing the whole burden back on the provinces, Mr. Lesage said, Quebec is anxious to get into some of them, particularly hospital insurance and the Trans - Canada Highway.

"The citizens of Quebec contribute through their federal taxes to the financing of many joint programs applied in the rest of the country without deriving any benefit," he said. "The taxpayers of Quebec cannot be expected to allow such an unfair situation to continue."

The four Atlantic provinces and Manitoba and Saskatchewan were most outspoken among the other provinces, appealing for continuation and even extension of the joint projects.

Used Car Firm Seeking Name of 'Big Daddy'

TORONTO (CP)—Barred from using the name Kelso-Roberts because it was held to reflect on the Ontario attorney-general, a Toronto used car firm says it plans to seek a new licence under the name Big Daddy's Auto Sales.

Big Daddy is the nickname given to Metropolitan Toronto Chairman Fred Gardiner, a member of the Mero licensing commission which revoked the licence of Kelso - Roberts car sales.

Magistrate C. A. Thoburn, commission vice - chairman, said Tuesday night Joseph Roberts and Kelso Blunden have little chance of getting a new licence under the name Big Daddy.

"It's a terrible sort of joke," he said.

Mr. Blunden said he and his partner chose the name to honor a 350-pound friend.

In Chicago, where he is looking in at the Republican convention Mr. Gardiner said "if it does them any good to advertise me I will not be in the least upset."

Despite withdrawal of the firm's licence last June, the firm is still operating. Mr. Blunden said he would go to jail before his company is forced to stop operating.

BLAME EACH OTHER

LONDON (Reuters) — Russia Tuesday accused the United States of scuttling an increased program of student exchange between the two countries, the Soviet news agency Tass reported. The Soviet government newspaper Izvestia blamed the U.S. Inter-University Committee for the breakdown and said it was replying to accusations in an American newspaper (New York Times) that Russia was deliberately sabotaging the exchange program.

Two Young Boys Rescued Adrift In Lake Huron

SARNIA (CP) — Two young boys were plucked from their weather - beaten rowboat Tuesday after it drifted 10 miles off shore in the choppy waters of Lake Huron.

A 30 - foot cabin cruiser owned by William E. Connors of Troy, Mich., spotted George Will, 9, of London, Ont., and Ross Huddleston, 10, of Indianapolis, Ind., when they were more than 10 miles from the northeast shore of the Kettle Point Indian reserve, 20 miles northeast of here.

Mrs. William E. Roberts, of Livonia, Mich., a passenger on the cruiser, spotted the boys.

They were sitting and crying because they were so glad to be found, Mrs. Roberts said.

The cruiser circled the oarless rowboat but could find no way to fasten a line to it.

Mr. Roberts swam to the rowboat and carried the boys through the water to the cruiser.

The boys said they left Pinery Provincial Park at 8 a.m. Tuesday. They were found at 10:30 a.m.

"When we found them the water was really rough," Mr. Connors said. "I don't know how they managed to stay afloat this long. The skies were overcast and storm warnings were up. It is only a miracle that they didn't drown."

CASTRO STILL ILL

LAS MERCEDES, Cuba (AP) Premier Fidel Castro, obviously still a sick man, said Tuesday the example of his revolution is attracting other Latin-American peoples "toward the same plan." Castro looked drawn and haggard as he addressed a mass rally to celebrate the seventh anniversary of his revolutionary movement.

Vancouver Man Faces Suit for 10 Million Dollars

NEW YORK (AP)—The United States government filed suit in federal court here Tuesday to recover nearly $10,000,000 in taxes, penalties and interest it says is owed by Albert L. McLennan of Vancouver on the profits of a wartime whisky deal.

The complaint charges that McLennan filed no U.S. income tax returns for the years 1944 through 1946 when he allegedly made the profits.

McLennan was among nine men indicted May 11, 1954, by a federal grand jury on charges of conspiring to evade more than $17,000,000 in income tax payments. At the time, treasury officials said it was the largest amount ever listed in an income tax prosecution in the U.S.

McLennan is being sued for $9,862,053.34.

He was among the four principals said to have been involved in selling whisky in the U.S. and concealing the profits through a system of dummy corporations in Cuba and Panama.

In 1954, the government claimed that the huge profits resulted after the defendants received a price order from the office of Price Administration in 1944 permitting the sale of whisky in the United States "at a price greatly in excess of what which should have been granted by the OPA under the then-existing regulations."

Although the civil complaint filed by the government Tuesday did not allude to the 1954 case, it was as a result of those dealings that McLennan made the profits on which the government now seeks to recover taxes, assistant U.S. Attorney Paul Meaders said.

Three men were found guilty in 1955 on the 1954 indictment, two were absolved and one had died in the interim. The three others — McLennan, George W. Norgan and Isidore J. Klein, all of Vancouver — could not be extradited from Canada against their will to face the charge of conspiracy although they could be seized on entering the U.S.

Allege Mayor of Eastview Shareholder in Co. That Rented School to Board

EASTVIEW, Ont. (CP)—Mayor Gordon Lavergne is alleged to have had shares in a company that rented a "fire-trap" school to this town's public school board.

The allegation came Tuesday from Gerari Metivier, secretary-treasurer of the Eastview separate school board, as he testified at a provincial inquiry into this town's financial affairs.

He said the company was the Garcharl Investments Company which bought the school building in June, 1958, at a cost of $42,000, rented it to the public school board for $9,000 and then a year later sold it for $47,000 to a private individual.

Charles Gaulin, town garbage collector and secretary-treasurer of the investment company, said both Mayor Lavergne and the former separate school board chairman, Ronaldo Chevier, were shareholders.

Four officers of the company, Gaulin said, each lent the mayor $500 so he could buy a $2,000 block of shares in the company.

"A FIRE-TRAP"

Metivier said there was a small fire in the basement of the school in 1957 before the company bought the building and "we found that it was a fire-trap for the pupils."

The building was then sold to the Garcharl firm.

Gaulin told the commissioners he has been garbage collector since 1955 and has been given the contract every year without tendering.

The first year he was given a flat $22,200 for the job, but now he charges each of 5,600 families 20 cents for each pickup. The rate began at 15 cents a family.

WENT TO COUNCIL

Asked how he got increases, he said he simply went to council when he felt he wasn't getting enough money and he got the ineases.

"I went often," he beamed.

"Yes and you seem to have done all right," snapped Commissioner Charles W. Yates.

Henry Renaud, high school board secretary - treasurer, charged that Councillor Edward T. Wilson sold the board five typewriters so far this year and one in 1959. Under the Municipal Act elected officers are forbidden to do business with a municipality.

The inquiry was also told that the town has for years borrowed more than is permitted under the Ontario Municipal Act.

Eisenhower Will Never Forget Chicago Welcome

CHICAGO (AP) — In his long career in the army and as president of the United States Dwight D. Eisenhower has been cheered all over the world. Now he has been acclaimed again in a manner he'll never forget.

Chicago did it when he arrived in town Tuesday for the Republica national convention. A throng of about 1,000,000 roared welcome and showered the president and his wife with confetti, ticker tape and balloons.

Then Tuesday night the Republican delegates and their guests cut loose at the convention hall with an ovation that obviously touched the president and Mrs. Eisenhower deeply.

"Thank you, Mamie and Ike," banners everywhere proclaimed. "Well done," others read.

The president delivered a fighting speech. He was interrupted by applause 78 times.

Eisenhower spoke in the same Chicago Stockyards' Amphitheatre where he was nominated for president eight years ago. By his side was his wife, Mamie, a tear in her eye as she listened to the president's convention valedictory. He steps down from office next January.

The 14,000 persons in the arena sang Let Me Call You Sweetheart as Mamie, her face radiant, was presented with a gold bracelet in commemoration of her White House tenancy.

Only Way to Speak French Way People of France Speak It

- - Dagenais

By Paquerette Villeneuve
Canadian Press Correspondent

PARIS (CP) — Gerard Dagenais, Montreal author, newspaper man and television personality, says "there is only one way to speak French — the way the people of France speak it."

Author of several pamphlets on the art of writing and speaking French correctly, Dagenais came to France three months ago to collect material for a book, Evolution of French in Canada from 1750 until 1850, the century during which the rupture between Canada and France was the most complete.

He came here on a Canada Council grant and has been working hard, frequently getting up at 5 a.m. to transcribe notes on what he saw and heard during the previous day.

He has travelled through a large part of France, comparing expressions used here with those used by French - speaking Canadians. He has collected books on technical terms used by French industries.

"I have already shipped two boxes of books home," said Mr. Dagenais, who operates a translation bureau in Montreal in addition to contributing articles to Montreal Le Devoir. He also appears on a television program, Bonjour, Madame, usually discursing ways to improve French spoken in the home.

He has become a member of the committee which annually picks the winner of a trophy given to the French - language newspaper outside of France considered to make the most careful use of French.

The trophy, awarded by the Office du Vocabulaire Francais, was won this year by Ottawa Le Droit. While here, Mr. Dagenais accepted the trophy on behalf of the newspaper.

Mr. Dagenais said he is overwhelmed by the warmth of the reception he has received during his first visit to France.

"The people," he said, "are very sympathetic."

Author, newspaper man and television personality, Dagenais believes the best way to speak French is the way it is spoken in France. (CP Photo).

TWEED

Resuscitator Presented to Council

TWEED—A new Resuscitator—Inhalator — Aspirator, a combination of three instruments, each of which serves a distinctly important part in emergency life saving, was presented to Tweed municipal council by Ken Thompson, past president of Tweed Kinsmen Club and a group of his club colleagues.

In accepting the instrument, Reeve Douglas Spencer expressed the thanks of all residents, to the club. "We are indeed grateful to the Kinsmen Club, and if it saves just one life, it will be worth it", he noted.

The resuscitator has been placed in the fire-hall and Fire Chief C. M. "Mike" Moon and other members of the Fire Department, officials of the Lands and Forests. Chief Walter Higgins and others have been instructed to operate it.

Ken Thompson, past president and the members of the Kinsmen Club are to be commended for their effort in securing this resuscitator for the village of Tweed.

Show This Guy, Harry!

German Scoffs Canadian World Mark

BERLIN (AP) — Told that a 19-year-old Canadian had duplicated his world mark of 10 seconds flat for the 100 metres, crew-cut German sprinter Armin Hary blurted:

"Ten flat? Ridiculous. No one can run that fast."

What Hary meant, of course, was that no one except Hary could run that fast.

Hary's mark was tied July 15 in Saskatoon, Sask., by Harry Jerome of Vancouver while competing in the Canadian Olympics track trials.

Jerome, a student at the University of Oregon, also beat Ray Norton of the U.S. in May of this year at the Modesto, Calif., relays. Norton won the Pan-American 100- and 200-metre events last year at Chicago.

EAGER TO COMPETE

Hary, 23, is eager to meet Norton in a head-to-head duel in the Olympic Games, opening Aug. 25 in Rome. The brash Frankfurt department store clerk threatens to smash the United States' long-time sprint monopoly in the games.

He may at that. His style consists of a rocket takeoff — acclaimed the fastest the sport has ever seen — and straightaway power. Hary won the West German 100-metre trials Sunday in 10.2 and he seemed to loaf through the final dash.

The blond, slender six-footer set the track world buzzing earlier this year when he ran the 100 in 10 flat. It was the first time the feat had been achieved until Jersome came along.

DID IT TWICE

When he first hit the tape, Hary's rivals complained he had beaten the gun and demanded a repeat race. Hary agreed to run again.

In the ensuing race, two watches registered 10 flat and the third had it 10.1.

Electronics men, who have studied the matter, contend that Hary has a miracle set of reflexes which may be found once in 1,000,000 individuals.

Whereas the normal athlete's reflexes may respond in 15-100ths of a second, Hary's are tuned to 5-100ths of a second. Pictures of a start taken simultaneously with the gun show the young dash champion already in flight but with toes still on the starting blocks—much like a jet airliner leaving a runway.

The Braves defeated the Indians 10-4 last night to sweep their Belleville Bantam Baseball Division semi - finals playoffs.

PEAHEAD ARRIVES

CALIFORNIA, Pa. (AP)—Douglas (Peahead) Walker arrived at the Pittsburgh Steelers training camp today to become coach Buddy Parker's top aide for a week. Walker, former head coach of Montreal Alouettes in the Big Four and now a scout for New York Giants, will help prepare the National Football League Steelers for their Aug. 3 exhibition contest with Toronto Argonauts at Toronto.

Americans Name Three Harmsworth Challengers

DETROIT— Gale V, Nitrogen I and Miss Burien were named today as the three-boat team to challenge Canada for the Harmsworth Trophy next month at Picton, Ont.

The three unlimited hydroplanes were selected by the international racing committee of the Yachtmen's Association of America.

Gale V is owned by Joe Schoenith of Detroit, Nitrogen I by Sam Du Pont of Wilmington, Del., and Miss Burien by Tempest, Inc., of Seattle, Wash.

Many of the top United States powerboats were not eligible for nomination because they are powered by British-designed Rolls Royce Merlin engines.

Canada wrested the trophy from the U.S. on the Detroit River last summer when Bob Hayward drove Miss Supertest III to victory over Maverick, a West Coast boat, in three races.

Canada's Boating Federation can name up to three boats to defend the Harmsworth, but is expected to meet the U.S. challengers with Miss Supertest III, owned by Jim Thompson of London, Ont.

The races will be held Aug. 19, Aug. 20 and Aug. 22, if necessary, on the Bay of Quinte on the north shore of Lake Ontario. A boat driver must win two races to capture the Harmsworth, most coveted trophy in powerboat racing.

The international racing committee selected two alternate members of the U.S. team — Miss Detroit and Nitrogen Too. Miss Detroit is owned by Detroiter Chuck Thompson and Nitrogen Too is a second Du Pont boat.

May Institute Trout Limit On Superior

TORONTO (CP) — A catch limit on lake trout may be instituted in Lake Superior while the waters are restocked with that species, Lands and Forests Minister Spooner said Tuesday.

He said in an interview control of the sea lamprey which reduced the trout population now is in sight. But the trout could only be re-established by regulating catches in the critical recovery period.

In 1959 Minnesota, Michigan, Wisconsin, the United States Fish and Wildlife Service and the Ontario lands and forests department planted 667,000 trout in Lake Superior. The program will continue.

Mr. Spooner said the Great Lakes Fisheries Commission has accepted a recommendation from its advisors to impose an annual quota. It will ask state and provincial governments to adopt it. No figure for the quota has been mentioned.

Will Maintain Soccer League

NEW YORK (AP)—Will Cox, founder of the International Soccer League, said Tuesday he expected to continue league competition next year at New York's Polo Grounds.

Cox said the 1960 league operation could show a profit or break even, depending on the weather for the three remaining games.

Bangu of Brazil and Red Star of Yugoslavia, both unbeaten in the second section competition, meet Saturday night. The sectional champion will face Kilmarnock of Scotland, first section winner, in the title playoff Aug. 6 at the Polo Grounds.

McKeesport, Pa.—Art Swiden, 189, Braddock, Pa., outpointed Wayne Bethea, 208, New York 10.

Lebel Heads International Hockey Body

MELVILLE, Sask. (CP)—Robert Lebel of Chambly, Que., was elected president of the International Ice Hockey Federation at its annual meeting in Rimini, Italy, Gordon Juckes, secretary-manager of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said Tuesday.

Lebel is a former president of the CAHA and was Canada's representative at the July 25-July 29 meeting.

He is the first Canadian to hold the position since Dr. W. C. Hardy of Edmonton retired in 1951.

Retiring president J. F. Aherne of London, Eng., was returned as president of the European section of the IIHF with Walter Brown of Boston as president [illegible] the North American section.

Brown is vice-president of the U.S. Amateur Hockey Association and president of the National Hockey League Boston Bruins.

CBS Network Passes up Hockey Video

NEW YORK (CP)—The CBS television network will not televise Saturday afternoon NHL hockey games during the 1960-61 season, it was learned Tuesday.

The network has discarded the hockey games in favor of other programming because it had trouble obtaining sponsors.

CBS carried only Saturday afternoon games.

In Montreal, president Clarence Campbell of the NHL said provision has been made in next season's schedule for two Saturday afternoon games in Detroit and one in New York. Campbell said this is an independent matter for the two clubs and has nothing to do with discontinuance of TV for CBS.

The changes involve Montreal-at-Toronto games. The Sunday, Oct. 2 contest, now will be played on Saturday, Oct. 1, and the Saturday, Oct. 29 game has been moved to Sunday, Oct. 30.

Indians Get Bridges, Wilson From Detroit

NEW YORK (AP) — Cleveland Indians obtained veteran shortstop Rocky Bridges and catcher Bob Wilson from Detroit Tigers Tuesday in a waiver deal that sent catcher Hank Folles to the Tigers.

Frank Lane, Cleveland general manager, said waivers also had been asked on pitcher John Briggs for the purpose of assigning his contract to another major league club, presumably Detroit.

Bridges probably will take over the shortstop job with the Indians, filled by rookie Mike de La Hoz after Woody Held was injured.

Manager Joe Gordon said he hopes to get Bridges and Wilson into the lineup as soon as they could report.

Lacrosse

BRAMPTON (CP) — Brampton Excelsiors defeated St. Catharines Athletics 13-9 here Tuesday night in one of the roughest Ontario Lacrosse Association Senior games of the season.

Two of the Athletics' 11 players were tossed out of the game, one for fighting, the other for using abusive language to the referee.

Gord Thompson scored three goals for Brampton. Bill Castator and Bert Naylor counted two apiece while singles came from Jack Sibbald, Jack Madgett, Ken Richardson, Bill Wanless, Wayne Thompson and Jim McClure.

Doug Smith led St. Catharines with five goals, Ron Roy had three and Jack Timlock one.

Mike d'Amico of the Athletics and Madgett were given majors for a second-period brawl. They were handed match penalties when they started to fight again after leaving the penalty box.

A final period fight saw Smith, Timlock and Gary Carr of Athletics trading punches with Castator, Thompson and Rev Bennett of the home team.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Fourscore years back is a long, long time. History has been made, nations have been remoulded and remodelled, science in all branches has made strides. There has come many changes in ideas, in thought and in expression. Time has not stood still.

It makes one wonder what the world—if there is one—will be like fourscore years hence.

Fourscore years ago baseball was being played, but such baseball as would hardly be recognized today. A little over threescore years ago, fans listened to the world series over earphones attached to a radio crystal set. You got it over Station KDKA, Pittsburgh.

Today you can relax in the living room bleachers with a cigar, and a noggin of your favorite brew, and watch the series live, lively and uninterrupted providing you send the missus shopping downtown.

We cannot even attempt to visualize the changes that could be made in baseball during the next eighty years. It could be there will be a planet series between the Moon Beams, the Mars Marauders, the Jupiter Jumping Beans, the Venus Victorias and the Earth Dodgers.

We say "Earth Dodgers" because even in these days this global Ebbet's Field is the scene of more weird, wacky doings than the famous Daffiness Gang ever pulled off in the halcyon days of fond memory.

The National Baseball League was born in 1876. The Confederation was nine years old. Queen Victoria was wielding a rigid sceptre in England. Russia was making passes at Turkey. In the United States General Ulysses Grant was nipping Old Crow and smoking big black cigars. Sitting Bull made Custer'd pie out of the Yankee cavalry, and science had succeeded in making electric light effectual in photography.

Those were the days when the boys were gay rollicking squirts and the girls were blushing maidens in long braids and oceans of petticoats, skirts and other whaddyacallems.

A modern baseball fan would have received a severe shock had he wandered near a field where a game was in progress.

There were ten men on a side including a "right" shortstop. A batter received nine "bad" balls before getting a free ticket to first. A pitcher was compelled to make his serve underhand—overhand was against the rules.

These were the principal variations from the code but there were others, too, to make the present variation of baseball as different from the 1876 style as caviar to cockles.

And the uniforms! The players wore ties on their shirts. Each shirt had a false front or "dickey" to add class. The pants were quilt-padded. The belts were truss affairs. The shoes were high and the caps square. Quite an outfit.

If the pitcher threw overhand or sidearm, the umpire waved his cane and declared "foul balk." If the pitcher "foul-balked" three times in the same inning, the umpire declared the game forfeited to the other side by a score of 9-0.

Under 1876 rules, the batter could call for either a high ball, a low ball or a fair ball. There were no pinch-hitters. The winning side received the balls used in the game.

A lost ball called for a five minutes' halt while search was made for the pellet after which, if needed, a new ball was put in play.

The catcher wore no mask or shinguard, not even a glove. He stood back near the grand stand and caught the ball on the first bounce. A batter who hit a foul ball could be retired if the ball was caught on the first bounce. A fair fly, however, had to be caught before it hit the ground.

There was only one umpire who sat on a chair near home plate and gave his decisions.

What does the future hold for baseball? Who knows. Will it have spacemen blasting off from home-plate and radar sets for fielders? Will fans be able to watch a game played on Mars through wrist-worn television sets? And will they carry cold beer pellets in their pockets?

Your guess is as good as the next fellow's. But why worry? Who's going to be around to see it?

City Commercial Softball Results

Scoring seven runs in the top of the seventh Bishops Seeds handed Jones Motors a 14-4 shellacking last night.

Up to this point they held a 7-4 lead, tabbing single runs in the second, third and fourth frames and adding four in the sixth before they exploded in the final chapter.

The Jones boys scored two in the second and singles in the third and sixth.

Feeney went the route for the winners, giving up seven clouts, while McCurdy on the mound for the Motors was tabbed for 14 hits, including a homer and a triple.

For the winners Hughes had a homer and double; Williams a triple and single; Knott three singles; Courneyea, two singles; Donovan, two singles, while Calnan, Feeney and Bovay hit safely.

Wardhaugh with a homer, Donovan a double and single and Creeggan, Gilbey, McCurdy and Vandervoort with singles, were the Jones' hitters.

Four Homers Spray Bosox

By JIM KENSIL
Associated Press Staff Writer

You can look it up. Nellie Fox homered and Jim Landis drove in four runs.

When Chicago White Sox get this kind of hitting plus anticipated homers from their off-season power purchases — Gene Freese, Roy Sievers and Minnie Minoso—who's going to beat the defending American League champions?

The seventh-place Boston Red Sox were the patsies again Tuesday night as Chicago went wild in a 16-3, 21-hit victory that retained their one-game lead over New York Yankees, 6-1 victors over Cleveland behind winner Art Ditmar (8-7) and reliever Luis Arroyo.

Mickey Mantle's 25th homer, a two-run shot in the sixth inning, was the difference as the Yanks won for only the fifth time in their last 15.

ORIOLES FADE

Third-place Baltimore fell four games behind when ex - Yank Johnny Kucks beat the Orioles 2-1 for Kansas City. Detroit moved into a fifth-place tie with Washington by defeating the Senators 5-3.

Fox's homer was his first of the season and only his 28th in 14 major-league seasons. Landis's RBI upped his season total to 31. Usually he doesn't quite average one every three games.

Sievers hit his 16th homer, Minoso his 11th and Freese his 9th as Chicago topped Boston for the eighth straight time.

Freese added two doubles and two singles for four RBI and Sievers went 4-for-5 by adding three singles. That all made it easy for Early Wynn's sixth win in 13 decisions and Chicago's 22nd in the last 31 games. Jerry Casale (2-9) lost his ninth straight.

PIERSALL REFORMS

Jimmy Piersall, Cleveland's problem player, scored the Indians run in the second inning but after that it was all Yankees. Piersall behaved himself after being fined $100 by the league Monday and promising his teammates he would cut out the ball-field capers.

Mantle homered on a 2-0 pitch by losing southpaw Dick Stigman (4-6) with Roger Maris, who had walked, on base. The Yankees rammed over their other four runs in the seventh against three relievers.

Kucks, who hadn't pitched a winning complete game against Baltimore since 1956, now is 3-3 with the victory over the Orioles on the eve of his 27th birthday. Another ex-Yank, Jerry Lumpe, doubled and scored the tying run in the seventh, then beat out an infield topper in the eighth to send across the winning run as the A's singled four straight times with two out to defeat Milt Pappas (8-8).

Detroit's Frank Lary (9-9) won his third straight with relief help from Clem Labine in the ninth. Rocky Colavito hit his 21st homer, a two-run shot in the fourth, and Chico Fernandez drove across the winner with a sacrifice fly off loser Pedro Ramos (6-11).

That Pirate Law Man Holds Cards

By JIM KENSIL
Associated Press Sports Writer

The stubborn Pittsburgh Pirates aren't going to walk the plank for anybody. At least not as long as Vern Law can beat the St. Louis Cardinals practically blindfolded.

And not as long as ElRoy Face can right a listing ship.

The Cards rocked Law with a pair of two-run homers in the seventh inning Tuesday night, but he survived the inning with a 5-4 lead that turned out to be the final score as Pittsburgh stayed a half game ahead of Milwaukee in the National League pennant race.

The victory was Law's 13th, making him the biggest winner in the majors. It was also his 10th straight over St. Louis which hasn't beaten him since June 24, 1958.

But when the Cardinals acted up on reliever Fred Green in the eighth, it was up to Face to salt the victory with a double-play ball and then a 1-2-3 job in the ninth for his 15th save among the Pirates' 55 triumphs.

BEATS GIANTS

Milwaukee, too, had it in the bullpen, as Ron Piche saved his seventh for the Braves who beat the Giants 3-1 at San Francisco. Carl Willey (5-4) was the winner on a five-hitter, but Piche had to wipe out the side in the ninth after the Giants rocked Willey with a homer and a single.

Cincinnati's Bob Purkey (10-6) pitched the only complete winning game in the league, a four-hitter that topped the Dodgers 4-1 at Los Angeles. Dick Farrell had to bail out Robin Roberts (7-9) to nail down the Philadelphia Phillies 4-3, come-from - behind victory at Chicago.

The Pirates put over the clinching runs in the top of the seventh when Bill Mazeroski singled and pinch hitter Bill Virdon hit his sixth homer. Law had a triple, his second of the year, in a three-run Pittsburgh outburst in the fourth against loser Curt Simmons (2-1).

Sad Sam Jones (12-10) was the loser for the Giants. He struck out 11 and didn't give up a hit until the sixth. Then in the seventh the Braves' Lee Maye singled through the box, stole second and came home on Johnny Logan's single. In the eighth, Eddie Mathews walked and went to third on Hank Aaron's single. Joe Adcock squeezed home Mathews and Aaron scored when Jim Marshall threw wild trying to catch him at second.

Marshall homered to lead off the ninth, and Felipe Alou singled, but Piche moved in to three straight outs.

ROOKIES SCORE

Rookies Cliff Cook and Gordon Coleman, each playing in only his second game for Cincinnati, drove in a run apiece and veteran Frank Robinson hit homer No. 19 for the other two as Cincinnati beat Johnny Podres (8-8). Cook had four singles in four trips.

The Phillies, down 2-1 in the ninth, got a three-run homer from third-string catcher Clay Dalrymple. But then Ron Santo opened the Cub half with a homer, Farrell came on, only to be greeted by a double by Ernie Banks, before getting the final three men. Banks earlier regained a share of the league home run lead when he hit No. 28 to match Aaron's total.

Vees Defeat Bisons Again; Leafs Beaten

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Buffalo Bisons are surrounded by the two hottest teams in the International League—and both are sinking the once - mighty Bisons to the brink of the second division.

Buffalo is in third place 3½ games behind second - place Richmond and only two ahead of fourth-place Rochester.

Richmond won its fifth straight from Buffalo Tuesday night, beating the Bisons 5-3 while Rochester also took its fifth in a row, 3-2 over Columbus. Jersey City won its second staight from league-leading Toronto, 1-0 and Montreal edged Miami 2-1.

Both Buffalo and Columbus have now lost five in a row. Winner John Gabler made his first start for Richmond a success, allowing only five hits in six innings. Fred Kipp finished up. Bill Smith, victim of a three-run second inning lost his first in seven decisions.

Gene Oliver's two-out homer in the ninth broke a 2-2 tie for the Red Wings and handed Jim Umbricht his fourth loss in six decisions. Ellis Burton's RBI single and a sacrifice fly by Jim Frey gave the Wings a 2-2 tie in the eighth as Art Kay (4-5) won in relief.

Felix Torres' triple with one out in the ninth scored Borrego Alvarez with the only run and gave Jersey City's Bob Moorhead his second shutout and fifth victory against six losses. Cicotte (10-6) was the loser.

A walk to Angel Scull and singles by Rod Graber and Clarence Coleman broke a 1-1 tie for Montreal in the eighth. Joe Altobelli hit his 25th homer for the Royals off loser Herb Moford. Rene Valdes was the winner, with each pitcher allowing only five hits.

SUSPEND NUXHALL

CINCINNATI (AP) — National League chief Warren Giles suspended pitcher Joe Nuxhall of Cincinnati Reds Tuesday for five days and fined him $250 for an altercation with umpire Ed Vargo at Chicago.

Nuxhall will accompany the team on its current west coast tour, but won't be eligible to pitch until Sunday. Nuxhall had to be wrestled to the ground Monday, in a game with Chicago's Cubs, to prevent him from getting at umpire Vargo.

The incident came after Chicago's George Altman was called safe on an infield hit. Nuxhall had covered first, taking the throw from first sacker Gordon Coleman.

MONTREAL (CP) — British Columbia Lions rode brilliant passing into paydirt range and churned out seven touchdowns along the ground Tuesday night in thumping Montreal Alouettes 49-7 before 19,999 fans in an exhibition football game.

The crowd left the stadium wondering whether the Lions were that good or the Alouettes that bad. But there was never any doubt about which of the two clubs had learned more since the 29-29 exhibition standoff they played in Vancouver seven days ago.

In the first three quarters, the Alouettes drove into the B.C. half of the field only four times.

Coach Perry Moss of the Alouettes said "the one bright note of the evening" was the signing of Harry Lampman.

Lampman is the seasoned Canadian defensive end from Hamilton Tiger-Cats who was supposed to go to the Alouettes weeks ago in a trade that did not jell. He was removed from the Ticats roster.

Doug McNichol, the Montreal player involved in the swap, ultimately signed with the Alouettes after a salary squabble.

The Lions, completing 16 of 18 pass attempts, had Randy Duncan at quarterback for the opening 35 minutes and he mounted a 36-0 lead. Jim Walden and Earl Keeley finished up.

B.C. touchdown scorers were Canadians Norm Fieldgate and Vern Lofstrom and imports Don Vicic, By Bailey, Willie Fleming, Nub Beamer and Walden. Vic Kristopaitis converted all but one and counted a kickoff single.

Howard Cissell, a rookie import halfback, scored Montreal's lone touchdown and homebred Bill Bewley converted.

Montreal's Sam Etcheverry connected on half of his 24 tosses for 113 yards. Understudy Wes Gideon missed on his only pass try.

OTTAWA (CP)—Saskatchewan football fans can only hope their team plays better during the regular season than it did Tuesday night in exhibition. Otherwise, the Roughriders will finish last as they did last year.

Ottawa Rough Riders, Big Four finalists last season, easily mastered Saskatchewan 20-6 before 6,858 sweltering and bored spectators, about the same number as watched Ottawa's inter-squad game last week. With a bit more finesse, Ottawa could have had another three touchdowns at least.

Saskatchewan showed a spark of life in the last quarter and Ray Smith got the westerners' only score.

Little Ron Stewart scored two Ottawa touchdowns, one in the third quarter from one yard out with a sprint around right end and the other with a 60-yard dash through centre on a double reverse in the final quarter. His first touchdown climaxed a 66-yard march in nine ground plays.

ON A PLUNGE

Gerry Nesbitt scored the first Ottawa touchdown on a three-yard plunge in the second quarter, polishing off six ground plays after Bill Sowalski had intercepted Don Allard's pass on the Saskatchewan 32.

Ottawa's other two points came from a 39-yard punt by Jim Conroy on which Bud Curtis was rouged, and on Davey West's convert of the final touchdown.

Seven quarterbacks saw action, four for Ottawa and three for Saskatchewan. None looked bad and two of them, Allard of Saskatchewan and Russ Jackson of Ottawa, outstanding Canadians last season, were pretty polished.

Tied With Deseronto

Flyers, Cats Play 4-4 Tie

By GARRY ALEXANDER

RCAF Flyers kept their playoff hopes alive, as the Belleville and District softball wound up its regular schedule last night, by pulling out a 4-4 tie with the Bobcats at the air station.

The tie enabled the Flyers to tie Deseronto Athletics for the final playoff spot. League secretary Bill Hurst announced after the game that a sudden-death playoff between RCAF and Deseronto would be played at Belleville's CNRA Park tonight at 6.45 p.m. The winners will advance into the playoffs against the Bobcats, the first game of that series to be played at CNR on Friday at 6.30.

Meanwhile Trenton Halloran's and Cobourg Merchants will play their sudden-death playoff, to decide second and third positions at Trenton Thursday night at 8.30 p.m.

Last night's affair was a tight one from start to end. The Flyers took a 1-0 lead in the first and the 'Cats tied it in the fourth. RCAF opened a 4-1 lead in the fifth only to have Belleville roar back with three in the ninth for the final 4-4 score.

Doug Hull's infield hit started the tying rally in the ninth. Faulkner was hit by a pitch and Batchelor singled one run home. Little dropped a sacrifice bunt that chased another across but a bad throw also allowed the tying run to score on the same play.

Bobcats' other run came on Hull's double, a ground out and a wild pitch.

A base-on-balls, passed ball, error and Desimone's long fly got the initial RCAF marker. McDonald's triple, a walk, two errors by Little, Matheson's base hit and Girard's fly bagged the homesters' other trio.

Bob Green gave up four hits, struck out seven and walked three on the 'Cat hilltop. Bob Butterfield allowed five hits for RCAF while whiffing three and walking a pair.

Doug Hull doubled and singled and Johnny Batchelor had two singles to pace Belleville's attack. Lou Smrke had the other base knock.

Harold "Bugs" McDonald topped RCAF with a triple and single. Don Beck and Kim Matheson collected a single apiece.

Attwell is the second player to be loaned to Cleveland by the NHL champions since Barons became an affiliate of Canadiens. Defenceman Moe Mantha was the first. Attwell is a native of Humber Summit, Ont.

Hawk, Hunter Meet Bravos Friday Night

They say it can't be done. In fact they repeat that statement.

It's the Hawk and Hunter wrestling combo speaking, and they're referring to defeat by any tag team in the district.

They've whipped, by hook or by crook, any and every tag combination up around Toronto way — and they state the same goes for Belleville.

The Bravo Brothers Dino and Dominic think otherwise.

In fact they're going all out to prove it here come Friday night in Jack Dickens' new face-lifted Memorial Arena.

The Bravos won the wild, weird and wacky six - man merry - go - round last week and they figure any team that can throw Fred Atkins and Ivan Kalmikoff for a two-fall loss merits something or other.

Friday night they'll get the chance to be the first down thisaway or any other way to make the rough, tough Hawk-Hunter pair say uncle.

They claim they can do it. Hawk - Hunter say they're full of pizza pie. Friday night will tell.

Handsome Mike Valentino is back again. That gives the Italianos a three - man delegation. So is Bob Mandor and Al. Korman.

Right, renewed love — Jane Wyman and Richard Egan portray Aunt Polly and Dr. Chilton, who renew their lost love in "Pollyanna", starring the finest cast ever assembled by Walt Disney.

Roy Harris 7-5 Favorite Over Cleroux

MONTREAL (CP)—Bob Cleroux, Montreal's slouching slugger, squares off against ranking heavyweight Roy Harris of Cut and Shoot, Tex., in a 10-round bout tonight.

If it rains, the 22-year-old French - Canadian will have to wait until Thursday for a chance to advance in his profession.

Promoter Eddie Quinn predicted that with good weather, a crowd of $10,000 will pay $40,000 to see the fight in Delorimier Baseball Stadium.

The weather man predicted scattered thundershowers.

Harris, on the strength of his experience and record against some of the world's best heavyweights, has been made a 7-5 favorite.

The 27-year-old Texan schoolteacher has won 30 fights and dropped only two — to world champion Floyd Patterson and leading contender Sonny Liston.

Lookit Here! Rocky Makes Golf Debut

BALTIMORE (AP) — Rocky Marciano, retired world heavyweight boxing champion, makes his debut in tournament golf today in the professional-amateur division of the $25,000 Eastern Open.

"When I step out on the course it'll be like fighting a four-rounder in a small town," he said in an interview Tuesday. "I want to get used to playing before crowds."

Marciano, from Brockton, Mass., said he was rarely aware of crowd noise during his ring career but it may be different in golf.

"I can already hear those spectators breathing hard and yelling 'Oh' and 'Ah' when a shot is made."

Rocky took to the links about 16 months ago, mainly because of the good golfing weather in Florida. He didn't think he'd like the game.

"But after playing about two months I broke 90 and the golfing bug got me.

"After that I tried to perfect my game and I started doing things wrong. It took me several months to get back in the groove again. My best round has been an 86."

Piersall Seems To Have Changed His Attitude

NEW YORK (AP)—The next time Jim Piersall of Cleveland Indians gets into trouble with umpires he may have to answer to baseball commissioner Ford Frick.

Frick, The Associated Press learned, met Tuesday with Harvey Kuenn and discussed the Piersall situation with the Cleveland player representative. Frick said he will keep close tabs on Piersall the rest of the season.

The matter came up inadvertently when Kuenn visited the commissioner to discuss plans for next year's all-star game.

Frick earlier had talked to American League president Joe Cronin, who had given Piersall a "fatherly" talk Monday after fining him $100 for being ejected, for the sixth time this season, in a game in Boston last Saturday.

Frick had refrained from becoming involved as he felt Piersall's difficulties with umpires was strictly a league matter.

The controversial centre fielder had incurred the wrath of his teammates, who said he was "hurting our pennant chances" with his umpire baiting. After his meeting with Cronin, Piersall promised he would stay out of rhubarbs.

Kuenn told Frick he believed Piersall is earnest about mending his ways and should be given a chance to prove it.

Piersall was on his best behavior Tuesday night as the Indians were beaten 6-1 by New York Yankees. He scored their only run and was cheered by a crowd of 37,632 as he went to bat.

Harness Racing

TORONTO (CP)—Harold Wellwood, whose nephew Bill Wellwood has been doing a remarkable job of driving at Old Woodbine Park through the first three weeks of the current harness race meeting, moves into the sulky himself today. He will drive in the $4,160 Woodbine Trot.

Wellwood has shupped the falo Raceway. He'll drive Hava Julep in the feature's first division and Kintoo Colby in the second division.

The trot has drawn 20 entries, and racing secretary Court Smith has drawn 10 trotters in each division.

FOOTBALL LINEUP

A total of 21 Big Four football games will be televised in the east, and 11 WIFU games in the West, in the 1960 season.

Shirley Temple Gives Reasons For Coming Back to Screen

Written for The Associated Press

By Shirley Temple Black

Two years ago when I came out of retirement to do NBC's Storybook series I was asked a lot of questions about why I decided to come back into the entertainment world. Since I had elected to become a housewife and mother, people asked, then what had tempted me back?

Well, let me say that my reasons then were the same reasons why I am going to be hostess and frequent star of a new TV series this fall on NBC. Of all the offers I have had in the several years since I left Hollywood, these two have been the most appealing in terms of the time I am willing to spare away from my family.

Two words in that last sentence are important to me—time and family. I am a family woman. I think back to the years when I was a child and remember that my parents never let my career interfere with the family relationship of my father, my mother, my brothers and myself. And my most rewarding experiences today are the times I am with my husband and my three children—and nobody else.

DO THE CHORES

People have said to me, "Shirley, you don't need to take care of your own housework — with your money." And my answer to them is "You're right," but also I say "You're wrong," because although we're not poor and we don't have to count costs, we have a stronger family unit because we do the chores together. This fall . . . the format of the series will be designed for the whole family. It's going to embrace a variety of subjects—musicals, dramas, classic children's stories, adventures in wonderlands of space—and all of them geared for the young at heart.

In these shows I am going to act as weekly hostess and will perform in every third presentation. Through the wonders of video tape we've been able to adjust the schedule so I won't have to be away for long.

On the Tracks

FORT ERIE (CP) — Skinny Minny, ridden by Al Coy, won the featured Gyro Club purse at Fort Erie Tuesday.

She came from behind to defeat Bye Bye Bunty by one-half length while Menelodie finished third.

Europe's Top Trotter Starts In Big Race

NEW YORK (AP) — Holland's champion Hairos, leading trotter in Europe after winning six of eight international races, and defending champion Jamin of France were selected Tuesday along with five other foreign horses to start in the second International Trot.

The $50,000 invitational, at a mile and one half, will be run at Roosevelt Raceway on Long Island, Aug. 20.

In addition to Jamin, there also are two Italian stars Tornese and Icare IV. Tornese is the biggest money winning horse in European history.

Others who will compete include Canada's Tie Silk from Montreal. Tie Silk was runnerup in the 1959 Hambletonian, and has been beating some of the best in the United States this year.

The eight-horse field will be completed with a U.S. champion—the winner of the $50,000 American trotting championship Aug. 13 at Roosevelt.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Thursday, July 28

General tendencies: You have a real chance today and tonight to contact one who is on a lofty plane, as stated in your own sign following, to get the benefit of his support and backing by your self adopting a very co-operative attitude, and by going along with him to a much greater success than has been yours ere this. Get going big now.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — If you take that good associate out to some charming spot and talk over your aims and requirements amicably, he, or she will be able to co-operate with you more successfully in the future. Express yourself clearly.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — This is the perfect day to handle all those detailed matters that your family is so anxious for you to take care of. Co-workers can be very co-operative. If you get an early start, you can accomplish a very great deal.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — Take the beauty or health treatments you need early in A. M. Taking the right steps later that will enhance your income will then be very wise. Evening is then fine for going out socially and having a very happy time.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — If you think constructively, you can now get your property improved and also make possible a greater income so that you will soon have an abundance. Act wisely today and insure a more successful future.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — The right day to purchase those small items that will enhance your charm so that you can later get out and impress higher-ups so that you have a greater abundance after dealing with them. Read your paper for ideas, too. P.M. have fun.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — A good day to study into newer methods that will make you more efficient and prosperous. Then put good idea into operation quickly and secretly. P. M. set up a good bookkeeping system for all your needs.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — You must think big today so that you can surely get big in the future. You have been living in too small a world — expand. P. M. relax with your best friends and have a ball.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — You can certainly be very efficient in all civic and career duties today so that you please all concerned. Also, confer with experienced person who will help you to expand your interests. Be grateful.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Be willing to listen now to the ideas of a good comrade who has the know - how and will show you how to get along faster in all of your endeavors. Open yourself up to greater opportunities — you are equal to them.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to June 20) — You can certainly be very efficient in all civic and career duties today so that you please all concerned. Also, confer with experienced person who will help you to expand your interests. Be grateful.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Peruse your daily paper and other periodicals so that you get fine ideas and can be more helpful to associates and in your own business, job or creative interests, and vice versa. Fortunes can be made from your paper.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — Follow your intuition today, since you will be led to new goals and success, especially if you are practical in all that you do. P. M. fine for romantic enjoyment with loved one.

If your child is born today — he, or she will have such an infectious charm that coupled with the detailed talent in this chart will insure a happy and successful future. Be sure you educate and train along the lines that will fit your progeny for work before the public, especially in the entertainment field or the artistic world of desire and adornment. The wonderful home decorator is here, too, as well as the architect — music is also in this horoscope.

TENDERS
LINGHAM LAKE RESERVOIR

The Water Control Advisory Board of the Authority solicits tenders on the proposed repairs and improvements to the Lingham Lake Dam in Grimsthorpe Township. The work will include the installation of a 36" gate valve in a new concrete sill to be placed across the spillway, the replacement of the decking over the spillway, the repair of the spillway facings, etc. The total value of the job is comparatively small and tenders from local contractors are invited.

Information to bidders, forms of tender, specifications, drawings and other documents may be inspected and obtained after July 28th, 1960, at the Belleville Builders' Exchange; at the home of Authority Vice-Chairman, Earl Sager, at R. R. 2, Madoc; by appointment only at the Authority Office, Municipal Building, Cannifton; or by writing to the undersigned at Box 13, Cannifton, Ontario.

Sealed, marked tenders will be received at the Authority Office or received by mail addressed to the undersigned at Box 13, Cannifton, Ontario. Closing date — 12:00 Noon on Wednesday, August 10th, 1960.

G. WISHART, M.Sc.,
Chairman,
Water Control Advisory Board.

AERIAL RIDE — A tourist attraction near the Rocky Mountain resort of Banff, Alta., is the gondola lift up Sulphur Mountain. The gondolas, shown passing in the air during an eight-minute trip along 2,292 feet of rope track, are glass enclosed and seat four passengers. Below the gondolas is a panoramic view of Banff. Owner of the lift, which started operation last year, now plans to build a revolving tea house on top of Sulphur Mountain, 7,486 feet above sea level.

Gondola Lift of 7,486 Feet Opened at Banff Year Ago Becomes Immediate Success

By EDNA BLAKELY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

BANFF, Alta. (CP)—The special fascination that an aerial ride up the side of a mountain holds for most people has made a gondola lift opened here a year ago an immediate success.

More than 90,000 people, most of them tourists visiting this Rocky Mountain resort, have taken the eight-minute ride in a four-passenger, glass - enclosed tram up Sulphur Mountain, which rises to a height of 7,486 feet above sea level.

Most — but not all — have enjoyed the breath - taking panoramic view from the gondola as it made its way 2,292 feet up on a rope track suspended from three towers.

Otto J. Steiner, who manages the project, admits there were some who didn't enjoy the trip. His employees have on occasion opened the doors of what they thought were empty cars only to find people huddled on the floor in terror.

TO BUILD TEAHOUSE

But those with acrophobia notwithstanding, the enterprise has proved a singular success and in September work will begin on a revolving tea house on the top of the mountain. Cost of the whole project, including the lift and teahouse, will be about $700,000.

Mr. Steiner is perhaps well-fitted for his job by reason of his birthplace. A native of Switzerland, he grew up in the shadow of the Alps and is right at home in the Rockies.

He found the Canadian mountains larger though not as high nor accessible as the Swiss Alps.

"There are no trails here and anyway, the people don't walk the way they do in Switzerland" he added.

As a boy he recalls taking mountain hiking trips with his father, five brothers and six sisters.

OPEN COUNTRY

But in Switzerland there was too much private property and hikers were restricted to the paths, he said. "There is so much open country here. You are so free and can go left or right."

Mr. Steiner, who was a tax assessor in Switzerland and had banking and accounting experience in Brussels, left his home in Lucerne with his wife and three children in the fall of 1950. They travelled by freighter to Vancouver.

He had made his first visit to Canada in 1929 when he spent six months farming in Winnipeg and has never regretted coming back.

"There's an enrichment in life in not just seeing two countries but in knowing them."

Now he works as an investment dealer in Vancouver except for the summer months when he makes his annual trek to Banff to run the mountain airlift.

Mrs. W. J. Gray entered the Prince Edward Memorial Hospital on Wednesday for a check-up. Her many friends hope she will soon be at home again.

Mr. Dale Allan and Barry, also Mr. Joe Ellis of Peterborough, spent the weekend as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Allan and Mr. and Mrs. R. Cronk. Barry remained for the week with his grandparents.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Salisbury and Janet and Mrs. Charles Haight of Belleville, spent Sunday with Mrs. E. Crook.

13 Die In Copter Crash At Chicago

Brief Hop Ends In Fiery Death For Victims

Pilot Tried Desperately To Steer From Homes

CHICAGO (AP) — A brief helicopter hop between airports ended in fiery death in a suburban cemetery Wednesday night for all 13 persons aboard.

The helicopter, carrying 11 passengers and two crew members, appeared to stop in the air, witnesses reported, then weaved a moment before plunging earthward.

"It was a big red flash," said Ed Gauger, who from his back porch watched the helicopter sweep in close over the trees and crash four blocks away. State Trooper Henry Pilotto said the craft was afire before it crashed.

BLOCKS APART

The fuselage, containing at least five bodies, ripped into a cluster of tombstones and erupted in white-hot fury. The tail section, with three bodies, was more than two blocks away.

All the victims were men, who came from a half-dozen states. The helicopter shuttle service is used primarily by air travellers who must go from one airport to the other to change flights.

Gauger said he was certain the pilot veered from his regular course to avoid hitting the populated residential area.

"The plane was backfiring... and definitely losing altitude," he said. "My wife shouted, "It's going down." I think the pilot knew something was wrong and was trying to get away from the houses."

FELL OFF

An official of the company, Chicago Helicopter Airways Incorporated, said it appeared the tail section of the helicopter, similar to one used Wednesday by President Eisenhower on a visit to the Republican national convention here, apparently fell off in flight. He said he did not know why.

A 600-foot slash in the tree tops approaching the crash scene indicated the pilot, Robert Meyer, 37, of Worth, Ill., fought desperately to gain altitude until the final moment. Meyer had flown for the line for 10 years.

Fulton Agrees To Strengthen Bill of Rights

OTTAWA (CP) — Justice Minister Fulton announced today that the government has agreed to "strengthen" the anti-discriminatory provisions of Prime Minister Diefenbaker's bill of rights.

He made the announcement to a special Commons committee studying the rights legislation following appeals by Liberal members for such action.

Paul Martin (L — Essex East) told the committee that teeth should be put into the bill to ensure that there is no discrimination in federal fields of jurisdiction against persons because of race, national origin, religion or sex.

UN Secretary Hammarskjold Arrives in Congo

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP)—Cries of "long live free Congo" and "we demand a united Congo" greeted Dag Hammarskjold today on his arrival in this Congo capital for a survey of the infant nation's grave ills.

The United Nations Secretary-General found the young republic rapidly being pacified by UN forces but facing acute economic and political problems.

He flew here from Brussels, where Belgian Premier Gaston Eyskens and other officials bluntly told him to keep hands off Katanga, the rich, secessionist province being policed by Belgian troops.

UN forces control most of the major cities in the rest of the country and there have been no major disturbances reported during the last few days.

Hammarskjold flew to Brazzaville, in the former French Congo, and crossed the Congo River to Leopoldville by launch.

Hog Producers Clear Air in Closed Meeting

TORONTO (CP) — A six-hour closed meeting between the three hog producer organizations and the Ontario Farm Products Marketing Board Wednesday failed to reconcile differences in the province's hog marketing program.

Officials from both sides were reluctant to comment after the long session, except to say the discussions had cleared the air and paved the way for future meetings where a decision might be reached.

The three organizations — Ontario Hog Producers' Association, Ontario Hog Producers Marketing Board and Ontario Hog Producers Co-operative are unhappy with marketing board suggestions.

Hollywood Stars Whack at Sack, Hope to Gabor, All Deplore Dior

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—It seems nearly everybody in this glamor-conscious town—from Zsa Zsa Gabor to Bob Hope—is taking a whack at the sack today.

Movietown's reaction to the House of Dior's new fashions, unveiled in Paris Wednesday, sounded like a depth charge exploding in a kidney-shaped swimming pool.

The outraged glamor girls cry that's just what the new fashions resemble: Somebody's kidney-shaped swimming pool—only a swimming pool has more shape.

The Dior line—featuring bared knees and non-existent waist and bust lines — also left the male stars as hot as Elvis Presley's guitar.

A completely uncientific poll drew these comments:

Teen - age Tuesday Weld—"They're hideous. Those designers must have a grudge against women."

Zsa Zsa Gabor—"Nobody in a sack ever caught a man. Of course, I don't think a woman should show everything she has . . . she should leave some things to the imagination and just let a few friends discover them".

Jerry Lewis—"I'm against any style that makes Marilyn Monroe look like a boy. My personal preference is for dresses that, when a girl walks, it looks like two little boys having a fight under a blanket."

Shirley MacLaine—"It'll be a big year for the farmers—the women will be able to eat anything they want for a year without worrying about their waist line."

Bob Hope—"They ought to put the potatoes back and forget the whole thing. A guy who takes a girl out is entitled to know where things are."

Lucille Ball—"I'm glad I saved my old sack."

Japanese actress Miyoshi Umeki—"Wearing a dress like that is like throwing a rock through a stained glass window."

Jane Mansfield—"Sack dresses are fine for a woman about eight months pregnant." (Jane, a little more than eight months pregnant, is in hospital awaiting her baby any day.)

MAY WITHDRAW CANADIAN FORCES FROM GERMANY

Other Reductions Under Consideration

OTTAWA (CP) — The defence department is studying as a 1961 prospect the withdrawal of part or all of the motoriad Canadian Infantry Brigade Group in West Germany, informants say.

The key to this problem has been for a long time the buildup of the West German Army to its promised strength as a contribution to the North Atlantic Alliance.

A spokesman for the West German Embassy here said this promised buildup will be achieved next year.

Defence Minister Pearkes told the Commons defence committee last month:

"As the German Army is recruited up to strength there will be more German troops available than there are at the present time and the German Army and the German Air Force will be in a stronger position in a few years' time than they are today.

MAKES DIFFERENCE

"That, of course, will make a difference in the percentage of the contribution by the different powers."

"Does this necessarily forecast the inevitable withdrawal of the brigade?" the minister was asked.

"I cannot answer that," Mr. Pearkes replied.

Since then, it has been disclosed that the defence department is looking into the possibility of manpower cuts in the armed forces to provide more funds for new weapons and equipment.

Mr. Pearkes has said major manpower cuts won't be possible without a reduction in commitments of the armed forces.

Canada has supplied a 6,500-man brigade for European ground defence since 1951 as well

Commission Will Investigate Car, Parts Industry

OTTAWA (CP)—A royal commission will be established to investigate the automobile and parts industry, Prime Minister Diefenbaker announced today in the Commons.

He said it is hoped that particulars concerning the commission's powers and its personnel can be announced next week.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the car industry is so important that there should be a comprehensive investigation of its various aspects.

Dominion-Provincial Parley Participants Will Soon Meet Again to Discuss Problems

OTTAWA (CP)—A three-month period of deep thought on federal - provincial fiscal problems begins today for the 11 senior governments of Canada.

They will seek to answer the question, "Where do we go from here?" after current tax-rental agreements expire in March, 1962.

The three - day conference of Prime Minister Diefenbaker and provincial premiers ended Wednesday with a greater degree of personal goodwill among the participants—with one possible exception — than any previous conference of a similar nature.

And to top it all as the most startling aspect of such a conference, the federal government made no commitments, no promises, and no proposals for new tax arrangements. They will be hammered out in the months ahead.

All 10 provincial government leaders left the conference, which will be resumed Oct. 27, with the feeling that they had stated their cases well and with the assurance that their problems will be sympathetically considered.

Premier Smallwood of Newfoundland maintained, however, that his biggest grievance, while aired in the conference, is not part of Dominion-provincial tax agreement bargaining.

He charged the federal government with unilaterally abrogating a promise of the 1949 terms of union between Newfoundland and Canada. A royal commission finding on Term 29, he said, meant continuing annual grants of $8,000,000 from the federal treasury indefinitely.

The grants expire on the same date as the tax - rental agreements, March 31, 1962. But Finance Minister Fleming told Mr. Smallwood in the conference that the federal government is willing to hear his representations that they should continue or something else take their place thereafter.

As chairman of the conference and leader of the federal government delegation, Mr. Diefenbaker gave the premiers no clear indication of federal government policy for the years after 1962.

However, the philosophy of Ottawa's approach appeared to be that some new plan of dividing federal and provincial tax rights and responsibilities should be devised within the strict framework of the British North America Act's division of jurisdiction.

It was learned from an authoritative conference source that the federal ministers will seek ways to make the provincial governments more directly responsible for raising their share of the tax money they spend.

Under existing circumstances, the federal government bears the entire burden of raising all

Nixon Will No Longer Voice Ike's Policies, But His Own

WASHINGTON (AP) — Beginning today, Richard M. Nixon speaks as the leader of the Republican party, expressing "my own views rather than the (Eisenhower) administration position."

The vice-president and Republican presidential nominee used those words in a pre-convention interview.

He said nomination would be a mandate to assume the party leadership and enunciate Nixon's, as distinguished from President Eisenhower's, policies in "the most intensive campaign anyone ever undertook in my lifetime."

Nixon said he will not be critical of the past. "I am proud of my association with the Eisenhower administration and its record of accomplishments."

But "I will be stating my own views. . . . I will be talking of the new administration and looking to the future."

In a wide-ranging discussion, Nixon paid his respects to the political prowess of his Democratic opponent, Senator John F. Kennedy, and said he expects his own drive for the presidency to be a "hard, uphill fight."

He said the election will be one of the closest in history and the outcome may depend on events neither he nor Kennedy can control.

"What happens at home on the economic front, and developments abroad as they effect our hopes for peace, could have a greater impact on the outcome than what the candidates do."

Nixon will spell out his "policies for the 60s" in campaigning in most of the 50 states.

He reserved for the campaign the detailed steps he has in mind on the farm, foreign policy and economic fronts, and the extent to which they might depart from or build on the Eisenhower programs.

But he was willing to share a few glimpses beyond the campaign at what a Nixon administration might be like.

The 47-year-old vice-president, who has exercised unprecedented responsibility in that post, would assign even more duties to his own vice-president, he said, and seek to raise even more the stature of the office.

And Nixon insisted he wouldn't hesitate to pick a Democrat for a key defence or state department post.

"When it comes to foreign policy and national security, I would not be bound by purely party considerations. In picking the ablest men for such posts, I would not be deterred if I thought the best qualified men happened to be active in the other party."

This interview took place Sunday in the living room of the Nixon home in Washington's fashionable Wesley Heights.

Macmillan Braves Criticism By Naming Peer to High Post

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Macmillan braved the strongest wave of criticism in 2½ years at 10 Downing Street Wednesday night by naming a peer as his foreign secretary.

Macmillan's choice of the Earl of Home to succeed Selwyn Lloyd at the foreign office, the principal move in a series of cabinet changes, has been sharply attacked.

Many members of Parliament have protested that appointment of a foreign secretary without a seat in the House of Commons deprives MPs of the opportunity to question him on international affairs.

As a partial answer to their objections, Macmillan gave Labor Minister Edward Heath the sinecure portfolio of lord privy seal, together with the responsibility for dealing with foreign office matters on the floor of the House.

In another move, he restored Peter Thorneycroft and Enoch Powell to the government. Both resigned early in 1958 in a dispute over economic policy.

Thorneycroft returns to the cabinet as minister of aviation. Powell came back in the non-cabinet post of minister of health, succeeding Derek Walker-Smith, who has resigned.

Lloyd became chancellor of the exchequer, replacing Derick Heathcoat Amory who will be granted a peerage on his return to private life.

Another change shifting an unpopular minister out of a hot seat was the appointment of Aviation Minister Duncan Sandys to succeed Lord Home as Commonwealth relations secretary. As defence and aviation minister during the last few years, Sandys has been accused of responsibility for Britain's unsuccessful attempt to develop the Blue Streak missile as a means of delivering a nuclear weapon.

PC ACCUSATION SPARKS FIERY FIGHT IN HOUSE

Says Liberals Gave Answers to Exams

OTTAWA (CP)—Acting State Secretary Balcer will look into a charge that the Liberals gave out answers in advance to friends writing civil service exams.

He said Wednesday he would follow the "proper course" of checking into the charge by Georges Valade (PC—Montreal Ste. Marie).

But Mr. Balcer pointed out that he couldn't order a full inquiry into "every little rumor" that comes up about civil service jobs.

The accusation sparked a fiery fight in the Commons—most of it in French.

Mr. Valade said he wanted to point up the injustice in many cases of the present system of "grading" federal government workers.

However, in his earlier statement he made a specific charge and disclosed the name of one government worker — Sibley Henry of Montreal — who "explained the method used by the former administration to get their friends into the civil service."

Mr. Valade said he was authorized to release Mr. Henry's name and details of the case.

Mr. Henry was classified under the Liberals as an employee of the Montreal ordnance depot. When a civil service competition was organized for the department, Mr. Henry was approached by an official and was given all the answers to the questions on the examination paper, said Mr. Valade.

Hallas Family Returns Home

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Hallas family returned home quietly Wednesday night during a lull in their battle to keep custody of a five-year-old Children's Aid Society ward they raised from infancy.

Mr. and Mrs. Ken Hallas had gone into hiding Tuesday after the society announced it would remove the boy, Bobby, and place him with another family.

Wednesday, Mr. Hallas applied for legal guardianship of the child, who has been with the Hallases since he was nine months old. The Children's Aid Society announced it would not press to have the child returned before a court hearing of the application, set for Aug. 11.

Bobby, whose mother was Roman Catholic, is required by Manitoba law to be placed in a foster home of the same religion. The Hallases, who are Protestant, cared for him while the society sought a permanent home for him.

Virtual European Affairs Minister Added to Cabinet by Macmillan

LONDON (CP) — Prime Minister Macmillan has in effect appointed a minister for European affairs.

This—and not the appointment of a peer to succeed a commoner as foreign secretary—may be the most significant aspect of Wednesday's cabinet changes.

Protests arose when the prime minister went through with a decision to appoint the Earl of Home as a successor to Selwyn Lloyd at the foreign office.

The opposition Labor Party, benchers and most of the press have let fly a wave of criticism over the appointment of a foreign secretary who will not be available in the House of Commons to deal with matters of moment.

Anticipating this, Macmillan appointed able Edward Heath, former minister of labor, as foreign office spokesman in the Commons with special responsibilities for "European affairs in all their aspects."

Labor views Lord Home's appointment as a "gross affront" to the Commons and does not appear to be satisfied with the innovation of a second Foreign Office minister serving in the Commons.

Health's appointment is viewed by some observers as the most important of the changes. His special concern with European affairs will include the problem of the division of Europe into two trading blocs.

It is the first time a foreign office minister of cabinet rank has been charged specifically with this responsibility. It reflects the importance the government attaches to negotiations with the Common Market during the coming years.

Another indication of government intentions is the appointment of tough Duncan Sandys, long in favor of European integration, as Commonwealth secretary. He will have the difficult job of holding the balance between European and Commonwealth affairs.

Two Young Pros Will Battle In Nov. Election

Nixon Had to Overcome Opposition to Get Lodge

CHICAGO (CP) — Vice-President Richard M. Nixon for president and Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge for vice-president will be the Republican party's ticket in the Nov. 8 general election.

"This may be the closest political campaign in history," a subdued and humble Nixon told reporters late Wednesday night after a cheering Republican national convention made official on a single perfunctory ballot what long had appeared inevitable.

The convention nominated Nixon to battle Senator John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts, picked as the Democratic presidential candidate on the first ballot at Los Angeles two weeks ago. Only a few Southern delegates showed any signs of wavering in the party's display of unity for Nixon.

Convention delegates got around to picking the vice-president by an almost - unanimous vote. It took four hours and nine minutes of hoopla and ceremony for the convention to give Nixon 1,321 votes — 666 were needed for nomination — and Senator Barry Goldwater of Arizona 10 votes. Ten determined Louisiana delegates insisted on voting for Goldwater, a right-winger, after he had withdrawn his name. Afterwards, the convention moved to nominate Nixon by acclamation.

PROFESSIONAL FIGHT

Thus in November it will be a battle of two pros in their 40s—Nixon, a 47-year-old Quaker and a relatively poor, self - made politician, against Kennedy, a 43-year-old Roman Catholic from a wealthy and politically - experienced family.

In a post-midnight conference of the party's leaders that lasted 2½ hours, Nixon picked Lodge, the chief U.S. delegate to the United Nations, as his running mate.

It all seemed to work out just as Nixon had planned. Sitting before a television set watching convention antics from his downtown hotel room—with his family by his side—the vice - president seemed a bit overawed at the prospect of trying to step into Eisenhower's shoes. Eisenhower sent him a telegram of congratulations expressing hope he would be able to hand over the reins of office to Nixon next January.

As a youngster, he never dreamed that some day he might be a presidential nominee, Nixon said. He only hoped he would be worthy of Eisenhower's trust. It would be his highest achievement if ever he could emulate Eisenhower's firmness and wisdom.

Then he called about 40 of the party's brass to his side and convinced them that Lodge, product of a wealthy Massachusetts family, would be a suitable vice-presidential nominee.

Lodge is no great guns as a political campaigner and some Republican governors suggested Nixon look elsewhere, perhaps in the midwest, since farm surpluses undoubtedly would be a great issue in the 1960 fight.

But Nixon showed he is in firm control of the party. He argued the 1960 battle would be waged mainly on U.S. foreign policy—and Lodge has a lot of prestige in this field.

Where Kennedy chose to try to appease Southern dissidents by the choice of Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas as his running mate, Nixon bid for eastern internationalist support in both parties with the selection of Lodge.

Lodge is 58, Johnson 51.

As an indication of the importance Nixon attaches to foreign affairs, his office is beginning to build him up as a great world

Federal Govt. Builds Road to Private Empire

OTTAWA (CP) — Douglas Fisher (CCF—Port Arthur) said Wednesday the federal government has helped finance a 60-mile wilderness road that goes nowhere.

He told the Commons that the road runs from Nakina, on the CNR mainline in northwestern Ontario, about 60 miles north to the Anaconda iron ore property at Durer Lake.

Mr. Fisher said this bush road ends—for some people—at a gate erected across it by the Anaconda Company. He said the company is attempting to form a company union for workers on the project and has refused to let other union organizers past the gate.

He said—and Northern Affairs Minister Alvin Hamilton confirmed—that the federal government is contributing one-third of the cost of the road under its roads-to-resources program. The Ontario government and Anaconda also are paying one-third each.

Mr. Fisher had asked in the House Saturday whether the public has free access on roads partly financed by the federal government. Mr. Hamilton replied then that he could "give the member that assurance with every enthusiasm."

Wednesday, when Mr. Fisher pressed the point again, the minister said the road beyond the gate was Anaconda's private property and he doubted whether the federal government could interfere with private ownership.

Mr. Fisher said the federal government was letting itself get into "an almost indefensible position from the public point of view."

He said it boils down to a case of the federal government helping to finance a road into "a private empire of an American company up in Northern Ontario."

"There is a potential here for one of the sharpest issues that has ever come up in ourt part of the country."

Mr. Hamilton said that in future agreements with the provinces on roads-to-resources he will attempt to avoid similar situations.

City and District News

AGAIN REMANDED ON SERIOUS CHARGE

John Raymond Turcotte of Belleville, is scheduled to reappear in magistrate's court on August 5 on a charge of rape.

Crown Attorney John Pringle today told Magistrate T. Y. Wills that Turcotte wanted to get free legal aid.

Bail was set at $3,000 property.

BENCH WARRANT WILL BE ISSUED

A bench warrant was issued today by Magistrate T. Y. Wills for Norman Edward Bennett who was scheduled to appear in magistrate's court on a charge of theft.

Crown Attorney John Pringle told the magistrate it was reported Bennett was in hospital, but Magistrate Wills said that would not stop the issuing of a warrant.

FIREMEN CALLED TO CITY DUMP

The Belleville Fire Department received two alarms yesterday. The first occurred at 12.20 pm. with a call to the city dump to bring a rubbish fire under control.

The second call was received at 2.25 p.m. when a smoking television set alarmed the residents of 308 Victoria Avenue. The smoke was due to a short circuit in the unit and no other damage was sustained.

CHARGE OF BIGAMY AGAINST ACCUSED

Robert James Bowen, 53, of Deseronto, will appear in magistrate's court here August 11 on a charge of bigamy.

The Crown alleges he went through a form of marriage while already married.

Bowen was released on his own recognizance pending his second appearance before Magistrate Wills.

NO TAG DAYS ON 4 SATURDAYS

Mr. Archie Lewis, president of the Belleville United Appeal said today that he has been assured by City Manager J. R. Reynolds that the three Saturdays falling on October 15th, 22nd and 29th and the first Saturday in November, the 4th will not be approved as tag days for any organization. This is in co-operation with the United Appeal, one of whose objects is to eliminate as many tag days as possible through a single annual appeal on the behalf of as many welfare agencies as possible.

LABOR OFFICIAL CONSENTS TO ACT

Arthur Austin, acting president of the Belleville Trades and Labor Council, has offered to fill, on a temporary basis, the position of vice-president of the campaign. This position was left vacant upon the transfer of Mr. James Hunter to Toronto by his firm. Mr. Hunter had held the position in 1959 and 1960.

At the next meeting of the Trades and Labor Council it is expected that a permanent representative will be authorized by this group for appointment to the board of the United Appeal, a United Appeal spokesman said yesterday afternoon.

POLICE FIND BOY'S BIKE

Ontario Provincial Police found an abandoned bicycle, boys' model, on Highway No. 2 east of the city a few weeks ago. The owner can have his property upon identification, by calling at the O.P.P. office on Pinnacle Street.

MORE THAN 246 YACHTS HAVE CALLED AT LOCAL HARBOR

Since the start of this month more than 246 yachts carrying anywhere from two to six or eight people have visited Belleville harbor. The registry book at the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club lists 246 boats which have actually been registered as visitors. Numerous other boats have stayed overnight without their owners signing in, a yacht club official said.

ANAF Veterans Enjoy Picnic At Cedardale

Approximately 800 members, wives, children and friends attended the annual picnic of the Army, Navy, Air Force Veterans in Canada, Unit 201, held at Cedardale beach recently. Buses and private cars carried the picnickers to the grounds, where the bright sun and warm weather made a perfect day for the outing.

The ice cream and cold drink stand was the busiest spot on the grounds and it was besieged time and time again by the small fry and some not so small.

The feature attraction of the afternoon was the challenge softball game between the CNR Firemen, coached by Red Carmichael, and the ANAF team, coached by Harold "Casey" Dracup, with the Army and Navy Air Force team emerging victorious by an 18 to 12 score after a hard fought and noisy game.

Shortly after the lunch period races were held for the children and the results were as follows:

Girls 7-8, Brenda Sweet, Bev Watch, J. Denvan; boys, 7-8, Paul Hannah, Paul Vinkle, L. Branton; girls 9-10, J. Wood, M. Campbell, S. Smith; boys 9-10, G. Pruss, W. Muir, R. Hannah; girls 11-12, L. Fraser, C. Chisholm, S. Spice; boys 11-12, Jerry Muldoon, J. Muldoon, S. White.

Attendance prizes were drawn for and these were won by M. Butcher, M. Wilson and D. Cronkwright.

Warm water, sandy beach and swimming rounded out a most enjoyable day and the thanks of all go to those who worked so hard to make it so successful, Stan Melbourne, Dick Burns, Norm Mills, Fred Law, Charles Featherstone and a host of others too numerous to name.

At approximately 6.00 p.m. the buses started back to Belleville followed by those in cars and another ANAF picnic drew to a close.

Two Men Die, Five Injured In Car Crash

EXETER (CP)—Two men were killed and five teen-agers injured Wednesday night in a two-car head-on collision on Crediton side road near this community 20 miles west of Stratford.

Killed were Arthur Peachy, 20, of Goderich and Pte. Michael Longe Ryan of the RCR regiment at Camp Ipperwash, drivers of the cars.

All the teen-agers injured were in Peachy's car. Injured were Jim Reid, 15, head concussion; Joan Davis, 15, a broken left arm; Patricia Boutilier, 15, head and neck injuries; Wayne Rumig, 15, a fractured arm; Gary Doak, 15, shock. All are from Goderich.

THE CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY
IS ANXIOUS TO OBTAIN
FOSTER HOMES
FOR A NUMBER OF TEEN-AGE GIRLS WHO WILL BE ENTERING SECONDARY SCHOOL THIS FALL.

It is essential that these homes be located in the City of Belleville or in the close proximity. These are normal, healthy youngsters of good intelligence. They present no problems out of the ordinary. All have been in the care of the Society for a number of years.

Being a foster parent to a child of this age has many compensations. It offers:

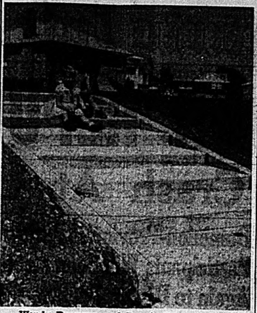
—the companionship of a young adult
—assistance with the normal routine of the home

—$35.00 per month maintenance — the Society is responsible for clothing, medical and dental care, hospitalization, spending allowances, etc.

—opportunity to discuss the child's progress with an experienced and skilled caseworker, who in turn receives professional supervision.

—the satisfaction that comes from knowing that you are contributing to the future well being of someone less fortunate than yourself.

If you are married, in good health, between the ages of 25 and 55, and would like to learn more about what is involved telephone Belleville, WO 8-5704 between the hours of 8.30 and 4.30 Monday to Friday and ask for Mr. Adamson. He will be pleased to discuss it with you and tell you of some of the pleasureable experiences of foster parents presently caring for older children.



Wendy Rogerson and Dennis Bowman "try out" the new cement steps in Champlain Park, installed by the Trenton Parks Board. Champlain Park is the responsibility of board member Clyde Mason.

FLOODS HIT POLAND

WARSAW (Reuters) — Polish authorities appealed to the public Wednesday to join the fight to build river defences against the country's worst flood disaster in more than 20 years. The appeal came as the rain-swollen Vistula and Oder Rivers spilled over their banks into towns, villages and farmlands in many parts of south Poland.

Parks Board Discusses Only Routine Matters

TRENTON — Routine matters of park maintenance were discussed Tuesday night when four members of the Board of Park Management E. M. Parker, William Ireland, C. Mason and Miss M. Baker met.

It was decided to hire a man for a few weeks to do painting and repair work required in the parks which did not come under the regular park maintenance contract.

Bart Boers reported that repairs to the sprinkler system had been completed and it was now in operation.

New picnic tables have been placed in Hanna Park. The possibility of clearing small areas in the park for picnic use was discussed. This would mean additional use of the park road and grading of this road will be looked after immediately. Mr. Boers reported that gravel had been placed on some parts already. But who needs a road? The mosquitos are almost large enough to fly picnickers in and out.

Mr. Mason reported on the poor condition of the Mount Pelion Road. This too will be graded as soon as possible.

Miss Baker advised the board that she had obtained a copy of the Parks Assistance Act (1960) from the Department of Planning and Development. She briefly outlined the provisions contained in it, explaining points which made it impractical for the board to consider requesting assistance under this act for the Trenton Parks system. The members agreed and the material was filed for future reference.

The lower Hanna Park Road bordering the Prince Charles school parking lot will be lowered by the Board of Education. This road, which was established several years ago with a view to opening up the Hanna Park Extension, is considerably higher than the school grounds with resulting flooding of the parking lot whenever heavy rains come on.

Service Clubs Form Council

TRENTON — Representatives from Trenton service clubs and one from the RCAF Association met this week to form an inter-service club council, which will promote continuity in service club projects.

The following representatives were elected to the council: Fred Preston, Trenton Rotary Club; T. E. Bedford, Lions Club; G. Carr, Kinsmen's Club; A. Perry, Kiwanis Club and H. R. McCaughley, RCAF Association.

One function of the council will be to work out a system whereby conflicting dates for fund-raising drives by service clubs and other organizations, as well as the overlapping of the celebration of special events, may be avoided.

CAT CLAWS BOY

BRAMPTON (CP)—Glen Savage, four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. William Savage of Brampton, suffered severe gashes to his face and head when attacked by a cat here Wednesday. Forty three stitches were needed to close his wounds which included a pierced eye lid and loss of part of one ear.

Chas. B. Meyers, Sidney Twp., Dies in Hospital

Charles B. Meyers, Trent Road, an aged and highly respected resident of Sidney township, died in the Belleville General Hospital at noon on Wednesday following a long period of failing health. He was a patient in the hospital for the past five weeks.

Mr. Meyers was born in the township in which he spent his entire life and contributed to the social, church and municipal life of the community through the years. He was born 88 years ago, being the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alva Peter Meyers. He was a successful farmer and much of his energy was expended on fruit growing. His apple orchard was always a pleasing sight as one passed it on the highway. In his younger life he was most interested and active in the cheese industry and served the Bayside cheese factory for many years as its president. He was also honored with the presidency of the Belleville Cheese Board, when that organization met in this city.

He took a keen interest in the municipal life of his community. He served as a councillor of the township but was forced to resign in 1914, when he moved for a short time to reside in this city. Mr. Meyers was a member of Bayside United Church and was always willing to assist in all work of the congregation. He was a kindly man, a worthwhile neighbor and a sincere friend to a wide circle, who will sincerely regret his death.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. John R. (Vera) Reid of Trenton, Mrs. James (Doris) Crosby of R. R. 3 Belleville, and one son, F. Glenn Meyers of R. R. 1, Foxboro. His wife, the former Edna W. Ross, died some years ago.

The funeral will be held on Friday afternoon from the Weaver Funeral Home in Trenton, with interment at White's cemetery.

MRS. WILLIAM B. MacALPINE

Byron, Ont.

A funeral service was held Wednesday at the White Funeral Home, Deseronto, for Sarah Elizabeth MacAlpine, 477 Blake Street, Byron, Ont., widow of William E. MacAlpine. She was 74 and had been in failing health for some time.

Canon Stanley Coleman of St. Mark's Anglican Church, Deseronto, officiated at the service. Burial took place at Deseronto cemetery.

Bearers were: Ed Roach, Tom Bowen, Hugh Sharpe, Ernie Luck, Charles Gray and Eric Gustafson.

Mrs. MacAlpine, a native of Nova Scotia, and daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Fletcher, is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Thomas (Clara) Scott, 477 Blake Street, Byron, and one sister, Mrs. Madelyn MacDonald of Halifax.

Mrs. MacAlpine had lived at Byron for the past 18 months, prior to which she had resided at Montreal and Deseronto.

MRS. BERNARD O'RAY

Trenton

Requiem Mass was celebrated Wednesday in St. Peter's Roman Catholic Church for Margaret Mary O'Ray, 212 Front Street, wife of Bernard O'Ray.

Mrs. O'Ray died Monday in Trenton Memorial Hospital at the age of 68 years, following an illness which began in April.

Mass was celebrated by Rev. B. F. O'Neill, assisted by Rev. W. H. Dunphy as deacon and Rev. D. MacDonald as sub-deacon.

Bearers were: Vincent McAuley, Wilford McAuley, Patrick McAuley, James Coughlin, Joseph McAuley and Francis O'Ray.

Interment was in Mount Calvary cemetery.

Mrs. O'Ray, a native of Frankford and daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John McAuley, had lived in the Trenton district for the past 42 years.

In addition to her husband, she left three daughters, Mrs. Gordon (Rita) Coughlin and Mrs. Joseph (Betty) Hastings, both of Trenton, and Mrs. Albert (Catherine) Gagnier of Ottawa; two brothers, John McAuley, Frankford, and Francis McAuley, Flint, Mich., and fifteen grandchildren. She was predeceased by her brother, Leo McAuley.

Mrs. O'Ray had been a member of St. Peter's Altar Society and the Catholic Women's League.

ARTHUR E. SOUTHWORTH

Frankford

Arthur Edmund Southworth of Frankford was buried in the village cemetery Tuesday following a funeral service in Frankford United Church. The Rev. Charles Judd officiated.

A quartet sang "I Will Be True to Thee".

Bearers were Sidney Martin, George Spencer, Milford McAuley, Jack Farley, H. J. Madill and Thomas Burkitt.

Legion and Masonic services were held Monday night in the Rowe Funeral Home.

Mr. Southworth died Sunday in Cobourg General Hospital. He was 72.

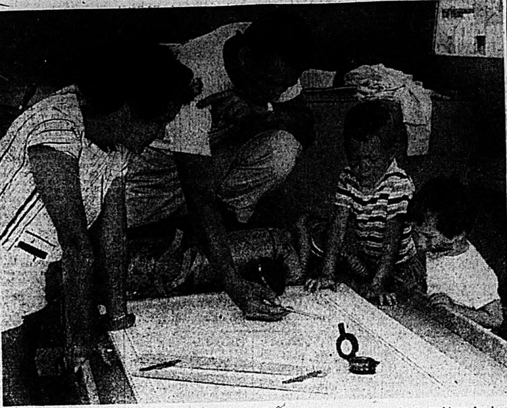
Alonzo Potter Found Drowned

PICTON (Special) — The body of Alonzo Potter, 82, of Fawcettville near this town was recovered from the Bay of Quinte near here this morning.

The drowned man had been missing since five a.m. and circumstances warranted a search.

Bud and George Gorsland found the body in four feet of water about 15 feet offshore, same distance down the harbor from the Prince Edward Yacht Club.

Coroner Dr. C. R. Richmond said no inquest will be necessary.



FAMILY PLANS — The Grants plot out their next diving location around the chart table of "Searcher I". From left to right are: Lea, Geoff, Raymond and Angela, as they concentrate on the chart markings for local waters.

ANCHORS APLENTY — The results of a recent dive on the wreck of the "Minnie Blakely" in the Bay of Quinte are these old anchors which Raymond Grant and his father, Geoff, are looking over on the deck of "Searcher I", a converted fishing boat.

Belleville Livestock

Trade was steady on cattle. Prices on calves were $2 to $3 per hundred lower. Lambs were $2 to $3 per hundred lower. Fat hogs, sows and boars were steady. Weaned pigs were steady and shoats $1 to $2 per hundred higher. Springer cattle were about steady with last week.

Following are quotations:

Choice steers 22; good steers 20 to 22; medium 18 to 20; common 16 to 18.

Good heifers 18 to 20; medium 17 to 18; common 15 to 17.

Good cows 16 to 17. Heifery cows as high as 17 1-2; medium 14 to 16; common and cutters 11 to 14.

Good heavy bologna bulls 17 to 18; medium 16 to 17; common 14 to 16.

Choice veal 25 to 27; good 23 to 25; medium 21 to 23; common 19 to 21; boners 14 to 18.

SCUBA Enthusiasts Search For Old Wrecks in Quinte Bay

Among the visitors to Belleville harbor during the past couple of days were the Grant family of Toronto aboard "Searcher I." Geoffrey and Lea Grant are two SCUBA diving enthusiasts and, together with their two children Raymond and Angela, are making a tour of the waters around Presqu'ile Point and the Bay of Quinte, diving for old wrecks.

In the bay they searched around the hulk of the "Minnie Blakely" in the waters off Pt. Anne and recovered various anchors and a boothook. Although searching for an anchor recently lost by a local yachtsman at the time, the Grants found almost every type of anchor possible except for the one being sought.

Near the waters of Weller's Bay, across from Presqu'ile they came across the wreck of the "Ida Walker," a grain ship which sank over 100 years ago. Several pieces of ornate silver tableware were found, together with pieces of old crockery and wickerware.

Actually the Grants are looking for the wreck of the ship "Speedy," which disappeared off Presqu'ile Point in the midst of a November gale almost 200 years ago. The ship, which was lost with all hands, was carrying a large number of dignitaries and officials, who were to establish a seat of government in Upper Canada. So far no trace has been found of this ship and it was believed to have run onto the shoals southwest of the point while attempting to gain the leaside of the land during the snow storm.

As no one has yet reached or located the "Speedy," if she is on the bottom of Lake Ontario, the Grants hope to be the first and each summer they spend a part of their holidays following this quest. They also take time to look at a few other interesting wrecks, however, since the waters around the western approach of the Murray Canal are rich in the history of early sailing on the Great Lakes.

Foxboro Breaks 14-Game Losing Streak

Foxboro broke a 14-game losing streak last night when they shaded Read by a close 5-3 score, in the final game of the schedule.

The winners exploded for four runs in the third inning and scored the clincher in the sixth. Read scored once in the first and added a pair in the third.

Soup Campbell went the route for Foxboro whiffing seven and walking six while limiting Read to three hits.

B. Hanley hurled fine four-hit ball striking out eight and walking two.

Gordon Parker paced the winners with two doubles while Ralph Plane had a triple and Glenn Reynolds a single.

Colley hit a two-run homer for the losers in the third while Brennan and McMechan came through with singles.

Robbers Take Only First Class Bags of Mail

SIMCOE (CP) — Police are searching for three robbers who apparently knew what they were looking for when they robbed a mail truck near Vanessa, about 10 miles northwest of here Wednesday.

A man jumped on either side of a London-to-Brantford mail truck when it stopped at the highway crossing. They forced driver Harold Bonnet of Brantford to drive to a gravel pit 1½ miles away where they bound and gagged him, locking him in the back of the truck. One of them had a gun.

Then they drove off in a waiting car, taking 16 bags of first-class and registered mail. They left between 30 and 40 bags of other mail behind.

The first-class mail bags differ from the others only in the type of locks upon them.

"They seemed to know what they were doing," Mr. Bonnet said. "They only took the right bags and they must have known when I passed that intersection."

When the robbers left Mr. Bonnet forced his way out of the truck with an iron bar and notified police from a nearby farmhouse.

Police said Wednesday they had a "couple of leads" but declined to elucidate.

"Lines on Life"

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

Anyone knows that in the deepest sense all people are alike.

What concerns us is that too few realize how much each group is a part of the common culture because it has a culture of its own.

"If a man strikes many coins from one mold," the rabbis of old once taught, "they all resemble one another, but the King of Kings, the Holy One, blessed be He, fashioned every man in the stamp of the first man, and yet not one of them resembles his fellow. Therefore, every single person is obliged to say: 'The world was created for my sake . . .'"

The lesson is clear. When we recognize that each man is a distinct personality, possessing a self that is his very own, we understand more poignantly than ever, that we too, possess a uniqueness which is equally true of the group, and of the faith group. Each has something precious it wants to do and to say, to think and to believe. Each is struck from the same mold, and yet each is different.

Truly to understand this, we must avoid the glibness of extreme in our thinking We must discard the naive view which recognizes that all men are equal and yet sees no meaning in any of their differences

The difference of the various groups and religions have helped to challenge men's minds and souls.

These differences have stimulated the advance of thought and rise of civilization. Truly, without them, there would be no meaning to the similarities.

But we must also steer clear of jumping to the inane conclusion that although all men are equal our own group is "more equal" than any other. We are all commanded to "love thy neighbor, as thyself." Add to love, knowledge and understanding and see how the commandment reads.

If we know and understand our neighbors, we also get to know and understand ourselves. The man who knows only his own code, his own group, his own faith, does not really even know these.

The man who sees nothing of value in the tradition of others, probably has not penetrated the highest reachings and insights of his own tradition.

Rabbi Hillel once said: "If I am not for myself, who will be for me; but if I am for myself, what am I?"

For Jews, Catholics and Protestants to achieve a sacred life, this is the spirit in which they must approach the sacred lives of one another.

MR. WESLEY C. DOWNS

McCormick & Stork Realty Ltd., 90 Station Street, Belleville, announced today an extension of the Rural Division of their company with the appointment of Mr. Wesley C. Downs of Brighton as Rural Manager, covering the farm and county area.

Mr. Downs brings a wealth of knowledge and experience to his new position, and is well known through the district. He is a graduate of Kemptville Agricultural School; Past Secretary of the Northumberland County Federation of Agriculture; Past President of the Ontario Junior Farmers' Association; and since 1957 has been Farm Appraiser for the Junior Farmers' Loan Association.

In making the announcement, Mr. McCormick stressed the fact that the appointment of Mr. Downs as Rural Manager, meant a definite expansion of McCormick & Stork's Rural Real Estate service to the public.

RECOVERY MONEY

PRINCEVILLE, Que. (CP)—Provincial police have recovered all but about $150 of the $19,500 stolen in a holdup of a Banque Canadienne Nationale branch last Friday, bank manager Paul Dufour said Wednesday. The five men who staged the robbery in this quiet village 50 miles southwest of Quebec City are still at large, but police are following a fresh lead.

New Taxes Not Easy To Levy

We find it is difficult to believe that Premier Leslie Frost meant precisely what he is reported to have said, at a press conference at which he defended his demand that the provinces receive half of personal income and corporation taxes.

We are told that Mr. Frost declared that the federal government should have no difficulty getting other revenue, to replace that diverted to the provinces under Mr. Frost's plan, because the federal regime has "immense powers of taxation in the direct and indirect fields."

We are not disputing Mr. Frost's assessment of the federal government's taxing powers, but we do feel most strongly that any person who believes that any government should have "no difficulty" increasing revenue by new or higher taxes is minimizing the full extent of our present taxation problem.

Governments, at all levels, are in danger of killing the goose that lays the golden egg if they do not move with caution in levying new or increased taxes. Not all taxes which a government has the power to levy can be levied without any serious effect on our economy, and therefore on the yield from these taxes.

Mr. Frost's plan would deprive the federal government of five-twelfths of its present revenue from personal income taxes and three-eighths of its present revenue from corporation taxes.

Since the present yield of these two taxes is approximately $3,370,000,000, and since half this amount would be $1,685,000,000 compared with the total of $563,000,000 provided under the present tax-sharing formula, it would seem that the federal government would have to find an additional $1,122,000,000 from new taxes.

Mr. Frost may be on sound ground, theoretically, in demanding half of personal income taxes. The province, and the municipalities, can make out a sound case for the argument that they do at least as much for the individual payer of income tax as does the federal government.

When it comes to corporation taxes, though, it is surely self-evident that the location of a company's plant is no certain indication as to the source of its revenue. Many companies located in Ontario derive the greater part of their revenue from other parts of Canada. All but the very smallest companies obtain some revenue from outside the province. Other provinces might reasonably demand to know by what right Mr. Frost claims half of the taxes on profits of corporations located in the province. A much more equitable plan would appear to be to use this revenue to provide that "generous treatment" to the Atlantic provinces which Mr. Frost advocates and to assist other provinces, too, to provide services at or near the standard of that achieved by Ontario and Quebec.

Backlash

The Financial Post estimates that before the year is out Canadians will be paying 15 per cent more for sugar—and all because of Uncle Sam's quarrel with Castro.

The U.S. has cut imports from Cuba and is purchasing sugar elsewhere. Cuba is selling to Russia and Communist China sugar which would normally have been sold to the U.S. The net result of the U.S. attempt to impose economic pressure on Castro is therefore going to be an increase in the demand for sugar and it is elementary that increased demand means a higher price.

We have no idea how, if at all, Canada could avoid paying a higher price for the sugar it needs—but we are firmly of the opinion that if there is any way at all of acquiring the necessary supplies at the former price this ought to be done. There is no good reason why the Canadian consumer should help foot the bill for Uncle Sam's quarrel with Cuba.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

GOD'S TRUE FAVORITES

Whom does the Lord love?

No one can presume to explain the mind of the Lord, but certain teachings of His word make it possible for us to speak about some divine attitudes with considerable conviction. Taken all in all, it would seem that the people whom God loves most are those who give.

"God is love." Thus does the Bible define God for us — and describe Him. But His love is not a sentimental type of thing. It is not the type of emotion a boy has for a girl, or that husband and wife have for each other, or that parents have for children or that noble men have for their country. It is something much greater than this. As high as the heavens are above the earth, so much higher is God's love than our love, so much more significant is the workings of His purpose than the working of our purpose.

God's demands are that we give Him certain things. In fact, He demands that we give Him everything. We are to put all things in His hands. But this He demands not because like earthly tyrants He is overwhelmed with the desire to rule. He demands that we give Him all in order that He may use all that we are and possess both to His glory and to our full happiness.

God's love is a giving love. If our love is true, it is a giving love. It is not a love which thinks of self, but a love which thinks of others.

God loves the givers.

Enjoying Self Holds Secret Of All Joy

By SIDNEY HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices:

Love creates vitality; infatuation only produces inertia and the best way for young couples to distinguish between the two is by asking themselves if their mutual feeling turns them inward upon themselves or outward upon the world.

The fox blames the trap, not his own predatory habits, for his predicament; likewise, the criminal blames the legal system, and overlooks the fact that he placed his paw where it did not belong. Nine convicts out of ten complain of a 'bum rap", but who condemns his own bum character?

"Passionate hatred can give meaning and purpose to an empty life', observed Eric Hoffer; and that brief sentence does more to explain bitter bigotry than all the lengthy sociological studies on the subject.

Nobody can be "given" an education in any school; he can only be given the tools of education, and taught how to use those tools for a lifetime; and those whose "education" stops at graduation have wasted their time and their parents, money.

When a joke persists in striking you as funny, you will find that, at bottom, it is much more than a joke; true humor, like genuine art, has a kind of immortality, for both are founded on moral insight.

Ignorance never hurt anyone as much as error; what we don't know rarely tumbles us into catastrophe, but what we know inacurately often does.

We condescendingly speak of the "Dark Ages" as something in the past; yet I am convinced that a few centuries from now society will look back upon the twentieth century as a bleak revival of the Dark Ages, and doubly dark because we now have the knowledge and the instruments for promoting human welfare that were lacking a thousand years ago.

When parents can give little else, they give elaborate presents; the line between a gift and a bribe to a child is hair-thin.

Some men are so busy calculating the odds on life that they fail to make a bet until the race is half over, and their wager is refused.

The phrase "enjoying yourself" contains the secret of all joy; for unles one can really enjoy oneself (that is, be pleased or content with one's own personality), one cannot enjoy anything else for very long; and those who must skip compulsively from pleasure to pleasure have not achieved the enjoyment of self.

Atkinson On Festival

Ottawa Citizen

Many Canadians will take pleasure in the fact that Mr. Brooks Atkinson, retiring drama critic for the New York Times and one of the best in his field anywhere, should have chosen Canada's Stratford Festival for his last assignment. They will take even more pleasure from what he says about it. His final article opens thus:

"Like all acting organizations, the Stratford, Ont., Shakespearean troupe reveals certain inequalities as it moves from one play to another, but essentially, it is the finest group of classical actors in North America. It has sustained form and style. For eight seasons it has developed in one tradition around a bold stage that sets the mode of the acting. The platform stage retains the main values of the Elizabethan theatre. There is no scenery to distract the theatre-goer or to hide the actor. He is always out there in the open without defences except acting ability.

"Over the years this artistic discipline, added to the artistic enterprise of Tyrone Guthrie and Michael Langham as the principal directors, has developed a company that can find something interesting in any play and give some of them great pith and movement. The style of acting and producing has organic unity. It is always a stimulating experience to participate in this festival.

Mr. Atkinson should know; he has been following Canada's Stratford Festival from the beginning.

It is well to have judgments from outside the country, for the sake of perspective, and all the more pleasant when they are kind.

A letter has been received in the city from Walter Gerow, Sr., Belleville baseball player and coach in the days when this city boasted of powerful and colorful diamond teams, who is at present coaching the Kirkland Lake in the Nickel Belt League. Walter wants it known that he went north at the request of the Kirkland Lake Club and was assured of his coaching position before he ever left Napanee. The Kirkland Lake Club practise every afternoon when they are not playing baseball, which means pretty much of a fulltime job of baseball for Walter, but knowing the elongated Belleville veteran as we do, he just couldn't get too much baseball.

Ontario Law Hypocrisy

Brantford Expositor

In the six years Ontario has had a law forbidding hotel, resort, restaurant and shop owners to refuse accommodation or service to anyone on the grounds of color, race, creed or nationality, 78 complaints have been investigated, but there has been not a single prosecution. Yet everyone knows that discrimination is being practised widely especially in resort areas.

In one recent instance three American Negroes who held reservations obtained by mailed request accompanied by a cash deposit, failed to secure the accommodation on arrival. There is also evidence that some resort owners have pleaded "Full up" to letters bearing Jewish names asking for specified accommodation on specified dates, yet have booked exactly the same type of rooms for the same dates in response to later letters bearing non-Jewish names.

Officials of the Labor Department, which administers this law, say that in "some" of the 78 investigated cases complainants had "misjudged" the reasons accommodation was not available to them. That may be so. Put what of the outcome in the other cases on which the department is silent? It is unbelievable that in none of these was there no ground for prosecution.

There is a law to stop discrimination yet it still goes on, and not a single offender has yet paid a penalty for his defiance. Defiance, not ignorance, it must be, for the annual report of the Labor Department issued a month ago states that a brochure it issued explaining the law has been "widely circulated".

Departmental policy, it is further explained, is to emphasize education and persuasion of resort owners to stop discriminating. Obviously the law is not being enforced, and equally obviously persuasion is not effective. This reduces the Act to little more than window-dressing.

The real culprits for this continuing state of affairs are not resort owners, who must have a care for the attitudes of their non-colored, non-Jewish clientele or risk bankruptcy. The blame rests squarely on the general public which with few exceptions pay lip service to non-discrimination while privately approving it. That is something the vote-conscious legislators thoroughly understood when they passed this law. It looks well in the book, and it's fine to quote as evidence of our enlightened state of mind. But in reality it is a piece of hypocrisy.

Folksy Tale Of Bathtub

Hamilton Spectator

There was something nice and folksy about the story sent to The Peterborough Examiner a week or so ago by its correspondent in Port Hope, where we think it must have inspired a lot of interest.

The story was told about a lady observing two itinerant males making use of a tub of water in her neighbor's back yard. First she saw the men — hitchhikers —knock on the neighbor's front door. They got no response, and walked around to the rear of the house. There they discovered a tub of clean rain water. They returned to the road, at the side of which they had left a large travelling bag, and from it they removed soap, towels, a razor and a mirror.

Then they went back to the tub near the house, hung the mirror on the wall, shaved, and had a good clean-up with the tub of water — and left. When the report reached the absent owner, she said the tub was used by her daughter to bathe the family dog; the rain had come quickly, before it could be emptied.

A simple story, so simple in fact that some might wonder why it was printed at all — no bloodshed, no crime, no politics. Yet it has an appeal and amusement value, though a few might say, "They had their nerve; I'd have called the police!" But there should be sympathy for foot travellers. Even if there is room in the inn, not all pedestrian knights of the road can afford hotel or motel rooms with hot showers.

Some people love the sight and sound of birds so much they build elaborate concrete baths to attract them. But in this motor age, hospitality doesn't extend very often to strange but fellow humans. Most of us wouldn't blame the Port Hope lady for feeling lucky she didn't have an outdoor swimming pool — and shame on us!

Warning to Men

St. Thomas Times-Journal

The International Fashion Council forecasts that by 1965 men will be wearing suits with three-quarter sleeves, coats without lapels and cuffless and tapering trousers. In other words, here's a five-year advance warning and what are the men going to do about it?

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

PREVENTING ACCIDENTS TO ELDERLY FOLK EVERYBODY'S JOB

There are thousands of serious injuries to older people that can be avoided. Of that there is no doubt.

Of course we can't avoid all of them. But simple precautions, most of which don't cost anybody a cent, will pay enormous dividends.

The suggestions I offer are not mine. They are from leaflets recently produced by the National Safety Council.

What old people can do to prevent injuries:

Don't try to get up quickly from sitting or lying - down position. Take it slowly. It will help prevent those momentary dizzy spells.

Ask someone else to help, instead of trying to climb, or reach, or lift heavy things. Be proud of having grown old and remaining still active, but don't let pride make you take chances.

Hold onto railings on the stairs, etc. That's what they're for.

Don't give in to the temptation to slide into some old slippers. They don't give firm footing. Instead, wear shoes and keep the laces tight.

It's better to get dressed, too, instead of lounging around in a loose robe or dressing gown which can catch on things and cause a stumble.

Watch out for loose sleeves. Perhaps they can be pinned snug, or held with rubber bands. But loose sleeves, besides snagging, may dangle too close to the flame of a stove or heater.

For others in the house:

Keep commonly - used articles on shelves or hangers between hip and eye level, to prevent need for stooping or reaching.

If there is any doubt about an older person's eyesight, have it checked periodically. Poor eyesight contributes to many an accident. (And periodic checkups are a wise means of detecting glaucoma, cataracts or other defects which may be starting.)

Use that "ounce of precaution" and get rid of throw rugs, loose lamp cords, footstools, toys or other "tripping hazards" in any area in which anyone walks.

Keep stairs well lighted— especially be sure that the light is on the stairs. A lot of light at the top of a stairwell isn't of great value if the steps themselves are in shadow.

See that beds and chairs used by older folk are low enough so feet easily touch the floor, yet high enough so it isn't a great effort to stand up.

"Grab bars" for bathtubs and showers are an excellent investment. (You don't have to be old to slip in the tub, either.)

Especially if an older person tends to be forgetful, watch out for stoves, irons and other appliances that may be left on. And make sure gas stoves are not turned on — without being lighted.

If extra heaters are in use (old people often require more warmth) be sure they are approved for safety. In addition make sure that a window or door to the room is kept at least a little way open for ventilation.

There are other things you can do to promote ease and safety and if you have that goal in mind, it will be much easier to recognize them.

"Dear Dr. Molner: My son had chickenpox a while ago and I was told to make sure he didn't catch cold as it might make him sterile. I had never heard this before.—Mrs. H.N."

Your informant confused chickenpox with mumps. Occasionally mumps can affect both testicles, and be a factor in sterility later. If only one testicle is involved, sterility does not occur. But chickenpox does not do this.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Is it possible for a married couple to have three children with different blood types?—A.D."

Yes, three different combinations can do so. And one pairing (Type A and Type B) can have children of any of the four possible types.

'Unsuitable' As a Soldier

St. Thomas Times-Journal

John Bromley, of West Bromwich, Birmingham, is 19 years old, wants to join the British army. He passed medical examination and education tests and had no police record, therefore he appears to be just the kind of material the army wants. He fully expected to be admitted to the artillery, but three days after passing the tests he received a letter from the recruiting centre that he was 'unsuitable.'

There was no other explanation, and his father went to the officer in charge and asked why his son was "unsuitable." He was told that John was not acceptable because he was one of a large family — six daughters and two sons — and it is War Office policy to reject applicants who came from a large family because "they might be volunteering for the wrong reasons."

Without enlarging on that, it implied that Bromley might not be getting sufficient food and care (he had a job as a mill - worker) and sought to join the army in order to obtain food, lodgings, clothes and wages — good wages at that.

The Bromley boy's parents regard the letter as an insult and Mr. Bromley invited army representatives to investigate his son's home life. Even if their explanation was true the lad's anxiety to join the army stamps him as a promising recruit.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

"I AM SO LITTLE"

I once received a letter that read like this: "I would like to do so many big things, but I am so little. I want to help, but I don't know the way'.'

All things are big or little but relatively. The Earth is very big — but there are thousands of other bodies like the Earth that are so much bigger. The Sun is a giant beside the Earth.

It isn't the bigness of things or of people that counts, but the way in which the best use of one's ability fits into the scheme of the world. As to helping, that is a task that may be done at any time and in any place.

There is so much to do. That's about the only discouraging thing about a brief life in the body — there is so little time in which to do so many things. But if we do all that we are able in the time allotted to us, there need be nothing to worry us. You can be quite big — right where you are!

The piccolo is the smallest instrument played in a band — but just let its player get off on the wrong key once and note the expression on the bandmaster's face. It's the way we play the game that counts!

Do many little things and you will be growing into big things. That is the way the biggest things come about. Infinite pains, great patience, long and difficult work — these are the roads over which genius walks.

It is quite wonderful the way big things open up to one who keeps clearing his way as he goes — by doing the little things well. You are so little? Well, size isn't the thing. It's what you do with all that you are.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

I am afraid grandparents flatter themselves on their tolerance and forbearance. Frolicking in the family motor launch, the teen age children managed to smash the glass windshield. At a summer resort, this is a calamity, as the new windshield has to be ordered from afar, and days lost in waiting for its arrival while the launch is practically out of action.

The parents were irate and loud in their denunciation of the children. They not only invoked dire punishment on the malefactors, but they could not stop talking about the accident to all and sundry, the neighbors, visitors, passers by.

"Aw," said the grandfather, at last, "I remember when you were their age, and I let you have the motor car. And do you remember the time you tried to park it up at that juke box refreshments place you frequented?"

The male parent of the windshield smashers hung his head.

"Yes," went on grandpa, "and what did you smash? It was the windshield, wasn't it?"

The male parent raised his head.

"Yes," he said, "and what a holy row you raised."

"Er," said grandpa, "umpha. Yes, yes, I'd forgotten."

Miss Supertest Streaks To New Test-Run Record

By GEORGE H. CARVER
Sports Editor

LONG REACH (near Picton) — Canada's world hydroplane champion, "Miss Supertest III", streaked to a new test run record here this morning.

With Bob Hayward at the throttle, the sleek craft ripped over glassy water at a speed estimated just below 160 miles per hour.

In a post-dawning trial, owner-designer Jim Thompson of London throttled the beauty over the mirror-like surface at 150 mph.

The Canadian holder of the Harmsworth Trophy, which she defends here August 19-22, returned to her secret hideaway on a farm building near London, Ont., today.

She will remain there undergoing minor changes and "care" until Monday, August 15 when she is scheduled to arrive at her pits here, four days prior to race time.

Led by chief Vic Leghorn, a jubilant "Supertest" crew danced a jig on the wharf here as the trim speedster showing almost race perfection and condition roared by the pits.

Wilfred Marsden, Gill Zamprogna and Art. Edie of the "Supertest" family shouted and waved their exuberance at the boat's outstanding performances.

Col. J. Gordon Thompson, father of Jim Thompson and former head of Supertest Petroleum, expressed his appreciation.

"We are entirely satisfied with Supertest's condition, her test performances and most of all the fine water here at the Reach," he told newsmen.

Jim Thompson wore a smile of complete satisfaction. "She answered the controls beautifully," he said. "She took to the calm water like a duck. She was almost perfect."

Bob Hayward, Canada's crack speedboat driver who won the Harmsworth Trophy last year at Detroit just smiled, and said very little.

Hayward is a modest rosy-cheeked 32-year-old, one of the nation's best mechanic-drivers. He just nodded his head but there was a glint of pride in smiling eyes.

The Reach was a placid mirror at six o'clock this morning. There was not a breath of wind. Not a ripple wrinkled the surface.

Had Miss Supertest been judged ready, there is a strong possibility the Thompsons would have gone for a new world mile straightaway record. The water setting was perfect.

The first glance at the glass-like Reach sent the Supertest crew into quick action. They slowly but efficiently changed the "roughwater" thirteen-inch propeller to that used for calm surfaces.

The water lay flat as "Supertest" was inched away from the float. Clear of the wharf Thompson "spoke" to her. She sputtered, coughed, sputtered again, then roared into life.

A minute later she had rounded the "Picton" turn and headed down the far straightaway under the lee of green, tree-tipped slopes.

She leaped at the spur of the throttle her rooster-tail arcing high in a snowy curtain. Twice around and she had given what was expected of her. She had exceeded the 150 mph mark.

She was still figuratively champing at the bit when Hayward took the controls.

Perhaps it was the touch of a familiar hand; but the proud champion gave the finest performance of her brief test career here under Hayward's guidance.

Again she created a superb, thrilling picture as she sped around the course. Hayward waved to a boat-happy crew on shore as he drove the speeding beauty to a new test record.

Well, there was nothing wrong with Miss Supertest's "dress rehearsal" here. She lived up to all advance expectations and Canada and Canadians should be proud of her.

Barring accidents, ill-luck and other hazards, the Canadian Queen of the Unlimited" should defend her had-won Harmsworth Trophy against American challengers here, and retain the silverware for herself, the Thompsons and Canada.

Former Trenton Chaplain Dies

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — Rev. Edward B. Howard, C.SsR., 65, who became widely known across Canada as a Roman Catholic chaplain in the RCAF during the Second World War, died in hospital here Wednesday.

Father Howard was a priest for 38 years after being ordained into the Redemptorist order in 1922.

He became a chaplain at St. Thomas, Ont., after enlisting early during the Second World War. In 1941, he was posted to Regina and later went to Calgary.

He was sent to Toronto in 1944 and a year later was moved to Trenton, Ont.

In 1945 he was named command chaplain for Eastern Air Command in Halifax. At his retirement from the air force in 1946, he held the rank of wing commander.

The funeral will be here Saturday.

Car Overturns, Two Men Unhurt

PICTON — Peter and Wilfred Allaire of this town narrowly escaped injury early today when their car turned turtle en route to Demorestville.

The brothers were on their way to their work at a Folkard Canning Company pea viner at Bethel when the car went out of control careened across the road and turned over.

No other car was involved.

PC ACCUSATION

He did not identify the official.

The PC member also said the Liberals devised special examinations for personal friends to get them into the civil service.

Alexis Caron (L—Hull) and Lionel Chevrier (L — Montreal Laurier) promptly took up the issue. Mr. Caron called for a "complete investigation" of the charge which he said was based on hearsay.

"What I deprecate in this attack is not that it is directed at a previous administration but that it is an attack on the Civil Service Commission of Canada," said Mr. Chevrier.

He said that he has heard 'silly rumors" such as the one put forward by Mr. Valade "but I have never seen the proof yet."

Mr. Balcer agreed that after investigation many such rumors "don't stand up."

The debate, which got hot and furious and moved so rapidly in French that the simultaneous translators couldn't keep up with the remarks, enlivened Commons consideration of the estimates of Mr. Balcer's department.

In the end, the estimates were approved. So were the estimates for the northern affairs and national research department. And the commons also wrapped up its clause-by-clause study of the government's anti-combines legislation, leaving over third reading —final approval — for sometime next week.

MAY WITHDRAW

as a 300-plane RCAF division based in France and West Germany.

Officials said that this year it is costing $41,700,000 to keep the brigade in Germany.

It is unlikely the brigade would be withdrawn without the consent of Canada's European NATO partners, or at least in the face of their open opposition.

Other probable reductions in armed forces commitments include:

Dismantling of four of the 12 fighter squadrons in Europe and at least six of the nine interceptor squadrons in Canada.

Elimination of the navy's two carrier-borne Banshee jet squadrons.

Many new commitments include: A Canadian contingent for the United Nations Congo force; manning of seven new heavy radar stations; re-equipment of eight squadrons in Europe with the CF-104 jet to fit them for the new role of strike-reconnaissance; national survival operations by the army; operation of two Bomarc anti-aircraft missile bases.

Whether elimination of present commitments will more than offset acquisition of new ones and thus save manpower and money remains to be seen.

Hard to Change Eating Habits Says Expert

EDMONTON (CP) — Well-balanced diets needn't be limited in their choice of foods, says nutritionist Mary Macbeth.

Chief nutritionist for the nutrition division of the federal health department, she told a meeting of home economists from across Canada there are endless food combinations which can supply all the needed nutrients.

She told of a woman whose main diet was peanut butter sandwiches, milk and orange juice. No lack of nutrition could be found in the basic diet except for the suggestion that she add raw carrots. She declined the advice but accomplished the same thing by adding tomato juice.

Miss Macbeth said the best way to improve a person's diet is to find out what he is eating and suggest a revision rather than offering a whole new routine.

It was particularly difficult for older people to change their eating habits completely and in their case it was necessary to help them cut down on calories while maintaining a diet high in nutritional value.

Retarded Children Tour Coca-Cola Plant

Wednesday afternoon July 27, children from Retarded Children's playground accompanied by children from regular Pine Street playground were taken by bus to Coca-Cola Plant.

They were met by members of the staff, shown a film about "Brussels World Fair," while enjoying a king-size coke. The children were then taken on a tour of the plant. Each child received a miniature coke bottle.

Later they were taken back to the playground to finish their day's activities.

Retarded children were supervised by Mrs. Audrey Parkhurst and Miss Connie Stovell.

OLDSTERS' HOME

FREDERICTON (CP) — The one-time Waterloo Row residence of W. G. Clark, lieutenant-governor of New Brunswick from 1940 to 1945, has been turned turned into an old persons' home by the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire. The three-storey building was donated by Alden R. Clark, son of the former lieutenant-governor.

Mr. and Mrs. John Cecil Chapman are shown signing the register in Christ Church, Belleville, following their recent marriage. The bride is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hendricks, of Belleville, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Chapman, of Don Mills, Toronto.

CHAPMAN — HENDRICKS

A lovely double-ring wedding was solemized on Saturday, July 16, at 2.00 p.m. in Christ Church, Belleville, when Archdeacon J. B. Creeggan, rector of the church united in marriage, Gail Phyllis Hendricks of Belleville only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hendricks, to John Cecil Chapman, of Don Mills, Toronto, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Chapman. Pale pink gladioli, white snapdragons, pale yellow chrysanthemums mingled with gypsophelia and fern adorned the chancel and sanctuary, and white satin bows the guest pews.

Mr. Donald Davenport, of St. Thomas' Anglican Church, guest organist provided the wedding music, and accompanied the soloist, Mr. Robert Burke, cousin of the bride, in his rendition of "O Perfect Love", before the ceremony, and "The Wedding Prayer", during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the petite bride was radiantly lovely in her gown of original Shiffli embroidered organdy, featuring a fitted bodice having a scalloped, embroidered bateau neckline, short sleeves, and white taffeta cummerbund with large back bow and streamers. The ballerina-length skirt was accented by a scalloped, embroidered flounce and tiered overskirt. Her elbow-length veil of tulle illusion was held by a rhinestone feathered tiara, and she carried a cascade of red Sweetheart roses and baby's breath. Matching gloves, pearlized, handmade satin pumps and a diamond-cut heart-shaped necklace with matching earrings completed her costume.

Miss Lois Williamson, as maid of honor; Miss Kathie Story, of Toronto, cousin of the bride, and Miss Suzanne Chapman, of Don Mills, sister of the bridegroom, were bridesmaids. All the attendants were gowned alike in powder-blue organza over matching taffeta fashioned with empire waistlines having back bows and cascading streamers to the hemlines, with tucked, front panels. They wore matching bow-type headdresses with small face veils; matching satin shoes, blue gloves and carried nosegays of white and pale yellow 'mums with yellow streamers. Baby pearl necklace wiht matching earrings, gifts of the bride, completed their ensembles.

The bridegroom was attended by Mr. David Brown, Belleville, and the guests were ushered by Mr. Richard Chapman, of Belleville, brother of the bridegroom, and Mr. Donald Hook, of Picton, Ontario.

Following the ceremony, the reception was held in the new auditorium of the Recreation Centre, Belleville, where the bride's mother and the bridegroom's mother received the guests; the former in sapphire-blue French lace in sheath style, with overskirt of blue net, and matching taffeta cummerbund, white feathered crown hat, white shoes and gloves and corsage of white carnations; the latter in a beige silk sheath with organza tiered overskirt, matching shoes and pale green gloves, small beige hat with pale green net embroidered with flowers face veil, pale green accessories, and corsage of yellow carnations. The bride and bridegroom were presented at this time with a beautiful, large picture Bible, leather-bound.

The bride's table was appointed with white damask, silver candleholders with white candles and centred with an all white swan-pillared three-tier wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom beneath an arch of lily-of-the-valley with entwined white roses, and encircled about the base with the bridal bouquets.

For the wedding trip to South Virginia, New York City, and Washington, the bride chose a white linen sheath with matching jacket, lavender-toned silk-petalled hat, white accessories, and corsage of red Sweetheart roses.

Guests were present from Leaside; Weston; Guelph; Kingston; Brighton; Stirling; Picton; Belleville; Niagara Falls and Toronto.

Previous to her marriage, the bride was entertained by the "Marching Debs", of Picton, who held a shower at the home of Mrs. Ray Lennox; at a miscellaneous shower held at the home of Mrs. Frances Canning, by the mothers of the bride's dancing students, with Miss Sheila Canning as co-hostess; at the home of Mrs. Meagher, when a miscellaneous shower was held with Mrs. William Meagher as hostess and Mrs. Floyd Morden as co-hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. Chapman are residing at 28½ Meyers Street, Belleville.

Wedding

FREEMAN — DONALDSON

On July 16, in Smithfield United Church, a double-ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. R. B. Green, assisted by D. Rutherford, when Charlotte Marion Donaldson, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Tompkins of Minden, Ontario, was united in marriage with Donald George Robert Freeman, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Freeman, Trenton.

Wedding music was played by Mr. Wayne Rogers of Smithfield. Mrs. Muriel Clapper, soloist, sang "The Wedding Prayer" and "Blest Be The Tie That Binds". Yellow and white gladioli, white and mauve hydrangea adorned the altar.

Given in marriage by her stepfather, H. Tompkins, the bride wore a gown of Chantilly lace with mandarin neckline; featuring a full flowing skirt and an overskirt apron with Chantilly lace over nylon tulle. Her matching headdress and fingertip veil were trimmed with seed pearls and she carried a bouquet of mauve and white Shasta 'mums centred with white gardenias.

Miss Thelma Rushnell of Belleville, was matron of honor, wearing a waltz-length dress of lilac pure-silk organza over silk taffeta with softly caped bodice and snug covered cumberbund over full flowing skirt. She wore a matching picture hat, shoes and gloves and carried a bouquet of yellow Shasta daisies.

Miss Evelyn Innanin of Orlando, Florida, and Miss Linda Bowen of Sault Ste. Marie, both nieces of the bride, wore identical dresses of hot pink and mint green with matching picture hats shoes and gloves. They carried white Shasta 'mums.

Mr. Fred Freeman of Orangeville attended his brother and the ushers were Messrs. John Freeman, brother of the bridegroom and Victor Innanin of Orlando, Florida, nephew of the bride.

Little Miss Brenda Freeman, cousin of bridegroom was flower girl. She wore a dress of white silk organza with lilac cumberbund ending with a bow at the back, and a headdress of lilac organza formed in a crown, and carried a basket of mauve and yellow baby 'mums.

The reception was held in the church parlors where the guests were received by the bride's mother, who chose a beige nylon dress with three tiered lace skirt she had pink accessories and a corsage of pink rose buds.

Assisting was the bridegroom's mother, who wore a nile-green brocade satin sheath with picture hat of green, beige accessories and yellow rose corsage.

For travelling to the central and eastern United States, the bride chose a white brocade satin sheath with azure blue and white accessories and red rose corsage.

On their return from their honeymoon the couple will reside at their new home at R. R. No. 4, Trenton.

Guests at the wedding were from Orlando, Florida, Sault Ste. Marie, Hamilton, Minden, Hanover, Harcourt, Bancroft, Orangeville, Newmarket, Markham, Belleville, Ottawa, Unionville, Brighton and Trenton.

Mrs. Nixon Has Been Training For Role for Yrs.

By FRANCES LEWIN

CHICAGO (AP) — Calm, unruffled and controlled, Mrs. Patricia Nixon has been in training for years for the White House race she's about to make with her husband.

This is the climax for the Nixons after 14 years of being one of the best-known political partnerships in the United States.

In the last 7½ years, Mrs. Nixon has done every job that could be required of a president's wife.

She has travelled in 52 countries, sat at the tables of kings and potentates and walked among the people of many lands.

AMAZES OTHERS

Auburn-haired, five feet five inches tall, slender Mrs. Nixon at 48 has stamina that amazes those much younger than she.

Some critics say her performance is just too perfect. But Mrs. Nixon is an admitted perfectionist.

She professes to love her rigorous role, except that it often keeps her from her daughters, Julie, 12, and Patricia, 14.

Her early years were spent on her father's 10-acre truck farm in Artesia, Calif.

Her mother, Kate Halberstadt, a German immigrant, died when Pat was 12. At 17, she had lost both parents.

She worked her way through college, held jobs as X-ray technician, salesgirl, even had a bit part in a movie, and finally taught in high school.

Pat met Nixon in Whittier, his hometown, in 1937. He was just out of law school and they married three years later, on June 21, 1940.

Young Couple Honored by Many Friends

STIRLING — On Saturday evening the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Devolin was filled to capacity when friends and neighbors gathered to honor the newlyweds, Mr. and Mrs. William Fitchett (nee Shirley Devolin.)

The Rev. K. J. Rooney was master of ceremonies and spoke briefly. Mr. and Mrs. Grant Richardson contributed a vocal duet, and Mrs. Charles Peake gave a vocal solo. The accompanist for both numbers was Mrs. C. Devolin. Piano selections were rendered by Bonnie Bateman and Janet Fletcher.

An appreciative address was read by Miss Jean Eggleton and the presentation of a floor lamp, electric coffee maker and a satin cushion was made by Mrs. Hector Eggleton, Mrs. Marvyn Scott, Mrs. Charles Vance and Miss Louise Harding.

The recipients voiced grateful thanks for the party in their honor and for the lovely gifts.

The committee in charge served refreshments.

127 Attend Rollins Clan Reunion

Last Saturday the Rollins family enjoyed their annual picnic at Tweed Memorial Park, with 127 members present. Dinner was served at 12.30 which was most delicious and plentiful.

After dinner, the president, Costan Paraniuk called the gathering to order for a brief business period, which included the reading of the treasurer's report showing a balance on hand of $66.65. The secretary's report showed that the family tree book had been completed as far as the committee in charge was able. It is felt that copies will be ready for distribution in the near future. Next year's picnic will be held on the same grounds on the 4th Saturday in July 1961.

1961 OFFICERS

The slate of officers is as follows: honorary president, Roy Rollins; president, Costan Paranuik; vice-president, Alex McCurdy; secretary, Phylis Rollins; treasurer, Jessie French; executive committee; George Harris; John Thompson; Roy Rollins; Lillie Hubble; Ethel Rollins Lottie Tufts sports committee: Douglas Rollins; Sadie Holmes; Vera Hall, and Hazel Tufts.

A moment's silence was observed in memory of the deceased members, after which Don Runnalls read a poem, entitled, "The Sticktogether Family".

Clarke Rollins, M.P. spoke on the importance of a family reunion, which is to keep families together.

Among those from a distance who were present were Mr. and Mrs. Egbert Wells from Alberta Mrs. Wells expressed her happiness at being among so many old and new acquaintances.

The first picnic of the Clan was held in 1925 at Ivanhoe. A show of hands indicated that 30 members present this year had attended the first reunion.

The oldest lady present was Mrs. S. B. Rollins, of Tweed, and the youngest a 2 weeks' old baby of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Rollins, of Ivanhoe. The oldest man present was W. J. Rollins, of Peterborough while Mr. and Mrs. Wells had travelled the farthest distance, coming from Alberta. Mr. and Mrs. Neil Wakely of Port Hope was the most recently married couple.

The president closed the get-together in an appropriate manner.

All are looking forward to the picnic next year.

Formal Fare

Maggy Rouff, one of the most eminent members of the Parisian haute couture, created this beautiful and impressive gown especially for elegant evenings.

The dress is floor-length with a full, graceful skirt and a fitted, strapless bodice. It is Schiffli embroidered all over to re-cover the pattern of the fabric's print.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Ellen T. — We should let Doug get married.

Lucas T. — Why hand him everything on a silver platter?

Ellen T. — My husband and I are having a serious disagreement about our 20-year-old son, Douglas.

The boy has found a very nice girl at college and they want to get married. They would both work part-time for their expenses. All they want from us is that we keep the college tuition fees. The girl's parents are more than willing and offer, in addition, to take care of any special expenses.

I see no reason for them to wait. They are very young, it's true. But it's better to know that your son is settled down with a nice girl than to have to worry about his running wild. Thousands of college students marry. Why not our boy?

Lucas T. — At the risk of being called a sour old skinflint, I'm ready to declare myself as being opposed to making things too easy for the young.

I feel that a man who considers himself ready to marry should have some knowledge of the world, should know where he is heading and should be willing and ready to struggle a little on his own to win the lady of his choice.

It seems to me that Doug takes too much for granted. He is getting his education on a silver platter and now he thinks he should be helped to a wife on the same silver platter. He doesn't understand the money has to come from someone's sweat. It's true he holds a part-time job, but that's a drop in the bucket.

The Council: Lucas' ideas are somewhat counter to the present tide, but many sociologists and educators would second them.

Dr. Margaret Mead, the eminent anthropologist, has advanced the opinion that early marriage may be draining our nation of its top asset — the enthusiasm and spirit of adventure of young men.

Dr. Mead points out that traditionally the young man has wanted to learn, explore, experiment. He has been willing to move along unknown paths, giving of his full time and energy in the pursuit of an unknown goal. He has been willing to experiment because he has not thought in terms of immediate rewards.

Today, Dr. Mead adds, young girls not out of their teens are making all the decisions for these men. If a prospective husband wants to pursue some special field of knowledge, the girl wants to know first, whether it will postpone the wedding day, and second, whether it will keep him away from home much. This youth is expected to share the burden of bringing up children because, in most cases, the girl also wants to get an education.

We think Lucas also has a valid point when he says he wants to see his son forge his character through a bit of struggle before he claims a wife. Ellen shows clearly that she would like to deliver him from her arms securely into the arms of a good wife. There would be no interval for Douglas to grow into individuality and manhood.

It was once considered a test of love for two people to be willing to wait for one another while each worked to achieve certain goals. We don't thing it's a bad idea.

QUESTION BOX

Question: Your article about uninvited summer visitors at a cottage sure struck home with us! However, you did put up with these pests, fed and entertained them for a whole day, much as you disliked it. But what do you do in this case?

Last weekend we planned a special celebration for my husband's birthday. Four couple, of whom we are very fond, and their children were invited. As it was a special thing, we got a steak for everyone for a cook-out.

After a swim and a wonderful afternoon we were all relaxing when two couples we know very slightly suddenly arrived. They just happened to be in the neighborhood. We tried to be polite but we couldn't budge them. Finally we had to cut some of the precious steaks in half and ask them to join the cook-out. How thick-skinned can people get? If this happens again is there any way I can handle it without being rude, which is frankly what I want to be anyway! — Mrs. P. K. L., Chicago, Ill.

Answer: I can't say I blame you! Actually people who are this thoughtless deserve rudeness, but it is hard for nice people to be unhospitable. However, I do think you would have been perfectly polite if you had simply and bluntly told them it was a special celebration, and that you were very sorry that you couldn't ask them to stay as there just wasn't enough food.

If, after this, they didn't leave, you should have gone right ahead with your original plans and let them sit and watch you! Of course, it would have put a damper on the festivities but there is a chance that this final step would have made the interlopers think a little!

Question: My son is to be married next year. His fiancee lives in our town but her family lives 700 miles away. We certainly would like to meet her folks before the big event. Who takes the initiative, my family or hers, to bring this about? — Mrs. S. A., Cicero, Ill.

Question: I am a teenager, 16-years-old. The other evening I went to a big party in the park given by the mothers of three of my friends. There was quite a group already there when I arrived and I just joined them and didn't greet any of the other people. Should I have done so? My mother says I did wrong.

Answer: You certainly did! Wrong, I mean. Always make every effort to find your hosts when you arrive. It might have been a little difficult in this case but you should have found them nevertheless. I certainly hope that you made a point to thank each one when you left!

Question: I have a close and very friendly relationship with my next-door neighbors. My husband and I entertain quite a lot, in a very informal way. Maybe four or five couples come by for a cook-out or something like that. My question is, should I invite these neighbors every time I entertain? They are bound to know I am doing so and I feel embarrassed if I don't ask them.

Answer: You shouldn't. No sensible neighbor expects to be invited every time you entertain, any more than they should feel that they must include you at every party they give. No hard feelings should occur on either side of the fence.

Sugarless Raspberry Jam And Raspberry Pie Filler

By Mary Moore

Two urgent requests arrived: 1) from a diabetic reader requesting the method of making sugarless raspberry jam; 2) from a reader who asked "... is there any recipe to prepare raspberries to put in pie as they come from the jar similar to commercial pie filler?"

My kitchen is still smelling of delicious raspberry canning as I type:

Dinner Menus

by Mary Moore

THURSDAY: (Oven Meal)

Baked Farmers' Sausage; Watermelon Pickle; Baked Potatoes (see Wednesday); Vegetable Marrow with Cheese Sauce; Relish Tray: Carrot Sticks, Radishes and Olives; Rhubarb or Apple Crisp; Tea.

SUNDAY

Spicy Glazed Ham; Helen's Potato Logs (see Wednesday); Green Beans; Lettuce Hearts with Roquefort Dressing; Deep Dish Apple Pie; Cheese; Coffee.

SUGARLESS RASPBERRY JAM:

To make two 6-oz. jars wash and drain well 1 quart perfect raspberries. Bring to boiling in heavy-bottomed saucepan, stirring constantly. Add 40 sucaryl tablets and continue stirring until they are dissolved. Boil gently, stirring frequently, for 20 minutes. (At this point the jam tends to start sticking.) Pour into perfectly sterile small 6-oz. jam jars and seal with coating of new hot paraffin, adding a second coat when first is set. Put on sterile tops.

NOTE:

If your sterilizing technique is perfect this jam will keep without refrigeration. If there is any doubt in your mind store it in the refrigerator.

CANNED RASPERRY PIE FILLING:

(For Mrs. J. McC.)

Quantities given are for one quart of raspberries, which, when well packed, will fill one 32-oz. quart jar when raw.

For each quart of perfect raspberries use:

1 cup water, 1 cup sugar, 2 or 3 tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca, 1-8 teaspoon salt.

Heat oven to 275 deg. F. having bottom burner on only.

Soak tapioca in the water for 5 minutes, then add the sugar and salt and in a large saucepan bring to boiling point, stirring. Add the washed and well-drained raspberries and bring to full rolling boil, stirring. Pour into sterilized quart (32-oz.) jars, filling them full. Seal to within 1-8 turn of tight. If spring-top jars are used do not lower clamp. Stand jars on pan without water 2 inches apart. This pan catches juice which bubbles out of jars when being processed in oven. Process in oven at 275 deg. F. for 30 minutes. Pan containing jars should be on a low rack in the oven. When processing time is up open oven door and let jars remain in oven until bubbling stops — about 10 minutes. Remove carefully and tighten seal. Do not invert jars to cool. Disregard and discard juice in pan. When jars are cold carefully wash them without disturbing seal. Jars are not quite full.

NOTE:

Do not be tempted to substitute cornstarch for tapioca.

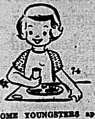
Mother's Helper



SOME YOUNGSTERS apparently are spill-prone, and no cup or glass is safe from their innocent but deadly aim. At mealtime, to encourage them to replace their cup where it's least likely to be knocked over, have them use a special place mat on which you've painted a red circle in the upper right hand corner. Cup goes on the red circle.

SETS LIMIT

GENEVA (Reuters) — Russia Tuesday set a limit of three on the number of annual on-site inspections of suspected "sneak" nuclear tests it would permit on Soviet soil. This compared with a quota of 20 proposed by the United States and Britain at three-power talks here. The Russian proposal was immediately rejected by the Western powers.

Doctors Oust Engineers as Highest Paid

OTTAWA (CP) — The Ontario petro-chemical centre of Sarnia had the highest average wage among Canadian communities in 1958, it was disclosed today. Medical doctors and surgeons led professional groups in earnings.

The revenue department's annual green book of taxation statistics, issued today, showed Sarnia first in average earnings among communities with more than 5,000 population. It had 15,622 taxpayers with average incomes of $4,618.

Sarnia nosed out the 1957 leader Sault Ste. Marie, which stood second with average earnings of $4,587 for its 19,190 taxpayers. In 1957 the northern Ontario steel city had an average of $4,460.

Trail and Rossland in British Columbia ranked third in 1958 with an average of $4,334.

Architects and engineers, who topped professional groups in 1957 with average incomes of $14,581, fell to second place with $14,260 in 1958, behind the doctors and surgeons with average incomes of $15,264. In 1957, doctors earned $13,640.

Third in the list of taxpayer groups by occupation were lawyers and notaries with average incomes of $13,163.

Doctors and surgeons paid 2.76 per cent of the total tax collected in 1958.

Grasshopper Is Big Eater

A lightweight insect with a heavyweight appetite — that's the Canadian grasshopper.

It takes upwards of 6,000 when newly hatched to weigh an ounce, notes L. G. Putnam, a federal scientist with the Saskatoon Research Station.

Under normal conditions, their weight increases as much as two and a half times every week.

At five weeks, they become fully winged adults and are 30 to 80 times heavier than when hatched.

Grasshoppers may be slight, but there is nothing slight about their appetites, observes Mr. Putnam.

If there were one newly hatched 'hopper on every square foot in a field, those on an acre would weigh only half a pound; when they reached adult stage, they would weigh 25 pounds.

On 10 acres, roughly the area needed to keep a cow in the dry districts, there would be 250 pounds of adult grasshoppers competing with the cow.

Studies have shown that to produce this amount of "grasshopper beef" requires 450 pounds of forage, dry weight.

Concludes Mr. Putnam:

"Under severe outbreak conditions, where populations of five or more grasshoppers per square foot are common, a cow would not stand a chance against the grasshoppers, but would starve to death".

NUCLEAR MEN TO MEET

KINGSTON (CP)—Some 400 of the world's leading scientists will meet here from Aug. 29 to Sept. 3 to exchange information on the mysteries of nuclear behavior. The scientists will come from 24 countries, including the Soviet Union.

Safe to Travel In Bush Without Any Firearms

TORONTO — Is it safe to travel in Ontario's woodlands without carrying firearms Yes, say officials of the Department of Lands and Forests. "Just mind your own business, and no animal will bother you," they say. There is no record of anyone ever being attacked by a wolf in Ontario, contrary to many reports. So far as is known, only one person — more than 100 years ago — has been killed by a bear. This unfortunate individual had trapped the bear and then incautiously stepped over a log on top of the frenzied animal.

Your chances of encountering poisonous snakes are very low. One person, history records, died from a rattlesnake bite in the Parry Sound district a few years ago, but generally most Ontario snakes are absolutely harmless. One man is known to have been injured by a moose — an animal he had raised from childhood and which, in a diplay of exuberant affection, dropped his front feet onto the man's shoulders, dislocating one of them.

Two cases of persons being bitten by a beaver are on the books. In one, a Toronto woman who was admiring a baby beaver which had been caught in a trap in Algonquin Park, removed the animal from the trap and hugged it to her bosom. The little beaver grabbed her fingers "just like a baby," but then sank his sharp little teeth into it.

Towerman Tom Towey of the Department's Sioux Lookout district, reported however, he had been maliciously attacked and bitten by a beaver while walking to his tower post. He passed the animal without hindering it in any way, he reported, and had taken two or three steps beyond when his leg was pulled from under him by the beaver. He was taken to hospital and given treatment for possible rabies for "the unusual ferocity could indicate a rabies incident," the Department reported.

Mr. Bruce Weller, Rochester, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Weller and children of Philidelphia motored up on Friday. They are staying at their cottage on Salmon Lake, until July 30th.

Mr. and Mrs. Angus Hecker of Toronto, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Stevens of St. Ola. They have a camp on Salmon Lake.

The St. Ola W.A. is giving a banquet on the evening of July 30 for the Bass Lake Campus club.

Fanfani Cabinet Assumes Office

ROME (AP) — Premier Amintore Fanfani and his big Christian Democrat cabinet that includes three former prime ministers were sworn in today by President Giovanni Gronchi.

The new all-Christian Democrat government—the 22nd of the post-war period—appeared to be the strongest Italy has had in five years.

Alarm over communism's challenge to Italian democracy in street rioting early this month had tightened the Christian Democrat ranks.

The same fears brought the new government pledges of parliamentary support from three smaller, usually divided parties of the centre — the Democrats, Socialists, Liberals and Republicans.

TAKES IN RIGHTISTS

The 5-year-old premier, a leader [illegible] his party's left wing, packed his cabinet with the strong men of the Christian Democrat centre and right wings as well.

Former premier Antonio Segni, a middle-roader, will continue as foreign minister.

HMCS PRINCE HENRY—Looking back on the Royal Canadian Navy's 50-year history, not only do sailors remember HMCS Henry, but soldiers as well. The Prince Henry, converted from a luxury cruise ship to an armed merchant cruiser, carried out escort and patrol duties in the Atlantic and the Pacific Oceans. Converted to an infantry landing ship in 1943, she put hundreds of troops ashore on the Normandy beaches and from there went on to other invasion campaigns in southern France and Greece. Above, troops are embarked at Taranto. (National Defence Photo).

Anglican Archbishop of Que. Intends to Keep Going After His Retirement on July 31st

By JOHN YORSTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

QUEBEC (CP)—"I'm always on the go," said Most Rev. Philip Carrington.

And the tall, gentle-humored man who has been Anglican Archbishop of Quebec for 16 years intends to keep going after his retirement July 31.

Dr. Carrington and his wife Gwendoline sail for England Aug. 2—"home to England as we New Zealanders say" — but already are planning return visits to Canada.

These, however, are his only plans, he said in an interview as he sat over four o'clock tea in the high-ceilinged study of Bishopthorpe, 100-year-old official residence of Anglican bishops of Quebec since 1895. "I don't believe in having plans. There will be plenty to do just writing, lecturing and preaching."

RETIREMENT GIFT

Most Rev. Philip Carrington, 68, Anglican archbishop of Quebec for 16 years, stands in his study in the Indian outfit he received as a retirement gift. The outfit—wool cap and jacket and moccasins of beaded caribou hide—came from the Nescople Indians of the Schefferville area of northern Quebec. Dr. Carrington retires July 31.

(CP Photo)

LARGE DIOCESE

Dr. Carrington, for whom a successor will be named in September, was appointed bishop of the 280,000-square-mile Diocese of Quebec, covering most of northern Quebec and Labrador, in 1935. In 1944 became archbishop of the ecclesiastical province of Quebec, which includes the Atlantic Provinces and Quebec.

On his retirement he takes with him many memories and mementoes of his 16 years in Canada. Fond of travel, he has made a practice of visiting outlying parts of the Diocese and knows the region intimately. He has been to Labrador many times aboard the 40-foot coastal mission boat. Nascopie Indians, whom he has visited in the Schefferville area of Quebec near the Labrador border, presented him with a gift of caribou-hide clothing on retirement.

Born in England 68 years ago, Philip Carrington moved to New Zealand with his family when he was 10. Educated and ordained there, he went to Australia where he was principal of St. Barnabas College, Adelaide.

In 1927 he was offered the position of dean of divinity at Bishop's University, Lennoxville, Que.

LONG STAY

"My four years in Australia were nice and I thought we'd spend four years in Canada," said the brown-eyed, six-foot archbishop. "It didn't quite work out that way."

Being leader of a Protestant minority in Roman Catholic Quebec hasn't presented any problems, he said.

"I've always had very happy relations and a good deal of personal friendship with Roman Catholic clergymen. I don't speak French well but I can get along. I would call it moderate. I can make a speech in French if I have to."

Archbishop Carrington has written a number of books, mainly theological works, and plans more in his retirement. But his first was "The Boy Scout's Camp Book," published in 1918 and still in use.

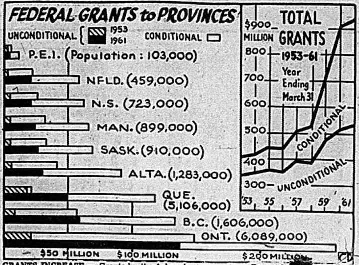
"It was my first book and what pleases me most is that I did the drawings for it too."

CHURCH HISTORY

His most recent work was The Early Christian Church, a two-volume history of the first two centuries of Christianity, published in 1957 by Cambridge University Press.

Asked about the question of union between the Anglican church and the United Church of Canada which has been under study for years, Archbishop Carrington said the Anglicans must look at it from a world-wide point of view rather than a national one.

"I'm not interested in a constitution written down on paper and imposed upon us from above. We need some sort of good relations between all churches of the world. You can't invent a scheme they'll all submit to."



GRANTS INCREASE — Grants by the federal government to the provinces have steadily increased in the last nine years.

Large graph shows how conditional and unconditional grants were distributed among the provinces for the 1952-53 fiscal year compared with the estimated distribution for the current fiscal year ending March 31, 1961. Inset graph shows a sharp rise in the total of both types of grants in the nine years to 1960-61.

Unconditional grants are mainly tax-sharing payments. Personal and corporation income taxes and succession duties are covered under the sharing arrangements. The federal government makes rental payments to province staying out of these fields. Quebec rents no tax fields and Ontario only personal income tax. The other provinces rent all three.

Conditional grants cover shared-cost programs such as the Trans-Canada Highway, welfare payments and health grants. These took a sharp rise in 1958-59 with inception of hospital insurance. (CP Newsmap.)

Forest Fire Fighters Given Strict Orders Not to Let Blaze Jump Over Fire Break

KAMLOOPS (CP)—"If a spark jumps over the fire break grab it with your hand if you have to, sit on it, eat it. But don't let it get started on the other side."

These are the blunt orders given recruits sent to battle more than 300 fires in the vast timber-rich Kamloops forest district by chief troubleshooter Don Fraser.

More than 2,400 men line the numerous guard lines around the fires in the district that covers 54,000 square miles, one-fifth of B.C., from Anahim Lake in the west to Revelstoke in the east, northward to Williams Lake in the Cariboo district and south to the Washington-B.C. border near Osoyoos.

Three hundred and fifty forestry workers, including 130 rangers in 23 districts and 34 lookouts, aided by 50 suppression crews of 10 men each, 146 bulldozers, four helicopters and 14 airplanes form the main forestry battalion.

The remainder are recruits from civilian life, many "soldiers of fortune" waiting for new fronts to open up to give them jobs worth 75 cents an hour for 12 to 14 hours a day, three meals and a place to sleep.

These men enter the fray with Fraser's words ringing in their ears.

The enemy is fire.

A fire can neatly toss a spark across a lake a mile wide to ignite the opposite side. It can tack and veer with every change of the wind, then dance away on flaming feet.

It makes its own wind, producing heat currents and swirling downdrafts that can drag an airplane out of the sky. It sounds "like all hell breaking loose," climbs trees like a cat to explode at the top and jump to the next.

It covers its destruction with a pall of black and blue smoke, dulls the taste of fish - laden mountain streams and leaves nothing but black wastes and desolation in its wake.

"Our biggest need is helicopters," says Cy Phillips, 47, district forester. "There's a good chance of getting a fire out if we can move men into it quickly. Uusually that's impossible on the ground.

"Sometimes you get a fire starting 5,000 feet up from the valley floor. It'd take men and equipment two days to get there, but with a helicopter you can land men in hours."

If a fire gains a solid foothold, such as the Spius Creek inferno 73 miles southwest of here which has destroyed 14,000 acres of rich spruce, pine, cedar and fir stands, all that can be done is to keep ringing it with wide fire breaks, usually about 60 feet across, hacked out by bulldozers.

Water drops by planes dampen the edges of the fire so that ground crews can move in to build the guards.

It's no easy job for the pilots, who fly in 50 feet above the treetops.

"It's pretty wicked," says Charles Folden of Phoenix, Ariz. co-pilot of an American B - 17 plane on loan to B.C. to help fight the fires.

"You see the trees exploding right in front of your face. It's rough."

Pat Korpsnik of Wetaskiwin, Alta., who pilots an Avenger bomber for Air Sprays Ltd., says:

"I don't mind the height. That's not dangerous. It's finding a way back out. You've always got to have a way back out or you've had it."

Last week one of his mates hit a cliff after dumping a load of water near Kelowna. A wing tore loose, the plane crashed and the pilot died. A farm laborer died this week when struck by a fallen snag.

"It's a heartbreaking job, says Phillips, but "winter's coming." And with winter truce.

Lesage Makes First Move For Hospital Insurance Plan

OTTAWA (CP)—Quebec today makes its first move at the ministerial level to break with a long-standing position of aloofness in regard to two federal-provincial cost-sharing programs accepted by all other provinces.

Premier Lesage and the provincial health minister, Dr. Alphonse Courturier, are scheduled to call on federal Health Minister Monteith to arrange for Quebec to receive federal contributions toward the establishment of a hospital insurance plan in the province.

The premier has said he is confident the plan can be put into operation by Jan. 1. Prime Minister Diefenbaker has estimated the federal contribution as $70,000,000 for the first full year.

Later, Mr. Lesage and Roads Minister Bernard Pinard are to meet federal Works Minister Walker to discuss two aspects of Quebec's position with regard to Trans-Canada Highway construction.

Maurice Duplessis, the late Union Nationale premier, had refused to participate in the national hospital insurance plan when it was initiated in the other provinces on the grounds that Quebec needed more hospitals.

He said Quebec would study the proposal when it had enough hospitals in all regions of the province.

Mr. Duplessis fought openly against the Trans-Canada Highway project, saying roads were purely a provincial matter under the constitution. Liberals, then in opposition, accused him of depriving Quebec of millions of dollars in federal funds for the sole reason that he was against a federal provision that contracts had to be let by public tender.

Premier Barrette said Wednesday that Quebec residents cannot go on contributing through federal taxes to the cost-sharing plans without receiving any of the benefits.

"This hemorrhage of money out of the province has to be remedied," he said after the dominion-provincial conference was adjourned.

Mayor of Eastview Invited To Be Company Shareholder

EASTVIEW, Ont. (CP) — Ronaldo Chenier says there was no hidden motive in bringing Mayor Gordon Lavergne into an Eastview investment firm.

"Gordie is so well known and so well liked in Eastview that we considered it an honor to have him with us," said the major shareholder of Garchari Investments Company Limited.

He testified at the Ontario government-ordered inquiry into this town's financial affairs as it investigated for a second day the mayor's connections with the firm.

Mr. Chenier said the mayor bought $2,000 worth of stock in the firm after being loaned the money by other shareholders.

Witnesses testified Wednesday that the firm rented a "firetrap" school to the public school board for $9,000 after buying the building for $42,000. The firm then sold the building a year later for $47,000.

Mr. Chenier, owner for 10 years of the Eastview Hotel, admitted to the inquiry that he had been given a "bonus" assessment by the town but in 16 years as a taxpayer he had paid $136,000 in taxes.

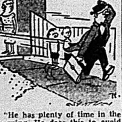
He bought the hotel in 1944 for $25,000 when it contained only six bedrooms and one dining room.

He spent $90,000 in 1949 on improvements and the same year the assessment was fixed at $20,000 by council at his request, he said.

Last week, an Ottawa municipal assessment consultant, Paul Mantha, testified that he assessed the hotel in 1959 at $193,450. He said council assessed the hotel at only $50,000.

Chenier sold the hotel about a year ago for a reported $500,000.

"Jest a Second"



"He has plenty of time in the morning. He does this to avoid kissing Mom goodbye."

YAREMKO BETTER

TORONTO (CP) — Transport Minister John Yaremko, confined to his home for seven weeks with an undisclosed ailment, is in considerably improved condition it was learned Wednesday. Mr. Yaremko, also provincial secretary, is "well on the road to recovery" a family source said.

Life Pass Given To Millionth Festival Fan

STRATFORD —The millionth patron of the Stratford Shakespearean Festival passed through the doors of the Festival theatre on Tuesday evening.

Kathryn Joanne Bell, 15-year-old Grade 10 student of Port Credit, accompanied by her parents and a 14-year-old exchange student from Levis, Que., faced news photo flashbulbs and television cameras as she stepped past the ticket-takers into the theatre's lower promenade. Swept by Festival officials into the nearby reception room, it was some moments before Kathryn Joanne realized what the fuss was all about. Having seen the assembled cameramen, she had thought, she later said, that "some movie star or other" was attending the Monday evening performance of "A Midsummer Night's Dream." As a result, she had hung back in the foyer, hoping to have a glimpse of the visiting celebrity. Only at the urging of her mother and father to hurry did she go into the theatre — to become Patron No. 1,000,000.

As a result, young Miss Bell received from Wilfrid P. Gregory, president of the Board of Governors of the Stratford Shakespearean Festival of Canada, an invitation for two to be the guests of the Festival at all future productions staged in the theatre.

Kathryn Joanne, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Bell of Stavebank Road, Port Credit, is no stranger to the Festival theatre. Her parents have seen all but one of the plays staged there since the beginning in 1953. Kathryn herself has seen every production for the past three years.

"Since the Festival began in its tent theatre," Mr. Gregory told her in presenting her with a lifetime pass, "we have attempted to please the theatre-going public with the finest productions possible. You, as the millionth patron, represent the faith the public has shown in our endeavors."

Toronto Lawyer To Be Charged In Three Cases

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto lawyer Theodore Nasimok was scheduled to appear in magistrate's court today on charges of obstructing the course of justice by misrepresenting the identity of co-respondents in three divorce cases.

The three charges were laid at city hall Wednesday by provincial police Inspector Herbert Purdy, who has been in charge of recent investigations into Ontario divorces.

The inspector was acting on instructions from Attorney-General Roberts who consulted with him Tuesday in Ottawa, where Mr. Roberts was attending the Dominion-provincial conference.

Officials of Mr. Roberts' department recently found a photograph of Mrs. Eleanor Cass, a 29 - year - old Toronto schoolteacher, attached to three divorce records filed at Osgoode Hall.

The discovery was made during a search of divorce files to check a claim by model Joan Johnson that she acted as co-respondent in 120 divorces. The model later said her story, told on the CBC program Close-Up, was a hoax.

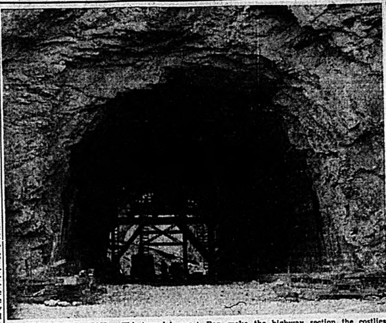
The attorney-general's department said the pictures were used without Mrs. Cass' knowledge. Elliot Pepper, Ontario assistant director of public prosecutions and Queen's proctor for divorce cases, said Mrs. Cass said the photos were requested from her by the lawyer who represented her in her own divorce two years ago.

Social Credit Makes New Plans

OTTAWA (CP)—Social Credit charts a new course into federal political waters with a two-day national convention opening here today.

Leaders of the movement—which first broke into the federal arena in 1935 on the heels of the Social Credit sweep of Alberta that year—are issuing confident forecasts that the next federal election will bring Social Credit followers back to the Commons.

A two-stage national convention is their immediate aim. The meeting beginning today will hammer out a new constitution, re-state national policy and elect a national executive whose aim will be to breathe new life into the party organization.



COSTLY HIGHWAY — This tunnel is one of three driven through mountains in interior British Columbia as part of Trans-Canada Highway construction. The tunnels, along a 1.18-mile stretch near China Bar and Boston Bar, make the highway section the costliest ever built in the province. When completed it will have cost $2,242,723. The entire B.C. route of the Trans-Canada Highway, soon to (CP Photo)

Treacherous Road Now Being Made Safe by Many Tunnels

BOSTON BAR, B.C. (CP)—The story is told of a man found in this small British Columbia town weeping and lamenting lest he should have to spend the rest of his life here.

"That road!" he is said to have wailed. "I won't drive another inch down that road. I'll stay in Boston Bar until I die."

Anyone who has ever driven the Fraser Canyon section of the Trans-Canada Highway will understand the man's consternation.

The road, with its narrow, twisting, cliff-hanging route, its white - faced, terror - stricken travellers, is nearly a thing of the past, however.

At an estimated cost of $40,000,000, spread over nearly a decade, a new highway has been built by an army of men facing one of the toughest construction jobs on the continent—quarrying a road out of the walls of the Fraser Canyon.

There are still many rough spots in the 30-mile stretch between Hope and Boston Bar, 80 miles northeast of Vancouver, but it is, relatively speaking, a super-highway compared with its condition 10 years ago.

A new bridge is being built across the canyon to replace the present suspension span at Alexandria. When this $4,000,000 bridge is finished, it is likely the present one will be demolished.

At China Bar, between Hell's Gate and Boston Bar, a new tunnel is being driven and an old one blasted out. A second tunnel at that point will be abandoned, and farther up the road another tunnel is being bored.

This 1.18 miles is the most expensive bit of road work on the basis of mileage ever tackled in B.C.—$2,242,723.

Although many will be glad to see the old road gone, others will deplore the loss of beauty spots erased by earth removers, pneumatic drills and blasting powder.

Nixon, Republican Nominee, Tough, Resourceful Fighter Since Entering Politics in '46

CHICAGO (AP) — It's a little hard to believe, but Richard Nixon impressed most people as a shy young man when he ventured into politics in 1946.

Now the Republicans have nominated him for president, and in him they have found a tough, resourceful fighter.

The diffident newcomer developed so fast—and so implacably—that no one doubts he'll sail through the strenuous months ahead as a confident salesman of the idea that here is someone the people can depend on to deal vigorously with the international and domestic problems pressing on the United States.

The air of self - assurance he carries about with him is something the 47-year-old Nixon has developed in more than seven years of some of the most active participation in government ever made possible for a vice - president.

Those seven years have put a polish of maturity on the brash young eager beaver—he dropped his shyness early — the Democrats accused in his congressional days of taking the low political road by suggesting their party was soft on communism.

The Nixon of today is a poised and calculating but agile-minded "political animal" as he once described himself. He knows where he wants to go and he is familiar with the mechanics of how to get there.

As befits his new air of maturity, Nixon dresses conservatively and impeccably. He favors dark suits and has taken to wearing a vest even with summer suits—a style that President Eisenhower also follows.

A slight recession in his hairline serves to accent somewhat the tilt of his ski-jump nose that cartoonists have made one of his trademarks. Critical cartoonists like also to picture him with unshaven jowls, a scowl on his face and, perhaps, a combat knife in hand.

He has talked with kings and argued with Nikita Khrushchev. He has had ovations in Asia and has been stoned in Latin America. He has presided over the cabinet and the National Security Council. He has walked a delicate path through three presidential illnesses.

All of this has combined to give Nixon a new - found charity toward his political enemies. He—who once was accused of tabbing former president Harry Truman a traitor, a blood-boiling charge that Nixon denied he ever made—could testify recently to the integrity and loyalty of Senator Kennedy, the man the Democrats chose to run against him for the presidency.

Because of his Quaker upbringing, Nixon is personally temperate. He doesn't smoke. He is careful about his drinks and eats sparingly. He is a great sports fan but seldom gets time for golf, a game he took up late and at which he is not very good.

Four New Birds Added to Flock Of 'Whoopers'

OTTAWA (CP) — Like a proud pappa, Northern Affairs Minister Alvin Hamilton told the Commons Wednesday that the whooping crane population has increased by four young birds.

He said he had some "good news" from the Northwest Territories — that four pairs of whooping cranes, a rare bird almost extinct, had been sighted with four young ones.

This brought the known population of the long-legged whoopers to 43 from 39, he said.

CRATERS EXPLODE

CATANIA, Sicily (Reuters)—Both craters of Etna volcano were exploding every 10 minutes and shooting vapours and red-grey sand 1,800 feet into the air throughout Wednesday, experts at the Vulcanological Institute said.

Simple Remedy Advanced to Cure Snoring

LONDON (Reuters)—A British magazine Wednesday came up with a possible new cure for snoring that is a trifle less final than the remedy suggested by one of its Canadian readers.

Family Doctor magazine said it was flooded with answers from Canada, the United States and elsewhere recently when it asked for volunteers to test the remedy."

"I am convinced," wrote one female applicant from Toronto, "there is no cure for snoring other than killing your husband, which is not legal in our country."

The monthly magazine held out hope that this rather drastic step may not be necessary if snorers take resolute action.

Fifty-nine male and 19 female snorers went through a series of exercises — designed by a leading British doctor—to tighten up jaw, throat and tongue muscles. These calisthenics aimed at preventing the falling back of jaw and tongue, which occurs in many high-decibel snoozers.

Forty-one of the 78 "guinea pigs" reported the exercises had brought some improvement.

Police Probing Two Shipments Of Bombs

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal police said Wednesday they are investigating two shipments of home-made bombs and threatening letters to a prominent city business man.

The bombs, apparently put together by an expert, were shipped to the man from Sherbrocke, Que., and Winnipeg during the past two years.

William Fitzpatrick, chief inspector of detectives, said the man's identity will not be disclosed until investigations are completed.

The first bomb was in a suitcase. It was made up of 21 dynamite sticks and a fuse. An accompanying note read, in part: "If you think this is a joke try lighting the fuse."

The suitcase was turned over to Det.-Sgt. Leo Plouffe, police department trouble - shooter. He dismantled the bomb.

The second bomb arrived by express about two weeks ago. The businessman refused to accept the shipment because he suspected it contained explosives.

It was a zippered plastic bag encased in a cheap fabric suitcase. Inside the plastic bag were three dynamite sticks and detonator.

Sgt. Plouffe dismantled it in a vacant lot in the city's east end after using x-rays to find out whether the bomb was triggered to explode on opening.

TO LEAVE JAMBOREE

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (CP)—Canada's 350-member contingent to the fifth national boy scout jamboree will leave for home in four groups after the jamboree closes Thursday night. The biggest group, 288, will spend Monday touring Chicago leaving Monday night and arriving in Toronto Tuesday morning.

Members Canadian Brigade In West Germany Living in Relative Luxury, Morale High

SOEST, Germany (CP) — The morale of Canadian soldiers in Germany, say army officials, has never been higher.

Things have come a long way for the troops since the first group of Canadians moved into temporary, and unattractive, huts in a mud-splattered suburb of Hannover nine years ago. Now, in the lush green valleys of Germany's Westphalia state, they are living in relative luxury.

The 5,500 members of the 4th Canadian infantry brigade group, and their 9,000 dependants, have the best of both worlds. About two-thirds of the married personnel live in modern Canadian-style apartments, with the latest conveniences, and the others choose their German homes in ancient and picturesque villages that have few equals in northwestern Europe.

They can shop at Canadian or German stores, they can attend Canadian or German movies, they can have lavish nights out in Canadian or German entertainment spots.

"Anyone who doesn't like it," says Pte. Richard Buncombe of Chatham, Ont., "is crazy.

"If I could serve all my time over here, I'd sign up in the army for 25 years."

In the last few years, the Canadian bases have assumed a high degree of permanency and perfection that was naturally missing during the growing stages. Where earlier soldiers had to clear away rubble and cobblestones that cluttered campsites, present - day troops can lounge — in off-duty hours — on carpet-like lawns.

A few years ago vacationing soldiers had to use the hit-or-miss procedure in finding good places to stay. Nowadays there is a complete travel service, equipped in line with complaints and recommendations gathered over the years.

During the first few years, no wives or children were taken to Germany. Now they all come.

Things such as movie theatres, bowling alleys, skating rinks and recreation clubs have been established. So have skiing clubs, rifle clubs and social clubs.

"But there is some trouble with all this," says Pte. Adrian Sillery of Winnipeg. "You need a car to get around to everything—in fact, to take advantage of anything over here you must have either a car or a wife."

He hasn't either, "and I don't like it much."

Pte. Reg Butt of Corner Brook, Nfld., hasn't a wife either, but he does drive a car. "And being in Germany is No. 1. Yes, sir, No. 1."

Enjoying fairly good relations with the local German population, the soldiers freely enter into the spirit of the frequent festivals that add color to the countryside. The kilted troops of the Royal Highland Regiment of Canada have been seen swirling in local street dances — often accompanied by girls dressed in slacks.

Local press photographers never seem to get tired of this phenomenon.

And when it comes to girls—always an important factor in morale—Germany is apparently top-notch spot.

"I won't tell you my name because I've got a girl friend back home," says a Toronto trooper, "but I don't mind saying that I've never had so many dates in my life.

"Most of them are real dolls, too."

The soldiers fit these extra-curricular activities around a strenuous work schedule that keeps them fighting fit. They are often away from their campsites for weeks at a time, training in the rugged forest-clad countryside, or camping under battle conditions in the hills. They never sit around doing nothing.

The brigade's commander, Brig. D. C. Cameron of Alexandria, Ont., says he is "very happy" with the morale, and the behavior, of his men in Germany.

"I think it has always been pretty good."

He says that after a three-year tour of duty in Germany he thinks most of the soldiers—their average age is 22—return home "to become much better citizens of Canada."

Words Sometimes Uttered Go Beyond Speaker's Intent

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

In the heat of political debate words are sometimes uttered that go beyond the intent of the speaker. But they can prove embarrassing when they are uttered by a national leader and seem to criticize the philosophy and operations of a friendly power.

So President Eisenhower may have embarrassed his own foreign policy administrators by using socialism as an argument that governmental paternalism can lead to large-scale suicides, national laziness and drunkenness.

The argument which surprised some foreign observers came as Eisenhower delivered an off-the-cuff rallying call to Republican leaders at a breakfast meeting at the party's convention in Chicago Wednesday. It was attended by most of his cabinet, Republican governors and many other high party officers.

He did not mention any country by name but he made a statistical reference to a "very friendly European country" which "has a tremendous record for socialistic operations and the following of socialistic philosophy. The record shows there that the rate of suicides have gone up almost unbelievably."

"Drunkenness has gone up and the lack of ambition is discernible on all sides."

While Eisenhower did not mention any country specifically, Norway, Denmark and Sweden as well as Britain have highly-developed socialistic welfare states.

Eisenhower argued that years ago, before this friendly power really got deeply involved in socialism, its suicide rate was below that of the U.S. Now it was more than double the U.S. rate.

With that kind of example, he argued, Republicans should make voters understand it is best to follow the credo of Abraham Lincoln who maintained that government should only do those things for people that the people could not do for themselves.

Undoubtedly Eisenhower was phrasing his words merely to attack the Democrats and not embarrass his allies. But several countries may not relish apparent criticism of their way of life offered gratuitously by the free world's leader.

Eisenhower is not the only one to have stumbled in diplomatic niceties. John F. Kennedy, Democratic leader, argued that a Tory government is a tired government when he blasted the Republicans in his acceptance speech at Los Angeles earlier this month.

He seemed to have forgotten for the moment that Britain has a Tory administration.

A British correspondent immediately demanded to know whether Kennedy felt that Prime Minister Macmillan was a tired Tory. Kennedy had to reflect only for a moment before replying he did not.

Sale Agreement Scuttled by Supreme Court

TORONTO (CP) — An Ontario Supreme Court decision Wednesday scuttled an agreement for sale of Stanrock uranium mines assets to Rio Tinto Mining Company of Canada.

But officials of Rio Tinto and Clarkson Company, the trustee in bankruptcy which is seeking to dispose of Stanrock, indicated a new agreement likely would be drawn up.

The court decision came when shareholders of Stanrock sought a motion to prevent the sale of the mine's property and uranium contract, Mr. Justice W. F. Spence agreed to adjourn the case until Sept. 6.

The present sale agreement between Clarkson and Rio Tinto has a clause which provides for expiry on July 29 if the sale is not completed by then. The Sept. 6 court date prevents such a sale within the specified time.

Later Wednesday an official of Clarkson said it was likely a new agreement, with a later expiry date, would be signed. "We are going to do everything possible to get this settlement," he said.

Suppliers, represented by Clarkson, have been owed about $5,500,000 since 1959. Bondholders have a $29,000,000 mortgage on the mine equipment.

Hon. W. M. Nickle, Q.C., Minister of Planning and Development, who will be guest speaker at the official opening of the Colonel Roscoe Vanderwater Conservation Area on August 1st.

The late Colonel Roscoe Vanderwater, D.S.O., V.D., who was first chairman of the Moira River Conservation Authority and then secretary - treasurer for many years.

Expect 2,000 to Be Present At Vanderwater Conservation Area's Opening Ceremonies

All roads in the Bay of Quinte district will lead to the Colonel Roscoe Vanderwater Conservation Area near Thomasburg on August 1st when a crowd estimated at 2,000 persons is expected to the official opening ceremonies of this new Moira River Conservation Authority project.

The area will be officially opened by Hon. W. M. Nickle, Q.C., Ontario Minister of Planning and Development. District residents as well as visitors are invited to attend.

ccess to the Area is from No. 37 Highway at Thomasburg. The turn from the highway, six miles south of Tweed, will be clearly marked, as well as the route to the lovely riverside conservation area. The Area will be open from 11 o'clock so that participants may come early and enjoy a picnic.

Aside from the official opening ceremonies, which are to get underway at 2:30, the program will consist of contests for children as well as a tree identification contest and a "Do You Know Your Watershed Contest?"

Bruce H. Smith, chairman of the Moira River Conservation Authority, will act as master of ceremonies for the official opening. Following the address by Hon. W. M. Nickel, a plaque and map dedicated to the memory of the late Col. Vanderwater will be unveiled.

Weather permitting the Tweed District staff of the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests will stage a program of fire fighting demonstrations, including the dropping of water by Beaver aircraft.

The Moira River Conservation Authority decided to call this project the "Colonel Roscoe

Access to the Area is from No. in honor of the man who did so much towards the establishment of the Authority and who was one of the pioneers of Conservation in this district. Colonel Vanderwater was the first chairman of the Authority and acted as secretary-treasurer from 1948 until his death in 1957.

The name "Conservation Area" is used in order to emphasize that it is not just a park for recreational purposes but is intended to be an outdoor conservation classroom. Already underway is a demonstration pasture, a demonstration farm pond, a number of demonstration woodlots and some demonstration plantations. A conservation trail with labelled trees and plants is nearing completion and other conservation exhibits will be added from time to time.

SCOUTS USE AREA

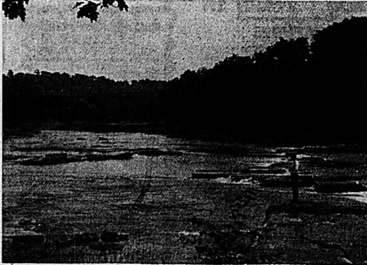
A portion of the property has been leased to the Belleville Boy Scout Association for camping purposes so that Scouts will be able to use the various conservation demonstrations in their training. Ninety picnic tables, a number of fireplaces and the usual conveniences are being installed and a swimming area is planned for the future.

For many years residents of the Thomasburg area have used this section of the Moira River known locally as "The Flat Rock" for recreational purposes. The location is very attractive scenically since the river has cut a deep gorge through the limestone and at one point tumbles over a series of rocky rapids. The sides of the gorge are well wooded and the adjacent land is not well suited to agriculture.

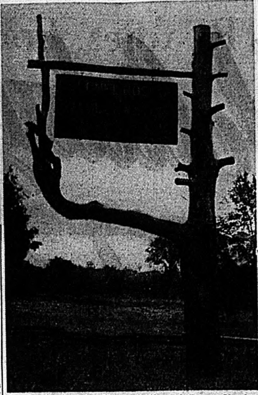
Since 1957, 500 acres along the river in the First, Second and Third Concessions of Hungerford have been purchased and it is hoped to acquire additional properties in future years. In 1959 the Authority commenced development of the north end of the property, including the building of a road down to the rapids.

Visitors can enter the area by going one mile east from Thomasburg along the Fourth Concession road. The entrance to the area is immediately at the easterly end of the bridge across the Moira.

The Moira River is wide and placid where it enters the north end of the Col. Roscoe Vanderwater Area. Conservation area covers several hundred acres on the east bank of the Moira.



In the middle of the Col. Roscoe Vanderwater area the Moira River tumbles over rapids before becoming deeper and narrower at the south end. This scene will be a back-drop for official opening ceremonies August 1st. Area was named for Col. Vanderwater, one of the originators of the Moira River Authority and secretary-treasurer for many years.



Rustic sign at entrance to the Col. Roscoe Vanderwater Conservation Area at Thomasburg is fashioned from uniquely shaped cedar tree. Area will be officially opened August 1st by Hon. W. M. Nickle, Q.C., Minister of Planning and Development.

May Sign in Rome

Ingomar Wants Fight in L.A.

GOTEBORG, Sweden (AP) — Agreement on the basic points of the third Ingemar Johansson-Floyd Patterson heavyweight title fight were reached Wednesday by the Swedish boxer, his financial adviser and Bill Fugazy, New York promoter.

"I want the return bout as soon as possible and Nov. 1 at Los Angeles sounds okay to me," said Johansson. He won the title from Patterson in New York in 1959 and lost it back to him in June of this year.

"There are no hard problems to iron out," said Fugazy.

Fugazy said he hoped the actual signing of the contract would take place in Rome Aug. 24, the day before the start of the Olympic Games. He pointed out that many sportswriters from around the world would be there and that it would stress the international aspect of the bout.

Johansson and his advisers will go to Rome about Aug. 20. Patterson, who will be on an exhibition tour of Sweden, is expected to interrupt it long enough for the signing.

Patterson is due to fly here about Aug. 8 with his wife, manager Cus D'Amato, trainer Dan Florio and three sparring partners.

On the Tracks

FORT ERIE (CP) — Anita's Son, Canada's leading handicap horse of the season, will return to action Saturday when he runs in the $7,500 Fair Play Stakes at the Fort Erie Jockey Club.

Anita's Son has been in light training since he won the $30,000 Dominion Day Handicap at New Woodbine on July 1.

Amazing Avelino Gomez rode four consecutive winners as week-day attendance and wagering records were established Wednesday. The crowd of 9,497 wagered $495,543.

Just to make the day complete, there was a double deadheat in the eighth race. Rube's Ace and Bernie Kline finished on even-terms for first-place. Then, the placing-judges called for another photo of the finish and ruled that Sandy Sugar and Flotilla had dead-heated for third money.

None of the residents of the press - box could recall when there had been a similar occurrence on an Ontario track.

The afternoon's record crowd was swelled by the inclusion of 774 members of the Greater Buffalo Advertising Club and the afternoon's feature race was named in their honor. Bold Scholar, the good Canadian-bred sprinter owned by Mrs. Alex Chris of Kitchener, sped out of the gate with Gomez on his back and covered the six furlongs in 1.10 4-5, only one-fifth of a second behind the track record. Stinson's boy was second, five lengths behind the winner, while Foxy Phil finished third.

Despite the fact that he was the fourth consecutive winner for Gomez, Bold Scholar paid $13.70, $4.50 and $2.60.

FROM TV:

BIRMINGHAM, England (Reuters)—A 10-year-old boy initiated a younger boy into his "gang" by branding him on the face with a red-hot iron, a juvenile court was told Wednesday. The prosecutor said the older boy might have gotten the idea from television westerns in which Indians torture white men.

Lacrosse

PORT CREDIT (CP) — Port Credit Sailors edged Brampton Excelsiors 11-10 Wednesday night in an Ontario Lacrosse Association senior game.

Goaler Dave Russell saved the day by holding off a last-minute rally by Brampton and teammate Larry Ruse boosted the Sailors score with a five-goal performance. Brian Aherne scored twice and George Kapasky, Ron Brown Leo Teatro and Peter Ruse got one each.

Jim McClure and Gord Thompson led Brampton with two each while singles were netted by Ken Richardson, John Ford, Wayne Thompson, Al McLaughlin, Revis Bennett and Bruce Wanless.

Defeat Calgary 51-30

Rote Sparks Argos to Win

TORONTO (CP) — One game doesn't constitute a football season, but Toronto Argonaut fans have high hopes today that their team will vacate the Big Four Union cellar this year.

With National Football League veteran Tobin Rote at quarterback, Argos showed evidence of strength Wednesday night in whipping Calgary Stampeders of the Western Interprovincial Football Union 51-30 in an exhibition encounter before 12,692 fans.

Rote, 32, in his first game in Canada, showed he could be the man to end Argos' four-year stay in last place.

During the 32 minutes Rote handled the team he passed for three touchdowns, rambled over from six yards out for another and built up a 37-3 lead at three-quarters time. He sat out the last quarter.

INSPIRED PLAY

Joe Kapp, 22, Calgary's quarterback ace, was injured during the game's first few minutes but returned to inspire the westerners in the fourth quarter with some great passing.

He clicked on four touchdown passes in the last 15 minutes, leaving fans wondering what might have happened if he had gone the distance. Without him, the Stamps showed little.

Kapp tossed two touchdown passes to Bill McKenna and one each to Harvey Wylie and Bill Barber. Ed Vernes kicked a field goal and converted three times.

Argonauts' seven touchdowns went to Cookie Gilchrist, Dick Shatto, Al Schlosser, Rote, Dennis Mendyk, Tom Zhiulkie and Boyd Carter. Gilchrist added four converts and two singles and Dave Mann a pair of singles. Bill Mitchell, picked up by Argonauts in the college draft this year, converted one touchdown.

Wings Extend Win String To Seven

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Home runs are keeping Rochester Red Wings on their current winning streak in the International League.

The streak reached seven Wednesday night and left the Wings only a game out of third place.

Rochester, led by Ben Mateosky, Leon Wagner and Jim Frey, sent Columbus Jets to their seventh consecutive loss with 6-3 and 4-3 victories. Montreal Royals edged Miami Marlins 6-5 in the only other game. Toronto at Jersey City and Buffalo at Richmond were rained out.

GAME-WINNING HOMERS

The Wings have hit 13 round-trippers in their streak, during which Frey has twice hit game-winning homers against Columbus.

Wednesday night he broke a 3-3 tie in the eighth inning of the nightcap with a solo shot off Diomedes Olivo (5-5) Ben Mateosky hit two in the opener, raising his season's total to 10 and helping Willard Schmidt gain his seventh victory in nine decisions.

After Mateosky doubled and Del Rice walked against Olivo in the nightcap, Wagner belted his 11th home run to tie the score 3-3. It spoiled Olivo's one-hitter. Dick Ricketts won.

Jerry Snyder led Montreal with a triple, double and single but it took a leaping catch by third baseman George Risley to help the Royals move from the basement to sixth place. With two out, and two on in the last of the ninth, Risley speared Nor mZauchin's solid smash.

RETURN JERRY JANES

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes placed two imports on waivers and returned import end Jerry Janes to British Columbia Lions Wednesday. Centre Milt Crain from the University of Mississippi and guard Earl Kohlhas from Penn State were placed on waivers. Janes came to Alouettes in a pre-season trade with Lions. A club spokesman here said the trade was contingent on Janes making the Montreal club.

'Miss Supertest III' Readies For Harmsworth Race

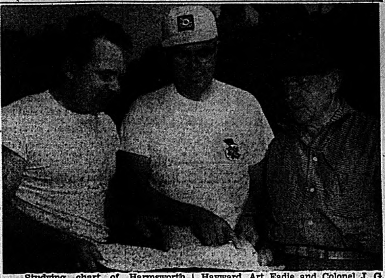
Canada's defender in the Harmsworth Trophy races, "Miss Supertest III", is lowered into the water by 30-ton crane at the test runs in Picton.

ENDLESS TORRENT

The Canadian or Horseshoe Falls at Niagara Falls is estimated to be wearing its rocky brink at the rate of two to four feet a year.



Studying chart of Harmsworth Trophy race course are left to right: Bob Hayward, Art Eadie and Colonel J. G. Thompson.

Batting—Bob Allison, Senators—The big outfielder singled with one out in the 15th inning to score Pete Whisenant with the run that gave the Senators a 5-4 victory over the Tigers.

Pitching—Jack Sanford, Giants—the big right-hander permitted only four hits, blanking the Braves 5-0 for his sixth shutout of the season.

CANADA CONTRIBUTES

MONTREAL (CP) — S. M. Burke, Pakistani high commissioner to Canada, said Tuesday that, after the United States, Canada is contributing more than any other country in the world to the economic and industrial development of Pakistan.

"Miss Supertest III" roars over the Harmsworth Trophy race course at a speed of 150 mph.

Canada's World Champion Is Confident

While the U.S. will put three challengers into the Harmsworth Trophy race at Picton in August, Canada will rely confidently on the same boat and crew to defend the top award in world power-boat competition.

Jim Thompson, London sportsman, is quietly confident that his Harmsworth victory will still outpace all challengers in 1960. His unlimited class hydroplane Miss Supertest III will not be changed. And Bob Hayward of Embro, who drove it to victory on the Detroit River last summer will race Miss Supertest III in defense of the Harmsworth Trophy.

Designed by Jim Thompson as "a good all-round racing boat which would be more durable under racing conditions — not for out and out speed", Miss Supertest III is a 6,000 pound craft powered by a 2,000 horse-power Rolls-Royce Griffon engine.

The Canadian Boating Federation is happy enough to let Miss Supertest III defend the Harmsworth, however, having seen driver-mechanic Bob Hayward hit speeds of 160 miles per hour last summer on the three-mile Harmsworth course in the Detroit River last August.

They, and the Yachtmen's Association of America which is grooming three U.S. challengers, are both mindful too that before Miss Supertest III was built, her sister boat, Miss Supertest II set the world's record of 184.5 miles per hour on the same Bay of Quinte waters at Picton that will mark the Harmsworth course this August 19-22. Trimmed to 30 feet, 8 inches, and 12½ foot beam, Miss Supertest III won every race she entered last year.

This Canadian holder of the Harmsworth Trophy has a cherry plywood hull, magnesium coated but mahogany colored. Sped by the 2,000 h.p. Griffon power plant the hull sits 8 inches out of the water suported on two forward sponsons and the propellor hub. The white tail fin and orange trim blur into a victory trail. Miss Supertest III's official number "C.A.3" is borne prominently on the hull

Constant changes in engine and hull were continued by Thompson in perfectionist efforts to create a Harmsworth winner. In 1958, Bob Hayward drove her to victory in the St. Clair International Trophy event, but mechanical trouble developed later in the season. In five months that winter Jim Thompson and his crew put their seven years of experience into building their new craft, Miss Supertest III. No drastic changes were made in design.

But small changes make a big difference at high speed. About midships on the port side there is a small knife edge jutting vertically into the water 4 inches below the boat and 16 inches long. This little stabilizer makes substantial difference in control of Miss Supertest III in turns.

The exact setting of this knife edge stabilizer exemplifies Jim Thompson's technique. Time and again the craft was put through trials, then lifted from the water to reset the stabilizer a fraction of an inch one way or the other.

The final test of this and other innovations, the overall performance of the Rolls-Royce power plant, the modified three-pointer redesign of the hull, came last August at the Harmsworth races on the Detroit River.

A slipping clutch got Miss Supertest III away to a slow start in the first heat but Bob Hayward kept her nose scented for victory. In the second race Miss Supertest III was almost capsized by a heavy swell, and let her competitor take the lead and evened the score. The final race August 27, 1959 started at 5:15 p.m., after delays due to weather.

Bob Hayward matched the boat's performance with his racing skill that put Miss Supertest III four seconds ahead of the contender Maverick as they went over the starting line. He had increased his lead to nearly half a lap when the Maverick broke down in the gruelling race in the 12th lap.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Jim Thompson, handsome London, Ont., designer-owner of Canada's world champion hydroplane, "Miss Supertest III", stood on the float at the "pits" at Long Reach, the other morning.

A brisk breeze blew in from the southwest diagonally across this broad ribbon of the Bay of Quinte, nautical amphitheatre of the Harmsworthy Trophy waterborne gladiators and their world jousting August 19, 20 and 22nd.

JIM THOMPSON

It spun small tear-drops from a seven-inch chop, not heavy enough to carry spume-crests.

The huge beetle-shaped world champion tugged gently at her moorings. She nudged the floating wharf with impatient pushes.

Somebody asked Thompson what he thought of this battleground of the titans of the unlimited propeller-driven hydroplane class.

For it is here that "Miss Supertest III", yearling world champion will defend her hard-earned crown against the challenge of three determined American craft.

Jim smiled. "This," he said, "is the finest water I have ever seen."

Thompson made the statement with a quiet air of confidence. A few minutes previous his eyes had swept the "Reach," a sight not unfamiliar to his eyes.

It was here or hereabouts that "Miss Supertest II", older sister and "policeman" for the world champion, had driven to a world straightaway record back in 1957 with Art Asbury the pilot.

Thompson knows, as does his American challengers that water, and water conditions, are vital factors in the success or failure of powerful hydroplane craft.

With "Miss Supertest's" eight-inch clearance between water and hull, a six or seven-inch "chop' 'is ideal.

"And," he said, his face straightening in grim lines, "a slow swell could be deadly."

That is mainly why the Thompson-Hayward Harmsworth board of strategy selected the Long Reach as the jousting ground for the world championship races.

The lovely wooded slopes that reach up from the waterline on both shores of the course eliminate snarling gusting winds that whip the water into spume-crested whitecaps.

There are no open gaps along the tree-crested shoreline, to admit the wind creator of swells

Death and destruction could co-pilot a craft of the types of Harmsworth Trophy competitors should the wind-devils scud up wildly-chopped or slowly-swelling water.

There was pride and confidence in Thompson's mien as the sleek champion was pushed away from the small floating dock.

Her 2,000 horsepower Rolls-Royce Griffon power-plant coughed and sputtered as if mildly protesting action after a year's holiday.

At the controls 32-year-old Bob Hayward, former Ontario chicken farmer, who can outfoot any nautical traffic cop afloat, gently nursed his mahogany decked champion. Then she roared into action.

The water was to her liking, Hayward said afterward. He had streaked the champion to 130 miles an hour with apparent little effort. There was a minor fault but this was adjusted and in the afternoon "Miss Supertest" ripped over the rippled course in excess of 150 mph.

It was reported late yesterday that the Thompson entourage was satisfied with the tests and had left for London.

"Miss Supertest" will be returned to her secret lair near London, a large farm building, where she will remain until the week of the races.

Here in Hayward's Hideaway she will be guarded from prying eyes, checked, re-checked and nursed by Hayward and his chief mechanic, Vic Leghorn, a tough wiry Englishman.

Stocky, brown-eyed Hayward, of whom an American competitor once said, "He weighs 160 pounds, but 159 of it is heart, guts and speed," is a mechanic-driver who knows every nut and bolt, wire and terminal as well as the quirks and traits of the modified 2,400 pound Rolls-Royce power plant.

Hayward is confident of victory. He hit speeds of 160 miles an hour on the tricky Detroit River to win the Harmsworth last August.

The other day he modestly stated to this reporter, "She will do better than that here because she is a better boat, in better shape, the water situation is much better —and I have never really opened her up."

RECALL PITCHER

NEW YORK (AP)—New York Yankees recalled pitcher Bill Short from Richmond Virginians of the International League Wednesday. The young southpaw was with the Yankees this spring and had a 2-4 record when sent down because of arm trouble on June 7. With Richmond he won 3 games and lost 1.

Sanford, Drysdale Issue Blank Checks

Shut Out Braves, Reds

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Staff Writer'

Jack Sanford today must know how Freddy Fitzsimmons, another Giant pitcher, felt 25 years ago.

In 1935, Fitzsimmons lost eight out of 12 decisions. In his four successful outings, he had to pitch a shutout.

Sanford won his ninth game for San Francisco Wednesday, a 5-0 triumph over Milwaukee. He has lost eight. Six of his victories have been shutouts.

Big Jack's four - hitter combined with Pittsburgh's 7-3 triumph over St. Louis increased the Pirates' first place lead over the Braves to 1½ games.

Los Angeles' third place Dodgers blanked the Cincinnati Reds 2-0 behind Don Drysdale's four-hitter and the Philadelphia Phillies downed the Chicago Cubs 7-5.

THREE HITS FOR CEPEDA

Orlando Cepeda, with three hits, and Jim Marshall, with one, drove in two runs apiece to lead the Giants' eight - hit attack on loser Lew Burdette and Don McMahon. The Giants victory snapped a four - game Milwaukee winning streak.

Sanford, who fanned six, now owns shutout victories over Philadelphia (2), St. Louis, Pittsburgh, Chicago and Milwaukee. He needs Los Angeles and Cincinnati to join Grover Alexander, Cy Young and Jack Coombs as the only major leaguers to blank all opposing clubs in one season.

This was the 15th shutout by a Giant pitcher this season. The most shutouts by a Giant pitcher is 12, by Christy Mathewson, in 1908. Carl Hubbell, another former Giant, had 10 in 1933. The major league record for most shutouts in one season was set by Alexander, who had 16 for the Phillies in 1916.

DRYSDALE STARS

Drysdale duplicated Sanford's four - hit performance for Los Angeles which marked his second straight shutout and fifth consecutive victory. The tall right - hander struck out six and didn't walk a batter.

The Dodgers got six of their seven hits off Jim Maloney, 21-year - old rookie, who matched Drysdale's pitching for six innings. The Dodgers got to the southpaw fireballer in the seventh, breaking through for a run on singles by Duke Snider, Charlie Neal and Maury Wills. They added another, off relievers Jim Brosnan and Bill Henry in the eighth, on an error, Wally Moon's single and a wild pitch. The victory was the 14th in 18 games for Los Angeles.

The Pirates, winning their third straight from St. Louis, snapped a 3-3 tie in the seventh. Singles by Joe Christopher, Dick Groat, Gino Cimoli and Hal Smith highlighted the three-run rally. Fred Green, who took over after Joe Gibbon walked the first two batters in the sixth, gave up only one hit the rest of the way and gained credit for his fifth victory. Ray Sadecki was the loser.

TWO PITCHERS QUIT

Two Pirates pitchers were forced out with injuries. George Witt, the starter, left after the first inning because of an elbow pain. Earl Francis relieved him but had to leave at the end of the fourth because of a sore shoulder.

Pinch hitter Bobby Del Greco's leadoff homer broke a 3-3 tie and launched a four - run rally in the fifth for the Phillies which handed the tailend Cubs their sixth straight defeat.

Pancho Hererra also homered for the Phils who rocked five pitchers for 15 hits. Seth Morehead was tagged with the defeat. Lanky Gene Conley won his seventh with the help of Dick Farrell.

Torgeson Is the Fuse

Second Chisox Blast Rocks Boston

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Staff Writer

Probably the most unsung and the most successful big leaguer in his specialty is Earl Torgeson, pinch-hitter extraordinary of the American League - leading Chicago White Sox.

While regulars Minnie Minoso, Nellie Fox, Luis Aparicio, Al Smith and Roy Sievers have been getting most of the credit for the White Sox surge, Torgeson with no fuss and little fanfare, has been delivering at a phenomenal pace in his tough pinch-hit role.

The 36-year-old third - string first baseman cracked the key hit—as a pinch hitter—in a five-run seventh inning that set up a 10-4 Chicago victory over Boston Wednesday widening the White Sox' first place lead over the rained-out New York Yankees to 1½ games.

.611 AVERAGE

A check of Torgeson's pinch-hit record reveals that the bespectacled southpaw swinger has been called upon as an emergency batter this season 36 times and in 22 of these he's reached base—10 hits and 12 walks. That's an amazing .611 on-base average.

No pinch-hitter before him, and that goes for such outstanding ones as Sam Leslie, Johnny Frederick, Cy Williams, Red Lucas, Peanuts Lowrey, Johnny Mize, Ron Northey, Gus Zernial as well as contemporaries Smoky Burgess and George Crowe, were able to approach this brilliant record.

The White Sox collected a dozen hits in the last 11 games, of which they've won 10, they have belabored enemy pitchers for 138 hits. That's a .361 team batting average. They've scored 82 runs during that span, an average of eight per game.

15-INNING GAME

In the only other game played in the AL, Washington outlasted Detroit 5-4 in 15 innings. Rain postponed the scheduled double-header between Cleveland and the Yankees in New York and Kansas City at Baltimore.

Ted Williams accounted for one of Boston's runs with a 450-foot homer into the centre field bleachers, his 17th this year and 509th of his career, two behind third-ranked Mel Ott.

The Detroit-Washington game lasted four hours and 48 minutes —only 10 minutes short of the longest game in American League history—before Bob Allison singled home Peter Whisenant with the winning run in the 15th. Whisenant, who had homered earlier, singled with one out and advanced to scoring position on another single by Reno Bertoia. The victory gave Washington undisputed possession of fifth place.

Ex-Detroit pitcher Tom Morgan won in his first time on the mound for the Senators. Morgan, sixth Washington pitcher, took over in the 13th and retired nine Tigers in order. Catcher Hank Folles in his first game with Detroit, got five hits, including two doubles.

The game, held up after 12 innings for 15 minutes by fog, matched the longest game of the year in the majors this season.

Fraser Favored To Win Tennis Singles

TORONTO (CP) — Victoria's John Fraser, 17, favored to win the Ontario junior tennis championships, meet Brian Flood of London, Ont., in the junior men's semi-finals today.

Fraser, ranked fifth in Canada, defeated Tom Williamson of Southampton Wednesday with an easy 6-1, 6-4 victory. He has met and beaten Flood, seeded fourth, twice before.

Fraser's main worry is Montreal's Claude Savaria, seeded third, who he will probably meet in the finals. The Victoria player was beaten by Savaria two years ago though he has avenged himself twice since then.

Savaria will meet Peter Wright of London, Ont. today.

OUT WITH INJURY

In women's play Wednesday, second-seeded Veronica Holdup retired with an arm injury and left Toronto's Della Freedhoff an almost certain victor in the junior women's championship.

Miss Freedhoff today meets Eleanor O'Gorman of Winnipeg in one semi-final, while in the other, Sarnia's Rene Donohue meet's Wendy Davis of Newmarket. Miss Davis defeated Hildegarde Balogh of Sudbury, 2-6, 9-7, 6-2 Wednesday after a tough match. Miss Barlogh had upset third-seeded Jane Maybee of Toronto.

Top-seed Brenda Nunns of Toronto meets Windsor's Faye Urban in the finals of the junior girls class today. Miss Urban whipped Susan Snyder of Southampton 6-0, 6-1 Wednesday.

Montreal's Peter Burwash, top seed in the junior boys class, meets Mike Carrol of Ottawa in today's semi-final. Carrol, ranked third in Canada, is seeded fourth in the tournament.

In the juvenile girls group, Nancy Green of Toronto meets Joann Dale of London, Ont., in the finals today. Miss Dale outfought Carol Shannon of Southampton, 7-5, 6-4 Wednesday.

Harness Racing

TORONTO (CP) — Veteran Jiggs McFadden and rookie Bruce Clements shared honors in the $4,160 Woodbine Trot at Old Woodbine Park Wednesday when their trotters covered a mile in identical times in the two divisions of a stakes event that drew 20 entries.

Clements, driving his own mare, Cotton Maid, in the fifth race, and McFadden, guiding Al Leverington's Wind Song in the eighth, were both timed in 2:06.4.

Before 4,629 patrons who wagered $180,295, McFadden's six-year-old bay, Wind Song, returned $34.60 for a $2 straight ticket, in winning a photo-finish from the 6 to 5 favorite, Amber Lad. McFadden scored his 10th win of the year in the upset.

Cotton Maid, in winning the fifth, went away at 7 to 2 for her owner Bruce Clements of Dobbinton, Ont., who is a provisionally licensed driver. (This corresponds to an apprentice licence in thoroughbred racing).

Highly regarded driver Harold (Sit Still) Wellwood had to contend with "breaking" horses in each heat. His Hava Julep broke at the quarter-pole in the fifth race, and Kintoo Colby did the same thing in the eighth. Neither finished in the money.

Fights Last Night

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Montreal — Bob Cleroux, 207, Montreal, knocked out Roy Harris, 198½, Cut and Shoot, Tex., 5.

Porthcawl, Wales — Mike DeJohn, 210½, Syracuse, N.Y. declared winner over Dick Richardson, 204, Wales. Richardson disqualified in eighth round for butting.

DENIED LICENCE

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Former world welterweight champion Don Jordan of Los Angeles has been denied a licence to box in California.

A formal decision was disclosed Wednesday by the state athletic commission. It cited a section of the state law which accused him of "actions detrimental to the best interests of boxing," but secretary Clayton Frye declined to elaborate.

M'sieu Cleroux Knocks Out Harris

By MARVEN MOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—Bob Cleroux, a Canadian heavyweight with a battering-ram style, made a bid for the division's big-time ranks Wednesday night when he scored a fifth-round knockout over world-rated Roy Harris.

A crowd of 12,530—making a $40,000-plus gate for promoter Eddie Quinn—watched the bout in balmy 70-degree weather at Delorimier Stadium, an east-end baseball park.

The 22-year-old French-speaking Cleroux, club-fisted and unpolished, trapped Harris in a corner and felled him with a two handed barrage that wound up with a left hook.

Harris, ahead on points at the time, struggled dazed to one knee midway through the count and stood up a moment after referee Tony Mancini had tolled 10. The time was 1:12.

MISJUDGED COUNT?

To ringsiders it appeared Harris might have got up in time but misjudged the count and that's what happened said the 27-year-old from Cut and Shoot, Tex., later in his dressing room.

"But it wouldn't have made much difference," he added. "I could see from the first round on that I wasn't going anywhere. I was weak."

Al Bachman of New York, who manages Cleroux jointly with Bob's father, said after the big win there were no concrete plans for future bouts for the Montrealer.

But he made it clear he is interested in a shot at Toronto's George Chuvalo, the division's Canadian champ and a front-row spectator at Wednesday night's match.

The knockdown was the only one of the bout although the plodding Cleroux twice wrestled Harris to the canvas, once just before the finish.

BLOODY NOSE

In the fourth round, Cleroux came out of a flurry with his nose bleeding freely but trainer Whitey Bimstein stopped the bleeding before the fifth round started.

Harris climbed into the ring a 7-to-5 favorite, ranked ninth by the National Boxing Association and 10th by Nat Fleischer's Ring Magazine.

It was the 18th knockout victory for Cleroux in 22 pro bouts. He has won two by decision, fought a draw and lost once—to Buddy Turman of Tyler, Tex.

The setback left Harris with a 30-3 tab. His two previous losses were technical knockouts — one by heavyweight champ Floyd Patterson in 1958 and the other by Philadelphia's Sonny Liston last April 25.

Harris earned 25 per cent of the gate and Cleroux [illegible] per cent. There was no radio or television coverage.

Queen Gets Excited Over Horse Race

LONDON (AP) — Queen Elizabeth, it was learned Wednesday, parlayed her love of horse racing into a novel bit of two-track watching Tuesday.

She attended the Goodwood meeting with Prince Philip and had a portable TV set installed in the royal box so that she could follow the action at the Redcar track in Yorkshire, 250 miles away.

The Queen became so excited she pounded her knees with clenched fists as her aunt's horse won the Redcar feature event at 25-to-2 odds.

Meet Bobcats Friday

Flyers Oust Deseronto 7-0

RCAF Flyers meet the Belleville Bobcats in the District Softball League playoffs, with the first game scheduled for the CNRA Park here tomorrow night starting 6.45.

The flyboys earned the right last night by handing the Deseronto Athletics a 7-0 shutout in their sudden-death game on the railroad diamond.

Trenton and Cobourg decide second and third spots tonight in a sudden-death joust at Trenton.

Pat Maracle's Braves could do little or nothing with the shoots of the flyer hurler Kibblewhite who scattered three measly hits over the nine innings route. He whiffed nine, but walked eight.

But the "Ole Rubber Arm" was touched freely being nicked for ten clouts, one a two-run homer, and a pair of doubles. Maracle struck out seven and walked three.

The Flyers grabbed a three-run lead in the second off back-to-back singles, an error and Matheson's double. They scored singles in the fourth and sixth and Desmone's four-bagger in the seventh provided further insurance.

Deseronto threatened in the first innings with three men aboard and again in the second and ninth when two men got on base. However Kibblewhite straightened out the situation wiah some fine support and no damage was done.

Girard and Macdonald each clouted two singles for the Flyers with Desimone getting a homer, Hughes and Matheson doubles and Duff, Beck and Smith hitting singles.

Huffman, Garrison and Detler were the hitters for the Athletics.

Players Vote For Two All-Star Games

NEW YORK (AP)—Players on major league teams have voted, 12 clubs to four, for two all-star baseball games next year, The Associated Press learned Wednesday.

The players suggested the first be played in San Francisco on Tuesday, July 11, and the second in Boston on Tuesday, Aug. 8.

Two such games were played both this year and last but there was considerable criticism from players, officials and fans this year when both were played within three days—July 11 at Kansas City and July 13 in New York.

After the second game, commissioner Ford C. Frick asked that the players be polled. A portion of the receipts of both games goes to their pension fund.

The source told The AP that players on the Cleveland and Washington clubs in the American League opposed the all-star doubleheader and that it was believed the two negative votes in the National League came from the Philadelphia and San Francisco clubs.

Stamp Players File Claim Against City

CALGARY (CP) — Damage claims are being filed against the city of Calgary by Doug Brown and Ernest Warlick, Calgary Stampeder players who suffered burns in last Wednesday's exhibition football game with Edmonton Eskimos at Mewata Stadium.

Notices of the players' intent to claim damages were served to the deputy city clerk Tuesday.

The notices stated that the players "suffered severe and painful burns as a result of Calgary's negligence in preparing the football field at Mewata Stadium.

It is expected the damages claimed will be extensive and as soon as the injuries are fully determined a statement of claim will be filed.

Several other members of the two WIFU teams suffered burns.

The parks department has announced it will no longer use hydrated lime for field markings, although a testing laboratory gave the lime a heat and water test and reported at least the portion tested, was safe.

LOOKING AHEAD

QUEBEC (CP)—Plans for the next Winter Carnival here are going ahead throughout the summer, with most committees well into the preliminary preparations.

Toss Bottles, Chairs, Umbrellas

Fight Spectators Run Riot

PORTHCAWL, Wales (AP)—Rain-sodden spectators pelted the ring with bottles, chairs, soaked newspapers and umbrellas Wednesday night in one of the wildest demonstrations in recent years as Mike DeJohn of Syracuse, N.Y., was ruled winner over European heavyweight champion Dick Richardson.

The European fighter was disqualified in the eighth round for butting.

The scheduled 10-round fight was held outdoors in a driving rainstorm. The fight developed into little more than a wrestling match, which helped precipitate the riotous scene.

Richardson, 204, was downed for counts of four, six and eight in the first round, and had to be carried to his corner. He somehow survived the second and third rounds by putting his head down and rushing the 210½-pound American to the ropes.

In the fourth both men went out of the ring, see-sawing on the top rope until they tumbled.

The Welshman went down again for an eight count in the sixth round, although nobody could tell whether it was DeJohn's hand or head which floored him. It brought a storm of booing.

At the start of the seventh referee Eugene Henderson warned both men about butting. When the brawling started again in the eighth he stopped the crude affair and disqualified Richardson.

For a few seconds the crowd was silent. Then came a chorus of boos, followed by the barrage of everything throwable. It seemed to be a riot against a contest lacking skill rather than against either boxer.

Richardson's face became a bloody mask as the American finished with only a slight cut over his nose.

Teener Smashes Singles Mark At Henley

PORT DALHOUSIE (CP)—A 17-year-old high school student from Philadelphia smashed an 18-year-old record in the high schools singles mile event during Wednesday's program of the 78th Royal Canadian Henley Regatta here.

Joseph Mastalski, a senior from Bishop Neumann High School, tore through the mile event in 5:29. The powerful six-footer knocked 35 seconds off the old mark of 6:04 set by Art Griffiths of Hamilton Westdale in 1942.

Wednesday's other two final events on the 21-race card also went south of the border.

Tom Haslak, 21, of the Fairmount Rowing Association, Philadelphia, took the 135-pound junior sculling final at 8:16 with M. Kroll of the Detroit Boat Club second.

CANADIAN THIRD

Twenty-two-year-old Bill Smoke of Wyandotte, Mich., captured the 155-pound junior singles in 8:11 with F. Sulger of New York Athletic Club second and Jim Bain of Hamilton Leanders third.

Wyandotte leads points standings with 12½. Fairmount was second with 10 and New York AC third with 5½. Hamilton Leanders and the Minnesota Boat Club each had three points.

The host St. Catharines Boat Club turned in a successful opening day performance winning all five heats in which it was entered, including wins in the junior four and junior cox four heats.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Friday, July 29, 1960

General Tendencies: You are under excellent aspects today for showing your charm and whatever ability you have in matters pertaining to neat touch and fine finish. However, it is not a good time to take chances in any business dealings, but you need to double-check all statements and reports and to use considerable care in travel, on highways in action.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) Important you be out in the outside world of activity today, since you radiate charm and can easily get what you want. However, use diplomacy at home where conditions are not quite as harmonious as you would like them to be.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) Since you are thinking along practical lines today, it behooves you to have a broader scope in life. But be sure you do not indulge in any extravagances of any sort. Take particular care in motion or while driving on the highways.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) Take care you are not too demanding where any money or real estate matter are concerned. Be devoted instead to good friends and perk up your spirits by purchasing these small items of apparel that will enhance your charm.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) Since you may not be feeling any too well today, you may think others are unduly harsh with you. Show devotion to backers and you will soon be feeling better. Then improve appearance of surroundings and start an upswing in your affairs.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) Much can be accomplished today since you are feeling very dynamic and can sway other persons to your constructive way of thinking. But be sure you do not waste any time on that which is not worthwhile. Up and at 'em!

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Steer clear of pals today, since they can be quite annoying. But if you confer with wise advisers you can do much to bring your personal ambitions to early fruition. Get advice early — then action!

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Try to forget that secret anxiety and get out with fascinating persons who will inspire you and help you to advance in your career. Meet other interesting people and have a wonderful day.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) While you are desirous of getting off to new horizons today, it would be much wiser to first insure present security and position by beng very nice to higher-ups, show gratitude for alliance. work diligently.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) The ideal day to meet new people, new prospects and particularly to confer with those whose experience has been different to your own. Avoid that person in advisory capacity who has a chip on his, or her shoulder.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You can get excellent advice from individuals you admire and who are qualified to give you just the tips you need at this time. However, steer clear of that highly excited associate who could get you in Dutch.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) A fine day to exchange good ideas with efficient associates and then get right to work on them. But be sure you avoid or ignore that fellow worker who is in a bad mood and would give you a rigorous and rough time. Be busily occupied.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) Rather than spend money unwisely at some amusement that is hardly worthwhile, be sure you get your surroundings in fine order and immaculately clean. Also, be cheerful in any dealings you may have with others. Expand.

If your child is born today . . there will be a tremendous amount of fascination in his, or her nature, so it is necessary you early give a fine training in spiritual truth so that the life can be both successful and happy, with few of the heartaches that come with beauty. Give an education slanted toward work with the public in general where graciousness and charm are prime requisites. Then the great promise in this chart can be realized.

Minor Baseball

Cardinals defeated the Red Sox 10-7 in a peewee playoff game behind the three-hit pitching of Furney and McTaggart. They whiffed 12 between them.

Dickey took the loss allowing nine hits and striking out six.

Hitters for the Cardinals were Doyle, Morris and Michaud with two singles, Furney a home run, and Goodfellow and Wright, singles.

D. Moon with two singles and Hiddleston accounted for the losers' three hits.

May Change World Hockey Rules, Regs

RIMINI, Italy (AP)—Members of the International Ice Hockey Federation are discussing possible changes in hockey rules and making plans for a world championship tourney.

More than 100 delegates from 20 countries including Canada, opened a five-day congress of the hockey federation Tuesday in this Adriatic sea resort.

Delegates said the federation's board of directors was discussing drafted changes in international hockey rules.

The delegates also are to decide on the date and other details of the next world championship.

Today the delegates are to journey to the nearby tiny hilltop republic of San Marino where they will be officially received.

So What? There's Westerns

TV Sponsors Reject Hockey

MONTREAL (CP) — Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, said Wednesday night that the televising of Saturday afternoon hockey games was cancelled simply because of the difficulty of finding a sponsor for the games.

"We would have been glad to carry on with the arrangement," Campbell said in an interview. "But CBS just found it difficult to find a sponsor who would carry the load."

The fact that Montreal Canadiens and Toronto Maple Leafs seldom appeared in the Saturday afternoon games affected the decision, he said.

Canadiens, Stanley Cup winners last season, appeared only twice. Leafs, the second - place club, did not appear in any of the games.

"That is one of the things that affected the network's decision," the NHL president said.

The afternoon television show was not cancelled because of its affect on attendance at night games. Campbell said the NHL was satisfied with its arrangement with CBC and the revenue that resulted from it.

He mentioned that NHL games may again be televised in the United States, but strictly on a regional basis.

"After all, why should anybody in Mississippi be interested in hockey," he explained. "People in lots of states have never heard of the game, except in a very oblique way."

A regional network might possibly be established by 1961. "They're trying to work something out now," he said.

Latta Takes League Lead From Juniors

Latta took over the lead of the South Hastings Baseball League last night, dethroning the Belleville Juniors with a 5-1 victory.

Latta tops the loop with 29 points, Belleville has 28; Cannifton, 25; Read, 21; Shannonville, 12, and Foxboro 5.

The teams battled evenly after scoring singles in the first inning until the sixth when Latta exploded for four runs and the victory.

Glen Dainard started for the youngsters, striking out five and walking four. He gave way to Bill Moxon in the sixth.

Gary Gow went the route for Latta whiffing eight and walking three.

Follwell with two singles and Keller were the city team hitters while Frank Ray with two singles, Wayne Gow with a double and Parks, Gary Gow and Cam Buskard singled for Latta.

The league executive meets tonight to name dates for the playoffs.

David Hurst Tosses Scare Into Champion

David Hurst, a thirteen year-old hard-hitting tennis player from this city, tossed a mighty scare into the top-seeded player in the Ontario Junior Tennis Championships in Toronto yesterday.

Hurst, son of Mr. and Mrs. William D. Hurst, Church St., took Toronto's Dave Brown, Metropolitan Toronto champion shooting for a place on the junior Davis Cup team, to three sets before going down 6-4, 4-6, and 7-5.

Brown, badly rattled by Hurst's power strokes, was behind 2-4 and 3-5 in the third set but recovered confidence to win the next four games and the match.

The pair was playing in the quarter-finals.

In the second round junior men doubles Peter Annis, of this city, playing with Bob Weir, Toronto, met defeat.

David Hurst, teaming with brother James in the junior boys' doubles, were defeated by Craig Finger and Cam Killoran, London, 8-6, 6-4.

Bill Moffatt of this city, reached the third round junior boys' singles but defaulted the match to Cam Killoran of London.

MY, WHAT A BEAUTY?

Drive up the Trent Road — about half way to Trenton — on the South Side of the road before you arrive at Bayside, you will see our sign on one of the most desirable bungalows you could dream of. It is painted a charming white — you will surely notice it — There is a matching garage. The owner is moving to Toronto — It could be yours for a down payment of only $3,000.

SOMETHING OLD

Preferably called "older type" than just plain "old." "Older type" because it has been there a mighty long time but up-to-date like for the sensible family — the family that likes plenty of room that you just couldn't get in a new one unless you spend many many dollars. This has 4 bedrooms, 2 baths, good location, good heating system. Good price — $11,500. Good down payment — $2,000.

SOLD

IT'S COTTAGE TIME

Half way to Trenton — just off the Highway — No. 2 — only about $1,000 down — 2 bedrooms, a big lot right on the Bay — completely equipped — even a brand new lawn mower. You can start your holidays right today and have your problems solved for years to come.

TWO YOUNG PROS

leader with huge posters depicting Nixon talking with other famous figures and carrying such captions as: "Nixon leads from strength" . . . "America needs Nixon" . . . "Britain respects Nixon."

Every time he speaks he somehow gets in a reminder of his famous kitchen debate with Soviet Premier Khrushchev in Moscow last year and the stoning he encountered in his Latin America tour a few years ago.

PRAISED BY DEWEY

And Wednesday night before the convention exploded in a wild cheering demonstration for Nixon's nomination, Thomas Dewey, twice-defeated Republican presidential nominee, told delegates:

"Richard Nixon has carried heavy responsibilities in shaping the policies which brought victory after victory for freedom in Iran, in Trieste, in Austria, in Guatemala, in Lebanon, in Jordan, in Laos, in Cambodia, in West Berlin, yes, and in Quemoy and Matsu and Formosa."

The real business of the session followed Dewey's speech. Governor Mark O. Hatfield of Oregon used 289 words to place the name of Nixon in nomination.

And then came the wildest bedlam of the Republican convention, lasting 18 minutes. Bands blared. An organ boomed. Delegates yelled and tossed their hats. Signs shook up and down. "Kennedy Kan't Kum Klose," one said.

After the noise and commotion subsided with the help of chairman Charles Halleck's gavel, one speaker after another stepped to the platform to second the nomination.

GOLDWATER NOMINATED

When the noise died away, Governor Paul Fannin of Arizona placed in nomination Senator Goldwater as "the voice of conscience speaking for the conservatives of this nation."

There was an eight - minute demonstration. Waiting for the seconding speeches to be cleared away, Goldwater marched to the rostrum to decline the honor.

Goldwater told the delegates that despite previous criticisms he now felt he platform which he convention had adopted "deserves the support of every American — over the blueprint for socialism presented by the Democrats."

The evening began by nailing down the platform on which Nixon will run. With a shout of aye and only a scattering of noes, the convention approved the 10,000-word document.

In large measure, its most controversial planks, defence and civil rights, followed suggestions drawn up by Nixon and Governor Nelson Rockefeller of New York in a surprise meeting last week.

As if to emphasize the most modern aspects of the platform, the Republicans, just like the Democrats two weeks ago, presented it in a streamlined manner. Charles H. Percy, platform chairman, read excerpts while illustrative movies flashed on two giant screens in the stockyards amphitheatre.

The four-day convention winds up tonight with the vice - presidential nomination and the formal acceptance speeches by Nixon and his running mate.

DOMINION

the personal income taxes paid in nine provinces and all the corporation and inheritance taxes paid in eight provinces. Quebec imposes a small personal income tax, and Quebec and Ontario impose their own corporation income taxes and succession duties.

"One of the questions to be considered here is how far one government should go in financing the activities of another government," Mr. Diefenbaker said at the outset of the conference. "This is a subject that warrants careful review of both policy and practice in this regard."

SAY GONE TOO FAR

Premiers Frost of Ontario, Lesage of Quebec, and Manning of Alberta said the tax-rental agreements have gone too far. They subscribed to the theory—basic in responsible government — that the governments that spend the money should bear the responsibility—and the political repercussions — if raising it in taxes.

The three-day conference, five hours of which were behind closed doors Tuesday, gave rise to a series of further meetings, including:

1. Two meetings of federal and provincial tax experts between now and Oct. 26 to prepare for resumption of the main conference.

2. A meeting of Justice Minister Fulton with the provincial attorneys-general in late September or early October to consider how much agreement there is that Canada's constitution, the British North America Act, should be domiciled in Canada and made amendable by the Canadian Parliament. The 1867 act is a statute of the United Kingdom Parliament.

3. Resumption of the Dominion - provincial fiscal conference for three days starting Oct. 26, with a possibility that it may again be adjourned for a further meeting this year.

4. An interprovincial conference in Quebec City of the 10 premiers, without any federal participation, to discuss provincial problems, to be called before the end of this year by Premier Lesage of Quebec.

WILL CONSIDER

Mr. Diefenbaker said that if agreement can be reached on ways to amend the British North America Act in Canada, without going to the British Parliament, he will consider having a bill of rights written into the act as the first Canadian amendment. Meanwhile, he insisted, his bill of rights now before Parliament will continue on its course to becoming a federal statute.

Possibility of another constitutional amendment was raised in open session by Premier Frost of Ontario and reportedly supported in closed session by Premier Lesage and Premier Roblin of Manitoba. It would permit the provinces to levy an indirect sales tax at the retail level. The provinces now are barred by the constitution from levying a hidden sales tax.

Nixon Promises Drive Against World Poverty

Roll Back Frontiers Of Communism His Plan

CHICAGO (CP) — Vice-President Richard M. Nixon has pledged to roll back the frontiers of world Communist aggression by launching a grand offensive against world poverty, misery and disease if he becomes president next November.

In a tough, anti-Communist speech Thursday night winding up the four-day Republican convention, the 47-year-old Nixon formally accepted in what he called "the greatest moment of my life" the Republican presidential nomination.

He welcomed aboard his "free world victory" ticket as a vice-presidential running mate Henry Cabot Lodge, the chief U.S. delegate to the United Nations and symbol of American resistance to Soviet Premier Khrushchev's challenge to the free world.

Lodge's name was put in nomination quickly after the final session opened by a former China medical missionary, representative Walter Judd of Minnesota, the keynote speaker last Tuesday night, and it stayed there all alone.

HOLDOUT SWITCHED

Lodge got 1,330 out of the 1,331 votes on the first ballot. The lone holdout was Ed Maher of San Angelo, Tex., who abstained. Why? "Just say I'm hot," replied Maher, who then changed his mind and switched to Lodge.

Nixon speaking for 50 minutes from notes, and Lodge both stressed the theme of foreign affairs in their acceptance speeches.

The vice-president said the answer to communism is "victory of freedom over tyranny, of plenty over hunger, of health over disease in every country of the world."

Nixon's freedom offensive would include a large-scale government reorganization to centralize all of the administration's foreign-aid programs, such as loans and grants, technical assistance and cultural exchanges, under the president's direct control.

"All these must be welded together into one powerful economic and ideological striking force under the direct supervision and leadership of the United States."

"STRATEGY OF VICTORY"

It would not be enough just to hold the line against communism—"the only answer to a strategy of victory for the Communist world is a strategy of victory for the free world."

It would be a strategy which would take the freedom offensive to Soviet satellites "because the Communist dictators must not be allowed the privileged sanctuary from which to launch their guerrilla attacks on the citadels of freedom."

Nixon pledged, if elected, to "build a better America" that

Seamen's Union Offered 12 P.C. Wage Boast

OTTAWA (CP)—A compromise wage settlement—offering a 12-per-cent wage boost in three instalments to the end of 1962—has been laid before the Seafarers' International Union (Ind.) and five inland shipping companies.

So far, neither side has indicated its view on the conciliation recommendation, which was higher than the companies offered and lower than the union demanded.

A SIU spokesman indicated Thursday that the union reaction will probably be decided sometime early next week.

Involved in the dispute are about 1,500 Canadian seamen working on freighters plying the Great Lakes and the new seaway route to St. Lawrence River ports.

EQUAL PAYMENTS

The conciliation offer—signed by board chairman H. Carl Goldenberg and Company nominee Jean-Paul Cardinal—divided the wage increase into three equal payments—each a four-per-cent boost.

The first would be retroactive to the start of navigation this year, the next paid at the start of the shipping season next year and the final instalment paid when navigation resumed in 1962.

The SIU originally asked for a flat 10-per-cent wage increase in a one-year contract, plus a cut in the work week to 40 hours from 48 hours. The present basic monthly wage for a deckhand—largest group involved in the negotiations—is $313.

The companies, linked together in the Lake Carriers Association, offered a 10-per-cent increase, to be paid in three instalments to 1962.

TURNED IT DOWN

This was turned down by the union, which is also bargaining with a number of other big shipping companies outside of the Lake Carriers Association.

Altogether about 6,900 seamen on the Great Lakes are involved in the two wage disputes.

The five companies involved in the dispute are Scott Misener Steamships, Port Colborne, N. M. Paterson and Sons, Fort William; Hall Corporation of Canada, Montreal; Carryore Limited, Montreal; and Upper Lakes Shipping, Toronto.

CHINESE RACKET PROBE LEADS TO ARREST OF TWO

Men Face Counts Of Perjury, Forgery

MONTREAL (CP) — Two Chinese arrested by the RCMP in Montreal Thursday are to appear in court next Wednesday in connection with an alleged racket to smuggle thousands of Chinese into Canada.

Bruce Wong, 44, and Henry Chan, 40, were arrested at their travel agencies in Chinatown, near St. Lawrence Boulevard, and arraigned later on a total of 13 charges.

Wong is charged with three counts of perjury, three of forgery and three of uttering forged immigration and citizenship documents. Chan faces two charges of forgery and two of uttering forged documents.

Wong was among prominent members of Montreal's Chinese community who recently visited Ottawa to discuss the situation with Immigration Minister Fairclough.

Lawyer Marcel Gobeury, appearing for the two, made a plea for moderate bail.

"We knew these warrants were coming and we had told the RCMP that we would surrender just as they were issued.

"The two accused will certainly not run away and I am prepared to personally guarantee their presence in court for hearing."

PROSECUTOR OBJECTS

Special federal prosecutor Jean-Paul Cardinal objected.

"These are extremely serious charges," he said. "Wong is liable on conviction to 100 years in prison and Chan to 50 years.

"These charges were laid after long and costly investigation and I am told that it is going to cost a fortune to untangle the web spun by these people.

"I am operating on direct orders from the minister of justice and my instructions are to demand high bail."

He suggested $10,000 for Wong and $5,000 for Chan.

Judge Legrand ordered a $5,000 property bond for Wong and $2,500 bond for Chan.

RCMP Inspector Edwin Willes said more arrests are expected during the course of the investigation, but none is imminent.

HONG KONG ASSISTS

Yesterday's arrests followed months of investigation by RCMP and Hong Kong police brought to Canada to assist in the inquiry and questioning of suspects, many of whom speak no English.

The RCMP estimates about 11,000 Chinese have entered Canada illegally with the assistance of racketeers since 1950. This is about half the total Chinese immigration during the period.

Investigators say the men running the smuggling ring have kept the illegal immigrants in virtual bondage since their entry and have extorted about $44,000,000 from them by blackmail.

Much of the information on the methods was gathered May 24 in simultaneous raids on Chinese districts in Montreal, Toronto, Sarnia, Peterborough, Ottawa,

Nixon Basically Extremely Shy Man Who Plans Every Move Far Ahead

CHICAGO (AP) — Whenever distressing news reaches Vice-President Richard Nixon, he may look it over carefully, acknowledge its gloomy character, and then thoughtfully say something like this:

"It's too early to say if this is a plus or a minus".

Although he never intended it this way, it may be a tipoff on his amazing career.

No other U.S. public figure has been able to take a minus and change it to a plus so successfully as Richard Milhous Nixon.

His nomination for president by the Republican party here Wednesday night illustrates this point perfectly.

Not since the earliest days of the U.S. republic has the vice-presidency been looked upon as anything but a one-way ticket to political oblivion. Only the death of a president could save him from complete obscurity.

Yet Nixon was able to smash this tradition so irrevocably that he had the delegates roped and branded before they ever assembled.

Although Nixon, especially in his past, has been able to stir up tremendous hates, even his best friends will agree he doesn't create tremendous enthusiasms. The reason lies deep in the man himself.

Basically, Nixon is extremely shy.

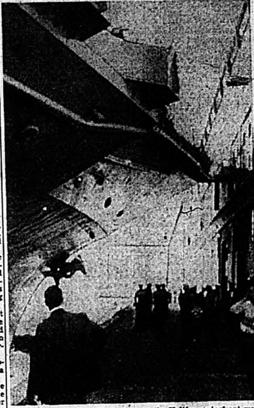
Although he does a good job at shaking hands, at throwing in the thoughtful word to show he's alert to what's being said, he doesn't act like a man who thinks this is the pleasantest way to spend an evening.

Nor is he especially moving on the platform, even though he usually attracts excellent crowds.

Nixon won because long ago he knew where he wanted to go, charted a course that would get him there, and then persistently followed it.

Few people plan ahead like Nixon.

If possible, each speech, including those that appear to be off-the-cuff, is carefully worked out. Each move is carefully premeditated.



DEAD AHEAD — Bystanders on the Halifax waterfront were unaware that the 40,000-ton American aircraft carrier Essex was about to pay an unexpected visit on the immigration building. The flight deck of the ship is shown just as it struck the second floor of the building, making a shambles of a medical officer's office. (CP Wirephoto).

Election Campaign Likely To Be Close, Bitter, Dirty

CHICAGO (CP) — Opening blows in the 1960 presidential election battle point to the likelihood it will be a close, bitter and dirty tussle with issues taking a back seat to personalities.

By the time the campaign is over Nov. 8, both sides undoubtedly will unsheathe their claws and reach for the jugular vein. Age, looks, religion, background, family and character — all these will figure in the blood-letting in the struggle for the White House.

So far it seems Senator John Kennedy, the Democratic presidential candidate, has hit a little lower than Vice-President Richard M. Nixon, the Republican presidential standard - bearer. Nixon appears to be aiming at a dignified, above-the gutter approach to the fight, a distinct departure from his tactics in previous congressional campaigning. However, his lieutenants have no such plans. They're obviously out to do as effective a hatchet-job on Kennedy as possible.

The Republicans are trying to portray the ~~42~~-year-old Kennedy as a brash, inexperienced youngster who might recklessly ruin the country with some impulsive act and appease Soviet Premier Khrushchev at the same time.

The Democrats are attempting to display the 47-year-old Nixon as a pretty shady character, a card shark whose deals leave to be watched and the cruel leader of a politically sterile party that has reduced U.S. prestige in the eyes of the world.

Kennedy moved in first with language a little stronger than that used by Nixon Thursday night. At the Los Angeles Democratic convention earlier this month, Kennedy accused Nixon of following a political career that showed "charity toward none and malice for all."

Thursday night Nixon talked of Kennedy's age and youth and of his "rash and impulsive" suggestion that the U.S. ought to have apologized to Russia in the U-2 spy plane affair.

Kennedy, Nixon said, was following a program that would be "disastrous for America."

Two Potentially-Explosive Issues Loom Before Socreds

OTTAWA (CP)—Faced with a budding revolt and apparent internal dissension, the Social Credit national convention moved into a second day with two potentially - explosive issues looming up for discussion today.

One was election of officers which sparked a fight Thursday night with charges that the procedure proposed was "undemocratic" and "not representative." Amid signs of considerable support for this view, the convention voted to shelve the question until today.

Chief points of contention were an instruction to delegates that nominations must be signed and submitted to a nominations committee which would place names before the convention and a ruling by national leader Solon Low that nominations from the floor would not be allowed.

Another battle may develop over the resolutions to be considered today. Four were read out to the convention Thursday night, including one calling for greater exposition of the "mechanics" by which Social Credit would be put into practice.

However, earlier in the evening the chairman of the policy committee, E. W. Hinman, provincial treasurer of Alberta, introduced a policy statement which he described as dealing "less with the mechanics" than

Two Are Killed In 3-Car Crash

OAKVILLE (CP)—Two persons were killed and four others suffered minor injuries late Thursday in a three-car collision on the Queen Elizabeth Way a mile east of here.

Killed were William Jackson, 71, and Lawrence Francis McCoy, 4, both of Oakville. The McCoy boy was decapitated.

Admitted to hospital with head lacerations and a possible broken arm was Mrs. Isabella Scott, 84, of Stoney Creek.

Treated for minor injuries was her son-in-law Claude Milmine, 52, of Stoney Creek; Mrs. Donna McCrow, 29, of Toronto; and her two-months-old daughter, Catherine.

Police said the Jackson car, westbound on the highway veered south, catching the right front fender of the westbound McCrow car, spinning it completely around. The Jackson car then continued south across the centre boulevard and into the path of the eastbound Milmine car.

BANDITS GRAB $43,000 IN BANK DEPOSITS

Missed Another $42,000 in Van

QUEENSVILLE, Ont. (CP)—Bandits who apparently took a few tips from one of those old-time gangster movies grabbed $43,000 in bank deposits Thursday in Ontario's second mail van holdup in two days.

The robbers, three of four of them, missed another $42,000 in bank deposits when they waylaid a mail truck on the Keswick road 1½ miles north of this Lake Simcoe area community.

The East Gwillimbury Township chief, John Hutchinson, described it as "a robbery right out of the movies."

Provincial police believe there is no connection between Thursday's holdup and a similar robbery Wednesday near Brantford.

USED STOLEN SIGN

The gang used a stolen highways department sign to force the mail van driver, Clifford Morton, 55, of nearby Virginia, to slow down. As he did so, a stolen black sedan parked on the roadside moved up and forced him to stop. Two men leaped out from roadside ditches.

"A man came to the door of the truck and said, 'Don't try to be a hero,'" Morton said.

After taping his eyes the gang, at least one of them armed with a gun, pulled the van into a nearby gravel pit and slashed the mail bags. They fled, apparently in another car, after tying up Morton.

Police arrived about 15 minutes later after being called on his two-way radio by William Curtis of Sharon, building inspector for East Gwillimbury Township. Curtis became suspicious when he saw the mail truck in the gravel pit as he drove past.

GOING TO TORONTO

The stolen $43,000 was being taken to Toronto from the Bank of Nova Scotia in Sutton, 12 miles north of here. The $42,000 left behind was from the Canadian Bank of Commerce at nearby Keswick.

The truck and the mail left in it have been impounded by the police.

In Simcoe, near Brantford, Constable Harold Wheeler said the OPP know who pulled the mail van holdup Wednesday.

"We just need to gather enough evidence to make the arrests," he said, and added, "it wasn't wholly unexpected."

The constable said the gang, "a smart bunch of birds," have a monitor listening in on the police radio. Only the day before

Drowns in Pool

BARRIE (CP) — Muriel Hicks, 10, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hicks of Barrie, was drowned Thursday in the Kinsmen's conservation pond near here in about three feet of water.

A skindiver recovered the body. The girl was pronounced dead while a score of tots laughed and splashed about in a neighboring restricted area.

Mother Absent, Boy Skips Out To Tell Neighbor

All Well Dressed, Clean, Appear Well-Taught

TECUMSEH (CP)—Three children kept indoors by their mother for 11 years entered into a strange new world today.

Gordon Dickerson, 15, stepped into daylight Thursday while his mother, Mrs. Shirley Leach, was at a dentist's office. The boy went to a neighbor's home and told about himself and his two sisters. The neighbor phoned police who took the children to hospital.

Hospital officials said all three, Connie, 16, Glenda, 13, and Gordon were alert but short in stature.

They said the children appeared to be well-taught. They could read and had said they watched television. Young Gordon, a fan of Milwaukee Braves of the National League, knew more about baseball than some of his questioners at the hospital, a supervisor said.

Connie, who at first told officials she had been born in 1942 but later said she knew she was born in 1944, was asked whether she liked her new friends at nearby Windsor's Grace Hospital.

"Very much," she replied. "But I will miss my mother."

Mrs. Leach told police of moving to Windsor from Detroit in 1950 with her six children, all by Mrs. Leach's first marriage to David Dickerson in Detroit. The couple divorced and Mrs. Leach remarried.

She said the family had difficulty in finding a home, but found a flat in which three children were acceptable. They moved in after telling the landlady she had only three.

The three other children, Donna 22, Carrol, 20, and Donna Veronica, 12, all led normal lives with outside contacts, but never mentioned to their neighbors the family secret.

They remained in the house until 1953 and were slipped by night to the family's present home in Tecumseh, a suburb of Windsor.

Police said the children were allowed full freedom of the house and slept in a single bed on a top-floor landing of the two-storey frame house.

When the children were taken to hospital Dr. C. J. Hemond said police who went to the home tried unsuccessfully to get the smallest girl to talk. She had told them her name but they were unable to induce her to say anything else.

Glenda spoke only in whispers, hospital officials said.

Const. Gus Newby of the provincial police said the mother and father, Donald, an interior decorator and painter, appeared relieved when the children were found. He said the mother said

Fifteen Canadian Indians Invade British Naval Base of Portsmouth

PORTSMOUTH (CP) — Fifteen full - blooded Canadian Indians "invaded" this English seaport Thursday and some of the residents still are wondering what happened.

It's not that the Indians scalped anyone — a nightly feature on British television—or shot up the city with arrows, but they clearly did the next worst thing.

They fouled up the bus queues.

Running through the narrow streets of Portsmouth, waving their lances and feathers, the Indians delighted the thousands who knew what they came for. It was the few who didn't know that were worth watching.

"Here," shouted an old lady, as she jumped with fright from her spot in the bus queue, "they should get rid of this lot, they should."

The Indians, wearing the tribal costumes of nine Canadian Indian nations, ran through the streets, on sidewalks, in and out of buses, and occasionally they stuck their painted faces in an open window.

Some of the shrieks would delight any tribe.

The Indians came to Portsmouth with a 25-foot totem pole which was presented to HMS Excellent, a gunnery school on nearby Whale Island, by the Canadian Navy. It was in appreciation of the 50 years of instruction given to Canadian sailors at the school.

The presentation, complete with war dances and peacepipe smoking, was a show in itself. But it didn't hold a tomahawk to the unexpected excitement downtown.

The 16 Indians, all serving members of the Canadian Navy, came to Portsmouth on four destroyer-escorts, Gatineau, St. Croix, Terra Nova and Kootenay. They were led by Sub-Lt. Bill Shead of Selkirk, Man., a Cree.

The Indians enjoyed presenting the totem. Gus Bisson, of Manitoulin Island, Ont., wiped the war paint off his face, and described the whole show as "great sport."

Lumumba Gets Promise of Aid, Flies to Ottawa

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congolese Premier Patrice Lumumba leaves Washington for Ottawa today with pledges of U.S. economic aid but minus any backing for the idea of sending American troops to his revolt-torn country.

Amid full military honors, Lumumba takes off this morning for Ottawa where he hopes to garner further promises of financial help.

The 35 - year - old African got state department assurance of economic assistance during his two-day stay here. He also conferred with Eugene Black, president of the World Bank. U.S. authorities declined to name any specific amount pending further study of the new republic's heavy needs.

The question of sending U.S. soldiers to the Congo was brought up by Lumumba at a press conference Thursday. He read dispatches from officials of his government portraying Belgian soldiers as wreaking havoc in the former Belgian colony. One message suggested calling in American troops.

Lumumba declined to specifically endorse this idea. "I am not opposed to the arrival of American or any other troops," he said. "What I want is thousands of troops so that the Belgians can be evacuated immediately."

He said the United Nations troops dispatched to the Congo are disarming Congolese soldiers but are allowing the Belgians to keep their weapons, and this "might bring us into another world war."

The premier became irritated but refused to answer yes or no when reporters kept asking whether a Congo request for "any other" troops could include Russian soldiers.

U.S. authorities said privately they do not believe Lumumba means to invite the Russians to his territory, but wants to keep this threat dangling over the free world in his drive to get the Belgians out.

As for sending in American troops, officials stood by the position Washington took early in the crisis following the Congo's independence July 1:

The United States will conside only economic assistance to th new country, and that throug the United Nations.

Lumumba also conferre briefly with L. Edgar Detwile the U.S. financier who says h has a 50-year contract with th new Congo government to d velop the country's resource Detwiler said the pact was val and binding, though he did n appear to be optimistic about being ratified by the Congo Pa liament.

CITY AND DISTRICT NEWS

ACTION WILL NOT AFFECT TAG DAY FOR POPPY FUND

Mr. Les Digby, chairman of the Belleville Poppy Fund Committee, said that the action of the city in not approving tag days on Oct. 15, 22, 29 and November 5 will not affect the annual Poppy Day appeal.

The United Appeal Committee has asked the city to eliminate tag days on these dates.

TWO-TONE EGGS NOW BEING LAID

Probably the hens are trying to keep up with car manufacturers with respect to the color. William Bush of R.R. 5, Belleville, who conducts an egg route, brought to the office today an egg that was distinctly two-toned. The top half was a deep brown and the lower half a few shades lighter. The line separating the two colors was clearly marked.

Ladies Ride Rails in Own Private Car

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — The ladies rode the rails of the Hudson and Manhattan Railroad in their own pink pastel cars today with the informal blessing of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Segregation of the sexes is not unreasonable, the ICC said.

The ladies have been riding their fashion-styled special cars during the commuter rush hours for two years. Men who try to enter these air-conditioned cars are turned away by a railroad guard, even though there are often empty seats inside.

An irate male passenger, William H. Riha, complained to the ICC about the railroad's no-man's land. The commission replied Thursday in Washington:

"It is the informal view of the commission that the setting aside of one car in a train for the exclusive use of ladies during the morning rush hour is not an unreasonable preference or advantage."

Congo Cabinet Urges UN Oust Belgian Troops

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP) — The Congo cabinet meets with Dag Hammarskjold today to urge him to speed up the evacuation of Belgian troops from the whole country, including secessionist Katanga province.

Vice-Premier Antoine Gizenga presided over the session in the absence of Premier Patrice Lumumba, who is in the United States lining up economic aid for the young African republic.

Katanga Premier Moise Tshombe, meanwhile, was sending off a three-man delegation to Brussels and New York to argue the case for making his mineral-rich province independent.

Tshombe has stood firm against the UN sending security forces into his domain in the lower Congo, where Belgian troops now are doing police duty.

Hammarskjold, UN secretary-general, is expected to visit Elizabethville, Katanga's capital, before completing his fact-finding mission to the Congo.

Shopping Centre Will Cost $4,000,000 Says D. Whalen, May Be Opened Next Spring

Belleville's first shopping centre will cost "about $4,000,000," real estate agent Donald Whalen said today.

"It certainly will reach the vicinity of that figure when you take into account the cost of both the land and construction," he said.

The shopping centre will be built on 15 acres of what now is orchard between Highway No. 2 and East Bridge Street, east of Herchimer Ave. The orchard was owned by George Ellis before it was purchased through Mr. Whalen by Principal Investments Ltd. of Toronto, developers of the centre. The area commonly is referred to as "the apple orchard."

"About 75 per cent of the centre's 140,000 square feet of floor space have already been leased," he said, adding that the centre will have 28 stores and retail outlets.

"Construction will start within a month and Principal Investments hopes to open the shopping centre eight months later."

Mr. Whalen said he had received "a tremendous number" of calls from citizens in the east-end of the city who were "elated" about the coming of the shopping centre.

"It will really be something," he said. "It will have a covered landscaped mall in the central section and the main buildings will be air-conditioned. There will be parking space for 1,500 cars."

Asked what development was planned in the orchard on the north side of East Bridge St., Mr. Whalen said: "An option has been taken on the land. That's all I can say."

Newly-Chartered Trade Council Holds Meeting

The newly-chartered Quinte-St. Lawrence District Building and Construction Trades Council held its first meeting last Tuesday evening at the Canadian Legion Hall. The new council, which is affiliated with the Ontario Building and Construction Trades Council, encompasses 15 locals in the communities of Brockville, Kingston, Picton, Trenton and Belleville.

Some 20 representatives were present at Tuesday's meeting to discuss the forthcoming provincial convention, which is to be held in Kingston on September 17th and 18th. This is the first time that a provincial convention has been held in the eastern part of Ontario.

Arrangements were also confirmed to consult with Lee Grills M.P. re the winter works program to be carried out in this district during the coming season.

The council will be holding its next meeting in Kingston, at which time the first slate of officers for the new council will be elected. The main purpose of the council is to produce better liaison between the various locals and to provide a better knowledge of working conditions, wages and job conditions within the district.

3 Armed, Masked Men Get $20,000 In Bank Holdup

MONTREAL (CP) — Three armed, masked men Thursday held up a Bank of Montreal branch at Mount Royal and Bordeaux Streets and fled with an-estimated $20,000.

The armed trio Thursday herded manager Paul Barbeau and five other persons in the office into the vault. They fled after scooping the money from three cash drawers.

Then, still holding revolvers and with their faces hidden by white cloth masks, the men fled from the building.

The other big recent holdup in the province was at Princeville, 50 miles south of Quebec City, last Friday.

The gang of five men, two of them carrying sub-machine guns fled from the Banque Canadienne Nationale branch with $19,500. However, all but $150 of the loot was recovered by police who followed the men and found the money in an abandoned car.

The five men also carried pistols and wore army-type balaclavas to hide their faces.

There were also two payroll robberies in the city during the week. Both were staged by groups of three armed men.

One group got $1,300 from O'Neill Industrial Cleaning Company and the other took $2,900 from the offices of Scaffer Knitting Company.

Rules Car Not Public Place

OSHAWA (CP)—Judge Arthur Willmott of Oshawa has ruled that a private automobile is not a public place under the meaning of the Ontario Liquor Control Act.

His July 26 judgment quashed a conviction of being unlawfully intoxicated in a public place against George W. Cameron of the Oshawa area. Cameron was arrested for being intoxicated in the back seat of a car and was fined $10 and costs Jan. 10 by Magistrate F. S. Ebbs.

Audge Willmott agreed Cameron was intoxicated but said a man could not be convicted of being intoxicated in a public place while in a private car.

Facts, Figures Of Car Industry Are Published

TORONTO — The 1960 addition of "Facts and Figures of the Automotive Industry" was issued today by the Canadian Automobile Chamber of Commerce.

The facts-packed booklet reveals that vehicles in use soared over the five million mark — one for every 3.5 persons. Almost four million passenger cars and over one million trucks were registered last year. About 96,000 buses, motorcycles and miscellaneous types were also in operation. These vehicles travelled an estimated 41 billion miles and consumed 3.4 billion gallons of gasoline.

The dollar value of new vehicles sold in 1959 exceeded $1 billion for the fifth consecutive year and was the highest in history. The number of vehicles sold was also the highest ever; 502,626 new vehicles were retailed at a value of $1,540,168,000; 425,038 new passenger cars were sold, valued at $1,240,961,000; and the 77,588 new trucks and buses sold were valued at $299,207,000. An estimated 193,723 cars and 21,878 trucks were scrapped in 1959, 43 percent of the total new units sold.

Other 1959 statistical highlights contained in the authoritative and informative booklet are:

Production of cars in Canada was 300,849 and trucks 67,523.

There were 5.8 million licensed driver.

114,118 new British and European made passenger cars were sold in Canada — 26.8 percent of the total cars sold.

Motor vehicle purchasers paid more than $160 million in federal sales and excise taxes.

Total payrolls of Canadian automobile manufacturers was $156,095,602.

Provincial governments collected $364 million in gasoline tax revenues and $148.4 million in registrations fees.

Imports of motor vehicles totalled 165,564 including 153,932 cars and 11,632 trucks. Exports were 9,761 cars and 2,002 trucks.

Also available from the C.A.C.C. is a booklet giving 1960 provincial licence fees as well as safety requirements and size and weight regulations for commercial vehicles.

DR. ROBERT McCAFFERY

Chilliwack, B.C., and Madoc

MADOC — Old friends of the family in this district learned with regret of the death in Chilliwack, B.C. of Dr. Robert McCaffery, aged 86, following a lengthy illness which resulted from a fall in which he broke his hip.

Dr. McCaffery was born in Madoc in 1873 but went West in 1904 after graduating from the University of Toronto. He served Chilliwack and the surrounding communities in their pioneer days, travelling by horse and buggy and canoe. He served with the Imperial Medical Corps in Greece in the First Great War. Oldest of a family of eight, he is survived by three brothers, William Henry of White Rock, Arthur of Nanaimo and Walter of Toronto. His wife, the former Rae Chadsey, whom he married in 1908, predeceased him in 1946.

ROY MATTHEWS

The funeral service of Roy Matthews was held from the chapel of the John R. Bush Funeral Home, 80 Highland Avenue, on Thursday afternoon, Canon A. S. McConnell officiated.

Interment was at Lakeport Cemetery.

Bearers were Leighton Thompson, Robert Irvine, Leslie Rice, Kenneth Matthews, Ted Green and Mac Snelgrove.

Lost Contact With Booster In Short Time

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) The United States launched an unmanned Project Mercury capsule for a severe test today, but lost radio contact with the Atlas booster 65 seconds after liftoff.

The Atlas was to rocket the one-ton capsule 110 miles into space and 1,500 downrange to check on its ability to withstand a plunge back through the earth's atmosphere.

An official said that even if the Atlas failed during powered flight, there is a chance the capsule may have fallen somewhere in the ocean between the Cape and the intended landing area 300 miles northwest of the West Indies.

The flight was to subject the capsule to the worst re-entry conditions an astronaut might encounter if his space cabin is suddenly jettisoned because of failure of the booster rocket shortly after launching.

It was an opening shot in a U.S. bid to send a man to the fringes of space by the end of this year and into orbit in 1961. All seven American astronauts were present today for this key test.

a draft policy statement circulated to delegates by mail before the convention met.

The draft also was distributed Thursday — its terms differing radically from the one introduced by Mr. Hinman—before the convention went behind closed doors for a constitution and policy discussion. Mr. Hinman's statement was approved in principle Thursday night with relatively little debate.

The convention got off to a good start with about 100 delegates—the numbers attending sessions later dwindled to about 50—hearing pep talks from Mr. Low, Premier Manning of Alberta and Premier Bennett of British Columbia.

Both Mr. Low and Mr. Bennett gave signs of new trends in Social Credit thinking.

DIVIDEND OUTDATED

Mr. Low suggested the long-standing Social Credit plank of a national dividend has been outdated by events. The Liberals, he said, had swiped the idea and put it into effect in different form as family allowances and like payments.

Mr. Bennett advised delegates to take a positive approach—not to be against financiers and the financial system, long a standard feature of Social Credit oratory.

He urged that Social Credit be sold on the records of Alberta and B.C. Social Credit governments, with stress on their "debt-free" status.

New Liberal Premiers Do Fast Bargaining in Ottawa Meetings

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's newest provincial premiers — both Liberals—did some fast bargaining Thursday with federal government officials.

Each emerged from the private talks with a sense of accomplishment.

Premier Lesage of Quebec got:

1. Agreement in principle on a federal-provincial deal to bring Quebec into the Trans-Canada Highway construction program.

2. An idea of federal views on Quebec's plan to launch a hospital insurance plan by next January.

Premier Robichaud of New Brunswick got:

1. A federal promise to start immediately on a study of the feasibility of the Chignecto canal, an 18-mile waterway that would link the Bay of Fundy and Northumberland Strait.

2. Agreement to let New Brunswick help make the survey—and to help pay for it as well.

MEET MINISTERS

Agreement on the Chignecto survey was reached at a 30-minute meeting between Mr. Robichaud and Federal Works Minister Walker. Mr. Walker said that in making the survey "neither government obligates itself as to what it will do in future."

The most significant development was the Quebec-Canada agreement on a way for the federal government to pay its share of a proposed 400-mile roadway in Quebec, part of the nationwide Trans-Canada Highway.

This was reached during a 40-minute meeting of Mr. Lesage and Mr. Walker. After the private session, they announced that they hoped to sign an agreement "within a very few weeks."

A general outline of where Quebec's 400-mile road would go was presented by the provincial government.

DETAILS SECRET

There was no estimate of the cost and Mr. Lesage said details are being kept secret to avoid land speculation.

Under the highway plan, the federal government pays half the cost on every 90 miles in a 100-mile stretch. On the other 10 miles, it puts up 90 per cent of the cost.

Mr. Lesage also dropped in to see Health Minister Monteith about Quebec's health insurance plan. Little was said after the meeting because Quebec still has to figure out its legislation on the matter.

Slight Increase In Polio Cases

OTTAWA (CP)—Sixteen cases of paralytic poliomyelitis were reported in Canada in the week ended July 23, bringing the total to that date this year to 205, the health department said today.

There were 51 cases reported in the corresponding week of last year for a 29-week total of 192.

Deaths in the first 29 weeks this year totalled 16, two more than in last year's corresponding period.

No new cases are reported in Ontario.

Aquadivers Harmsworth Rescue Team

The Quinte Aquadivers have been chosen as the official rescue team for the coming Harmsworth Trophy races, it was stated today by club chairman George Woodhouse. The group, which is active in diving operations and in providing emergency rescue assistance in this area will have six SCUBA divers on duty for each of the Harsmworth heats. Mr. Woodhouse said the large number of experienced divers in the club will provide adequate personnel for this project.

A recent dive by the members extended over a period of 17 hours resulted in the salvaging of an aluminum boat, outboard motor and sundry fishing tackle which had sunk in over 30 feet of water in West Lake. To locate these items the divers used a new scheme of patterned diving, following a series of free diving attempts which failed to locate the sunken craft. The new method proved quite successful.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Industrials moved up in a quiet stock market today, while base metals and western oils marked time.

Golds were depressed despite favorable earnings among some of the major producers.

The 11 a.m. volume was 349,000 shares compared with the 380,000 traded at the same time Thursday.

Atlas Steel and General Motors paced winning industrials with gains of ½ at 20¼ and 42¼.

Southam was off ⅞ at 20⅛, while Reichold Chemicals slipped ½ at 15¼.

Among mines, International Nickel gained ¼ at 51¾ and Hudson Bay was up ⅛ at 44⅞, while Kerr Addison lost ¼ at 11⅝ and Ventures was off ⅛ at 22¾.

The market closed higher in all sections Thursday.

On index, industrials were up .10 at 472.73, with golds up .27 at 76.38, base metals up 1.02 at 150.58 and western oils up .90 at 78.68.

Volume was 1,493,000 compared with 1,421,000 shares traded Wednesday.

Utilities led industrials with International Utilities up ¾ at 33½. Shawinigan was off ⅝ at 24⅞, however.

Papers and steels both were active and mixed. Among papers, Consolidated was up ¾ at 39. Eddy Paper lost 1⅛ at 56¾.

Banks were mixed: Bank of Montreal up a point at 52¼. Royal Bank off ⅛ at 65⅝.

Chrysler was off three points at 42. U.S. Ford and Imperial Life both off 1½ at 59½ and 80; Southam up 2½ at 21, National Trust up 1¾ at 52.

International Nickel gained ¾ at 51½, while Hudson Bay gained ½ at 44⅞.

Denison and Gunnar were both off five cents at $9.50 and $7.05.

Calgary and Edmonton gained ⅝ at 14¼ and Pacific Petroleum had a 15-cent gain at $8.65.

Weekend Livestock Review

TORONTO (CP) — Slaughter steers and heifers sold slowly on a narrow demand this week at the Ontario public stockyards. Trading was dull again this week.

Cow prices were steady and numbered few. Bulls, particularly good heavy bolognas, traded actively at fully steady prices.

Replacement cattle were lower and veal calves were steady with buyers carrying broad orders for dry-fed yearlings.

Hog prices were steady and lambs closed two dollars per hundredweight lower.

Cattle receipts, estimated at 5,000, were some 900 head fewer than last week and about 300 head more than the same week in 1959. Receipts from western Canada totalled 440 head, 330 fewer than last week. Western stock calf receipts were comparable to last week at 107 head.

There were no shipments to Eastern Canadian slaughterers and no exports to the U.S.A.

Bowling Notes

The big day for the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club is fast approaching. On Civic Holiday the club will be guests to many outside rinks for the Corbin Gold Cup tournament, one of the finest rink competitions held in this province. The prizes are extraordinary, the competition is always exceptionally keen and the hospitality cannot be surpassed. It is expected the tournament will attract over forty rinks and this is a good showing under business conditions at the present time. Most tourneys in the Province are down in attendance from last year but the spirit behind the game of bowling has not dwindled and there is no doubt the game will come back.

A lot of hard work has gone into the preparations for this tourney and president William VanTassel and his board of directors are to be congratulated for their effort in keeping this splendid tournament up to the high standard of previous years. There are a number of rinks that have made an annual trip to this tourney and some of them will be missed but all have signified their intentions of coming next year, in fact the committee have at the present time applications from eight outside rinks.

There will be two draws of three games each of 15 ends, and the count will be on a minus and plus count score. A reception and social evening has been arranged for the outside rinks on Sunday evening and then to serious bowling on Monday. Mr. Charles Matthews, the efficient greenskeeper, has the lawns in excellent condition and if no heavy downpour comes, they will be lightning fast. The women's section of the club are preparing for full course meals during the day and the clubhouse and lawns will be suitably decorated for the occasion. The members of the club are indebted to the International Hardware Company for their interest in this event and to Mr. L. E. McLean, the former general manager, who arranged for the first trophy which has been replaced by one just as beautiful as the first.

A word of thanks also goes out to Cliff Argue, past president of the Provincial Lawn Bowling Association and former president of the local club for his interest in instituting and sponsoring the tournament for so many years. The club welcomes the guests, the citizens welcome them to the city and all that is needed is fine weather to make the annual event a success.

Were you ever skunked in a bowling game? It can happen and the easy way to do it is to get into one of Jerry Hyde's monster jitneys. One was sponsored on Wednesday evening at the greens and after four six-end games there were several going around the clubhouse bemoaning the fact they were skunked in at least one game and sometimes two. No names will be mentioned but you are reading a column written by one that had that honor bestowed. It was not hard to take because everyone had such a good time that the score did not matter.

The evening was opened by a pot luck supper provided by the women members of the club and if it was a pickup supper, it would be nice to sit down to a full course meal in any of their homes. The supper was delightful and most enjoyable. Everyone got a prize in bowling and the thanks of the members go out to Jerry for a job well done.

On Tuesday the women's section of the club held a trebles tournament with 17 rinks entered from Kingston, Trenton, Campbellford, Stirling and Peterborough and a local rink of Mrs. Chris Howard, Mrs. Grace Clapp with Mrs. Ann Watkin, skip, won the tourney with a score of 46 plus eight. Another Belleville rink of Mrs. Irene Trudeau, Mrs. Thelma Fitzgibbon, with Mrs. Elsie Humphreys as skip was second while the third spot went to Mrs. Chouinard, Mrs. Pearl Frost with Mrs. Helen Coutts of Trenton as skip. The two-game winner was Mrs. R. Dyer, Mrs. H. Beatty and Mrs. N. Renaud of Peterborough as skip and the one-game high went to Mrs. Pat Levis, Mrs. Kitty Ovens with Mrs. F. Sears of Kingston.

Chamber of Commerce Head Disputes Taylor's Right To Enforce Handgun Law

TRENTON — Douglas Whitley, president of the Chamber of Commerce, has queried the right of Police Chief F. J. Taylor to enforce a regulation that all local handgun owners be fingerprinted and have "mug shots" of themselves placed in police records.

At last night's directors' meeting of the chamber, Ben Minard said the law may be enforced at the discretion of the police chief of the municipality. Mr. Minard said that the Toronto police department had recalled all permits and that no one could possess a handgun unless they had special permission from the department.

Mr. Whitley said that several gun merchants and members of gun clubs in Trenton had complained about the new rules.

"I wouldn't care to have my fingerprints taken just to have a handgun in my possession," Mr. Whitley said. He asked Mr. Minard to check with the authorities to find out if this was, in fact, a provincial law or whether it could be enforced "at the whim of one person."

The meeting was held in the cafeteria of the Erie Resistor Company. Present were: Mr. Whitley, secretary H. B. Smith, Archie McNeill, George Kempf, Ben Kroeze, Ted Kinsella, Don McPherson, Ian Darling, Ben Minard and Lloyd Seeley.

Mr. Whitley commented that a recent letter to town council from the chamber asking that the Weaver Ambulance Service be subsidized until the end of 1960, had borne results.

Ben Minard and Lloyd Seeley reported that in their investigations concerning accommodation for commercial airplanes in this area, they had found out that an airline operating out of Montreal was anxious to use an airport in this area.

STILL ANIMOSITY

Mr. Whitley said there was still some animosity about closing on Monday among town merchants. Some stores continue to remain open on Monday and close Wednesday afternoons, while others are remaining open all day Monday and Wednesday. He appealed to the merchants to "get together on this one issue." He also suggested that the chamber could secure stickers, bearing the legend: "Trenton stores close on Monday and are open on Wednesday," and affix them to the several thousand cars parked outside the Community Gardens while their owners are inside at the bi-monthly bingo games. It was pointed out that this could not be done while the Monday closing is not a town-wide fact.

Members of the chamber will bend their efforts towards securing a trades school in this area within the next two years. Mr. Kempf said he had recently read several articles attesting to the fact that "the unskilled worker is the last to be hired and the first to be laid off."

The chamber has received a certificate of membership in the Ontario Chamber of Commerce and now that it is an official body, Don McPherson was asked to have the bank account of the former Trenton chamber transferred to the account of the new chamber.

It was suggested that August be "Silver Dollar Month" in Trenton. Merchants would be supplied with 1960 silver dollars for change. Retail merchants will be contacted and asked for their opinions.

The Department of Transport will be contacted and asked if some arrangement could be worked out whereby the operator of the town swing bridge could be notified by a buzzer system that there was a fire on the east side of the river, and could "wave" back any boats about to pass through the bridge, and close the bridge until the fire trucks had passed over.

WANT BARGE REMOVED

The proper authorities, when a fact-finding committee can ascertain who they are, will be asked to remove a barge, marked "Danger, High Explosives", from its mooring place in the river, to a more secluded spot. It was felt that the sign might cause some apprehension among motorists proceeding across the town bridge, and might even cut short their stay in the downtown area. Actually, the barge no longer contains high explosives. It has been moored in the river since construction work was completed on the sewage treatment plant some time ago.

The following standing committees were elected: Membership, George Kempf, Don McPherson and Doug Whitley (ex-officio); Tourist, Ian Darling, Lloyd Seeley, who will officially greet the visitors; Retail merchants, Ted Kinsella; Industrial committee working in co-operation with civic officers Ellen Whitehouse, Marion Baker; Industrial Affairs, Exposition and Community Gardens Ben Minard.

Harmsworth Races Described By Dick Hart

TRENTON — R. W. (Dick) Hart, commodore of the Prince Edward Yacht Club, was the guest speaker at last night's meeting of the Trenton Kiwanis Club.

Mr. Hart gave the club a brief run-down on the sequence of events planned for the weekend the Harmsworth Trophy races will be held in Long Reach, near Picton. He said that it was a wonderful opportunity for residents of this area to interest the thousands of spectators from Canada and the United States in the attractions of this part of the country. This is the first time that the international race has been held in Canada. Mayor Harvey McFarland of Picton was chiefly instrumental in having this area chosen for the race.

The speaker said that the contest between three American boats and Canada's "Miss Supertest III" would draw an estimated 90,000 spectators. There is ample accommodation for this number in Picton and the surrounding communities but he stressed making reservations early.

Commenting on the course over which the race will be run, Commodore Hart said that it was ideal from the viewpoint of the racers. Runs either side of the course are 1½ miles long. The course is 2½ miles and the three outstanding characteristics of the course are its narrowness, its depth and the coolnes of the water. The course will be literally "swept" by small patrol boats before each race to remove any debris.

Nine different viewing areas have been set up along the shore. The RCMP will control the waterway; the army will attend to fire safety and the provincial police will control highway traffic. The races will be held on August 19, 20 and 22, and will start at 5 p.m. Special trains and buses will be run to transport the expected crowds.

Commodore Hart was introduced by Wayne Simmons, who had served as junior officer under his command in The Second World War and thanked by Don Wittaker.

Trenton RCAF Locates Boat But Overturned

TRENTON (CP)—The RCAF said Thursday a small boat missing on Lake Ontario since Tuesday with three United States fishermen aboard has been found overturned near Port Bay, N.Y.

The RCAF rescue unit here, which had sent a Dakota out to join the search, said sheriff's men located the 14-foot aluminum boat 1½ miles offshore.

There was no trace of the men, Ronald Jones, Robert Adams and Charles Beflore, all of Rochester.

An RCAF spokesman said the search has been called off and the three men are presumed drowned.

Construction Firm Manager Says Price Paid for Land Fair

EASTVIEW, Ont. (CP)—Darie Brunet, local construction firm manager, said he considered $1,000 a fair price for a lot he bought from the town of Eastview.

After all, he said Thursday at the provincial inquiry into the town's financial affairs, the area the lot is in is flanked on two sides by cemeteries.

Mr. Brunet, also chairman of the court of revision, has since built an expensive home on the lot, complete with swimming pool.

The commissioners conducting the inquiry — F. G. Blake and Charles W. Yates — have been questioning witnesses for nearly two weeks on the sale of land by the town.

The hearing will be adjourned for a three-day weekend tonight and swing into its third week Tuesday.

Mr. Brunet said the publicity he has received because the hearing brought up earlier the purchase of his lot has been "bad for my family."

"One of my kids has had to take a fight in the school yard," he said.

PRICE WAS "RIGHT"

He said the price for the lot was "right" because he had to buy expensive fill, remove debris left by adjacent builders and because of the cemeteries.

Mr. Brunet also testified on the makeup of Garchari Investment Company.

Vice-president of the company, he said there was nothing to be hidden in connection with Mayor Gordon Lavergne holding shares in the company.

Mayor Lavergne was one of Mr. Brunet's "closest friends" and he often joined with others "in playing checkers in the back of his store." Mayor Lavergne, an Eastview merchant, is also member of the Ontario legislature for Russell County.

Witnesses testified Thursday that four members of the investment company loaned the mayor $2,000 to buy shares in the company.

Earlier Reeve Marcel Robert spent four hours giving testimony in the small council chamber of this community within the boundaries of Ottawa. The temperature in the chamber was 94 degrees and tempers snapped as the reeve was questioned about the 1953 purchase of a town lot by his wife.

John Nelligan, counsel for the Citizen's League of Eastview, which sparked the inquiry with a petition circulated through the town's 23,000 population, demanded to know what amount of the money in the reeve's joint account with his wife was his.

"What the hell do you think?" snapped the reeve. "After all these years would you remember?"

WIFE'S LAND PURCHASE

He was being questioned in connection with a land deal involving his wife, Laurette in 1953 in which she bought a lot for $375, built an apartment building on it and later sold it at a profit.

Reeve Robert said he had signed the cheque for the land purchase but he had nothing further to do with the deal. He had taken over handling his wife's banking statement after she dropped on a street a signed blank cheque found later by Police Chief Richard Mannion.

"I thought then it would be better for me to look after her banking interests."

Mrs. Robert appeared at the hearing last week in connection with the land transaction and was ordered to return with her bank statements. She has yet to reappear.

Suppressed Laughter

Leonard W. Brockington, rector of Queen's University, suggested recently that the nation which knows how to laugh "is never going to put up with tyranny or the strutting of a superman." There is an appealing sort of a ring to this statement and certainly it has not been founded on casual observation or at the whim of its originator.

Looking back on past history one can find numerous supporting examples. Laughter and humor are qualities which can be attributed to a nation or race just as easily as they might be to an individual. There is, however, the exception to the rule. Although a nation might not laugh its individuals certainly can.

We think of a particular German comedian who, during the 30's, was noted for his jokes about Hitler, the Gestapo and other sundry Nazi sacred cows. Warned on several occasions against further indulgence in this sort of ribaldry, the comedian still managed to develop these jokes to the point where whenever he mentioned a black Mercedes an anti-Nazi comment was bound to follow. Then one night in a popular German night club he started off with these words only to be immediately pounced upon by Gestapo officers and hustled off to prison. At war's end he was still alive and soon returned to the entertainment field, opening at the same night club in which he had been arrested. His first words to his audience were, "That black Mercedes was full of Gestapo men." That brought down the house.

In this case we do not feel that one could say the ermans were devoid of laughter or humor. It was just hat it took a long time for the joke to get across. But ne other point is most noticeable. During that time it as the leaders who led any laughter. This trait may e noticed in almost any country where there is an ppressive type of government.

Thus we might turn Mr. Brockington's statement bout and say that no tyranny or dictator can stand dicule and laughter, especially on its home grounds.

We forget which philosopher it was who warned gainst the person who could never smile or laugh, articularly at himself, intimating that such people e not quite human, and therefore are not to be usted in their judgment or actions regarding other umans. He had a good point. Equally to be mistusted, however, is the person who laughs loud and ear, but always at the expense of someone else.

But let us turn our attention to those people who ever crack a smile, who never see a joke, who have placed humor with an overwhelming sense of seriusness. Inevitably we seem to find these people conrned with any show of levity or light-hearted freedom action on the part of those about them. They will quick to advocate that action be taken by a government body to curb this sort of thing. Enough of these ople can, eventually, have most personal liberties gislated right out of existence. This is certainly a rm of tyranny. There are many modern examples this in various countries throughout the world.

So let us be on guard against those who would ppress either people or their laughter.

A Slow Process

Comment recently in another newspaper regarding e discouraging slowness with which Canadian railway ms heed a local demand for better warning lights or tes at a dangerous crossing brings to mind an itorial which appeared in this column earlier this ar. This dealt with the situations existing at the R crossing on Dundas Street East near the outskirts town and with the CNR crossing on the Cannifton ad.

To date we have heard of no action being taken either company to remedy the situation of the ceedingly rough crossing on Dundas street or the gthy traffic snarls which occur on the Cannifton ad. We wonder what event has to take place in order effect a change.

Meanwhile the CPR crossing on Highway 2 stills kes its toll of local autos' shock absorbers, springs d suspension and the CNR crossing on Highway 37 s up every day traffic and the occasional emergency icle. The trains still run, however slow their nagement might be.

Why Drama Critics Often Are Caustic

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

A friend asked me yesterday why the drama critics are so much more disliked and reviled than, say, book critics. "Are the drama critics harsher," he wants to know, "or less qualified for their jobs?"

Being one of that unhappy species myself, perhaps I cannot give a wholly unbiased answer. But I think that one reason for the unpopularity of drama critics is perfectly plain, although never taken into consideration by the public.

The drama critic is compelled to review every professional play that opens. This ranges from Shakespeare and Sophocles down to the latest sex farce or moronic mystery melodrama or insipid musical concoction.

Suppose the book critics were forced to review (if humanly possible) every one of the thousand books that are published yearly. Ninety per cent of them are junk, and pretend to be little more. They are hastily written, hastily printed, hastily read and hastily forgotten. Most of them never achieve the dignity of a review, favorable or otherwise.

But the book critic does not engage in such promiscuous and futile activity. Instead, he carefully selects a handful of books out of the hundreds that come to his desk — those that seem important, attractive, or especially provocative. And even toward this select few, the most lenient critic is not invariably well-disposed.

Imagine a book reviewer giving serious and regular attention to the salacious pocketbooks, the insane Westerns, the trivial reminiscences, the tedious biographies, the romantic novels as fragile as a butterfly's kiss. In a week he would be frantic; in a month, rabid; in a year, insane.

Yet this is what the drama critic is expected to do — not in terms of quantity, but in terms of varying quality. He cannot refuse to review a play on the grounds that it is plainly trash, nor can he choose to visit only those productions that interest him as a private spectator.

• • •

Most stage plays — like most of any entertainment — are beneath critic notice. They are simply commercial attractions designed to lure as large and undiscriminating an audience as possible. The critic does not enjoy panning them; he does not enjoy seeing them; but the exigencies of his trade demand that he attend and report on every opening night. Others can walk out after a ghastly first act; the critic must stay and suffer silently. Little wonder that he sounds bilious in print.

Alexander's Historic Post

The Times of London

Field Marshal Lord Alexander of Tunis has been appointed Constable of the Tower in succession to Field Marshal Lord Wilson, who retires on July 31.

The appointment carries with it a nominal remuneration of £200 a year. But it is an office of great tradition, dating back to 1078, when Geoffrey de Mandeville was appointed the first constable. Since the seventeenth century it has been a military office. It is held by royal letter patent under the Great Seal.

The holder has the privilege of audience and direct communication with the Sovereign. Commands from the Sovereign are signified to him either through the Secretary of State for War or the Minister of Works, and the government of the tower as a fortress is carried out by the constable as the officer in chief, military command, under the orders of the Army Council. He is represented at the tower by the Major and Resident Governor, who is Brigadier Leslie Wieler.

In due course, there will be an installation ceremony for Lord Alexander. His term of service is five years, which Field Marshal Lord Wilson will have completed in July.

At one time it was a life appointment but the last six holders have carried out the five-year term. Of the last 19, 16 have been field marshals. They include such names as Sir Evelyn Wood, Lord Methue, Sir Claude Jacob, Sir Philip Chetwode, Lord Wavell, and Lord Alanbrooke. The Duke of Wellington was Constable of the Tower for 26 years.

Lord Alexander will be the 150th constable.

Mr. John B. Lake of Chicago, Ill., visited friends here during the Old Boys' Reunion.

Mrs. F. W. Thompson, Charles Street, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. R. W. Walker, in Boston, Mass.

The Rev. A. H. Foster and wife, of this city, are spending a vacation at Stoney Lake.

Mr. Arthur Blackburn of this city, has passed the first year examinations at the Philadelphia Dental College.

Mr. H. Freeman Ketcheson has left on a trip to the Pacific Coast.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Arnott of Toronto, are visiting their daughter, Mrs. E. George, Ann Street.

50 YEARS AGO

July 29th., 1910.

The Oddfellows' Band will run an excursion to Trenton on August 1st.

Mr. Brent Good, in writing to Sir Mackenzie Bowell from Carlsbad, Austria, in acknowledgment of his invitation to the Old Boys' Reunion, states that had he been in America he certainly would have been present to meet old friends. Belleville, he said, has always had a warm place in his heart as he commenced his career in the drug business in this city in 1853.

Mr. John K. Fairfield of Rochester, N.Y., is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Fairfield.

Mrs. Alfred McEwen of Toronto, Ont., is visiting her mother, Mrs. W. J. Gordonier, Bridge Street.

Bankrupt But Happy

Fort William Times-Journal

Two men who migrated to Canada from Germany ten years ago and who set themselves up in an Ontario business about five years ago enjoyed exceptional success —until this spring. Bad accounts and a quick drop in sales forced them into bankruptcy.

To return as much as possible to their creditors the pair sold their homes, furniture, cars, summer homes and boats and applied the proceeds to the company debt.

Are they disappointed in Canada? Not at all. They blame only themselves.

One of them has a special reason for not being disappointed. A large company which coveted his know-how offered him a job at $18,000 a year — an offer he quickly accepted.

The other is not downhearted—although he has no immediate prospects.

"I started with nothing," he explained. "I can make a new start."

Adjectives Sprinkled

Christian Science Monitor

What Cuba needs is another adjective tax.

A year ago Treasury Minister Lopez-Fresquet (since resigned) proposed a novel revenue-producing levy. He sought to charge Cubans $1 for proper names appearing on the society page of a newspaper and $1 for each adjective used therewith. The plan was dropped.

But today the Cuban treasury needs every dollar it can get. And adjectives, political rather than society, still abound. They are now to be found in great clusters in the output of the controlled press and radio stations.

To take only one example, think what a rich revenue source Radio Mambi of Havana would provide when it waxes adjectival as it did June 30:

The government of His Majesty Caesar Attila Nero Caligula Eisenhower I, the emperor the the United States and of its putrid adjacent democracies, has sent a filthy document to the OAS peace committee . . . In the stupid and lying bundle of papers that the plucked and lousy eagle brings to the attention of the inefficient peace committee of the servile OAS, Mr. Christian Dulles, the bloody Herter, says . . .

As a tax source, this kind of puerility really eclipses the society page.

But a few paragraphs later the broadcaster seems to remember the old tax threat:

"Here at Radio Mambi," he says, "Fidel is Fidel, Raul is Raul, El Che is El Che . . . We do not use high-sounding nouns and adjectives."

However, such austerity cannot last. In the next breath he continues: "Radio Mambi is honest, pure, sincere, honorable, free, and independent."

And wasteful, too. That's $6 worth of adjectives in one sentence.

Birds Can See Long Distance

Ontario Dept. of Lands and Forests

Many a fisherman, cleaning his lunch fish on the bank of a lake or river with nary a bird in sight, has marvelled that, the moment he got busy with a knife, birds of various kinds, particularly seagulls, appeared out of nowhere. The same thing applies to bird feeders who, during the winter months, have seen everything from chicadees to cardinals appear as soon as the feeding boxes have been replenished.

The explanation is simple, according to conservation officers of the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests. A bird's eyesight is generally sharper and capable of reaching farther than that of any other animal. Flying even at high speeds, birds can focus almost immediately. The eye structure of the bird differs from other animals in having a third membrane. This keeps the eyeball moist and serves as a sun shade in strong light, decreasing but not preventing light entering the eye. In dull light, the membrane is retracted.

No one, of course, can explain exactly just how far a bird can see, or how small an object can be spotted from aloft. But an animal as small as a mouse can be sighted, apparently, from distances of up to a mile while a moving rabbit, to an owl or hawk, must seem as large as an elephant, judging from how quickly these birds make their deadly dive on the animal.

Package Deal In New Homes

Stratford Beacon-Herald

"Packaged" aluminum houses, complete with verandahs and car ports which can be erected by six men in 12 days are being produced in England — mainly for export. The manufacturing company expects biggest demands will come from mining and construction camps, oil development centres and research stations.

There are eight basic designs covering two, three and four-bedroom houses, and one bachelor block. The length and indoor arrangement can be varied and basic designs enlarged with "extension" rooms.

The basic designs cost from 1,250 pounds upwards before shipment from Britain — the complete, packaged building including wiring, plumbing, fittings and even paint and floor finish. Electrical installation is supplied as a ready-made unit, carefully labelled, so that no expert help is needed for assembly; this also applies to plumbing installations.

Protection against heat and cold is given with a building of aluminum framework, and walls of a composite panelling which, according to the manufacturers, "insulate more than twice as effectively as an 11-inch-thick cavity brick wall". The roof is of "stressed skin" construction, eliminating use of trusses.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

ADJUSTING EXERCISE AND APPETITE IS WAY TO LOSE WEIGHT

Not so many weeks ago I spoke at the national convention of the TOPS — meaning "Take Off Pounds Sensibly."

It's an organization of people who are doing just what the name of the group implies. Most are women, because, for whatever reason, women are much more inclined to do things, like reducing in public. That is, they are smart enough to be candid about it. They admit that they are overweight and they admit that they are on reducing diets.

The unusual thing was the presence of one man, among some hundreds of women. Like others in this group, he was successful in whittling off some weight — he had weighed more than 300 and he had taken off more than 40 pounds without resorting to pills.

He did it by just making up his mind to eat less of everything. He also was smart enough to recognize one of the most basic things about controlling weight. He had been doing a job that involved hard physical labor. Then he changed to a sedentary one.

He said he just kept on eating the way he always had — eating is pretty much of a habit, you know. And the more he kept on eating, the more he wanted to eat. So that was where the pounds came from.

I know some people who are lucky enough to change their eating habits readily. I know people who gain weight when they work hard physically, and lose weight when they stop this heavy exertion. It's because their appetites change accordingly. But they are lucky.

Others have to change their eating habits deliberately, or cessation of exercise results in a swift gain in weight. Once you make yourself form a new pattern of eating, then you have the battle won.

"Dear Dr. Molner: How can you tell the difference between phlebitis and varicose veins? What can a person do about either? — B. G."

Varicose veins are prominent, bulging veins of (for most practical purposes) the lower leg. They may exist without being inflamed. If they become inflamed, "phlebitis" exists. Then there is redness, pain or tenderness, and sometimes fever. To understand either (or both) you may want to read my booklet "What To Do About Varicose Veins." If so, send 20 cents in coin and enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope to me in care of The Chicago Sun Times Syndicate, P.O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Are you falling for the publicity the laundries are putting out to combat the loss of business on account of the drip-dry materials? I mean your article in regard to ironing clothes. The majority of articles worn next to the skin have not been ironed in the past. The advent of the clothes dryer certainly puts the heat on the subject and does a much better job than ironing. — R. O."

Well, ma'm, I see you are trying to apply the heat!

Despite your suspicions, I have no interest in laundries, my interest is in health, and in letting people know that heat kills germs.

Detergents and soaps are excellent sanitizing agents. Bleach also is very good. The fact remains that additional heat will serve to kill organisms which may have survived. It is for that reasoning that ironing socks is a good precaution when someone is trying to combat athlete's foot or other such infection. And I beg to point out that some people do iron slips, shorts and other garments worn next to the skin.

Far be it from me to encourage people to have phobias about germs. But let's not withhold the facts, either.

Whether a dryer exposes clothes to the same heat that ironing does, I cannot say, but I doubt it, for certainly fabrics can remain in a dryer for some length of time — but what happens if you leave a flatiron on one spot for the same length of time?

As to drip-dry fabrics, I have no quarrel with them, either. Nor any quarrel with you. I just want us to understand each other, and I hope we now do.

Sugar Island Sweet Story

Hamilton Spectator

After a century of battles, threats, inducements and finally assumptions that we are part of the United States it is nice to have the shoe on the other foot.

American citizens of Sugar Island, all 300 of them, are considering annexation to Canada. To add to the flattery they point to the economic expansion and higher standard of living enjoyed by their Canadian neighbors on St. Joseph's Island. Both islands lie in the St. Mary's River near Sault Ste. Marie.

Canadians have become reconciled to the struggle to preserve their identity. It began with such incidents as the War of 1812 and the Fenian raids. Economic sanctions were applied with withdrawal of free trade reciprocity in 1865 and economic inducements with an offer of reciprocity in 1911. Today it has all simmered down to expressions of surprise that Canada had no voting delegation at the National Democratic Convention.

But now according to resort manager Gil Nelson of Sugar Island, we need only change the site of a planned international bridge to get ourselves 300 new Canadians and a sweet slice of American soil.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

"MY CUP RUNNETH OVER"

One of the greatest of all the Psalms of David is the Twenty-Third. There is a favorite line in that inspired Psalm that I repeat every night as I lie in bed, thinking of the day's happenings and thanking my Heavenly Father for all His goodness to me, and praying for that which sustains the Soul. Here is that inspired line: "My cup runneth over."

Why can't all of us so order our lives as to cause all our good deeds to overflow in payment for the endless gifts of our Father in Heaven. He wants everybody to be happy, so he causes the cup of love and kindness and other blessings, to keep overflowing.

How many of us can honestly say that our goodness in the world keeps "running over?" We ought so to do for this earth is none too good, take it in its multi parts.

We all know people whose cheer and kindness are contagious. How welcomed such folks are. Like inviting an extra sun to be on loan to us with its area of wealth and wonder.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Radio being much older and therefore senior to TV, it is reluctant to admit that TV has got anything it hasn't got. But lately you will notice one little trick that radio is copying from TV, and that is the alternate sponsor and the semi-alternate sponsor, and the semi-demi-alternate sponsor.

For years, radio has been open and above board with its sponsors. It gives them their innings before and after a program, with occasional interruptions for a word from our sponsor.

But when TV came up with its five and six sponsors one after the other, so that just as the villain was about to strike the blow, the film is interrupted first by our sponsor, then by our alternate sponsor, then the station break, then our semi-alternate sponsor and finally our semi-demi alternate sponsor — a whole procession of them, so that you had almost forgotten what the villain was about to do — it seems radio could no longer hold out in its pride of seniority.

Now, especially on the rural radio stations, disc jockeys no longer wait for the pop record to end; but half-way through it, break in for a brief word from our sponsor. Thus you get sponsors before, during and after a record.

It is pure TV technique.

Back From the Holy Land — A Journey to Remember

By Rev. C. P. Heaven

Returning again to Belleville from a trip to Europe and the Middle East covering around twenty thousand miles the Rev. C. P. Heaven reports a thrilling and eventful experience. Airports were used from Dorval, Prestwick, London, Gatwick, Rome, Athens, Tel-Aviv, Amman and Damascus. Pan Anglican Tours Ltd. of Fulham Palace, London, England made possible the tour which is allied with the Inter-Church Travel organization.

Some thirty persons were in the Pilgrimage including several clergy, three Americans, one Canadian and one from Australia. Other members were prominent church folk from Gloucestershire. Another party from the London metropolis joined us at the Gatwick Airport. The Bishop of Tewkesbury Abbey (Dr. Henderson) the new Bishop of Bath and Wells, gave the party his Episcopal blessing prior to their departure for the Holy Land.

The Rev. Canon Cuthbert Cooper of St. John's Vicarage, Cheltenham, a noted authority on Palestine was the official guide and lecturer. He was assisted by the Rev. Andrew Russell, also of Cheltenham, who is a brilliant linguist, fluent in many languages and of great service specially in solving the problems of money currencies in Italy, Greece, Israel, Jordan and Syria. The flight over the Lake of Genesa, the glorious Alps, the Isle of Capri and the Mediterranean Sea was made in perfect weather and will ever be an unforgettable memory.

STOP-OVER AT ROME

Following a "stop-over" at Rome and Athens we duly arrived at Tel-Aviv in Israel. It was very warm; rain is unusual in Palestine from early April until September. A first glance at the arid desert terrain with the external Biblical mountains on the far horizon prompted one to ask the question "where was the land flowing with milk and honey" in this bare struggle for existence by irrigation? Israel has justified its creation and her people are progressive; the next five years should mark a big advance. Our first stop was in a convent in the Mount of Beatitudes overlooking the Lake of Gallilee and we were well-cared for by the Italian nuns.

Visiting the various villages, ruins, churches and shrines associated forever with our Lord's ministry, we sang appropriate hymns at each hallowed spot and many members of our party had lovely voices. A sabbath rest by Gallilee is a topic for the soul. From Tiberias we crossed over the lake by a high-powered motor launch and meditated upon the "Tempest" once silenced by Him whom the winds and waves obeyed. We explored the shore-line, saw the vineyards, handled the fishing nets, bathed in Gallilee, saw a new theatre with a seating capacity of 2,500; here was a new summer resort in an ancient setting. The return voyage over the Gallilean Lake was just as thrilling and following lunch at a Scotch Hospice we were on our way to the River Jordan.

STORIES CAME TO LIFE

Needless to say many stories of the Old and New Testaments came to life in following in the footsteps of the Master, sometimes "breathless," a pilgrim would say "did this really happen here?" and "Is it really true?" The answer is an old one "Come and see!" Reality broke through into the conscious sense often when least expected, with a ringing confidence and conviction, "Yes it did!" In Bethlehem the pilgrims watched the native workers in Mother-of-Pearl hunched on the floor at their carving and at Hebron they saw the potter at his wheel. There were all sizes of jars, lamps, vases, jugs, many like the six water-pots of the Cana Wedding Feast.

We saw the threshing-floor of Biblical days and the hand-plough. Always we found the old and the new living side by side. Modern stream-lined motor cars, Buick, Hudson, DeSoto, Dodge, Plymouth, etc., racing on paved highways, passing swiftly the humble donkeys, mules, camels, sheep-goats and Bedouin tribes. We saw the black-veiled women in the crowded bazaars, all a part of the cosmopolitan multitudes; we saw degradation and poverty mixed with the prosperous and well-to-do. Jerusalem must be one of the most amazing cities of the world. We were compelled to acknowledge the so-called "new" in the insidious advance of western clothes, cars and music in Israel, in commerce and industry and in the very real tragedy of the refugees.

IRRIGATION HELPS

Near Jericho some thirty thousand of these destitute people exist on barren desert land that would not produce a blade of grass, (minus irrigation) and they endure the blazing sun. By day the temperature at the Dead Sea when we arrived there was 115 degrees. It is 3,000 feet below sea level and Jerusalem is over 1,200 feet above sea level. Several days were spent in and around Nazareth, an attractive and most progressive town. We were well cared for at the Hospice by the Sisters and Monks and next door was situated the Edinburgh Medical Mission Hospital. This hospital is doing a splendid piece of work by doctors and nurses and it was a joy to discover a Canadian graduate of Kingston General Hospital on the nursing staff from Frankford, Ontario. I visited the hospital twice and our Pilgrimage party gave a substantial gift as a token of goodwill.

The epic story of John the Baptist became vivid as we crossed the Jordan by the Allenby Bridge. Many small bottles of the mud-green water were bought and taken away for future baptismal use. At the creation of Israel as a sovereign state it seems only fair to say that around half a million refugees were trapped in the Hashemite Kingdom of Jordan and even now there are 200,000 of these poor souls who desperately need a new home in a new kindly land and given the heart's desire of a more abundant life.

MOVE TO JERUSALEM

On Whit-Monday the Pilgrimage Party moved up to Jerusalem, a city that definitely is not at unity in itself, neither does it enjoy the peace longed for in its tragic history of milleniums. We stayed at the large magnificent Y.M.C.A. Hotel across the street from the opulent "King David"; Israel. The moving visit to the place of the Last Supper and the tomb of David, where the Jews, forbidden the Temple area must wail the destruction of the Temple as they have done since 70 A.D.

The Tomb lit by dim candles is as a vast cataqalfue. At first it was difficult to accept the decoration of the Holy Places; the external Ikons, the glaring colors, the geegaws and tawdriness. Later we began to understand the spirit of the artists who feared to shame the Lord by leaving bare a single foot of stone or plaster. One can only touch upon the authenticity of the Church of the Holy Sepulchre and the vivid reality of the Garden Tomb and Gordon's Calvary. The former should be known as the Church of the Resurrection, the central shrine of Christendom and of the Christian Church.

ATTENDED SERVICE

We had the high privilege of attending the Sunday morning service at St. George's Cathedral, Jerusalem where Archbishop McGinnis was assisted by two clergy. It was indeed a most inspiring service long to be remembered. At the reception following at the Archbishop's Palace we enjoyed meeting a number of United Nations workers from Cyprus, Cairo, Formosa and other Middle East places. A good deal of interest has been aroused by the discovery and translations of the Dead Sea Scrolls. There is a splendid museum and Archaeology has still a most important part to play in the unveiling of past civilizations allied and associated with Biblical times.

Numerous visits were made to the Mount of Olives and the Garden of Gethsemane, cared for as is the Church of All Nations by the Franciscan Monks. The pilgrimage also included breathtaking visits to the lofty heights of Mount Tabor and Mount Carmel, historic scenes of Elijah the Prophet and the transfiguration of our Lord on Mount Hermon. This was the acknowledged site but because of easier access, the great church and Monastery were erected on Mount Tabor. Memory crowds in on the visits to the shepherds' fields of Bethlehem, the church of the Nativity, the fourteen stations of the Via Dolorosa; the House of Caiaphas, the beautiful church of Mary and Martha and Lazarus of Bethany, the town of Ceasarea Philippi where Pontius Pilate lived and finally went up to Jerusalem to conduct the trial of Christ and gave the word to "Crucify Him".

TOURS ROME

A sightseeing tour of the City of Rome would require another article for its long history really covers five periods. The approach is via the famous "Appian Way" and visits were made to the Catacombs, the Coliseum, the Ancient Forum ruins, the great Basilica of St. Peter's in Vatican City. Crossing the Tiber we were greatly impressed at the massive monuments, commemorating past military achievements of the Ceasars; Arch of Titus and Constantine. Garibaldi; Senators and the aqueduct with parts of it still in use, a long walk on a hot summer night in Rome is an event to be remembered. Likewise a tour of the City of Athens, Greece is most rewarding. The glory of Acropolis and the Parthenon attracts multitudes of visitors. Its university still is eloquent of Plato and Socrates and a host of ancient philosophers, many of whom St. Paul the great Apostle addressed on Mar's Hill on the theme of the Resurrection. We saw the marble stadium which will seat 50,000 spectators. The sentinels were on duty outside the Royal Palace; the former home of the Duchess of Kent, Princess Marina, Athens is surely one of Europe's most beautiful cities.

A last word may be made of an interesting certificate available to pilgrims to Jerusalem, surmounted by a seven branch candlestick, the emblem which reads as follows: this certificate testifies that (name) ascended Mount Zion in Jerusalem in keeping with the ancient tradition of the pilgrimage to the Holy City. Given on Mount Zion the (date, year), "Peace Unto Israel". The certificate bears the official seal and is printed both in English and Hebrew, duly signed by an official.

SUMMING UP

In a world like the present in this atomic age which seems to have lost its bearings and has no central belief to which it can turn for guidance, indeed it may be rapidly heading for disaster —

"Things fall apart, the centre cannot hold;
Mere anarchy is loosed upon the world.
The blood-dimmed tide is loosed, and everywhere
The ceremony of innocence is doomed.
The best lack all conviction, while the worst
Are full of passionate intensity".

This view of course is too awful to contemplate and we add the most encouraging view —

"Whoso hath felt the spirit of the Highest Cannot confound or doubt Him or deny,
Yea, with one voice, O world, though thou deniest,
Stand then on that side, for on this am I".

the robbery police made a routine check on two of the gang in their car.

CHECKS ALL TRUCKS

Constable Wheeler explained that the OPP checks all mail trucks in the area, but did not have the hijacked one on their list because it was operating from a different base.

The amount stolen in the robbery has not yet been determined. Postal authorities reported the missing mail included all old-age pension cheques for nine Western Ontario communities. The pensioners have been promised new cheques as soon as they report theirs missing.

Communities involved are Wilsonville, Waterford, Wingham, North Lasalet, Delhi, Courtland, Tillsonburg, Brownsville and Springfield.

Provincial police at Simcoe said the three men collected only "the general run of mail."

"As far as we can determine, nothing of great value was taken in the holdup," they said. "It was a bad day for them and a good one for us."

MOTHER ABSENT,

the confinement had been on her mind for some time but she did not know what to do about it.

He said the children broke out and smiled when they saw him.

"They were just glad to see someone different," he said. "They all wanted to talk. The only thing that was lacking was good ventilation. It was pretty stuffy up there. It was 90 degrees outside. The rooms were clean, just messed the way children would mess them.

CHILDREN CLEAN

"The children themselves were clean and well dressed. Cupboards in their rooms were loaded with clothes, all clean and neatly hung up. There was lots of food in the house.

"There were toys all over the place, and games, a TV, radio and books. They were right up to date on everything. Connie wanted to talk about who is going to be the next president of the United States and she knew all about baseball and hockey."

Const. Newby said the parents were afraid that if they let the children go outside after so long inside, other children would make fun of them.

OUT AT NIGHT

"It got to the point where the children learned to live inside," he said. "The only times they got out was at night, and then only for a few minutes."

He said the parents could not be forced to send the children to hospital but they agreed to do so after a talk.

Jack Bevan, head of the Protestant Essex County Children's Aid Society, said he could not say whether any action would be taken until investigation was completed and a full medical report received.

"Certainly we will do everything to see that the children are well cared for," he said. "They won't be returned to the same conditions they were found in."

SYMBOLS CLASH — Forest fire prevention posters featuring Smokey the Bear have been criticized as being too American by some Canadian conservation officers... Although approved by the Canadian Forestry Association since 1956, some officials feel Smokey should be replaced by posters with Canadian symbols such as Alberta's Bertie the Beaver (lower photo). (CP Photo).

Smokey the Bear, Symbol Of Forest Fire Prevention, Said Intruder, Scavenger

By DOUGLAS AMARON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Smokey the Bear, symbol of forest fire prevention in the United States and most of Canada, is under attack again as an intruder and scavenger.

Despite murmurs of discontent his future seems safe but in deference to the critics, the Canadian Forestry Association is considering a second symbol using a man as a central character.

CFA officials feel that a forest ranger or some similar conservation officer may appease the opponents of the American brown bear. But Smokey will stay, they say, because the children love him.

Featured in United States conservation literature since 1945, Smokey was approved by the CFA as a Canadian symbol in 1956. The arguments in his favor were that he looks as much Canadian as American, that he is known to American tourists and that he is a means of establishing a common emblem over most of the continent.

There was talk at that time that Canada should not have to go to the United States to find a poster pinup and the opposition was given voice again this month when Robert Porritt, member for Mackenzie South on the Northwest Territories Council, described the bear with the broad-brimmed hat as an unwelcome immigrant to Canada.

Mr. Porritt told a council session at Resolute Bay that he was appalled to see thousands of Smokey posters being distributed in the north by forestry officials.

"Surely we should be capable of producing our own posters when they concern our own resources", he said. He suggested the posters not only be printed in Canada but feature a Canadian symbol such as Alberta's Bertie the Beaver.

Bertie, drawn by one of American cartoonist Walt Disney's artists, was launched in Alberta this year as a project of the forestry division of the provincial government's lands forests department.

VICIOUS KILLER

Government officials said they have nothing against Smokey but H. G. Jensen, Alebtra's deputy minister of lands and forests, said "there is no reason why we should go to the United States for a symbol."

Another forestry official said "the kind old gentleman in scout hat and shovel can turn out to be a vicious killer whereas the beaver is Canada's top conservationist, harmless and a symbol of Canada."

"A bear is not a conservationist but a scavenger and a killer" said another officer.

Smokey, the creation of the Advertising Council, a non-profit organization of private business in the U.S., and a Los Angeles advertising agency, came into being in 1945 after posters featuring Disney's Bambi the Deer and other animals had been tried and found wanting.

REAL SMOKEY

Albert Staehle, a cover artist for The Saturday Evening Post, drew the first Smokey poster. The bear's name was chosen in tribute to Smokey Joe Ryan, a former New York City fire chief.

A real Smokey came into the picture in 1950 when an orphaned, frightened and singed bear cub was rescued from a forest fire in New Mexico. Flown to Washington after his recovery, Smokey now lives in a zoo there, a full-grown cinnamon-colored animal with a Smokey poster hanging outside his cage.

Smokey has caused controversy before. In 1954 he was accused of being a "bear-walker," a person who in Indian superstition appears in the form of an animal, bird or ball of fire and puts a curse on a victim which may cause death.

Stories of the "bear-walk" curse followed mutilation of Smokey posters on Manitoulin Island in Lake Huron. No one was ever caught defacing the posters but other fire prevention signs using a beaver as a symbol were not touched.

Neighbors' Aid Holds Picnic

2nd THURLOW —The Neighbors' Aid held its picnic on Wednesday. Owing to the threat of rain, the potluck dinner was held in the Aid hall, with a good attendance of adults and children.

Tables were arranged and well laden with potato salads, pies of all kinds, chicken and all the good things that go with a potluck dinner.

Later, with clearing skies, all motored to Point Anne where swimming, races, and peanut scramble were enjoyed.

The following are the sport results:

RACES

Boys 3-5, Kim Stratton, J. Belnap, Brian Atkins. Girls 6-8, Linda Ray, Gail Dent, Connie Stratton. Boys 6-8, Bill Lazaruik, Robert Lazaruik, Jimmy Thomson, Cameron Portt. Girls 9-11, Donna Ray and Peggie Thomson (tie). Boys 9-11, Tommy Belnap, Terry Stratton, Larry Lancaster. Girls 12-16, Susannne Lazaruik, Olga Lazaruik. Young ladies 20-40, Mrs. Belnap, Mrs. M. Dent, Mrs. B. Portt, Mrs. H. Thomson.

A grapefruit relay with chosen sides, Mrs. Lazaruik choosing Kay Dent, M. Stratton, Edythe Thomson, L. Howard, Bernice Stratton, B. Atkins. Mrs. Belnap chose Mary Reid, E. Vivian, Elda Portt, Marg Jeffery, Irene Ray, Bessie Mitchell, with Mrs. Lazaruik's side finishing first. This caused lots of fun.

Prize was given for the one with the closest anniversary, with Mrs. M. Dent's on June 29. The one having the most birthdays, Mrs. E. Vivian.

The peanut scramble was enjoyed by the kiddies. Soft drinks were given to all from the Aid. All reported a good time.

Princess Now Prefers Plain Fabrics, Prints

By ROSANNA GROARKE

LONDON (Reuters) — British fashion circles are buzzing about the new aura of elegance Princess Margaret has acquired with her marriage to Antony Armstrong-Jones.

Starting with her simple wedding gown, devoid of crusted embroidery formerly considered an indispensable feature of the Royal Family's grand occasion gowns, the princess has found a new look best described as slick.

Fashion experts feel that for the first time she really deserves to be called one of the world's smartest women.

The basis of the princess' new look is a completely uncluttered line which probably owes much to the cameraman's eye of her husband, trained to see everything in terms of form.

PREFERS PLAIN SHEATH

The princess now prefers plain fabrics and prints, dead plain sheath dresses to buttons and bows.

Her current wardrobe makes her look taller. For instance, a navy-blue silk suit she wore for Ascot races and a school prize-giving has a short, boxy jacket which stops just below the waist. This gives the petite princess a long-legged look.

The suit is collarless, like most of Princess Margaret's new clothes. This, with the new short hairdo adopted for her honeymoon, also helps the uncluttered look, as do the brimless, toque hats she has been wearing.

The colors worn now by Princess Margaret are clear and definite and set off her honeymoon suntan.

At a recent Buckingham Palace garden party, Princess Margaret looked striking in a collarless cyclamen satin coat. With it she wore a frothy hat of white net scattered with roses.

BLIND PIANIST

TATAMAGOUCHE, N.S. (CP) Susan Small, 18, of Black's Harbor, N.B., will be appearing at the Nova Scotia arts festival here Aug. 5-8. For 10 years a piano student at the Halifax School for the Blind, Miss Small has won 21 certificates in seven years of competition in the N.S. music festival.

Wedding

GREENWOOD — GOVIER

A pretty summer wedding was solemnized on Saturday, July 23rd, at 11:00 a.m. in St. John the Baptist Church, Madoc, when the Rev. Cyril J. Betts united in marriage Donna Marie Govier, of Madoc, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Govier, to Ernest William Greenwood, also of Madoc, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Greenwood.

The bride was attractively attired in a street-length dress of white lace over satin, with white feather hat, and corsage of red roses.

She was attended by Mrs. Viola Keating, of Marmora, wearing a grey silk street-length dress, with pink accessories, and corsage of pink roses.

The bridegroom was attended by Mr. Harry Keating, of Marmora.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the bride's home, after which the happy couple left for a motor trip to the United States, the bride travelling in a yellow ensemble with white accessories. Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Greenwood will reside in Madoc.

Guests were present from Saskatoon, Crookston, Ottawa, Marmora, Madoc, and Belleville.

Departing Neighbor Feted By Community

WEST HUNTINGDON — A most pleasant evening was spent on Monday when friends and neighbors assembled at Miss Bessie Hollinger's home to bid her goodbye before her departure for her new home.

The Rev. W. H. Stobbart was chairman for the following programs: sing-song led by Mrs. Howard Wannamaker; reading by Mrs. Harry Redcliffe; solo by Mr. William Fisher and a musical number by young people of the community.

Mrs. Frank Kellar read the special address and Miss Hollinger was presented with a lovely orlon sweater from the members of the W.A., a necklace and pin from the Young People's Club, and a two-piece luggage set from the community, for which Bessie expressed her appreciation.

Refreshments were served.

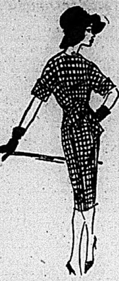
Season Spanner



By VERA WINSTON

Good-looking season-spanners in cotton are now coming into the stores.

There's plenty of smart detail in this transition dress of black and beige woven cotton check. Bias check cuffs finish the short sleeves.

The separate contour sash is lower in back and slightly above the waist in front. One fold down the side uses the checked fabric on the bias to lend interest to the slim skirt.

Wedding

BAKER — SAPIO

FRANKFORD — A charming summer bridal ceremony was held on Saturday afternoon, July 16th at Trinity Anglican Church, Frankford, Ontario, when the Rev. Russell Gale of Stirling, united Marilyn Marie Sapio to Ronald Baker of Batawa in marriage.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Domenic Sapio of 103 Water Street, Trenton, while the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Reg. Baker of R.R. 3, Trenton.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a floor-length gown of white lace over nylon net, fashioned with long sleeves, and a becoming bodice of sequins over embroidery. The bridal veil fell gracefully from an Elizabethan headpiece to hip-length. She carried a bouquet of red roses with white 'mums.

The senior attendants for this double-ring ceremony were the bride's sisters, Miss Linda Sapio, as maid of honor, wore a cocktail-length gown of pale green chiffon with matching headdress and gloves. She carried a bouquet of mauve 'mums.

Mrs. Richard (Etta) Priest, of Trenton, was senior bridesmaid. Her gown was similar to the maid-of-honor's in yellow chiffon. She wore a yellow picture hat and yellow gloves and carried a bouquet of mauve 'mums.

Miss Judy Sapio, was junior bridesmaid in a cocktail-length gown of yellow chiffon with matching hat and gloves and carried a bouquet of mauve 'mums.

Little Miss Kathy McKinnon, of Toronto, niece of the bride, was flower girl. Her floor-length gown was of pale yellow chiffon with matching gloves and a yellow-flowered bandeau. She carried a basket of mixed pastel carnations.

Master Ricky Baker, the bridegroom's cousin, was ring-bearer.

Mr. Paul Kirk, of Trenton, was groomsman and the ushers were Messrs. Dale and Mike Baker. They wore white jackets and dark trousers.

Following the ceremony, the wedding party motored to Trenton to visit the bride's mother, Mrs. D. Sapio, who is a patient in Trenton Memorial Hospital.

At the reception held in the Frankford Legion Hall, Mrs. Sam McNeil received the guests in her mother's stead, with the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Reg. Baker, assisting.

Mrs. McNeil wore a street-length gown of green silk chiffon with three-quarter length sleeves, accented by a white feather hat and gloves, with corsage of white carnations.

Mrs. Baker was attired in a beige lace with brown accessories, beige hat with white carnation corsage.

The reception hall was decorated with pink and white streamers and bells and a three-tiered wedding cake centred the bride's table.

For travelling to Niagara Falls, Buffalo, and Rochester, New York, the bride chose a yellow dress with white accessories and corsage of pink roses.

Out-of-town guests were from Toronto, Ottawa, Rochester, N.Y., and Oshawa.

TIPS ON TRAVEL ETIQUETTE

During the summer, many of us think about travelling. And each summer I receive many letters from prospective travellers asking how to do this or that when on a trip.

There seems to be some confusion about the way to correctly sign in when stopping at a hotel or motel. The following examples may help solve this problem.

When signing a register, a married woman travelling alone would sign "Mrs. John F. Proper," never "Mary Proper." The correct signature for the unmarried woman would be "Miss Susan Jane Brown." The prefix "Miss" is always used in this case.

If a man is registering alone, he writes "John F. Proper." The prefix "Mr." is not necessary. If accompanied by his wife, he registers "Mr. and Mrs. John F. Proper," never "John F. Proper and wife." This is considered extremely poor form. If the youngsters are along the correct registration would be "Mr. and Mrs. John F. Proper and two children."

If you are visiting a summer resort hotel for several weeks, it is not necessary to tip those who serve you, such as waiters and maids, every time they perform a service. A substantial tip once a week is sufficient. The amount of the tip should be based on how much service each has rendered. Of course, this only applies when the same waiter, for instance, serves you at each meal. If a different person waits upon you on each occasion, a tip should be given after every meal.

When checking out of a hotel, it is wise to telephone the desk about a half hour before your departure, informing them that you are leaving and wish to have your bill drawn up. Payment is then made as you leave. Never offer a tip to the cashier or the desk clerk. Such a procedure is neither necessary nor expected.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

Question: I received an invitation to a 4 p.m. church wedding. At the bottom of the invitation it states "Reception following ceremony." However, there is no R.S.V.P.. Should I reply or not? Mr. E. DeM.—Baltimore, Md.

Answer: I assume an address where the reception is to be given is included on the invitation. If not, it must be taking place in the church reception hall. If the former, an acceptance to the reception only should be sent and actually should have been requested. For the latter, a written acknowledgement is really not necessary.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Editor's Note: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Estelle B. — He thinks women can't think.

Gerard B. — I used to have a different opinion — when I was a bachelor.

• • •

Estelle B. — I feel as though I'm fighting the battle for women's rights all over again, single-handed!

My husband and I have been married six turbulent months and I'm beginning to wonder if we can go on. We are both deeply interested in politics — from opposite sides of the fence. We found this amusing before we were married, and always laughed off our arguments before they got to the bitter stage. But now things are different.

I find that at heart my husband believes it's a wife's duty to take on her husband's political outlook. He'll deny it, but it's true. He thinks women aren't capable of thinking rationally.

Gerard B. — Estelle has it all wrong. I don't think women are capable of thinking. Period. I used to feel differently. I used to think women were just as capable intellectually as men. I was a bachelor at that time.

Since I've gotten married I realize that the only reason women bother to have opinions at all is so that they can get into arguments. When they argue, they are always off the point. They try to memorize little scraps from the newspapers so they'll have something that looks like a fact when they get into an argument. Then they produce it like a dog showing his prize bone.

It's not just my wife who's like that. I notice that all her girl friends do the same.

• • •

The Council: Most of us have heard automobile drivers bitterly snarl "woman driver" at some woman who has made no worse a mistake than thousands of male drivers on the road.

That's the way it is with prejudices.

We'll agree with Gerard that women argue exactly the way he says they do — and so do many men. But men who argue badly are never considered to be revealing a sexual peculiarity. It is simply assumed that they are illogical, ignorant or emotional—as the case may be.

We think it possible that Gerard is quite as emotional in his arguments as his wife. If he were not, things could never have reached the bitter stage. It is easier to recognize emotionality in others than in ourselves. Women are more ready to admit the influence of emotion than men.

Political differences should not damage a marriage unless the two partners are using such differences as a disguise for some deeper emotional battle. Since the disguise often contains hints of the true nature of the battle, we think it quite possible that Gerard has some fear of the intellectual power of the modern woman and has a need to put her down.

During the courtship period, Estelle may have enjoyed taking on the traditionally feminine task of inflating her suitor's ego by subtly flattering his mental powers — even while she argued with him. Now that the fish is hooked, however, she may rather resent having to go on doing this job.

We think both Estelle and Gerard are on the wrong track emotionally and this can seriously hurt their marriage. When they arrive at a better emotional harmony, they'll find themselves enjoying their political arguments.

Young Couple Honored by Community

SCOHARIE — Friends and neighbors gathered at Orser hall on Saturday evening to honor two of the community's boys who were married recently, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Hanna and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Lloyd.

Miss Norma Foster showed interesting slides of her trip through Western Ontario and the Bruce Peninsula after which an address was read to the two young couples, extending congratulations and best wishes.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Hanna were presented with an electric living room clock; an electric percolator and a Wedgwood pitcher, and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Lloyd received an electric living room clock, an electric fry pan and a bone china cup and saucer, for which both young men expressed their deep appreciation for the gifts, and the friendship which prompted them and extended an invitation to visit them at their home in Oshawa and Toronto.

Refreshments were served to bring a pleasant evening to a close.

Miss Norma Foster, Mrs. Ruth Hobson and Ross Foster were conveners of this event.

Mr. and Mrs. John Lloyd and Connie of Oshawa, and Mr. and Mrs. George Lloyd and baby of Kingston, attended the presentations.

ANSWER:

Gladly.

Dinner Menus

by Mary Moore

FRIDAY: (Guests)

Jellied Consomme; Seafood Citrus Salad (see Tuesday); Homemade Hot Rolls; Raspberry Fluff; Pineapple Chiffon Cake; Coffee.

RAISIN BREAD (2 loaves):

Two and one-quarter cups lukewarm liquid. (This may be potato water which you have kept in the refrigerator until ready to use and then warmed to lukewarm temperature. If you use milk then scald and cool before using.), 4 tablespoons honey or 3 tablespoons sugar, 1 tablespoon salt, 1 package granular yeast, 2 tablespoons soft shortening, 7 to 7 1-2 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 1 cup plump raisins. Soak yeast in 1-2 cup of the lukewarm liquid with 1 teaspoon sugar, stirring a little at first, then let stand without stirring for 10 minutes. Mix together the liquid, salt, sugar in a large bowl. Add the soft shortening. Stir until shortening is blended. Stir in yeast liquid. Add the sifted flour in 2 additions, handling only as much as is necessary to mix well. Add the raisins when kneading in the second addition of flour Allow to rise until doubled in bulk, covered. Divide into 2 loaves after first rising and let rise again in loaf pans until above rims and bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for 30 to 35 minutes.

QUESTION:

I am an enthusiastic reader of your column and use so many of your recipes. As our berries are outdoing themselves this year I am trying different ways of using them. Today I am making your glazed strawberry pie. We are going to have more red currants than I can possibly make into jelly. I make my own grape juice and it is delicious. Could I make a similar drink from red currant juice and if so what would the directions be We do not use fermented wine but love fresh fruit drinks . . . Mrs. D. MacK.

ANSWER:

CANNED CURRANT JUICE:

Wash, measure and crush red currants thoroughly. Add 1 cup water per cup of red currants. Bring to boil and simmer, covered, 10 minutes. Strain through moistened jelly bag. Do not press. Add sugar if desired — 1-4 cup sugar for each 1 cup cooked juice. Reheat to boiling point. Pour into hot sterilized jars, leaving 1-2" headspace. Process in boiling water bath 10 minutes for pints and 10 minutes for quarts or in oven at 275 deg. Fahr., 15 minutes for pints and 15 minutes for quarts.

THE CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY
IS ANXIOUS TO OBTAIN
FOSTER HOMES
FOR A NUMBER OF TEEN-AGE GIRLS WHO WILL BE ENTERING SECONDARY SCHOOL THIS FALL.

It is essential that these homes be located in the City of Belleville or in the close proximity. These are normal, healthy youngsters of good intelligence. They present no problems out of the ordinary. All have been in the care of the Society for a number of years.

Being a foster parent to a child of this age has many compensations. It offers:

—the companionship of a young adult
—assistance with the normal routine of the home
—$35.00 per month maintenance — the Society is responsible for clothing, medical and dental care, hospitalization, spending allowances, etc.
—opportunity to discuss the child's progress with an experienced and skilled caseworker, who in turn receives professional supervision.
—the satisfaction that comes from knowing that you are contributing to the future well being of someone less fortunate than yourself.

If you are married, in good health, between the ages of 25 and 55, and would like to learn more about what is involved telephone Belleville, WO 8-5704 between the hours of 8.30 and 4.30 Monday to Friday and ask for Mr. Adamson. He will be pleased to discuss it with you and tell you of some of the pleasureable experiences of foster parents presently caring for older children.

Sunday School Lesson

The Wrecking of a State

By ROY L. SMITH

The key to the future is an understanding of the past. If the modern American can understand something of the process by which the ancient Hebrew state came crashing down in ruins, he will be forewarned against the enemies that are working for the destruction of today's state.

PROFITLESS PROFITS

Emerson is credited with having said that the worst thing about money is that it costs too much.

It sometimes happens that a nation's prosperity becomes a millstone about its neck, dragging it down to ruin and disgrace. Corruption is made to appear respectable because it pays a profit, and insures a grand funeral with carloads of flowers and something like a Roman holiday.

The tragedy in ancient Israel was widespread. Conscienceless money lenders, urged on by greed, connived with corrupt judges to get possession of the lands of the small farmers. Large estates were building up, and at the same time the ranks of the landless and the unemployed were swelling. No one seemed to notice the miseries of the people because the services at the shrines were such remarkable spectacles. On the surface all seemed to be going so well.

In the meantime family discipline was breaking down. Deliquency was appearing all along the line. The ancient ideals and morals of the fathers were held in contempt by the foreign traders and the rising generation. The young men were saying, "I'm going to get mine," and the young women were asking, "Does it pay to be good?"

IMPROVED PILLARS

The prophet Hosea used a brilliant figure with which to describe the situation, as it affected the religious life of the nation.

> "The more his fruit increased, the more altars he built;
> As his country improved he improved his pillars."

As of the present moment we are being assured that the wave of church building, and the rising tide of church attendance, are evidences of an increased interest in religion. And for all such gains we ought to be thankful, of course. But the wise man will probe a little deeper.

> The Uniform Sunday School lesson for July 31: "Luxury and Idolatry Ruin a Nation," Hosea 8: 1-5; 10: 1-12; 13: 1-6; 14: 1, 4, 9.

With Sunday school children getting into trouble with the law, with church families making their way to the divorce courts, with the number of bars in homes multiplying, and with the use of alcohol a problem inside the congregation of almost every church in the land, one may be excused for wondering if our improved pillars are producing results.

An aged negro who had worshipped in the shabby old church and who was now looking over the beautiful new buildings, turned to one of the other members and said, "This sure is a lot nicer than the old church isn't it—a hundred times nicer. I wonder if we are going to be a hundred times better in this new church."

FALSE HEARTS

The prophet Hosea explained the tragedy of his nation when he said "their heart is false."

Men who have lost their respect for integrity have lost their faith in the universe. A generation that cannot believe in itself cannot believe in the future.

Communism will not win this struggle for the mind and heart of the world unless the free nations lose their faith in God and the divine origin of human rights.

A workman who does not keep his promise, who scants his work, and who steals the time he has been paid for, is as much a traitor to his country as is the soldier who throws down his arms on the battle field.

The business man who misrepresents his merchandise, who takes advantage of technicalities in the law and who grafts his way out of difficulty is as dangerous a citizen as one who vows his allegiance to Karl Marx.

Every nation survives in proportion to its integrity, and its faith in its ideals. The just do live by their faith.

Canadian-Born Lawyer Sets Sights on Becoming Next Governor of Michigan State

Canadian Press Staff Writer

LANSING, Mich. (CP)—A popular young Canadian-born lawyer is setting his sights on becoming Michigan's next governor.

Seasoned political observers say dapper 34-year-old John B. Swainson, now lieutenant-governor, is top man in the three-way race for the Democratic nomination.

Born in Windsor, Ont., he spent only the first 22 months of his life in Canada before his family moved to Port Huron, Mich. And the fact that he is Canadian-born is being played down by his campaign managers who regard it as no assistance in U.S. politics.

As second-in-command of the state government, Swainson has moved into the governor's office each time G. Mennen (Soapy) Williams has been absent. Governor Williams has decided to retire in November after six two-year terms and has announced his support for Swainson.

DOUBLE AMPUTEE

For Swainson the march to the governor's mansion here started on a bloody Second World War battlefield.

In November, 1944, as a U.S. Army private, he lost both legs above the knee in action. After a year in hospitals, he was discharged with the French Croix de Guerre and other decorations and two artificial legs. He left the army with one desire—"not to end up selling pencils on a corner."

In 1951, with an arts and law degrees from the University of North Carolina, Swainson hung up his shingle in Detroit. But it wasn't until 1954 that he got into politics, winning easily over six opponents in a bid for a seat in the state senate.

He won a second term and became Democratic party floor leader. In 1958 he was elected lieutenant-governor.

LABOR SUPPORT

On Aug. 2 he will vie for the Democratic nomination in the state primaries against Michigan's secretary of state and a Detroit alderman.

In his favor is the fact that he has managed to swing a heavy battery of labor support to his side in spite of labor's announced neutrality.

Although he is politically ambitious, there is one job in the United States that is out of his reach. He can never be president because he is not an American by birth.

He became an American citizen as a result of his service in the U.S. Army. And even his decision to join the American forces was a casual one.

His father, John A. C. Swainson, "sort of wanted me to go back to Canada and join the army," John B. said. "He was partial to the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry. But all my buddies were going in from Port Huron, so I went into the U.S. Army."

Today he lives in Plymouth, Mich., with his wife and three children. An uncle, Frank Clifton, is a Toronto alderman.

MAY BE GOVERNOR

John B. Swainson, 34, lieutenant-governor of Michigan and leading candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor of the state was born in Windsor, Ont. Governor G. Mennen Williams has announced his intention to retire after an unprecedented sixth two-year term. Swainson, who lost both legs above the knee during Second World War service, is bidding for the nomination against two other candidates. (CP Photo)

Finish Second In 7 Finals At Henley

PORT DALHOUSIE (CP)—Always the bridesmaid but never the bride was the way it went Thursday for the Hamilton Leander Boat Club at the Royal Canadian Henley regatta.

Hamilton crews started in five of Thursday's seven finals and finished second every time. They were nipped at the wire by a deck in one race on the Old Welland Canal course and lost by only two feet in another.

The runner-up slots left the club trailing St. Catharines Rowing Club by 13.5 points in standings at the end of the second-day of the four-day regatta.

St. Catharines, winning the junior cox four and junior 155-pound eight finals, forged into the lead with 76 points. Hamilton had 62.5 with Buffalo West Sides next at 59.25. Other clubs were well back in the struggle for the regatta championship. Brockville had 22 points.

There were 24 races on Thursday's program and in the junior 135-pound eight final Buffalo just nipped Landers at the wire. St. Catharines and Brockville Rowing Club took the next two places.

A veteran crew from the Winnipeg Rowing Club whipped Hamilton by a length in the junior fours for the first Manitoba win of the regatta.

Two feet decided the junior cox four race which went to St. Catharines with Hamilton second and Buffalo third. St. Catharines won the junior 155-pound eight by 10 feet from Leanders who had beaten them earlier this season.

Detroit Boat Club's Don Latimer and Dick Nash were easy winners from Hamilton in the junior 145-pound double.

Seymour Cromwell of the Riverside Boat Club, Cambridge, Mass., won the junior single and Brockville took the junior 145-pound four by three lengths over Buffalo.

The high school eights went to St. Catharines Collegiate.

Canisius of Buffalo won the high school cox four with St. Catharines Collegiate second.

In heats for the junior 145-pound single, J. Delaney of Brockville failed to qualify, coming third. Brockville Collegiate Institute also failed to qualify in the high school four mile event, coming third behind Lincoln Park of Chicago and St. Joseph's of Buffalo.

Littler Leads At Pine Ridge

BALTIMORE (AP) — Gene Littler, the methodical swinger from Singing Hills, Calif., steamed his way around humid Pine Ridge Thursday in a repeat performance of his 1959 record of 65 strokes in the first round of the 25,000 eastern open golf tournament.

Littler, 30-year-old best known for winning the tournament of champions at Las Vegas three times in a row, took the first round lead of the 11th annual eastern open for the second straight year with seven birdies and 11 pars.

It was the same way he started last year when he was nosed out in the last round by one stroke by Dave Ragan of Orlando, Fla. Ragan could do no better than 71, a stroke under par, on his first round today.

Littler's sizzling round on the two-year-old course shoved him two strokes ahead of Jackie Burke and a Puerto Rican newcomer, Juan Rodriguez.

Protest 'Bean Balls'

Should Join Ducks Unlimited

CINCINNATI (AP) — Pitchers on the Los Angeles club were accused Thursday of using a "planned program of bean ball throwing" against Cincinnati Reds' batters.

Gabe Paul, general manager of the Cincinnati team, made the charge. He accused umpires of negligence in permitting such alleged tactics, and said he was filing a protest with National League president Warren C. Giles.

His statement followed Wednesday night's game after Vada Pinson was hit in the head by a ball thrown by Don Drysdale at Los Angeles.

There has been feeling between the clubs since pitcher Roger Craig suffered a broken collar bone May 2 when he was bowled over by Pinson as the Redleg slid into the plate.

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Pitcher Don Drysdale, told of Cincinnati charges of a so-called planned program of bean ball throwing by Los Angeles Dodger pitchers, replied Thursday:

"I think a charge like that is kind of ridiculous."

The big righthander was singled out in an accusation by general manager Gabe Paul in Cincinnati. The Reds' Vada Pinson was hit in the head—but was unhurt—by a Drysdale pitch Wednesday night.

"I'm certainly not aware of any 'plot' of that kind," Drysdale continued.

On the Tracks

CHICAGO (AP) — Intensive, a chesty chestnut, looms a 4-to-5 favorite against nine possible rivals in Saturday's $100,000 Arlington Park Futurity, tabbed as Illinois' richest horse race.

If all 10 two-year-olds start, the six-furlong race will gross $218,000, making it the state's richest race and one of the richest in the United States. The winner's net would be more than $125,000.

Jockey Willie Shoemaker—who just became the third ranking American rider for most winners with 3,804—may get a chance at Intensive or at Oak Brook Farm's Oak Dandy.

A sharp contender may be California's Pappa's All.

City Commercial Softball Results

Jones Motors earned the right to meet Ellis Printers for the second-place spot last night when they defeated Bishop Seeds 11-5 in a free-hitting game.

Jones scored in the first inning and never looked back. They added singles in the third, fourth and fifth, two in the second and sixth and three in the seventh.

Bishops scored a pair in the second and three in the fifth.

Adams went all the way on the mound for the winners giving up nine clouts. Rose and Feeney shared the hill honors for the losers and were touched for ten hits.

Creeggan, had three singles for hte Motors boys with Gilbey donating a triple and single. McGuire had two singles and Gray, Donovan and Begley one each.

Burrows and Donovan hit two singles for Bishops with Tracey clicking for a double. Singles were claimed by Calnan, Bovay, Garvin and Williams.

Jones	121 112 3—11	10	2
Bishops	020 030 0—5	9	3

Adams and McGuire; Rose, Feeney and Tracey.

BREEDER DIES

BALTIMORE (AP)—Mrs. Walter A. Edgar, 47, owner of the Woodlawn stud farm and racing stable, died in hospital Wednesday after an illness of one month.

If You Can't Beat 'Em Poison 'Em

BELGRADE (AP) — Five persons were arrested Thursday, charged with poisoning members of a rival soccer team on the eve of a decisive match.

Maribor Braniks were to have played the Karlovac team at Maribor last Sunday, the winner moving up into the second national league next season. But the game was cancelled when virtually all members of the Karlovac team were stricken with a stomach ailment.

Police found that a manager of the Maribor team connived with a hotel waiter to put slow-down pills into players food. The waiter became over-eager and put too many in each portion with the result that the players became ill.

Ontario Intelligencer SPORTS

Sport Slices...

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

LAWN BOWLING

Over the long weekend, especially on Civic Holiday, the sports spotlight will focus on the lush greens of the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club.

As a matter of fact, practically all lawn bowling eyes of the district and not a few in many others, will turn in this direction, for one of the outstanding classics of this great summer sport will be played here.

Some forty-four rinks, including eight from this city, representative of all parts of Ontario, will be here to vie for the coveted handsome Corbin Gold Trophy.

Many other handsome awards will be up for annual competition, including the Hotelmen's Association Trophy, Calverts, etc., while in addition individual awards will be presented to the winning rinks.

Like its sister-on-the-rocks sport, curling, lawn bowling is the one of two physical athletic endeavors that those between the ages of nine and 90 can participate. While both develop keen rivalry as any competitive sport does, actual contests on the lawns or ice move in an aura of camaraderie that unfortunately does not exist in the more rugged types of athletics.

The origin of the sport? Proponents of both will argue about that. But the truth of the matter is that Scotland is not the "hame" of both. Lawn bowling existed in that country centuries before curling. Sorry, Mr. Gault!

There exist sculptured vases, plaques, etc., that indicate lawn bowling was played 3,500 to 4,000 years ago. In fact when the Romans were not tossing the Christians to the lions, and Nero wasn't fiddling around at night, the gladiators played a lawn bowling pastime called "bocce." That is the name it still goes by in Italy

As for curling, a pond drained near Dunblane, Scotland, nearly a century ago, revealed a curling stone on which the date "1551" was carved. It had two handles attached. This is evidence that the game was established in Scotland almost four centuries ago which pre-dates some claims made by people of The Netherlands.

But to get back to the present. President Bill Van Tassel of the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club and his committee have spared no effort to make this year's Gold Trophy event a success comparable to every former year of its existence. Nearly 200 bowlers and their ladies will be the guests of the club and its well-known reputation for genial and whole-hearted hospitality will not deteriorate this year.

Members of both sexes have completed final arrangements for the reception and entertainment of their guests and practically everything that remains depends on the weather man.

Play will start around nine a.m. Monday and by late evening some men's rink will take home the handsome Corbin Gold Trophy and the accompanying valuable individual awards.

The Belleville Lawn Bowling Club will entertain their guests at a special reception being held in the Hotel Quinte's Pinnacle Room on Sunday evening.

WRESTLING

There's going to be quite a ruckus in Memorial Arena tonight when the handsome Dino and Dominic Bravo tangle with the rough-and-tough Hawk-n-Hunter. This platinum-pated pair from St. Louis have been having things pretty well their own way in this Ontario neck of the woods and the D-Boys figure they're the means of putting an end to the high and low jinks.

Hawk and Hunter have defeated everything they came in contact with down this way—and their methods are anything but on the up-and-up. They stop at nothing short of actual mayhem and it is about time somebody taught them a lesson. The Bravos say they are cut out for the job, so let's take a look and see if they're kidding. Mike Valentino, another handsome Italiano, will be here, too, against Les Layman; Bob Mandor and Al Koman also mix up matters.

NEW TROPHY

The Bobcats softball squad who start the B. and D. Softball League playoffs at CNRA Park tonight against the RCAF Flyers, starting 6.45, won a trophy last week. But they didn't know it until a day or so ago. It is the new Dow-Kingsbeer Trophy donated to the league for annual competition, the award going to the pennant winner. Thank you, Mr. Armand Duffy and Messrs. Dow-Kingsbeer. The league appreciates this fine gesture as does the trophy's first winner, the Bobcats. The presentation will be made officially at a later date.

Miracle Of Marichal Works For Giants

Posts Third Straight Win

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Staff Writer

It was rookie uprising day in the National League Thursday. Candidates for first year honors popped up nearly everywhere.

In San Francisco, pitching sensation Juan Marichal posted his third straight spectacular performance, a seven-hitter, as the Giants defeated the Milwaukee Braves 3-2 in 10 innings.

In Los Angeles, big Frank Howard drove in six runs with a grand slam homer and a single as the Dodgers outslugged the Cincinnati Reds 8-6.

In Chicago, Pancho Herrera walloped his 15th home run and drove in two runs in Philadelphia's 3-2 decision over the Cubs.

Other first year men who distinguished themselves were Philadelphia pitcher Dallas Green, who turned in a winning six-hitter, the Cubs' Morris Thacker, who drove in his team's only run, and Cincinnati's Gordon Coleman and Chico Cardenas, who homered in a losing cause.

PIRATES LEAD INCREASED

Pittsburgh, enjoying a day off, along with St. Louis, saw its first place lead increased to two games over Milwaukee.

Marichal, the Giants' 21-year-old right-hander, continued the brilliant pitching that marked his debut when he turned in a spectacular one-hitter against Philadelphia. His second victory was a four-hitter against Pittsburgh. In three starts, he has given up only 12 hits, striking out 24 and walking but six.

"He looked like Walter Johnson to me," said Hank Aaron. The Milwaukee slugger was born in 1934, seven years after the immortal Washington pitcher hurled his last game. "He throws strikes . . . makes you hit the ball."

Billy Bruton, who collected three of the Braves' hits, said Marichal "had a pretty good idea of what he wants to do . . . and he throws strikes."

Filipe Alou drove in the winning run in the 10th with a single off shortstop Johnny Logan's chest. The hit scored Joey Amalfitano who doubled with one out and moved to third when loser Warren Spahn walked Orlando Cepeda after purposely passing Willie Mays.

NEXT BABE RUTH?

Howard, hailed as the next Babe Ruth, hit his grand slammer in the first inning after a hit batter, a single and an error had filled the bases. The homer was his 16th of the season. Howard's single also came with the bases loaded, in the second.

Cincinnati and Los Angeles made only 12 hits between them, five of them home runs. Besides Howard, Coleman and Cardenas, Frank Robinson hit his 20th for the Reds and Chuck Essegian got his second for the Dodgers.

Bobby Del Greco and Herrera, who homered in a four-run inning Wednesday, did it again Thursday night to account for all the Phillies' runs in their victory over the Cubs.

Del Greco opened the fourth with his eighth homer. After Tony Taylor doubled and Bobby Gene Smith grounded out, Herrera homered. The three - run rally wiped out a 2-0 lead the Cubs had given rookie Dick Ellsworth and paved the way for Green's second triumph of the season.

Boston Turns on White Sox

Yanks Scalp Tribe; Now Topside

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Staff Writer

Jimmy Piersall may be right, after all.

When the Cleveland players threatened recently to hold a meeting to discuss what should be done about Piersall's scrapes with the umpires, the explosive outfielder remarked bitterly:

"And while they're discussing me, maybe they should also discuss the hitters who have been taking so many third strikes with men on bases and the pitchers who have been throwing so many home run balls."

The meeting, of course, didn't come off. But the team's ineptness with men on bases and the Indian pitchers' home-run throwing habit continues.

The Indians staged one of their most inept performances of the season Thursday night as the New York Yankees mowed them down 4-0 and 9-2 to regain first place from Chicago by .003 percentage points. The White Sox lost 4-2 in Boston to the Red Sox.

Other American League games saw Baltimore Orioles blank Kansas City Athletics 5-0 and Washington Senators edge Detroit Tigers 6-5.

NO CLUTCH HITTERS

Cleveland can't hit in the clutch. The vanishing Indians, losers of 15, of their last 20 games, put 22 runners on base, 15 by hits and six by walks. Only two of them scored. They left 17 on base.

Cleveland's Jim Perry, who has 11 victories, permitted only nine hits in losing his fifth decision. Three Yankee hits, were home runs: Mickey Mantle's 26th, Tony Kubek's ninth and Cletis Boyer's eighth, accounting for all the runs.

Piersall provided the comic relief in the nightcap. In the first inning he hid in centrefield and had to be ordered out by umpire Joe Paparella.

In the seventh inning, Jimmy amused the crowd of 39,812 by throwing up baseballs in the outfield and catching them behind his back. In the eighth, with Duren batting, he crept in almost behind second base, but was waved back by second baseman Ken Aspromonte.

TEMPLE THUMBED OUT

Piersall wasn't thrown out of the game, but teammate Johnny Temple was. Temple asked umpire Al Smith for time following Yogi Berra's ground rule double. He was refused. A moment later, Berra was permitted time to remove his protective shin guard. Temple blew his top and was given the heave-ho.

Tom Brewer spaced 10 hits and catcher Haywood Sullivan, a .165 hitter, smashed a two-run homer to give the Red Sox their first victory in their last 10 meetings with the White Sox. Billy Pierce lost.

Jerry Barber, in his ninth start in quest of his sixth victory, hurled a one-hitter for Baltimore over the A's. A sixth inning single ruined the no-hit bid of the 21-year-old southpaw, who fanned 10. Two-run homers by Brooks Robinson and Ronnie Hansen and a solo smash by Gene Woodling paved the way for Bud Daley's eighth defeat. He has won 12

Washington got three runs in the ninth on only one hit, a single by Reno Bertoia. Four walks, a sacrifice fly and an error by Frank Bolling, highlighted the winning rally. Bill Fischer, waived to the Tigers by Washington this week, was charged with the defeat.

Jim Lemon hit his 26th home run and Harmon Killebrew hit his 10th for Washington.

Red Sox Lose Gary Geiger

BOSTON (AP)—Gary Geiger, brightest young star in the Boston baseball firmament, was lost to the Red Sox for the rest of the season Thursday when he was taken to hospital with a collapsed right lung.

Dr. Ralph McCarthy, Boston team physician who emphasized "this is not a Red Schoendienst case," said there is no evidence of tuberculosis and that the hot-hitting 23-year - old outfielder should be ready to play next spring.

Geiger was taken to hospital after complaining of severe pains in his chest. He underwent minor surgery by Dr. John W. Striedter, Boston thoracic surgeon. The operation entailed inserting a tube in the collapsed lung to remove excess pressure and hasten the return of the lung to normal size.

Dr. McCarthy said the medical term for the condition is spontaneous pneumothorax.

Geiger, who walloped his ninth homer Wednesday, had hit safely in his last 10 games and raised his batting average to .301 to enter the American League's select top 10.

Fight in Montreal, Aug. 17

Chuvalo, Cleroux to Meet in Title Bout

By MARVEN MOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — George Chuvalo, the Canadian heavyweight champ from Toronto, signed Thursday to defend the crown in an outdoors match here Aug. 17 against Montreal's Bob Cleroux, still flush from a big win over world-ranked Roy Harris.

The 12-round title bout will feature a pair of 22-year-olds with the crudest of ring styles, both bulking plodders who maul and whale away with power to offset what they lack in finesse.

Promoter Eddie Quinn set the match for the east-end Delorimier Baseball Park where the French-speaking Cleroux scored a fifth - round knockout over Texan Harris Wednesday night. Chuvalo was among the 12,530 fans who made a $40,000-plus gate.

GET QUARTER OF GATE

There was no immediate word from Quinn's office on the details of the championship card but it was understood that each fighter would get something in the vicinity of 25 per cent of the gate.

In a department from the conventional fight-signing talk, Al Bachman of New York, who handles Cleroux jointly with Bob's father, said he expects Chuvalo will give the Montrealer "plenty of trouble."

Chuvalo, once listed briefly among the world's top nine heavyweight contenders, won the Canadian title in his hometown nearly two years ago when he knocked out James J. Parker of Barrie.

His last bout was a disappointing appearance in Toronto July 19, a one-sided setback administered by left-jabbing Pete Rademacher, the lightly-regarded 31-year-old from Columbus, Ga.

Before that Chuvalo knocked out Yvon Durelle Nov. 17 after the Baie Ste. Anne, N.B., brawler moved up to the heavyweight division.

Red Wings Sign Three

DETROIT (AP) — Howie Glover, Brian Smith and Gordon Labossiere have signed 1960-61 contracts with Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League, general manager Jack Adams announced Thursday.

Glover, 25, a highly considered right wing prospect from Toronto who was drafted out of the Chicago system in June, scored 31 goals with Buffalo last year. Glover's older brother, Freddie Glover, was a Red Wing in the early 1950s.

Smith, a 22-year-old left wing from Creighton Mines who was called up from Edmonton in January, played 31 games with Detroit last year.

Labossiere, 20, a right wing hopeful who once played amateur hockey in Winnipeg, was drafted from New York last summer, and scored 20 goals with Edmonton last season.

LOAN SUTHERLAND

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Canadiens Thursday announced the loan of leftwinger Billy Sutherland to Cleveland Barons of the American Hockey League. Sutherland, 25, is one of the best scoring forwards in the NHL champions' minor-league system.

His loan to the Barons is for one year and follows similar recent arrangements by which defenceman Moe Mantha and forward Ron Attwell were obtained by Canadiens' new AHL affiliate.

Last season, with Montreal Royals of the Eastern Professional Hockey League, Sutherland scored 35 goals and 40 assists in 65 games.

Two Favorites Beaten

Upsets Mark Junior Tennis Semi's

By DOUG MARSHALL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—Brian Flood, a stocky 16-year-old from London, Ont., meets Montreal's Claude Savaria in today's Ontario junior tennis championships final and is modestly wondering why.

The London boy, seeded fourth, Thursday eliminated top-seeded John Fraser of Victoria 6-2, 2-6, 6-3 in the semi-finals. Thursday night he was still in a state of pleasant shock.

Playing a steady game, Flood outsmarted the Victoria favorite with footwork and fast returns. Fraser, 17, seemed slow and reluctant to go to the net.

Flood's chances for the title look good. He met and defeated Savaria 11-9, 7-5 during a team match in Quebec last month.

In the other semi-final Savaria, seeded third, defeated Peter Wright of London, Ont., 6-4, 7-5, in a balanced, hard - fought match.

Another major upset came when Ottawa's Mike Carroll, seeded fourth in the junior boys' class, defeated top-seeded Peter Burwash of Montreal 6-1, 6-2.

Carroll met's Tom Borecky of Toronto in today's final.

Toronto's Mike Brown is juvenile boys champion after an easy 6-1, 6-2 victory over Paul Kutt is of Toronto in the final. Brown is the son of Mrs. Louise Brown, 1957 Canadian women's champion.

OTHER FINALS

In the junior women's class, top - seeded Della Freedhoff of Toronto meets Wendy Davis of Newmarket in today's final. In the semi - finals, Miss Freedhoff defeated Winnipeg's Eleanor O'Gorman 6-4, 6-3 and Miss Davis eliminated Rene Donohue of Sarnia 3-6, 7-5, 6-0.

In the juvenile girls' class Toronto's Nancy Green won the title.

Top seed Brenda Nunns of Toronto meets Windsor's Faye Urban in the final of the junior girls' class today.

Thursday Miss Freedhoff and Miss Urban defeated Hildegarde Balogh of Sudbury and Madelein Fox of Deep River in the final of the junior women's doubles.

Carrol and Toronto's John Childs meet Cam Killoran of London, Ont., and Craig Finger of Niagara Falls, Ont., in the junior boys' doubles today. In the junior girls', it's Miss Nunns and Susan Snyder of Southampton against Patsy Dawson and Marilee Thompson, both of Toronto.

The heat's on tonight in Richmond.

The torrid Rochester Red Wings, with eight straight International League victories and a share of third place, move into that city for the start of a weekend series with the second-place Vees who have won six in a row.

At the same time, the two coldest teams in the league—Buffalo and Columbus—will meet at the latter's park in Ohio.

Rochester extended its victory streak Thursday night with a 5-4 victory over Columbus, dumping the Jets to their eighth straight loss. Richmond sent Buffalo to its sixth consecutive defeat, 3-2.

Toronto won the first game of a doubleheader from Jersey City 7-1 but Jersey City came back to beat the league-leaders 8-3. Montreal shut out Miami 2-0.

TIED FOR THIRD

Rochester's victory and Buffalo's loss left the two tied for third place, with unearned runs figuring in each decision.

The Wings' Luke Easter singled home Jerry Buchek with the winning run against Columbus loser Al Jackson in the eighth inning, breaking a 4-4 tie. Jets' shortstop Willie Melendez' error with two out set up the clincher. Tom Burgess homered for Columbus while Del Rice hit a two-run pinch hit job for the Wings. Tom Hurd (2-2) won.

Buffalo rightfielder Bobby Balcena let Deron Johnson's single get past him, enabling Leroy Thomas to score the winning run for the Vees in the eighth inning. Thomas reached base on an error by Bisons' third baseman Harry Hannebrink, as Art Mahaffey lost his final start before reporting to the Philadelphia Phils. Jim Bronstad was the winner, getting help from Jim Pisoni's 16th homer.

Wynn Hawkins allowed Jersey City only three hits in the opener for his second straight victory since joining the Leafs. Jersey City's Howie Nunn went the route in the nightcap for his seventh victory in nine decisions. Bob Smith (10-5) lost.

Toronto pitcher Frank Funk received the IL's "player of the month" award for June between the games.

Joe Altobelli trippled home George Risley and scored a moment later on Clarence Coleman's sacrifice fly as Montreal's Ron Perranoski evened his record at 8-8.

BASKETBALLER RETIRES

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Slater (Dugie) Martin, captain of St. Louis Hawks, announced Thursday his retirement from professional basketball. Martin, 34, is a veteran of 11 years in the National Basketball Association.

District Softball League

B. Faulkner Top-Slugger

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Bert Faulkner, starry centrefielder for the Belleville Bobcats has captured the B. and D. softball league batting championship with a .405 average in one of the hardest fought races in years.

Faulkner surged in the final weeks of the schedule to nose out last year's champ, Johnny Batchelor and runner-up Gary Goyer, who finished in the second and third spots this season with marks of .386 and 385. Batchelor will receive the second place trophy. He is also a Bobcat while Goyer plays for Cobourg Merchants.

Trenton's Roger Drake, who led the league in hits with 29 and in runs scored with 25, took the fourth position with a .377 mark while Cobourg's Claude Carr climbed to fifth in the final two games with a .368 average.

Faulkner, in compiling the highest average to win the title in several years, collected 26 hits in 64 official trips. He played in games, scored 23 runs and tied with two Trenton Players, Guy Austin and Don Cole, for the home run leadership. They had four apiece.

Batchelor had 22 hits in 57 at-bats, with one homer, while Goyer picked up 25 hits in 65 trips with three homers to his credit. Drake got his 29 hits in 77 times at bat, also a league high. He hit three home runs.

The Bobcats and Trenton placed four men each in the select ".300 circle" while Cobourg had two and RCAF —Flyers one. Deseronto was not represented.

Another Bobcat, Bobby Hunter, was the loop's top pitcher with a perfect six-won none lost record. Deseronto's Pat Miracle, who pitched nearly all his club's games, led in strikeouts with 106.

Americans Get 1962 World Hockey Tourney

RIMINI, Italy (AP)—The International Ice Hockey Federation has decided that the 1961 world championships should be held in Switzerland and the 1962 competition in the United States.

The board of directors of the federation will decide the exact dates and cities later. The federation has recommended that the championships in Switzerland be at Geneva or Lausanne. No American cities have been mentioned.

Dodger Mentor Has a Beef About Pitchers

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Walter Alston, ordinarily about as much of a grouch as Santa Claus, has a beef.

National League umpires, says the Los Angeles manager, are ignoring the rule that requires pitchers to come to a complete stop before delivering the ball with men on base.

"So far as I know," Alston said, "there hasn't been an umpire all year who has warned anybody to come to the set position before throwing.

"I imagine this rule has been broken in three-quarters of the games this year—by our own pitchers as well as the others.

"When a pitcher is standing out there with men on base and he drops the ball it's a balk. Dropping the ball sure isn't going to fool anybody, but the rules say it's a balk so they call it.

"But how about these pitchers who are cheating all the time—throwing the ball in there without making the complete stop so they can keep the runners from getting their lead?

"There's also a rule against that. And they ought to enforce the thing or throw it out altogether."

On occasions Alston has instructed his pitchers to quick-pitch, to try to get the umpires to invoke the rule.

Batting—Fra[illegible] Howard, Dodgers, the big outfielder drove in six runs with a grand slam homer and a single to lead Los Angeles to an 8-6 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

Pitching—Jerry Barber, Baltimore Orioles, the 21-year - old southpaw hurled a one hitter—Hank Bauer's sixth inning single—and shut out the Kansas City Athletics 5-0.

The Corbin Gold Trophy

Over forty rinks of Ontario lawn bowlers will converge on the city on Civic Holiday, their eyes centred on the beautiful Corbin Gold Trophy. The men's doubles play starts early Monday morning and lasts through till night. The Belleville Lawn Bowling Club will host their guests at a reception in the Hotel Quinte Sunday evening.

Margaret Truman Will Not Sing as Special Guest Star

By BERNARD GAVZER

NEW YORK (AP) — Though she'll be surrounded by music, Margaret Truman will sing nary a note when she appears as special guest star of Music For a Summer Night.

She'll introduce artists ranging from concert pianist Eugene List to jazz mellophonist Don Elliot.

"I've done lots of narrating before on musical shows," she says. The hour-long ABC show goes on at 7:30 p.m. Aug. 10.

While her most publicized venture in entertainment came in the role of a classical singer, her current and future activities seem focused in a non-singing direction. In the TV show she is narrator-hostess, and in September she'll have the lead in a play, Goodbye, My Fancy, at the North Jersey Playhouse.

Her happiest and most rewarding hours in television, she says, came in shows in which she worked with comedian Jimmy Durante.

"I like comedy and I would like to do more. I would really like to do everything—music and drama—but my work is secondary to my family. My husband and children come first."

Margaret, daughter of former president Truman, is the wife of Clifton Daniel of the New York Times. They have two small children.

Twain Gridiron Summary

East, West Square in Wins

TORONTO (CP) — East and west are tied with two victories each as Canada's nine major professional football teams round into shape with the usual pre-season exhibition games.

Edmonton Eskimos and Montreal Alouettes launched the exhibition schedule a couple of weeks ago when the Eskimos trounced Montreal 38-0 in Edmonton. That was old stuff for the Eskimos who beat the Als in the 1954-5-6 Grey Cup finals.

Alouettes also were the victims of the second eastern defeat, losing 49-7 to British Columbia Lions at Montreal. Previously, the Lions and Als had played to a 29-29 tie at Vancouver.

Toronto and Ottawa are the eastern winners. Argonauts walloped the under-manned Calgary Stampeders 51-30 at Toronto Wednesday night and 24 hours earlier the Rough Riders beat Saskatchewan Roughriders 20-6 at Ottawa.

Thursday night, Saskatchewan Roughriders posted their first exhibition victory, defeating London Lords of the ORFU 38-0 at London.

In an all-western game at Calgary on July 20, the Stampeders beat Edmonton 17-4.

Another 10 exhibition games are on tap with two of them involving National Football League teams.

Winnipeg Blue Bombers make their 1960 exhibition debut at Cedar Rapids, Iowa, against British Columbia Lions tonight.

FAMILIAR ACTRESS

Loretta Young, long-time movie star now seen regularly on television, was born at Salt Lake City in 1913.

South Hastings League Sets Playoffs Dates

South Hastings Baseball League executive drew up the playoff schedule last night, with Shannonville, Cannifton and Read and Latta in the playing roles.

The semi-finals series will be three-of-five affairs with the games scheduled to start at 6.15 in each instance.

It was emphasized that only fifteen minutes grace will be allowed and teams not on the field at 6.30 will be dealt with.

Shannonville and Cannifton will play on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. Latta and Read on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays.

The semi-finals start on Monday with Shannonville playing at Cannifton and the teams meeting in the second game on Wednesday at Shannonville.

Read visits Latta Tuesday night in their opening tilt and play the second game at Read on Thursday night.

On the Track

FORT ERIE (CP)—Bulpamiru, the reluctant filly owned by Frank A. Sherman of Hamilton, finally showed some of her running ability through the homestretch Thursday as she charged from behind to defeat Hooker by a neck in the feature race at the Fort Erie Jockey Club. The pace-setter, Gus Terry, finished third, a length behind the winner.

It was the first victory for Bulpamiru since she won the first division of the Queen's Plate trial June 6 at New Woodbine in Toronto. On June 12, she finished seventh in the Queen's Plate, 20 lengths behind the winner, Victoria Park.

AT THE BELLE — Meanest Man in Town — Adolphe Menjou, portraying Mr. Pendergast, a recluse who reputedly cannot abide children, harangues Hayley Mills and Kevin Corcoran in this scene from Walt Disney's new Technicolor production "Pollyanna". The famed Eleanor H. Porter novel stars Menjou, Jane Wyman, Richard Egan, Karl Malden, Nancy Olson, Donald Crisp, Agnes Moorehead and young Corcoran, and Miss Mills in the title role. "Pollyanna", is continuing its extended engagement at the air conditioned Belle Theatre in Belleville.

AT THE McCARTHY — Art Linkletter charms a group of children in the live action prologue to Hans Christian Andersen's "The Snow Queen", Universal-International's feature length animated cartoon in full color, now playing at the Odeon McCarthy and Belleville Drive-In Theatres. 2nd feature also in color, features James Stewart and June Allyson in the Glenn Miller Story".

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — Important you get surroundings in apple - pie order now. Also, be sure that everything is harmonious with kin or fellow workers. Bring home little gifts and work together toward a greater future success. Be wise.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — You must go to barber or beauty shop now and shop for those small items that are a vital part of successful and happy living. Then off to visits or fun with good friend and kind relatives. Be full of fun and enjoy yourself.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22)— A day to thoroughly inspect any real estate you may have and plan the improvements you want to make. Increase its value and beauty. P. M. ideal for entertainment as suits your mood. Be enthusiastic, jovial.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22)— Get busy spreading that infectious charm around so that you make others happier. Enjoy all social affairs and meet charming people, have fun with good friends of long standing.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — You are able to indulge that hobby to investigate and ferret out what is puzzling you now. Fine benefits will result therefrom. Also, look into new methods of operating. P. M. fine for fun in romantic places.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — If you contact good pals or business acquaintances, you may be able to form alliances that will prove mutually beneficial for a long time to come. P. M. go out socially and make new friends that are worthwhile.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — Keep those appointments that are so difficult for you during the busy weekdays. Get an early start and be sure you see that important executive, even if it has to be in the evening at dinner and then to some social function.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — You can certainly garner the data that is so important to you right now, plus making the acquaintance of persons who will be instrumental in helping you to advance in the future through new and interesting outlets.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — You have so many duties ahead of you that you scarcely know where to begin. By getting all basic and financial matters cleared up first, you can then delve into others less important and still have time to be social in P.M.

If your child is born today ... there is every opportunity for being quite successful in life, since your progeny will have a very charming personality. Train along artistic and musical lines since there is considerable talent here, but be sure you give a good grounding in the religious truths as well to insure inner peace and happiness and that the feet may remain on the ground always. Help him, or her, to avoid the pitfalls which a glamorous career can put along the path.

Point Anne

POINT ANNE — Mr. and Mrs. Bill Williams and children of Woodstock are spending their holidays with Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Genereaux and with relatives in Belleville, Mr. Frank Tulk and Miss Mae Tulk.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hart and children and Mrs. Nellie Breach are holidaying at Tweed in a cottage.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton Bowers of Belleville, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. W. Akey, spent the weekend in Utica, N.Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton Akey and family are holidaying with Mr. and Mrs. Percy Akey at their cottage, Long Lake.

Sorry to report Mr. Milton Akey had the misfortune while playing ball at the park in Pt. Anne to fall and break his right leg. His many friends wish him a speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Kish, of Cataraqui, called on Sunday at Mr. and Mrs. Lee Bradshaw's. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gossage of Sydenham, were Sunday visitors at the above home. Mrs. Lee Bradshaw has just returned home from the Belleville General Hospital. Miss Nancy Keene of Belleville is staying with Mrs. Bradshaw for a while.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Akey and children are spending holidays in Timmins, Ontario.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Paul of Toronto, called on Mr. and Mrs. William Juby last week.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Juby spent the weekend at Mrs. E. Bobissh's cottage at Marmora.

Bobby and Bonnie Scott of Belleville, are staying with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Juby while their mother, Mrs. Harvey Scott, is a patient in the Kingston General Hospital. Her many friends here wish her a speedy and complete recovery.

Deepest sympathy is extended to Mr. Alexander Boniakowski and family in the loss of a wife, mother and grandmother in the sudden passing away of Mrs. Boniakowski in Belleville recently. They just moved to Belleville in their new home.

The weekly euchre club was held at the home of Mrs. James Sero. The winners were: Mrs. Theresa Green, Mrs. Pearl Genereaux; low, Mrs. Nellie Breach. After euchre the hostess served refreshments and an enjoyable evening was spent talking of holidays and where to spend them.

Masked Gunman Wounds Operator

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A masked gunman shot and wounded a Canadian Pacific Railway telegraph operator during an attempted holdup at the CPR station here Thursday night.

Patrick Rumsey of London was shot in the side by the bandit, described as about six feet in height with a stocking pulled over his head.

Police combed the area for the man, reported to be armed with a long-barreled, silver-plated revolver.

Denis Nolan, watchmna at London's Richmond Street tower, who was in the station at the time of the shooting, said the bandit entered the building, threw a hat on the ticket wicket and growled "fill it up." When the gunman saw him, he push? ed him out the door.

FRANKFORD—Miss Geraldine Westerveld spent the past week with Miss Kathy Reid.

Mr. Bill Dafoe, Neal Roote and Keith Reid are holidaying in the USA this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Blair and family spent Sunday at Presqu' ile Point with Mr. and Mrs. Sonny Larder.

Mr. and Mrs. Elgin Payne and family are holidaying this week in Algonquin Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Lohnes are holidaying at Pefferlaw Camp, on Lake Simcoe.

Mr. and Mrs. Glen Elliott and girls of West Huntingdon were Sunday guests with Mr. and Mrs. Reg. Elliott and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wood and daughter, Connie, are spending a holiday at Cobourg Camp.

Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Elliott, of Hamilton, were Saturday guests with Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Elliott.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Miller returned home on Tuesday, after spending two weeks' holidays with relatives in Mac Tier, Ontario.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Servos and Miss Henrietta Wood, spent the weekend at Maple Lake in the highlands of Haliburton.

Mr. Gary Weeks spent the weekend with friends in Bracebridge.

The Rev. and Mrs. J. F. Lane of Oakwood, called on friends in the village, last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Sid Martin left Wednesday on a motor trip to Northern Carolina, USA.

On Thursday evening of last week, Mrs. J. T. R. Whitehouse, of Brighton, was hostess for the neighbors of the bride and bridegroom (nee Colleen Whitehouse), and Francis Stickle, of Frankford.

Their wedding gifts were displayed. Mr. J. Whitehouse, father of the bride, showed colored films of the wedding to the guests.

At the close of an enjoyable evening, Mrs. Whitehouse served dainty refreshments.

CHINESE RACKET

Winnipeg, Brandon, Man., Regina, Edmonton and Vancouver.

OTTAWA (CP) — The government in a blunt statement of policy to members of Canada's Chinese community says it fully intends to bring to justice the ringleaders of the recently-disclosed Chinese immigration racket.

A four - page pamphlet being distributed by the immigration department to Canadian Chinese also says that victims of the racket have a responsibility to themselves, to their families and to their country to co - operate with police in providing information.

Some 10,000 copies of the pamphlet have been printed in Chinese for distribution. English translations were made available here Thursday to the press.

The pamphlet denies that the government will deport illegal entrants and members of their families. It reiterates that there is no intention of deporting any Chinese in Canada who have not engaged in assisting other Chinese, apart from their own relatives, to enter Canada illegally.

"This story has probably been started by the illegal immigrant brokers who have no real interest in the Chinese people in Canada, and who wish to prevent proper co - operation with the government to protext themselves," it said.

Tearful Mother Says Children Not Like Others

Says Detention Became Obsession Over Years

TECUMSEH, Ont. (CP)—"People have the idea you are monsters. Let them know you're not."

Mrs. Shirley Dickerson Leach was speaking to her three undersized children, in hospital after spending almost 11 years confined to their home.

In broken tones, the 38-year-old mother related to newspaper men Friday a tearful story of why she kept the children at home in this suburb of Windsor. The case was born of necessity, then grew into an obsession. Her three other children lived normal lives. She said:

"We hid the children when we moved to Windsor from Detroit because no one would rent a house to a couple with six kids.

"When we bought this house we still kept the children inside. But by then it was because . . . they were not like other children."

Gordon Dickerson, 14, is 47 inches tall. Glenda, 13, is 38 inches tall and Constance, 18, is 50 inches in height.

TAKEN OUT

The children were taken from the two-storey frame house by police and Children's Aid Society officials Thursday after Gordon ran to a neighbor's house to break the secrecy of confinement.

Dr. Walter Wren of Grace Hospital near Windsor termed the children the "greatest medical mystery" he had ever seen. He said the children are in good health, neither undernourished nor anaemic.

Police, Children's Aid officials and the Crown attorney ended a lengthy conference Friday but gave no hint what action, if any, would be taken against Mrs. Leach and her husband Donald.

Mrs. Leach said her first marriage, to Donald Dickerson of Detroit, ended in divorce in 1948 after "12 years of misery." All six children were by her first marriage.

The woman and children moved to Windsor following her marriage to Canadian-born Donald Leach. The three children were confined in three different houses since 1949.

The three older children were outstanding students. In their years at school they never revealed the secret of their home.

"The children have never been neglected," the mother said. "They've never been sick. Once they had chicken pox and another time the measles...

"They've seen doctors and they're not undernourished. We have a freezer full of food. They have clothing, books and television."

Block Attempt To Limit Scope Of Inquiry

EASTVIEW (CP) — Commissioners probing the financial affairs of this town within the boundaries of Ottawa were home for the long weekend today after one of them blocked an attempt Friday to limit the scope of the inquiry.

Commissioners Charles W. Yates and F. G. Blake said they expect the inquiry to resume Tuesday and end Wednesday. Some time later, their findings will be made known by Municipal Affairs Minister Warrender. The inquiry was called by the government following a petition by some of Eastview's 23,000 citizens.

Friday, lawyer Hyman Soloway suggested that since the provincial legislature had already dealt with town affairs in 1957, nothing before that was within the scope of the inquiry.

EASTVIEW ACT

The legislature passed the Eastview Act of 1958, a private bill permitting the town to float a $485,000 debenture issue to pay off debts incurred in the years 1955 to 1957.

Commissioner Yates, a municipal affairs department lawyer, said the bill simply acknowledged that a debt had to be paid.

The legislature "didn't condone" actions of council, financial or otherwise.

Mr. Soloway was representing Councillor E. T. Wilson who was being questioned about audit reports for the years 1955 to 1959.

AUDIT REQUIRED

The Ontario Municipal Act requires that council audit all financial accounts of the municipality.

Mr. Wilson said that he did not examine any of the audit reports. "I don't think that's my job" he said.

Operator of a typewriter firm in Eastview, he also denied earlier testimony that he had sold machines to school boards and serviced them in the municipal offices.

He said that he was not the sole owner of the firm and that it was the firm through which the deals were made, not himself.

Arnprior Town Engineer Held

ARNPRIOR (CP)—Town engineer W. F. Frieday was arrested Friday and charged with converting town material to his own use.

Police said he fraudulently converted "to his own use a quantity of concrete patio material to a value of over $50."

He was released on $300 bail pending his appearance in court Tuesday.

Today's Chuckle

This inquiry came to the reservation desk of a resort hotel: "Do you have suitable accommodations where I can put up with my wife?"

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis: A zone of showers and thunderstorms is forecast to move across Southern Ontario today. Fair weather with cooler temperatures is established in northwestern Ontario and is expected to extend into the remainder of the province later today and tonight.

LABOR MINISTER UNDER ATTACK BY OPPOSITION

Unemployment Issue In Lengthy Debate

By ROBERT RICE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberal opposition critics accused the government Friday of turning its back on unemployment problems and pretending they didn't exist.

They fired question after question at Labor Minister Starr — most of which boiled down to a bid for information on what the government plans to do about unemployment if it gets worse.

Mr. Starr, who told the Commons earlier what the government has and is doing, declined to say what it will do until final decisions are made.

But he disclosed that a special cabinet committee, headed by Associate Defence Minister Sevigny, is looking into the problem.

If so, said the Liberals, then what assessment has been made for the committee on the prospects for unemployment in the months ahead?

Mr. Starr said he gets confidential reports periodically from his departmental experts but to disclose them would be breaking a confidence.

A flood of statistics — figures in the millions, billions, percentages, ratios, trends and tables—gushed into the Commons as MPs said largely what they've been saying for some time, that Canada has an unemployment problem.

And there was no end of ideas on what to do about it.

Solutions ranged from a spend-more, build-more approach to a plea for less greed and selfishness among people.

"We cannot solve this problem by any single approach because there is no single cause," said Opposition Leader Pearson. "No single remedy will do the job."

"I think the Communists must be smiling in the Kremlin when they see a nation like ours, perhaps with more wealth in relation to our population than any other nation in the world, hobbling along on one leg," said CCF House Leader Hazen Argue.

Both the Liberal and CCF parties called for more government planning to combat unemployment—planning to meet worker displacements caused by automation, planning to meet regional job needs, planning to prepare a $1,000,000,000 investment program in public projects.

And they also wanted more vocational training to equip workers for jobs in Canada's automation era.

"There is no question of the government sitting idly by and being content to rest of the announcements already made within the last week or so," said Mr. Starr.

Retiring Seadog Once Rode Live Torpedo Round Destroyer Deck

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Retiring seadog Harry DeWolf related Friday how he once rode a live torpedo around the deck of his ship. The wild ride saved his destroyer and his crew.

The account, previously untold the official navy records, must be one of the most hair-raising personal sea stories of the Second World War.

At Sunday midnight, Vice-Admiral DeWolf, 57, a sailor since he was 15, hands over his post of chief of naval staff to Vice-Admiral Herbert Rayner, 49, until recently flag officer, Pacific Coast.

The incident related in an interview by Admiral DeWolf occurred in 1940 when he was commander on Atlantic convoy. It was prompted by the recollection that Admiral DeWolf at the time was in the process of turning over command of the St. Laurent to Admiral Rayner.

Admiral DeWolf did not tell of his direct and courageous part in the incident until Admiral Rayner brought it up.

The external mechanism of a live, armed torpedo was being painted by a sailor who lifted the safety catch to paint underneath and then lifted the firing handle to paint under that.

"The torpedo fired, naturally, and ran wild on the deck," Admiral DeWolf said.

"It slammed into the deckhouse, bounced off and kept charging around.

"Everybody, including me, was scared. The decks cleared pretty rapidly.

"Since we thought we were all going up any second Petty Officer Ridge (PO Sam Ridge of Errington, B.C.) and myself decided to try to tame the torpedo.

"We got astride it. It was as slippery as a greased pig and we thought its propeller might cut our feet off.

"We rode and guided it over to the rail and stuck one leg over the rail to hold it steady. The propeller was making a tremendous racket on the iron deck. We finally managed to release the air cock, the torpedo was driven by compressed air.

"We still had a live torpedo. When we got to port in the United Kingdom we hoisted it on the wall and left it there. I reported to headquarters but I don't know what became of the torpedo."

The first thing Admiral DeWolf plans to do on retirement is go fishing. He will continue to make his home here.

Socred Movement Heads Toward New Drive For Power

OTTAWA (CP) — Within a month of marking the 25th anniversary of the election of the first Social Credit government in the world, the national wing of the movement headed today toward a new drive for power.

A revamped Social Credit Association of Canada gave a new look to the movement and elected a fresh leadership at a two-day convention that concluded Friday night.

And as delegates were urged to new efforts to elect a Social Credit government, they were reminded by Premier Manning of Alberta that next Aug. 22 marks the 25th anniversary of the election of Social Credit in Alberta.

Since those days, he said, British Columbia has gone over to Social Credit, rejecting "orthodox" political parties and adding to the tangible illustration of the soundness and value of Social Credit principles.

Mr. Manning recalled that both he and national leader Solon Low were elected in the Aug. 22, 1935 election and paid tribute to Mr. Low's leadership which the 60-year-old Raymond, Alta., school teacher and former MP will surrender at a leadership convention this fall or winter.

Newly-elected national president Robert Thompson, a 46-year-old chiropractor formerly of Red Deer and Innisfail, Alta., said the movement embarks on its new drive to federal power under favorable circumstances.

"It won't be too long", he said, "before we see the effects of not just a recession but a depression" which would be "a thousand times worse" than the depression of the thirties that marked Social Credit's rise to power in Alberta.

Mr. Thompson succeeds as president Rev. Ernest Hansell, former Social Credit MP, now a member of the Alberta legislature, who resigned following the party's 1958 defeat that wiped out its 19 Commons seats. Mr. Low has acted as leader and president.

The convention approved most sections of a new constitution and adopted in principle a new policy statement which deleted some of the traditional Social Credit references to a national dividend and monetary reform.

Unless Katanga Crisis Solved Collapse of Congo Certain

United Nations has the sickest nation it has ever nursed on its hands.

The Congo is facing a crisis which, without prompt remedial action, could cripple it permanently or even snuff out the remaining signs of life.

Born a republic a month ago without proper prenatal care and abandoned by its sponsors after great provocation, it can only survive and prosper through a massive effort by the UN or individual countries.

The crisis will be reached in August when big government payrolls will have to be met from a depleted treasury.

The Congo was a Belgian colony which lived richly on cheap Negro labor, Belgian brains and money, vast mineral resources and great coffee, palm oil and rubber plantations.

The Belgian knowledge has largely disappeared because of the panic that followed the crude attempts of the Congolese to assert their new authority.

More than 60 per cent of the country's revenue came from the copper-mining province of Katanga, which now wants to be independent or at least reduce the share the central government gets on its profits.

Moise Tshombe, premier of Katanga, almost certainly will try to win a larger share of the rich mining revenues of Katanga since his bid for independence has been rejected by the UN.

This would put the central government in immense difficulties, particularly with the flight of some Belgian capital and the understandable reluctance of other foreign investors to sink money into such a questionable new state.

Unless the Katanga crisis is resolved quickly a financial collapse is almost certain, in the view of economists here.

Many plantations have simply been abandoned. In six weeks without care, a plantation can be overrun by bush and require months of careful cultivation to be brought back.

Nixon Wrestles With Problem Of Farm Policy

CHICAGO (AP) — Vice-President Nixon moved today to forge new strength into what some of his strategists regard as his weakest campaign link—the U.S. agricultural Middle West.

Congress members, governors, convention delegates and farmers were summoned to confer with Nixon, the Republican presidential nominee, on the problems the Republicans face in the Middle West which has wandered away from its traditional Republicanism.

The Republican presidential nominee told a press conference Friday he wants to develop a farm program that Republicans can run on successfully in the November election.

Historic No. 10 Downing Street About to Fall Down, PM Moves Out

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Harold MacMillan moved out of historic No. 10 Downing Street Friday—and just in time.

Built nearly 300 years ago by Sir George Downing it's about to fall down. The ancient official residence of British prime ministers is also a fire trap. Two years ago a government committee warned:

"We do not think that the prime minister . . . should continue to live, work and entertain in a building which is structurally unsound and where risk of fire is substantial."

Undaunted, Macmillan stayed on until just after lunch Friday. Then, he and his wife, Lady Dorothy, moved to Chequers, the official country home of prime ministers in nearby Buckinghamshire.

The ramshackle old Downing Street building isn't being abandoned, however,. In about two or three years, a prime minister will again occupy it. By that time it will have been renovated and strengthened—at a cost of £400,000. While No. 10 is being renovated Macmillan's official London residence will be Admiralty House, a few blocks away along Whitehall.

Built on what was once a marsh, the foundations of No. 10 are so shaky that a mechanic stays on duty in order to keep a delicate elevator working. The plumbing is constantly breaking down.

The reception room — where kings, quens, presidents and potentates have been entertained—is propped up with timbers from below. The room where the cabinet meets is shaky. And the whole place is drafty.

For this state of affairs, many Britons blame Sir George.

History books refer to Downing—who built the house about 1664—as a "profiteering contractor." Samuel Pepys, the diarist, wrote of him:

"He's so stingy a fellow, I care not to see him."

The British Crown came into possession of the house in 1720 and Sir Robert Walpole is considered the first prime minister to have lived in it.

Lumumba Seeks Technical Aid From Canada

Will Also Receive Some Advice From Leaders

By JAMES NELSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Premier Patrice Lumumba is expected to receive both a sympathetic ear and some gentle advice from Canadian government leaders during his round of talks with them today, informed sources say.

The soft-spoken bespectacled leader of the troubled Congo government arrived from Washington and Montreal Friday night and was scheduled to meet prime minister Diefenbaker at noon.

He came here seeking assistance in technical help for the newly-established independent nation of 14,000,000 and to recruit lawyers, teachers and scientists. No question of military help was raised when he met reporters at Uplands airport on arrival.

Canadian government officials indicated that Canada will probably be sympathetic to his pleas, but will channel most of its help through the United Nations or other international organizations.

INTERNATIONALLY

Canada is anxious to persuade Mr. Lumumba that his government can get its best assistance through international associations, rather than becoming tied to any great power bloc or withdrawing its interest into a narrow nationalist grouping of African nations.

Interest was high here in the Congolese premier's words about a "United States of Africa," but he spelled out few details.

"It represents our political objective, sought by all African countries," he said. "By attaining this objective we wish the African countries to be free and independent."

Canadian officials were expected to seek clarification from Mrs. Lumumba as to whether the project means a close-knit political association, or merely a philosophical meeting of African minds.

They read significance into the fact that members of Mr. Lumumba's party included Diallo Telli, ambassador of Guinea to the United States—who inadvertently missed the official plane flying the Congolese party from Montreal to Ottawa—and a press attache from the Guinea information office in New York, as well as Alex Quaison - Sackey, Ghana's permanent representative to the United Nations.

BILL OF RIGHTS PASSES MOST DIFFICULT STAGE

20 Amendments by Opposition Rejected

By JOHN E. BIRD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker's bill of rights has passed through perhaps its most critical stage.

A special Commons committe approved the legislation Frida night and sent it back to t Commons for final approv after 25 sittings involving mor than 48 hours of consideration.

The committee approved nin amendments to the bill, inclu ing three embedding addition rights in the legislation. It al adopted a preamble.

Liberal members submitted amendments, 20 of which we rejected by the Conservative m jority or withdrawn. The one Li eral amendment accepted gu antees that no Canadian may denied the right to reasonab bail without just cause.

However, some of the eig other amendments proposed government members inc porated proposals by Liber members or witnesses who tes fied before the committee.

UNTIL PROVEN GUILTY

The two other rights writ into the bill strengthen the leg lation's anti - discrimination p visions and insert a stipulat that Canadians charged w criminal offences are presum innocent until proved guilty.

At the committee's night ting, Justice Minister Ful submitted a proposed pream which he had prepared in c sultation with his officials. said the draft did not include reference to God because he that this was a matter to be cided by the committee.

The minister said he person agreed that there should be reference to God. He was ported in this view by Paul tin (L — Essex East), Noel ion (PC—Bellechasse) and o committee members.

The committee decided u mously to insert a referenc the supremacy of God in the paragraph of the preamble.

MANY COVERED

In rejecting the Liberal am ments, Mr. Fulton said were adequately covered by bill. There was a danger some suggestions invaded incial jurisdiction and others sought to spell out and freedoms in detail, was not desirable in an ov bill of rights.

One amendment approve the committee makes it that the minister of Justice report to the Commons an eral government order or r tion which abridges the b rights. Another is designed sure that there is no doub the bill applies only to f fields of jurisdiction.

GRANTS INCREASE — Grants by the federal government have steadily increased in the last nine years.

Large graph shows how conditional and unconditional grants were distributed among the provinces for the 1952-53 fiscal year compared with the estimated distribution for the current fiscal year ending March 31, 1961. Inset graph shows a sharp rise in the total of both types of grants in the nine years to 1960-61.

Unconditional grants are mainly tax-sharing payments.

Conditional grants cover shared-cost programs such as the Trans-Canada Highway, welfare payments and health grants These took a sharp rise in 1958-59 with inception of hospital insurance. (CP Newsmap.)

Postmaster A. Clare Named As New Area Superintendent

Albert Clare, postmaster here for the past three years, has been named area superintendent, succeeding K. C. McDonald, who is retiring. A new postmaster is expected to be named within a month or two. Meanwhile it is expected that Mr. Clare will continue to act as postmaster, in addition to his new duties as area superintendent, since his new office is conveniently located in the same building.

Mr. Clare came here three years ago from Sudbury. He is at present on holidays but is expected to assume his new duties on his return to work in a week or so. The area which he will supervise is a large one, extending to, and including Cobourg, Lindsay and Peterborough on the west, Prince Edward County on the south and Kingston on the east. Mr. McDonald has held the post of area superintendent for six years, coming here from Ottawa.

This evening Mr. McDonald and three other postal employees will be honored at a party in the Moose Hall, at which post office employees including letter-carriers, and former employees will be present. Mr. Clare will also be in attendance. Others being honored besides Mr. McDonald will be Merle Locke, night registration clerk, who is retiring, and Bruce Walsh and Norman Dall, postal clerks, who are transferring to customs here.

WHAT DOCTORS SAY ABOUT

Rover's Hearing

● Gargling.

Q. My dog can hear my whistle perfectly well but seems to have no idea which direction the sound is coming from. Does this type of hearing difficulty occur in man?

A. The ability of man or animal to localize sound requires equal hearing in both ears. It is for this reason that a person who has lost the hearing in one ear, or whose hearing is appreciably different in the two ears, has considerable trouble in pinpointing sound.

Q. Does gargling with salt water have any value in preventing or overcoming sore throat?

A. We know of no medical evidence that gargling has any effect in preventing or curing throat infection. However, gargling with warm salt water may be somewhat soothing.

Answers do not necessarily reflect the opinion of all doctors. The diagnosis and treatment of disease is the function of the patient's personal physician. Questions directed to Science Editors, P.O. Box 97, Terminal "A", Toronto, Ontario will be incorporated in these columns when possible.

Motor Car Get Unexpected Dunking in Water

A car owned by Lou Williams, 129 Foster Ave., got an unexpected dunking in Belleville Harbor last night when the emergency brake failed and the vehicle rolled down the boat launching ramp on South Front St.

Mr. Williams said he backed his car on to the ramp, set the emergency brake, got out and started to pull his boat on to a trailer hitched behind the car. The brake gave way and the car and trailer slid into four feet of water. The car's windows were closed.

A tow truck was called and the car and trailer were pulled from the water. Mr. Williams said damage was slight.

The car was underwater for only a few minutes.

Market Large, Varied and Very Busy One

Today's outdoor market was a very large, varied and busy one. All stall spaces were occupied by vendors who displayed just about every possible garden vegetable, a large assortment of berries and other produce all of very good quality. Prices were up on a few commodities but most stayed the same as last week.

Amongst the up-commodities were eggs which at 55, 50 and 45 cents a dozen for extra large, large and medium, respectively, were about 5 cents a dozen higher than last week. Also up in price were green and yellow string beans at 30 cents a box and tomatoes at 40 cents a box, $1.75 a bushel.

Potatoes, on the other hand, were down in price and selling between 40 and 55 cents a basket according to size.

Peas sold at 50 cents a pint or $1.00 a quart shelled and a quarter a quart in the pod. Radishes sold at three bunches for 25 cents; cauliflowers at 10 to 30 cents a head according to size; and carrots, beats and green onions at a dime a bunch.

A large number and variety of berries were available. Red and blue raspberries, blueberries and huckleberries sold at prices ranging between 35 and 45 cents a box.

A large number of very colorful flowers were also on hand selling at 50 to 75 cents a dozen according to variety.

Southams Buy Hugh MacLean Publishing Co.

TORONTO (CP) — Southam Company Ltd. has acquired Hugh C. MacLean Publications Ltd., the two companies announced jointly Friday.

The purchase price was not disclosed.

Hugh C. MacLean publishes 21 Canadian business and professional magazines and has annual advertising and circulation revenues exceeding $3,000,000.

Southam publishes eight Canadian daily newspapers, owns printing plants in several Canadian centres, and has interests in the radio and television fields.

The MacLean Company will continue to operate as a separate company under present officers and management, with the addition of Southam representatives to the MacLean board. Andrew D. MacLean will continue as chairman; James A. Daly as president and managing director, Duncan F. Anderson and E. V. Manser as vice-presidents; and W. K. Jones as secretary and treasurer.

Hugh C. MacLean was one of two brothers, both of whom founded publishing houses.

His brother, John Bayne MacLean, spelled with a small L, founded Maclean-Hunter Publishing Company, which publishes several magazines, including Maclean's, also the Financial Post and more than 40 trade and technical publications.

Grant Campbell (PC — Stormont) sought to clarify what Prime Minister Diefenbaker had said about employment.

"Time and time again I have heard comment on or reference to the prime minister's statement 'As long as I am prime minister no one will suffer from unemployment.'

"I want to make it clear that those are the exact words he used but that he did not at any time state that there would be no unemployment if he were prime minister."

The only way to guarantee full employment would be to "reduce the country to an ant hill or to a slave state."

Retirement Age Of Superior Court Judges Set at 75

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons voted today to bring a request for a change in Canada's constitution into line with one from the Senate.

After coming under opposition fire, the government move was approved by a vote of 132 to 7, with the Progressive Conservatives and Liberals lining up against the CCF members.

A recorded vote on the issue was forced by the CCF. Harold Winch (CCF — Vancouver East) said MPs should not surrender the right of Parliament to the Senate.

The government motion, piloted through the Commons by Justice Minister Fulton, asked the United Kingdom Parliament to amend the British North America Act to provide for retirement of Superior Court judges at age 75.

Three Liberal speakers—party leader Pearson, Paul Martin and J. W. Pickersgill — and CCF House Leader Hazen Argue criticized the government over the whole issue.

Mr. Pearson said the government was acting belatedly although wisely, Mr. Martin accused Mr. Fulton of taking an "irresponsible course." Mr. Pickersgill suggested there was an element of government inconsistency, Mr. Argue said the motion is degrading to the Commons.

It all began weeks ago when the government set out to provide for retirement of all Superior, district and county court judges at 75. There has been no retirement age for Superior Court judges.

The government introduced separate resolutions in the Commons and Senate.

The lower house adopted the resolution as originally presented June 14. But the Senate deleted references to district and county court judges, contending that they have been subject to Canadian law since 1869, two years after Confederation.

Since Parliament could not seek a BNA Act amendment from the British Parliament with conflicting resolutions, the government decided to go along with the Senate amendments.

Obituary

CHARLES B. MEYERS

The funeral of Charles B. Meyers, Trent Road, was held from the Weaver Funeral Home, Trenton, on Friday afternoon. Rev. Roy Rickard of Wesley United Church, conducted the service in the Funeral Home, and also the committal rites at White's Cemetery, on the Trent Road. A large number of neighbors and intimate friends were present to pay their last respects and the many beautiful floral tributes testified to the esteem of the deceased.

The bearers were Harry Rutter, Alva Meyers, Ernie Potter, Gerald Brown, Ken Jones and Frank Sandercock.

TEARFUL MOTHER

Mrs. Leach said they were allowed out on summer nights. And they had the run of the house.

Mr. Leach said:

"It's been on our minds, bearing down heavily for a long time. My wife and I have talked and talked for hours and hours these years.

WERE RIDICULED

"In Detroit the children were ridiculed by their playmates because they were small and slow to develop. We didn't want them to be tortured over here.

"We love our children and always have. We want the best for them that we can give them."

In hospital, Gordon said: "When I went out of the house I knew that if I didn't make it, it would be my last chance. I'd been waiting for a long time to get out. But there was never a chance. We just stayed in all the time."

Arraign Director Of Foundation

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Marvin L. Kline, former executive director of the Sister Kenny Foundation, was arraigned Friday on a first-degree grand larceny indictment returned by a grand jury. He was accused of diverting foundation money to his own use.

In absence of counsel for the accused a plea of not guilty was entered.

Kline, 57, a former Minneapolis mayor, was arrested at his home earlier Friday. Bail was set at $5,000.

The indictment said that by deceit and fraud Kline was able to have his annual salary increased from $25,000 to $48,000.

The foundation serves as a money raising unit for the Sister Elizabeth Kenny Institute, a treatment centre for polio and other diseases.

SPEAKS ONLY FRENCH

Mr. Lumumba who speaks only French although some of his staff are fluent in English, dined Friday night with Leon Balcer, solicitor-general and acting secretary of state, who met him on the cabinet's behalf at the airport.

Today's conference with Prime Minister Diefenbaker was to be followed by lunch with Speaker Michener of the House of Commons, and an informal dinner with Marcel Cadieux, number three man in the external affairs department under External Affairs Minister Green.

Mr. Lumumba departs Sunday at 10 a.m., en route back to his capital, Leopoldville.

He came to Ottawa Friday after a five-hour visit to Montreal, during which he declared his government's policy was "positive neutralism," willing to accept help from East or West.

SAYS NO DANGER

The Congolese premier dismissed fears that Europeans are in any danger in the Congo. He was asked if his government had given a pledge of free passage for Europeans who wanted to leave. His answer was:

"All Europeans live in security in the Congo."

While the resource-rich province of Katanga had declared its withdrawal from the new republic, Mr. Lumumba dismissed this with the statement that it was not backed up by the true feelings of the people of that province.

In reply to a question about offers of Soviet help, Mr. Lumumba said with a smile "I did not go to the Soviet Union."

"I am on a trip to Canada and the United States."

Car Production Drops Sharply In Last Week

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian motor-vehicle production dropped sharply this week, with Chrysler and General Motors on summer shutdown.

Output was an estimated 2,519 vehicles compared with 7,172 last week, made up of 1,683 cars compared with 5,851, and 836 trucks compared with 1,321.

Production to date this year is 278,057 vehicles compared with 276,700 in the corresponding period last year.

Start Project To Put Men in Orbit in 1966

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government space agency Friday disclosed plans to send men into orbit around the earth on journeys lasting from two weeks to two months. The project is scheduled to be started by 1966.

After that, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said, a crew may be sent on a week-long assignment round the moon and back.

But there's no plan for a man-on-the-moon project before 1970.

The agency also hopes to gently land a truck-mounted robot laboratory on the face of the moon and move it by remote control about a 50 - mile - radius lunar circle, taking moon samples. It will be aptly named Project Prospector.

All this will be done before an American attempts to set foot on the moon. The plans were announced before 1,500 contractors attending a two-day series of lectures here. Many of the contractors will bid for a share in the space programs on which the agency said it may, in 10 years, spend from $12,000,000,000 to $15,000,000,000.

This program involves 260 major launchings, including 41 relating to manned space flight.

'Flying Boxcar' Wins Gamble, Lands on 'Home-Made' Strip To Save Greenland Scientist

TRENTON — What began as a routine Arctic flight for pilot Flight Lieutenant Alan Pickering of Sarnia and Belleville, and his crew Thursday night, became a race against time of life and death.

Their C-119 "Flying Boxcar" was returning from Alert, Canada's northernmost base, to the United States Air Force base at Thule, Greenland, when a distress call was received, asking for an air evacuation of a geophysicist, Mr. Needleham, who was suffering from acute appendicitis at Centrum Lake, near the northeast shore of Greenland.

The isolated 4,600 foot landing strip taxed all the flying skills of Flight Lieutenant Pickering, for it had just been prepared by local residents with the aid of a tractor equipped with a hydraulic scoop. It had never been used before by any aircraft.

In the words of Squadron Leader "Bert" Milliken, Commanding Officer of Resolute Bay, "No problem was encountered on landing, but to say that this strip was hardly operational, would be an understatemen. To have landed and taken off on this strip safely in this emergency is due to the good judgment and ability of the captain of the aircraft, in co-operation with the rest of the crew."

The geophysicist was safely evacuated to Thule Air Force Base, 200 miles south.

Later, flying from Resolute Bay to Churchill, F/L Pickering received a call to return to Resolute and pick up two injured Bradley Air Services' pilots who had crashed earlier and were awaiting evacuation.

Once again, the C-119 ran into difficulties, for the weather at Resolute had deteriorated to the point that there was only a 100 foot ceiling and visibility one-eighth of a mile. In addition, the landing strip lights were out of operation due to construction. As a make-shift arrangement, trucks and ground vehicles were moved into position along the runway perimeter, and, with the aid of flashlights, headlights and "Very" pistols, enough light was provided for a safe landing.

After taking the injured men aboard, the C-119 was aloft once again to complete a "Routine Flight" to Churchill early Friday morning.

Flight Lieutenant Pickering resides at 85 Humewood Drive in Belleville and has been stationed at Trenton and has lived in Belleville for the past three years.

Airport Group Needs Big Shot In the Arm

By DON HARVEY

What has happened to the airport committee? It started out more than two months ago full of vim and vigor and now appears to be in desperate need of a tonic. What has happened to it?

The last time the committee met was in mid-May. Since then many developments have occurred which have a direct bearing on the committee's ambition to see passenger airline service at RCAF Station Trenton. Yet Chairman Arthur Duncan has not called the boys together to discuss these developments. Why?

The Belleville Chamber of Commerce took the lead in organizing the airport committee after this column asked what had happened to investigations made a few years ago by a previous chamber manager. (It was later learned that the airport files had been lost in the shuffle when the chamber moved its quarters from Campbell St. to Pinnacle St.)

Several committee members have approached neighboring chambers and got them interested in commercial airline service. Now it appears that unless the committee is revitalized, the Belleville Chamber of Commerce will evoke chuckles of ridicule for starting something and not seeing it through. Perhaps it's about time chamber directors started cracking the whip. Surely they are interested in the activities of their committees.

Mr. Duncan has been made aware (by this reporter) of scheduled Air Transport Board hearings at Ottawa August 30. Two airlines have applied to start passenger feeder service between Montreal and Toronto. One of them wants to continue farther afield and terminate its route at Windsor. Mr. Duncan himself said this was an important development and that the local airport committee must act swiftly to have this area included in both airlines' applications. Yet he has done nothing.

OTHERS TRY

It's easy enough to say that this is an awkward time of the year to hold committee meetings, what with people away on vacation, etc. But surely not every single member of the committee has been away for going on three months. We saw some of them just the other day. Incidentally, they were wondering why a committee meeting had not been called long before now. In fact, a couple of them have been urging Mr. Duncan to call one.

Is the airport committee going to continue working toward something which it originally believed would benefit about 100,000 people within an hour's drive of Belleville? If it is, then we suggest it should quit frittering away precious time and get hopping.

And we suggest that if and when the committee meets again that members quit stalling and immediately get in touch with the two airlines interested in starting feeder service to communities in this part of Ontario. That should have been done weeks ago.

TRENTON — "My Three Angels," a three-act play by Bella and Otto Speivak has been chosen as the Trenton drama group's fall presentation. Casting will begin around the middle of September and it is expected that the play will be ready for production by the end of November.

Drama group activities planned for the fall include an active workshop. New members who would like to be part of the group but have no acting aspirations may benefit by special courses in staging, stage make-up and directing.

The group plans to enter a three-act play in the Eastern Ontario Drama Festival next spring.

25 Men Cut Off By Flames in B.C. Forest Fire

KAMLOOPS, B.C. (CP) — The picturesque fishing resort of Lac Le Jeune has become the scene of a desperate battle against the fiercest of British Columbia's 400 forest fires.

A 5,000-acre blaze started by campers last weekend swept over a mountain ridge and across several small lakes Friday, leaving 25 firefighters trapped overnight and threatening the Lac Le Leune lodge and summer home colony 30 miles south of here.

The fire reached the shore of Lac Le Jeune Friday night and only a narrow stretch of water, three-quarters of a mile across, separated it from the 40-year-old lodge building.

Three hundred men assisted by six planes were to launch an all-out attack on the fire today.

GUESTS TAKEN OUT

The 50 guests of the lodge and surrounding cabins and residents of six lakeside summer homes, including the family of Justice Minister Fulton, were evacuated Friday.

John Whittaker said he saw no hope his lodge could be saved. The flames already had leaped wider stretches of water in their wild advance through mountainous pine forests.

Farther along the noted fly-fishing lake, home of the Kamloops trout, 25 men spent the night cut off by flames in a burned-out section of forest.

They were left at nightfall Friday when a helicopter airlift came to a halt after 43 of their colleagues had been carried out. Water bombers doused the surrounding forest and other planes dropped supplies.

Firefighting headquarters here said the men are in no immediate danger. An RCAF helicopter was to fly them out today.

More than 2,300 men are fighting 259 outbreaks in the Kamloops forest district, 19 of them new fires.

TODD RESIGNS

SALISBURY (Reuters) — Former Prime Minister Garfield Todd, who Tuesday appealed for intervention by British troops in rioting by Negroes, has resigned as leader of the liberal Central Africa party, it was disclosed Thursday night in this Southern Rhodesia centre.

CLUB CREST . . . is painted on the new compressor by chairman George Woodhouse. The compressor, which will fill a SCUBA tank with over an hour's pure air supply in five minutes' time, will be on stand-by duty for the Harmsworth Trophy Races in August. The local club is the official rescue team for the event.

High Pressure Compressor Secured by Divers Club

Members of the Quinte Aqua Divers Club are now the proud owners of a special high pressure compressor used to fill air tanks with dry air. The problem of recharging the air tanks of the various SCUBA units has long been a major one with local divers. No supply of filtered dry air has been available locally and tanks have had to be taken to Trenton for recharging. This has occsaioned a waiting period of around 24 hours.

Now with four cylinder Fairbanks - Morse compressor unit driven by a V-4 Wisconsin air-cooled gas engine, Quinte Aqua Divers have but a five-minute wait before their tanks are charged with enough air to last them approximately one hour underwater. The compressor, which has both a low and a high pressure system, is capable of charging a SCUBA cylinder with up to 2,250 pounds of pure breathing air.

The machine, which is valued at $1,500, has been finding much use during the short time the club has had it. Operating an emergency rescue service and a retrieving service the club members have long needed this compressor, which they started saving for around the first of the year. These services oftimes require extended periods of diving which can now, thanks to the availability of the new compressor, go on almost uninterrupted.

Although it is hoped that the need will not arise the compressor, which is portable, will be on stand-by duty for the Harmsworth Trophy Races. The Quinte Aqua Divers are the official rescue team for this international event.

This Sunday the executive of the club will be surveying the course in order to determine the best arrangements for fast action on their part should the need arise.

Bond Market More Active At Week's End

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The bond market became more active towards the end of the week and prices generally were higher.

Short-term government bonds improved approximately 10 cents, and the longer government and provincial issues gained between one-eighth and one-quarter of a point.

Day-to-day money was easier at 3⅛ per cent, down from 3 per cent. The weekly treasury bill tender saw an average yield of 2.92 per cent on 91-day bills, a drop of .27 per cent compared with last week.

The 182-day bills averaged 3.15 per cent, down .26 per cent.

Government of Canada 5½ per cent, Oct. 1, 1975, traded at 101¾.

Finance companies lowered their rates, with 30-89 days at 3¼ per cent, 90 to 179 days at 3½ per cent, 180 to 269 days at 3¾ per cent, and 270 to 365 days at four per cent.

South Korea Democrats Wi Over Rhee's Liberal Party

SEOUL (AP) — The opposition Democrats, riding a wave of revulsion against the corrupt 12-year rule of Syngman Rhee's Liberal party, won a decisive victory today in South Korea's first free elections. Several incidents of violence occurred during the vote count.

Reuters said the South Korean news agency Donghwa reported that rioters beat to death two workers for a Liberal party candidate in Changhyong.

Climaxing five years of often futile opposition to the Rhee regime, the Democrats gained control of the ruling House of Representatives in still-incomplete but conclusive counting of 9,500,000 ballots cast in Friday's election.

The balloting was marred by post-election ballot-box burning, pitched battles between police and anti-Rhee students, and demonstrations against vote-counting irregularities in favor of winning Democrats.

Eight instances of violence clouded the otherwise peaceful voting Friday night. Today a company of troops had to be called out at Taejon, 100 miles south of Seoul, to quell 10,000 demonstrators who tried to braek into the city hall claiming a fraudulent vote count favored a Democratic candidate.

STORM STATION

In Kosong, south of Masan, hundreds of demonstrators who Friday night stormed a counting station protesting the early success of a former Liberal, invaded a police station today injuring at least three policemen, and wrecked part of the post office building.

About 50 policemen were injured in fights with mobs who burned ballot boxes and kidnapped campaigners at Sam Chong Po, 300 miles south of Seoul. New voting was ordered in five polling places where the ballot boxes were burned.

Incomplete returns indicated the Democrats had captured at least 146 seats of the 233-seat lower house.

The Liberals who dominated the old legislature by 80 votes were almost completely turned out of the new assembly. By mid-afternoon only one had won election.

Let's Serve Our Visitors

Although people may well be aware of the large umbers of yachts which tie up in Belleville harbor over he summer weekends we feel that few appear to realize he benefits of their presence other than providing an nteresting scene to watch.

On numerous occasions visitors have been shown bout the city by local yachtsmen and their interest n the products of local industries and the merchandise f local merchants has been noticed. It is on these ccasions that our visitors are taken care of. There are ther times undoubtedly when vacationing yachtsmen o not find anyone to direct them to where various ervices or goods might be located. If one group of isitors had not chanced to meet one member of this ommunity who gave them the guidance and information they required a $900 sale would not have been ade in this city.

The latter incident apparently shows two things. irst, that visiting yachtsmen and their guests are ly able to receive information on local services by ord of mouth from local citizens who happen along the time and, secondly, that they are quite prepared spend a considerable amount of money during eir stay. This is a very poor situation. It would pear that we are receiving our carriage trade through e back door and the door isn't too well lighted at at.

More attention is required for the benefit of those iting this, the friendly city, via the waterways. eally an information booth should be set up on the st side of Victoria Park and operated throughout e summer months. This could be quite easily achieved a reasonable cost either by the city or the Chamber Commerce. Local university or grade 13 students uld be employed to staff it during their holidays. iling this or, ideally, supplementing this arrangement uld be the erection of a large board with a map of the y's business district on it, showing the location of various types of stores and services.

There are many assets which this community has offer the water voyager. For instance, the relative arness of an automatic laundry to the docks has nd favorable comment from boating tourists who e discovered it. There is no reason why such information as this should be spread on a word-of-mouth basis ongst the yachting fraternity when they tie up here. e information should be immediately available to m. The lack of it may well be an expensive proition to this community, not in direct dollars lost but dollars never gained which should have been.

The investment required to prevent this from hapning would not be excessive and might even be conered insignificant when compared to the revenue ich it should produce. It would cost more to the mmunity not to make this investment than to do so. ne action should be taken before the summer is out, ticularly with the Harmsworth Trophy event comup. This port should be a most popular stop both ore and after the races as dozens of boats look for able quarters.

Let us show them that Belleville is not only the ndly city but also the one most accommodating to guests.

Horse Sense?

The Australian government's decision to issue a penny stamp showing an Australian race horse has with some opposition by a church. This group ns to feel that such a stamp, depicting Archer, winner of the 1861 and 1862 Melbourne Cup races, confirm a report abroad that Australia is a land of nblers.

Let us hope that our own Post Office does not fall a similar pitfall, although we are unaware of any erseas" report that Canada is a land of gamblers. e must have a horse perhaps it would be best to e one named "Plodder" whose claim to fame might for sterling performance in a plowing match or n.

Yet what the electric and the gallows are to us the cross was to our generation. It not only for death—it stood for a ful form of death. The peo o were crucified were the vilest of all criminals. No Roman citizen could be crucified. Paul was given the "privilege" —if we may call it a privilege—of having his head cut off instead of being crucified, an dthis because he was a Roman citizen. If Jesus had been a Roman citizen, he could never have been crucified. Peter could be crucified for he was only a Jewish fisherman. But for some reason we do not know, Paul and his family were Roman citizens, although they were full-blooded Jews just as were Peter and the other Apostles.

We see how with the passing of time the meaning of symbols change. Two thousand years ago everyone spoke of the cross with disdain and loathing. Today it is the church's glory and ours.

Luck Shapes Our Lives

Montreal Gazette

Lord Fisher, the First Lord of the Admiralty, was travelling down to Portsmouth. He was talking to a friend. And the conversation turned to the question of luck.

Said Lord Fisher: "Have you ever noticed, but of course you have, how lucky some people are, how unlucky others? Of course the ultrawiseacres say there's no such thing as luck . . But whether it exists or not I am persuaded that it possesses a tremendous influence in our lives. I have always made a rule never to mix myself up in the affairs of a proverbially unlucky man."

It is probable that the most successful people are those most ready to admit (to themselves, if not to others) that luck has had a "tremendous influence in their lives." And they may have an almost superstitious dread of entangling themselves with the unlucky, for fear a spell may be broken.

Even so resolute a mind as that of Lord Kitchener valued luck and wished to preserve it from contamination. Fortunate circumstances seemed to favor his aims, far beyond the human average. So it was when he gave commands where wells were to be dug in the Egyptian desert, when a military railway was being built. Up sprang the water, flowing full enough to meet the needs of the locomotives and the construction gangs.

It was called "Kitchener's luck." And he viewed it with a nervous awe. The unlucky must be kept from his path. He insisted that any general who failed to earn a reputation for luck was to be scrapped. Patience or compassion were lesser considerations than clearing the way for the mysterious force that may carry success beyond practical expectations.

This faith in luck may deepen into a sort of mysticism. It respects the unknown, and wonders how many men succeed beyond their own deserving. "In fact I am not sure," Admiral Fisher would say with a smile, "if on the whole luck isn't a better asset in life than merit."

The English essayist, Philip Gilbert Hamerton, was much impressed with the limitations of knowledge in the presence of the unpredictable. He recalled that an old friend of his — a man who had seen much of the world in a laborious profession — used to tell him that life's uncertainties make experience much less valuable than is generally supposed.

And he would give this reason: "The problems that present themselves to us for solution are nearly always dangerous from the presence of some unknown element." This unknown element he regarded as a hidden pitfall, and he warned Hamerton that he might expect often to fall into it.

Hamerton was impressed with this remark when he first heard it: his own experience was to prove how true it is. As he later wrote: "This saying of his has been so often confirmed since then, that I now count upon the pitfall quite as a matter of certainty.

"Very frequently I have escaped it, but more by good luck than good management. Sometimes I have tumbled into it, and when this misfortune occurred, it has not infrequently been in consequence of having acted upon the advice of some very knowing and experienced person indeed."

Few people indeed are likely to say that their lives have worked out as they had planned them. Most people, for good or ill, find themselves where they never expected they would be. And to make matters all the more strange, some of the best of all plans may have turned out badly, while some of the disappointments may have yielded the greatest advantages.

Not many people would be ready to live their lives over, if this meant submitting themselves once more to life's uncertainties. Viscount Haldane, a most philosophic statesman, was asked if he would be willing to live his life again. The question was even favorably weighted, for it offered him in a second life the advantage of all the experience he had gained in the first.

Lord Haldane shook his head. Experience would not be enough. "For we are apt," he explained, "greatly to underrate the part that accident and good luck has already played in the shaping of our careers and in giving us such success as we have had."

Haldane's questioner (described in 1929 as "a distinguished living statesman" quite agreed with him. He said: "I would not myself try again, for I do not feel sure that good fortune, irrational as it has been, would attend me in the same way."

The mystery of luck, with its dominion even over the strong and the wise, held its wonder for the writer of the book of Ecclesiastes. He had looked long upon the world, and of what he had seen, he wrote:

"I returned, and saw under the sun, that the race it not to the swift, nor the battle to the strong, neither yet bread to the wise, nor yet riches to men of understanding, nor yet favor to men of skill; but time and chance happeneth to them all . . ."

Oldest Clock Still Ticking

BBC London Letter

Britain's oldest clock—and possibly the oldest clock in the world—is in one of Britain's loveliest cathedrals, Salisbury. Made in 1386, it was lost for a time, and rediscovered in 1929 by T. R. Robinson, a Fellow of the British Horological Institute, who spoke about it in a recent EBC broadcast. This remarkable piece of craftsmanship was originally made in the days before pendulums and had, he said, "a peculiar roasting-jack sort of escapement, called a verge and folio. It worked with that for many years, and when the pendulum came along in later days, it was converted to take a pendulum, and worked for many years after that."

But in 1883 or 1884 this ancient clock was replaced, and lay derelict and more or less forgotten until Mr. Robinson rediscovered it. Even then, it was placed in the cathedral only as a sort of "dead" exhibit, and it was only in 1955-56 that it was restored as far as possible to its original condition. "The pendulum was taken off," Mr. Robinson explained, "a replica of the original folio put back by some old craftsman who came out of retirement in order to make the necessary pieces, and ever since then it has been ticking away in the Cathedral and striking the hours on special occasions. It is made entirely of wrought iron; every wheel was made by hand with a chisel and file. All the frame bars are fitted together with wedges, and there's not a screw in the whole of its construction. Allowing for the time it was out of action, it has worked for a total of five hundred years. In fact, it completes its five hundredth anniversary this year . . . and this great iron clock is truly the ancestor of all machinery we see around us."

Utter Bilge

Cleveland Plain Dealer

A British scientist says the notion that a human could live on the moon is utter bilge. Oh well, we always say we don't care to be the first to visit the moon but we wouldn't mind being the first to come back home from the moon.

What Noise Can You Take?

Montreal Gazette

How much noise can a human being stand? What are likely to be the effects of prolonged exposure to a high level of noise? To what extent do different individuals react to noise in different ways?

These, and similar questions are being studied by Professor G. Lehmann of the Max Plank Institute for the Physiology of Work in West Germany, and some of his views have recently been published.

Professor Lehmann uses the sound of a single telephone as a basic unit of reference. Sounds to the extent of 65 phones are classified as Grade 1 and cause only psychological effects; Grade II includes sounds that effect the vegetative nervous system, and Grade III sounds that harm the auditory organ.

Perhaps the most interesting of the three Grades that Professor Lehmann has selected is the first. It is to this grade that most of the noises met by people in ordinary employment belong. Vastly different reactions have been found from different persons.

It would seem that below a level of 65 phones, it is the attitude of a person towards some form of noise that determines the effect of that noise upon him. The fact remains, however, that every person cannot come to enjoy every noise within this category. It also seems true that at a level far below that which produces a physiological reaction, an adverse psychological reaction can occur.

Noise is something which is steadily increasing in technical society. It is something which all people must come to live with. But there certainly seems room for intensive investigation of the type Professor Lehmann is doing, upon the psychological effects it can cause and upon ways in which its impact can be controlled.

Progress?

Brantford Expositor

If we live in an age of progress why is it that while every year it takes less time to fly the Atlantic, it also takes more time to drive to work.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

July 30th., 1940.

The colorful copy of a new motion picture to be entitled "King Fishes of Canada," as drawn from the explorers' trail of the Dominion was shown in part to the Belleville Rotary Club at their weekly luncheon in the Quinte Hotel, by Mr. William (Bill) Lang of Toronto, who has made a life study of Canada's fighting game fish. His new film, he said, would illustrate the evolution of this famous fighting fish and the jumping off place would be Belleville. There are no 'muskies' in France but plenty of pike and perch. Nor are they plentiful west of Ontario and Michigan, or east of Quebec. The maskinonge is one of the fastest growing fish in the world, he said, fingerlings growing as much as 4 1-2 and 5 inches in seven weeks. By the end of 12 weeks they attain a length of 12 to 15 inches. All muskies over eight pounds are females, while those below that poundage are generally "stags," as the speaker termed.

Miss Marjorie Doolittle, Reg. [illegible], of the Shriners' Hospital in Montreal, Que., who has been spending the last month in Toronto and Belleville, has returned to Montreal.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Carmody of Toronto, Ont., have returned home after spending a few days with Miss B. Ashley, Cedar St.

30 YEARS AGO

Mr. Fred D. Diamond went to Montreal today on business.

Mr and Mrs. Ross Robinson of Ottawa, Ont., formerly of Belleville, are visiting friends in the city.

Miss Dora Osborne has left to visit her brother, Mr. E. C. Osborne in Winnipeg, Man.

Mrs. Jack McIntosh and Mrs. Russell Smith were the tea hostesses this afternoon at the Belleville golf club.

Mr. Norman McLeod of Detroit, Mich., is a visitor in town.

Miss Maud O'Hara of Detroit, Mich., is here to attend the Old Boys' and Girls' Reunion.

Miss Helen Williams of Toronto is a visitor in town.

Miss Jean Holland, Charles Street, is visiting friends in Walkerville, Ont.

Mr and Mrs. Harold Bateman, Mrs. R. Bateman and Mr. E. Bateman, have returned home after a motor car trip through New York State.

40 YEARS AGO

Mr. and Mrs. George Reid are now occupying their new house on Queen Street. Two months from the day that ground was broken for the foundation the family occupied the completed house. Mr. Reid having had considerable experience in building, superintended the construction himself and he certainly got results. It is probably the record for quick construction work in these parts.

Belleville women in the local branch of the Navy League of Canada have the proud distinction of having furnished more 'comforts' for the sailors during the war than any place between Toronto and Halifax in proportion to population.

Mr. Walter H. Reeves of London, Eng., is spending a few days in the city.

Mr. George W. Baker has left for his home in Prince Albert, Sask., after visiting his mother, Mrs. W. J. Baker in this city.

Mr. Garnet Dobbs has left for Toronto where he intends to reside.

Turn Desert Into Garden

Halifax Chronicle-Herald

The Jordan Valley in Israel, once called "the garden of the Lord", and now known as the Negev, is the scene of one of the great miracles of transformation of our day. In early Bible times, it was a fertile and goodly land. Succeeding generations, however, have known it as a place of strife turned by the follies of men, into a barren waste.

Under the aggressive agrarian policies of the youthful nation of Israel, this region, which no one counted of much value, is being restored to beauty and usefulness. Hundreds of thousands of little trees have been planted which, in the fullness of time, will send their roots into the earth and their branches toward the heavens which help to store and protect the water resources so vital in an arid area.

Needed moisture is being drawn from the storied Jordan. Engineers have pointed out that, at present, six-sevenths of the river's potential is being wasted. Now a pipeline is being constructed to divert this life-giving water into the Negev. In addition, plans are underway to build a dam between the Sea of Galilee and Lake Huleh which will provide the electric power to pump the streams into the desert as well as for new towns and cities.

To Your Good Health

NO QUICK CURE AVAILABLE FOR SHINGLES

"Dear Doctor: The subject is shingles. Cause and remedy? — W. W. D."

Shortest letter I've had. To the point. Excellent!

Another letter asks about the truth of a report that "neuritis following a severe attack of shingles is incurable".

No, it is not "incurable", but it's a stubborn, mean disorder.

Cause? A virus attacks the root of the nerve, and the pain and other symptoms follow the course of the nerve. Shingles, also called Herpes zoster, is somewhat similar (but much more severe) to Herpes simplex, or the common "fever blister" of the lip or nose. Shingles, however, attacks the chest wall, usually the side and back, and usually on one side.

It is found most frequently in older people, and the pain is worst among those who are run down from other illness, poor nutrition or fatigue. In such cases, after visible signs of the attack have departed, the pain may persist for weeks or even months, which doubtless leads to the idea that it is "incurable". Eventually it lessens and ceases, but it can cause misery while it remains.

First sign of the disease is pain in the chest, and hence it is often confused with pleurisy, heart trouble, or the like. The area can be tender for several days before anything can be seen. Then blebs or blisters appear. Much as is the case with some vaccinations the blebs break, leaving a scab. Finally the scab drops off, leaving only a brownish discoloration for a time. But the pain may linger.

Incidentally, the virus causing shingles is thought to be similar to the chickenpox virus; but since the behavior is so different, we must assume that they are not identical. It has been suggested that perhaps the two similar viruses may accompany one another; therefore, elderly people, especially if in fragile health, should avoid contact with children with chickenpox. I can't be too positive about this, but it's an idea.

As to remedy, or treatment of shingles, there are numerous ones. Calomine lotion may ease the itching and burning. It's a useful remedy, but it usually isn't enough at the height of the pain of a severe case. Narcotics are sometimes necessary and since we must always guard against addiction if that type of treatment is carried on too long, the important point is to cut this part short.

Often pain-relieving drugs other than narcotics will be sufficient. The pain tends to come and go, and hence the patient should use the milder drugs even though there will be periods when, for the time being, he wants something stronger.

In the active phase of blistering, certain antibiotics have been used. Vitamin B, gamma globulin or injections of some other protein substances, and hormones have been tried and many times bring good results.

But to be totally frank with you, time alone is required to put an end to an attack of shingles, and the best we know how to do is make it easier. We do not have a quick cure.

"Dear Dr. Molner: My doctor told me I have Peyronie's Disease. He doesn't know the cause and says there is no known cure. Is that correct? — C. A. B."

Yes, that's correct. It's a disease involving the formation of fibrous tissue. Treatments include X-ray, Vitamin E, injection of steroids and other drugs that might break up the fibrous tissues. There is no one, or "best" treatment. All of the above have had occasional although not consistent results.

E. B. H., Jr.: Wilm's tumor —a rather rare but tragic form of cancer of the kidney, usually affects children. It is not often something that "runs in families". While I cannot help being dreadfully sorry at your loss, I will say that there is little chance that it will happen again if you have another child.

Nixon Seems Impetuous

The Economist

Above all there is one quality in Mr. Nixon's character that may make the public uneasy about his ability to handle a world poised between war and peace. He gives the impression of being impetuous, of sometimes sacrificing cool judgment for quick action. This is the quality which he showed when he decided against the counsel of his advisers, to brave the mob in Caracus in 1958. The same instinct, in political debate, makes him leap for an opponent's throat — as he did once again last week — when another man might judge it wiser to be more restrained. This might be very dangerous at a time when resolution has to be tempered with calm deliberation. If the voters come to this conclusion, Mr. Nixon's hopes of the presidency may also be in danger.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

DON'T PASS THE BUCK!

Some day there are going to be enough enterprising folk to take in hand the job of raising a fine statue to "George." I refer to the fellow who goes ahead and does things when he is told — but who mostly does things without being told. In other words, I would glorify the chap referred to in the phrase, "Let George do it!"

You see "George" has earned a reputation. He never passed the buck, as goes the phrase. He sees that a thing has to be done and so he does it — and passes on. Most of the failures in business, as well as in character, are expert at buck-passing.

I have in mind the dream picture of a human being who delights my heart. He or she says something like this: "Aha! Here is something that should be done —so I shall do it. I have no idea as to what it will mean to me or anybody else — but I am sure it will mean something to me and everybody if it's done."

Please, my friend, do not pass the buck! If blame belongs to you, take it. Face your consequences and you will learn to face most anything. There are two types that no one loves — the buck-passer and the whiner. Both live in the same house, eat from the same table and have the same relatives. And I imagine that they sleep together.

Take nothing which does not belong to you by right of work or thought. But that which does belong to you, whether it is a blunder of a chunk of glory, own it — and say squarely that it's yours.

Do not take too much time in owning up either! It will earn for you the applause of all who know you — and untold multitudes beside.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

When you order half a grapefruit, even at the swishest hotels, who do you get? A public nuisance.

A half grapefruit that somebody low down in the hierarchy of the kitchen has taken a sharp knife to, and jabbed in a haphazard fashion, cutting it into ill-arranged sections, most of them with the bitter skin of the grapefruit sections fair in the middle. And there you have to spoon it out, in these various sized hunks, each with a tough partition of bitter skin in it, which you have to get rid of, as best you can, with everybody in the restaurant observing your sneaky effort to spoon the offending fibres from your mouth.

A great many years ago, when grapefruit first dawned upon the market, somebody designed a grapefruit spoon, a perfectly adapted instrument for eating grapefruit in propriety and comfort. A narrow, pointed spoon, with shoulders on it, it enabled you to liberate each natural bit of the fruit neatly and completely, and with no help from some stumble-fingered varlet in the kitchen.

But apparently it became too much of a problem for the restaurant industry to provide grapefruit spoons for the customers. You see them only in the most thoughtful restaurants. It was simpler and cheaper just to instruct some boy, maybe seventeen, a beginner at the kitchen trade, with big feet and hands to match, to take a knife and blob the fruit into random gobs.

A Lift for Living

We Need Faith, Self-Confidence

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

"Self-trust is the first secret of success," so wrote Emerson. A certain amount of self-assurance is necessary to get us started in life and keep us going. It was not until after months, nay years, of discouragement and dissappointment that Thackeray gained a hearing from the public. But he had taken the measure of his intellectual capabilities and knew what he could do if given an opportunity. He waited without repining until it came. His self-assurance saved him.

While self-assurance can thus sustain a person, it may also prove his undoing. The collapses of cleverness and self-confidence are too numerous to need recounting. In conquering a vicious habit like alcoholism, the victim must be brought to the point where he no longer believes he can manage himself, and where he puts his trust in a higher power. How far, then, is self-assurance a virtue to be encouraged?

MATTER OF TEMPERING

Perhaps we think the answer depends on a person's temperament. If he is timid or doubting, self-confidence should be inculcated. If he is by nature boastful and conceited, his self-assurance should be restrained. But would not a deeper observation be that self-assurance is a matter of tempering rather than temperament? Belief in oneself is the natural ore which needs to be tempered into the steel of strong character.

Beethoven said of Rossini that he had the making of a great musician if only he had been well flogged as a boy, but that he had been spoiled by his facility of composition. However true or false Beethoven's estimate of Rossini, it is a fact that facility and early success have often not been tempered by sufficient hardship and struggle to make a great talent.

Great art has usually come out of great tribulation. Not until his heart was surcharged with public sorrow and private suffering did Dante write his "Divine Comedy." In the shadow of threatening death, Mozart composed his immortal "Requiem." John Milton's youth was marked by flashing brilliance, but his masterpiece dates from his later years darkened by blindness.

For great living, an inner core of self-confidence must be tempted into an assurance that can steel the character against the attriction of adversity the tension of delay and the attacks of opposition.

But more buoyant self-confidence is not enough for these times. We need a deeper and more divine assurance. For this I offer the formula of the Psalmist in the 112th Psalm: "He shall not be afraid of evil tidings; his heart is fixed, trusting in the Lord." When a man's "heart is fixed, trusting in the Lord," he acquires the self-assurance which comes from the greatness of God.

WAS A REALIST

Consider the late brilliant playwright Robert Sherwood. He was a realist. His overseas service during World War I gave him a personal knowledge of war. He did not spin his Pulitzer Prize dramas out of mere theory. Five years ago he said if the armaments race were not ended by 1980, the human race would be doomed.

Then he made this significant statement: "I express the belief — or if you will, the faith — that before 1980 the threat of a third world war will be a malodorous memory . . . if you ask me for convincing reasons for my optimism, I can provide no facts or figures, no blue prints, no statistics or charts or expert analyses. I can say only that my confidence in the future is founded on the fact that I believe in God. I believe in the assurance given in the first chapter of the first book in the Bible, that 'God made man in his own image.'"

Believing that God, who is a Creator, made man in His own image to be creator also, Sherwood was confident that man would not commit race suicide.

When we thus set our self-assurance in the light of our faith in God we get a larger perspective. We see that evils which seemed unchangeable did, and do, change. We see that the hills of difficulty which appeared so impossibily steep do level off when we start to climb them. We discover that the sea of life has it wavelike rhythm of ups and downs, and when we are down in the trough of despair we know that if we keep a steady keel the billows will bring us again to the crest. And when the bottom seems to drop out of things, we become assured that "underneath are the everlasting arms."

WITH THE SINGING CALLICOATS FROM CALIFORNIA

THE SINGING CALLICOATS

The Callicoats are one family, and have travelled all over the United States singing in large and small churches, auditoriums, convention, outdoor meetings, television, radio and in hundreds of hospitals. The family is close knit, have a real experience of Christianity, sing for the glory of God, and the inspiration of His people.

Ed. Callicoat, father, director and accompanist for The Singing Callicoats, is a former night club performer, travelled with circus and carnival attractions for several years prior to his conversion and operated several successful business enterprises before entering full time work of singing ministry.

The group specializes in southern spirituals and the old gospel songs and hymns that have been loved for many years throughout all churches of all denominations. You will get a spiritual thrill when you hear them sing "When The Saints Go Marching In", and your heart will be warmed when they harmonize "Amazing Grace."

The Callicoats are members of the Hollywood Christian Group.

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Williamson, Belleville, Ontario, announce the engagement of their eldest daughter, Mary Lois, to Mr. Robert Lorne Vaughan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lorne E. Vaughan, Belleville. The marriage will take place on Saturday, August 27th, 1960, at 2 o'clock in Bridge Street United Church, Belleville.

* * *

Miss Mary Garvin and Miss Patricia Featherstone, who are members of the staff at the Ontario Business College, are presently attending a Teachers' Methods Conference at the University of Pittsburg.

* * *

Among those attending the recent Courtney-Manlow wedding in Picton were, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Howes of this city.

* * *

The Reverend Ramsay Armitage, former principal of Wycliffe College, Toronto University, and Mrs. Armitage, were recent guests of Mrs. Enid Ponton, Sidney Cottage, Trent Road. Sidney Cottage was the boyhood home of Mrs. Armitage's father, Mr. Douglas Ponton. The section was built by her great-grandfather, William Hutton, in 1834.

Weddings

STICKWOOD — HUGHES

Trinity United Church, Madoc, was the setting on Friday, July 29, at 7.30 p.m. for a very pretty wedding when Jane Ellen Hughes, of Madoc, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ivor E. Hughes, became the bride of Larry B. Stickwood of Madoc, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Stickwood. The Rev. Ray A. Milley officiated before a background of white hydrangea, snapdragons and ferns.

Given in marriage by her father, Mr. Ivor Hughes, the bride was lovely in her bridal gown of Chantilly lace in three-quarter length, with shoulder-length veil and matching headdress. She carried heart-shaped bouquet of white feathered carnations, white rosebuds and white stephanotis.

Miss Gayle Pitts, of Madoc, was the only attendant, gowned in mauve organza over a white and mauve flowered taffeta underskirt. She wore a matching headdress and carried a bouquet of white carnations, with white accessories.

Mr. Grant Ketcheson, of Madoc, attended the bridegroom, while Mr. William (Bill) Hughes, brother of the bride, ushered the guests.

The reception was held at the bride's home, which was adorned with roses for the occasion. The bride's mother received, wearing a pale turquoise organza over taffeta in shirtmaker style, with white accessories. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, gowned in a pale pink lace sheath with beige accessories.

For the wedding trip to the Southern States, the bride chose a mauve sheath, with white hat and gloves, and corsage of white 'mums.

Guests were present from Newmarket; Sudbury; Toronto; Sutton; Queensville, and Ravenshoe.

The young couple will reside in Madoc.

FOX — BISHOP

A very pretty summer wedding was solemnized recently at high noon in St. Alfred's of Rome, Roman Catholic Church, St. Catharines, Ontario, when the Rev. A. M. McNickoll, united in marriage, Patricia Ellen Bishop, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Cummings, to Wayne Joseph Fox, son of Mr. and Mrs. K. J. Fox, of Belleville. Pink and red roses and peonies adorned the altar and white satin bows designated the guest pews.

Mrs. H. J. Pothier, of St. Catharines, presided at the organ and rendered the wedding music. Mr. Robert Burke of Belleville, was guest soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, Mr. M. J. Cumming, the bride was lovely in her bridal gown of handclipped rosepoint lace and accordion pleated nylon tulle in floor-length, featuring a molded bodice with Sabrina neckline accented with scalloped lace and iridescent sequins. The short cap lace sleeves were complemented by elbow-length lace mitts. A lace peplum over tiers of accordion pleated nylon tulle enhanced the bouffant skirt, cascading gracefully into a chapel train. A queen's crown of seed pearls and rhinestones held her fingertip veil of silk tulle illusion, and she carried a cascade of pink and red roses tied with white satin rose - knotted streamers.

She was attended by her sister, Mrs. D. Quinlon, of St. Catharines ,as matron of honor, wearing white silk organza over mauve taffeta with scoop neckline, fitted bodice and matching cummerbund, bow type headdress, with tiny veil and carrying a nosegay of pink and white mixed flowers .by Miss Peggy Duffy, of St. Catharines and Miss Beth Wright of Windsor, as bridesmaids, who were attired similarly to the matron of honor and carrying nosegays of mixed flowers.

Mr. Robert Johnson of Belleville, attended the bridegroom, while Messrs. Dave Kelly, of Belleville and Dave Quinlon, of St. Catharines ushered the guests.

The reception was held at the Beacon Motel, on the Queen Elizabeth Highway, where the bride's mother received, attired in lime green nylon with matching duster, white accessories and corsage of white carnations. Assisting in the receiving line was the bridegroom's mother, wearing a mauve flowered gown with mauve duster, white accessories, and corsage of pink roses.

For travelling to the Muskoka Lakes district, the bride wore a two-piece nylon corded white suit with moss - green accessories, and corsage of pink roses. Mr. and Mrs. Fox will reside at 10 George St., St. Catharines, Ontario, for the present, later moving to Belleville.

Guests were present from Owen Sound, Oshawa, Toronto, Windsor, Sault Ste. Marie, Guelph, Trenton, Cornwall, Peterborough, and Belleville.

Box-Pleated Skirts Shown In Collection

By PEGGY MASSIN

PARIS (Reuters) — This season's variations on the timeless Chanel look are pleats and plaids.

In the Chanel collection Friday box - pleated skirts shown with Chanel's cardigan sweater jackets are stitched to the hipline and then swing out in easy fullness.

Shadow plaids in oversize black and white suits are banded with inch-wide dark wool braid.

Once again this inimitable designer has gone her own way, regardless of all other Paris trends. Chanel is as great an individualist as her close personal friend, Balenciaga, whom she has nicknamed "Christobal the magnificent."

FAVORITE HAT

Chanel's favorite Breton sailor hat, which is her own personal choice as well, is shown tipped forward to eyebrow level. It matches both dresses and suits in identical fabrics with wool braid trims of contrasting colored edgings.

Models have thick bangs accentuated with saucy hair ribbons.

Cobweb sheer fabrics and rich metalized brocade are featured in easy long- sleeved dinner dresses. A navy - blue chiffon dancing dress has a lace-edged hemline and long panel scarves floating back from each shoulder.

Gold and silver brocade theatre suits repeat the famous Chanel silhouette in formal versions with gold braid trims.

Unemployed Women Have Biggest Busts

LONDON (Reuters) — Unemployed women have the biggest busts, a corset firm survey showed Friday.

Skilled women workers, it said, were flatter-chested than unskilled ones.

The survey produced the following statistics:

Unemployed women: 38 ins.
Unskilled workers: 37 ins.
Skilled workers: 36 ins.

Tailor and Cutter, a men's fashion magazine which published the statistics, commented that girls without brains are helped by providence to attract husbands.

"The woman with a large bust is a woman nowadays who has reached the point where she fulfils all the current expectations of feminine perfection", it said.

"According to the popular newspapers the population has interest in almost nothing else.

"Having reached the acme, then, does there seem any reason for the chesty girl to continue the fight?

"Stresses and strife are now behind her and, her ambitions being fulfilled, she can apathetically drift into unemployment.

"Meanwhile, those with the smaller cup sizes can still feel the rigors of ambition stir within their narrow breasts as they keep the wheels of industry turning, if never a man's head".

Mr. and Mrs. William E. Fitchett are pictured following their recent marriage in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Stirling, Ontario. The bride is the former Miss Shirley Lamoine Devolin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Devolin, of Stirling. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Carman Fitchett, also of Stirling. The Scattered Gifts

By ALMA MASON

High fellowship with God will make us radiant as well as safe and calm. High and uninhibited fellowship with man will transfigure and elevate the human soul. If we would live in the perpetual sunshine of God's presence and enjoy His blessings fully we must develop and maintain an attitude of tolerance, kindliness and pity for all those whose lives touch our lives daily.

For some, sharing, caring and sympathizing bud forth naturally. Others, attempting to acquire and practice the principles of the Christian faith, often find it necessary to spend long and tortuous hours overcoming misguided habits and ill-formed youthful opinions. However, the desire to exhibit love and compassionate understanding towards ones fellows will husband simple or twisted resources and they will have an irrepressible power of increase under God's guiding hand.

A young man turned from atheism to Christianity. How amazed he was to see his modest store of ability used in a wonderful way for the accomplishment of the Divine purpose. As he used his talents and his gifts abundantly he had the lovely satisfaction of seeing his seemingly small gifts grow and grow when used in service for others. Starting with mediocre ability, then coupling it with an urgent desire to be of real service makes more realistic and understandable the miracle of the loaves and the fishes.

Lives lived in the shadow of sin and selfishness and indifference to the suffering of other human beings, shrivel and die here on this earth. They never acquire the rapturous spark of love and service which exhilarates and lives on into eternity. One does not have to go far afield to find abundant avenues of helpful service. There is unlimited opportunity in every city neighborhood to soften and bless.

ONE CITY BLOCK

One city block can hold polyglot, seething humanity; all types, all classes; all creeds. One city block may fence in joy, frustration, death and disaster. It may hold in its grasp dejection, irritation and worry or the seventh heaven of unalloyed happiness. One city block is a mission field —unexplored— waiting and ready for the magic soothing hand of the missionary.

One woman I know has quietly and humbly transformed her whole neighborhood. True, there are always those who do not respond to kindness and love. There are always a few souls who cannot be aroused from a lethargic self-love or a deeply rooted indifference, but the little seed of love held in most of our lives can usually be encouraged to warm and grow through loving interest and loving and sharing. Usually when one brushes shoulders constantly with real Christian concern exemplified by good deeds, some of it clings and is absorbed into one's being.

There is a home mission field in every hospital, in every home for the aged and the rewards contributed towards personal growth of soul are glorious and unbelievably wonderful. Visiting handicapped folk who are dreadfully lonely but persistently courageous brings into true focus the blessings of one's own life. It builds gratitude to God into a mountain of beauty. It washes the heart with the healing lotion of compassion. It restores faith in man and God and in man's ability to surmount and conquer pain through the ministrations of the Holy Spirit.

Bewildered and perplexed children wavering on the threshold of the Christian faith, may be led firmly and surely toward spiritual and mental happiness by the example set them by parents who put Christian love into dynamic purpose daily.

As we empty our hearts of abundant and never-ending love daily and scatter that love through kindly concern and compassionate deeds towards our fellow men, our children, in time, will do so also.

He reached into his heavy heart
And lifted out his buried gifts;
He scattered each one here and there
To soften grief and deep despair.

Where each gift fell a red rose grew;
Its fragrance mounted to the skies;
His heart, enchanted, softened, blest,
Was gradually revived, refreshed.

The roses spread and soon a hill
Was covered with celestial bloom
And weary travellers passed that way
To marvel and to kneel and pray.

City of Stockholm Restores Sweden's Bygone Elegance

By SHIRLEY AND BOB SLOANE

STOCKHOLM, Sweden — Some 40 years ago Prof. Agne Beijer, now a gray, bespectacled archetype of the absent-minded professor but then, as now, a serious scholar of musical history, wandered to Stockholm under the impetus of a burning curiosity.

For some reason eighteenth century opera, a stylized and unbelievable art form most students considered deadly dull, had thrived vigorously here. For the last 15 years of his reign King Gustav III had made the Drottningholm Palace Theatre one of Sweden's, and Europe's, theatrical and music centres. When Gustav's mask failed to fool an assassin's bullet at a masked ball there in 1792, the era ended abruptly.

Professor Beijer found at the theatre, some 13 decades later, a virtually intact but long-neglected relic of the milieu in which these rococo productions made sense. The candelabra were still on the walls and above the 62-foot-deep stage, the ingenious sets designed for Handel and Gluck — some so painstakingly detailed as to be whimsical — were neatly stored in the back rooms which doubled as dressing and sleeping space for performers.

Today the visitor can see for himself what so charmed the court of Gustav III. As part of each summer's Stockholm Music Festival nightly presentations of such quaint classics as Gluck's "Orpheus and Eurydice" or Paisiello's pre-Rossini "Barber of Seville" are offered under the aegis of Professor Beijer. The shade of Gustav is never far from the 200-year-old sets still in use or the bewigged orchestra that continue the tradition that was revived when the theatre reopened in 1921.

The meticulous way in which this remnant of a bygone age has been preserved is characteristic of the Swedes who, with their formal manners, cagey neutrality and long-standing admiration of things continental, have developed a reputation for aloofness among their Scandinavian brethren, the earthy Norwegians and the jolly Danes.

Equally typical was their painstaking restoration of the royal Haga Pavilion, a task so unlikely as to stagger a lesser people. It involved a world-wide treasure hunt that has been going on systematically for 23 years and is yet to be completed.

When the aforementioned Gustav III, a benevolent despot turned tyrant, was done in that night, the miniature palace he had built for himself on the outskirts of Stockholm was abandoned and its lavish contents gradually strayed or were lost and stolen.

One day 131 years later, Swedish shipbuilding magnate Axelsson Johnson was browsing through a Berlin second-hand store and was startled to come upon a book with the three crowns of Sweden's royal crest on its back cover. Turning it over, he found on the front cover the letter "H" (for Haga) and a number, a system he knew had been used for an inventory of palace furnishings in 1819. He found the entire royal library in the store, bought it, and presented it to King Gustav V on his 65th birthday in 1933.

Four years later, fired by the prospect of returning the palace to its previous glory, Dr. C. D. Moselius began supervising a world-wide search for antiques bearing the inventory markings. Objects turned up in the strangest places — a desk in Prince Eugen's palace, a library ladder in the Stockholm Public Library. In 1948, enough had been recovered to reopen the pavilion as a tourist attraction, one of the most charming and intimate royal residences in Europe.

The search goes on for antiques with the letter "H" and a number. If you've got one, a letter to King Gustav VI will bring you a handsome offer for it.

20TH CENTURY PALACE

Nowhere is Swedish reverance for the classical more in evidence than in Stockholm's city hall, which is nothing less than a twentieth century palace. Its magnificent dining hall is finished with 20 million gold mosaic tiles depicting the history of Sweden. In the main corridor a delightful touch is achieved with busts of the building's workmen beaming down from atop doorway arches on those of dignified, bewhiskered mayors.

In the centre of Stockholm itself, a city of busy parks and stately royal buildings threaded by canals thick with motor boats is the island of the Old Town. It is a perfectly preserved ancient cty within a city, full of deep courtyards and gardens behind crowded old houses and narrow alleys. Even a cannonball mysteriously stuck in the wall of a centuries-old house on the central square has been left untouched.

On the island of Gotland, 50 minutes flight from Stockholm, the entire city of Visby is a medieval relic of steep cobbled streets and tiny gabled homes. With its strangely subtropical flora, ancient stone fortress walls and wild, rocky seascapes, it is one of the favorite resort retreats of Swedes.

But nature needs no historical embellishment in Scandinavia's most spectacular attraction, the weird moonscaped land of the midnight sun north of the Arctic Circle. Here for $70 round trip from Stockholm or Oslo, during the early summer, Scandinavian Airlines System runs sightseeing flights for those who want to witness the rare sight of the sun setting and then rising again before it reaches the horizon.

Mother's Helper

THAT SPECIAL birthday cake can be decorated with hard candy and candy canes if you don't cover it once the trimmings are in place. Humidity under a cover will make the candy melt and the colors will run into the frosting, with tragic results! Of course, you can ice the cake the day before and cover it, leaving only the decorations to do at the last minute.

Social Secretary of Hotel Gets Many Strange Requests

MONTREAL (CP) — A light flashed on a hotel switchboard one cold mid-winter day and a guest asked if she could have a bucket of rain water to wash her hair.

She got it as the result of the ingenuity of Ilie Alexandor, former beauty consultant, world traveller and for the last year social secretary at the Windsor Hotel here.

To get the rain water Mrs. Alexandor supervised removal of large quantities of snow from the hotel roof. The snow was then packed into vats and boiled on the stove.

"Then we had to strain it to get all the city grime from it," she recalls with a sigh. "It took up the better part of a day."

THEATRICAL FAMILY

Mrs. Alexandor has had many other unusual requests since.

The slim, self-assured brunette was born in England of a theatrical family. Her mother, whose stage name was LaPia, danced for the late Queen Mary at a command performance in 1910. But Mrs. Alexandor had little theatrical ambition and, after a convent education, entered the London salon of Helena Rubenstein.

"An amazing woman," she said, "truly amazing. She must be over 80, and this year she went all around the world. On the return trip her entourage was completely exhausted while she was still fresh as a daisy."

From the London salon Ilie went to Paris and New York where she was consultant to some of the great names in society and show business, including the late Gertrude Lawrence and Carole Lombard.

SENT TO CANADA

After a year and a half in New York, she was sent to Montreal as the cosmetic firm's first Canadian representative. She met and married Felix Alexandor and travelled with him through South America where the family owned fur salons.

She began looking for a new career after her son started college. After spending a year in the fashion fur business, she took her present position.

She recalls the day President and Mme. de Gaulle arrived at the hotel. Learning they are particularly fond of a rare hybrid of long-stemmed heliotrope rose, she decided to get them some. She encountered considerable difficulty because the roses are peculiar to southern France. But she managed to find some two hours before the de Gaulles arrived.

Mme. de Gaulle's exclamation of surprise and pleasure on entering the rose-banked suite, says Mrs. Alexandor, made the effort well worthwhile.

25 to 44 Group Wedded Women Chief Sufferers

TORONTO (CP) — A unique two-year study of the inhabitants of a small, east-coast island fishing village showed married women 25 to 44 had the most difficult lives.

Elderly men, on the other hand, remained unusually healthy and prospered in the rural village's atmosphere.

These were among the findings of a medical team which studied all 274 adults in the village during an intensive survey.

Dr. Edward L. Thomas of Toronto, who was resident physician in the village during the study period, comments on some of the findings in the current issue of the Canadian Medical Association Journal.

The survey was carried out by the Cornell University Medical school as part of a psychiatric study in rural areas.

Dr. Thomas said the survey showed that psychiatric symptoms were the highest among married women in the 25-34 and 35-44 age groups. This was perhaps caused by the lack of outlets for their physical and emotional drives.

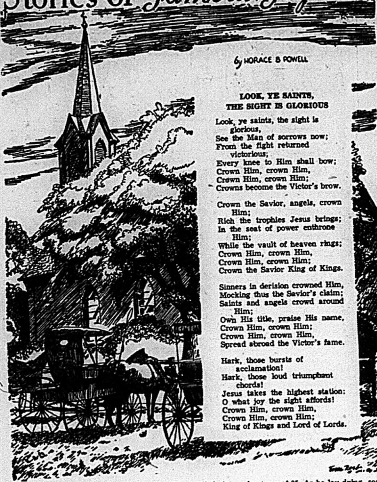
Stories of Famous Hymns

by HORACE B POWELL



LOOK, YE SAINTS, THE SIGHT IS GLORIOUS

Look, ye saints, the sight is glorious,
See the Man of sorrows now;
From the fight returned
victorious;
Every knee to Him shall bow;
Crown Him, crown Him,
Crown Him, crown Him;
Crowns become the Victor's brow.

Crown the Savior, angels, crown
Him;
Rich the trophies Jesus brings;
In the seat of power enthrone
Him;
While the vault of heaven rings;
Crown Him, crown Him,
Crown Him, crown Him;
Crown the Savior King of Kings.

Sinners in derision crowned Him,
Mocking thus the Savior's claim;
Saints and angels crowd around
Him;
Own His title, praise His name,
Crown Him, crown Him;
Crown Him, crown Him,
Spread abroad the Victor's fame.

Hark, those bursts of acclamation!
Hark, those loud triumphant chords!
Jesus takes the highest station:
O what joy the sight affords!
Crown Him, crown Him,
Crown Him, crown Him;
King of Kings and Lord of Lords.

"Look, Ye Saints, The Sight Is Glorious"

Thomas Kelly, the author of this grand old hymn, was born on July 13, 1769 — nearly two centuries ago — in Kellyville, Ireland.

His father was a distinguished jurist in the community and when Thomas became old enough to go to college he decided that he, too, should have a legal career. He enrolled in a law course at Trinity College in Dublin but through the study of Hebrew he became interested in religion and decided to make the ministry his life work.

When he finished his theological study, he was ordained a clergyman of the Church of England. Later, however, he became an independent minister and founded several churches of his own. He died of paralysis at the age of 85. As he lay dying, someone near his bedside repeated the first line of the Twenty-third Psalm, "The Lord Is My Shepherd". Almost immediately Kelly replied: "The Lord is my everything". His last words were "Not my will, but Thine, be done!"

He wrote more than 700 religious songs during his lifetime including another widely-used hymn, "Hark! Ten Thousand Harps and Voices!"

SUMMER SIGHT-SEERS AT MORMON SHRINES

"Look back on time with kindly eyes . . ." — Emily Dickinson.

How surprisingly one thought leads to another. For example: The "Miss Universe" title of 1960 just won by Miss Linda Bement of Salt Lake City, Utah, led our thoughts, in memory, upon that city's own brand of beauty, lovely in its mountain and lake setting. Then, it is recalled, exactly a year ago this July, we were in Salt Lake City.

Upon arrival, we parked the car at a curbside parking space on one of the four downtown streets, thoughtfully reserved for tourists, thus adding Canada to the rows of licence plates on cars from New York, Hawaii, Alaska and other far away places. We've since learned a million visitors stopped here in 1959 (as many as are attracted to major scenic places such as Zion or Grand Teton National Parks,) to visit the Temple Square.

This encloses a small museum that houses many Mormon 1847 pioneer memorabilia, the Tabernacle with its famous organ, and the semi-Gothic, multi-spired Mormon Temple, made of huge native granite blocks, begun in 1853 and 40 years in the building, which non-Mormons never enter. A 12-foot gold leaf, copper statue of a trumpeting angel tops the 210-foot East Tower. Said a party of sightseers in the car next to us, just pulling away:

"We came to see what genuine Mormons look like. They're no different from anyone else. And what an organ! But what we'd really like to know is, "What keeps the roof of the Tabernacle up?"

Brigham Young is said to be credited with the idea of a clear-span church structure on observing the opening of his umbrella, one day. The next morning at breakfast, he cut a hard boiled egg lengthwise and illustrated his idea further by placing it on its flat side. Thus 16 years after his pioneering followers came to the Great Salt Lake Valley, the Tabernacle was underway, its "primitive" builders using the so-called Remington truss bridge principle of construction. It is now recognized as one of the land's "most honest structures", while the late Frank Lloyd Wright, famed architect, proclaimed the 1863 domed tabernacle" as fine as a clipper ship, almost as important as the Brooklyn Bridge".

Mr. Wright clambered to the top of the dome-like roof, 80 feet high, to inspect the bridge-like prodigious wooden trusses, and noted how wooden ribs were utilized in a manner not unlike that of umbrella stays. The rafters were wooden slabs each a foot wide, three inches thick and 12 feet long. These were steamed, bent, then plunged in cold water to set before being swung into place by oxen to form the curved portions of the roof. The beams were placed and pegged together with hand-made wooden dowels 22 inches long, dipped in home-made cow-hoof glue and driven by mallets. Should beams begin to split, they were tied very tightly with water-soaked rawhide which, as it dried, formed "splints" as tight and firm today as when first applied a century ago.

Though lacking in adornment, the Tabernacle is one of the world's great auditoriums for space and sound. It is 250 feet long and 150 feet wide of unobstructed space and seats 8,000 easily, but on occasion has crammed 11,000 persons into the still-used, original hard wooden benches. Its amazing acoustics are illustrated daily by guides (local business men) who drop a pin as much as 200 feet away from the assembled visitors. It is plainly heard.

It is said that neither the Tabernacle nor the organ would be as famous or useful without the other. The unique sounding-shell that allows a pin drop to be heard throughout the edifice also makes organ notes reverberate in thrilling fashion. Joseph Ridges started the organ in 1857, before the Tabernacle was yet begun. He travelled more than 300 miles in southern Utah to find the right kind of yellow pine he needed, and spent a dozen more years sawing the timbers by hand from which much of the 2,000 pipes were made. These ranged from six inches to 32 feet in length. The organ was completed in 1874. Today, it has 11,000 pipes and five manuals. The hand-pumping is replaced by electric power. Dr. Alexander Shreiner and Frank Asper, who daily give free recitals for visitors, say they can produce 36,000 vigintillion sound combinations. "This", says Jack Goodman, "would be the figure of 36 followed by 66 zero!"

Yet, even as we strolled about the pleasant, tree-shaded square, our thoughts dwelt less on facts and figures and more upon the haunting memory of seeing this same timeless place with our parents, as a child. Here, in those early years, father, an Ontario-born, staunch, Scots Presbyterian sought better health and found it in Utah's sunny climate; here, during childhood's span was our universe.

MODERN MANNERS

Carelyn Hagner Shaw

QUESTION BOX

Question: Have you ever received an anonymous letter? I recently got a rather nasty one and it made me furious. I am chief secretary to the boss of a large concern, and this letter intimated unpleasant things. What do you do in a case like this?

Answer: Nothing. Above all, don't get upset. A letter which is sent anonymously is beneath contempt and not worthy of consideration. The person who stoops this low is a coward and is only trying to stir up trouble. He hopes in his nasty little mind that he will be able to stand by, innocently of course, and watch any results that may come from the hints in the letter he has written. Obviously, in your case, jealously of your position is behind it. Do what I do when I receive one of these unpleasant things. Throw it in the waste basket, ignore it completely — and forget it.

Question: During the last war, I helped a friend of mine issue wedding invitations for her daughter. It was considered all right to add "and family" on the outside envelope when addressing it to the parents. I am now in the throes of getting my own daughter's wedding invitations out and I understand that this is wrong? Is it?

Answer: Yes it is. The conservation of paper during the war years made it necessary to cut corners as much as possible. The use of "and family," always considered extremely bad taste before, was begun for this reason. Today, we have returned to the old form which is that a separate invitation should be sent to each adult member of the family. If, for example, they have a son 17 and a daughter 20, they should each receive an invitation. If there are young children in the family, they should not be invited.

LETTER:

. . . Following are two simple but altogether delicious desserts, especially valuable for children because of their egg and milk content, and at the same time satisfying to the sweetest-toothed adult.

CHOCOLATE GELATIN WHIP:

(Courtesy M. A. B.)

1 tablespoon gelatin, 2 cups milk, 3 tablespoons cocoa, few grains salt, 1-4 cup corn syrup, 1-2 teaspoon vanilla, 1-4 teaspoon almond flavoring, 1 egg white, 2 tablespoons fine granulated sugar.

Soften gelatin in 1-4 cup of the milk. Measure the cocoa and salt into upper pan of double boiler; gradually blend in the corn syrup and remaining 1 3-4 cups milk. Cover, place over boiling water, and heat to scalding point. Remove from heat; add softened gelatin and stir until dissolved. Cool partially before stirring in vanilla and almond flavorings. Chill, stirring occasionally, until softly set. Beat egg white with few grains of salt until stiff but not dry; gradually beat in sugar. Beat gelatin mixture until foamy; add meringue and beat until well combined. Turn into individual dessert glasses and chill until set. (Texture of dessert is fluffy — full of air holes like an aerated chocolate bar.) Serve with pouring cream or with orange custard sauce (below). Serves 6,

ORANGE CUSTARD SAUCE:

1 cup milk, thinly shaved rind of 1 orange, 1-2 tablespoon corn starch, 1-8 teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons granulated sugar, 1 egg yolk, 1-4 teaspoon vanilla.

Measure milk into upper pan of double boiler and add orange rind; cover and heat to scalding point over boiling water. Strain out rind. Combine cornstarch, salt and sugar, and gradually stir the scalded milk into the mixture. Return to double boiler and cook, stirring constantly, until thickened; cover and cook, stirring occasionally, until no raw starch flavor remains — about 15 minutes. Gradually stir part of hot mixture into slightly beaten egg yolk; return to double boiler and cook; stirring constantly for 2 minutes. Cool before adding vanilla, Chill before pouring over Chocolate Whip (above).

BUTTERSCOTCH COCOANUT FLAN:

(Courtesy M. A. B.)

6 tablespoons brown sugar, 6 tablespoons cocoanut, 4 white bread slices, crusts removed, 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, 2 eggs, 2 cups milk, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1-2 teaspoon vanilla.

Heat oven to 350 Deg. Fahr. Butter 6 custard cups. Sprinkle bottom of each evenly; first with 1 tablespoon brown sugar, then with 1 tablespoon cocoanut. Set aside. Spread bread slices with butter and cut into 1-2" cubes. Beat eggs with milk, salt and vanilla until very well blended; add buttered bread cubes and toss lightly. Pour mixture carefully into custard cups, set in pan of hot water and bake about 45 minutes (until firm on top). Cool, refrigerate. Remove from refrigerator about 1-2 hour before serving and invert custard cups on dessert plates so that butterscotch will soften and trickle down sides. Remove cups at serving time . . . M. A. B.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Lucy J. — Marge should find a nice guy and get married.

Marjorie F. — There are no "nice guys."

Lucy J. — I am a married woman, trying to help my sister Marjorie, who may be going to the bad as a result of a tragic experience.

A year ago, when she was 16, she was the victim of an attack by a distant cousin who came to the house when our parents were away. The whole thing was hushed up because we belong to a nice family and didn't want to be involved with the law.

Since that time Marge has taken up with a group of wild girls who have gotten into a lot of trouble in our neighborhood. A couple of them have been arrested for shoplifting. They all say they hate men and they're proud of it. I have tried to explain that all men aren't alike and that Marge should find a nice guy and get married, but she laughs at me.

Marjorie F. — I sure would like to see some of these "nice guys" Lucy talks about. She thinks her husband is great, but I've seen him looking out of the window, ogling everything in skirts that passes by.

Even my own father is like that. I'm sure he has been unfaithful to my mother because I once overheard something when I was around 13. My mother was crying and begging him to give up some woman and he just laughed at her.

I haven't had a date in nearly two years and I don't miss it. But I have to have some fun and friends. The girls I have been hanging around with aren't really bad. The two who got into trouble were always wilder than the others. The way I see it, you get into less trouble without men than with them.

The Council: Marjorie is the victim not only of one brutal incident, but of even more brutal neglect on the part of her family.

The incident involving the relative should never have been hushed up. The man should have been brought before the law. Possibly, these parents feared a revelation that Marjorie was not a completely innocent victim, but even if that had happened, the results might have been less serious.

As things now stand Marjorie inevitably feels her family did not stand by her at a time of crisis. Also, the help and guidance she would have gotten from a social worker or a doctor were denied her.

Actually, the family neglect goes farther back than the attack. Girls who have had wholesome family relationship all their lives do not turn man-haters as the result of one dreadful experience. They eventually come to accept the experience as an accidental misfortune.

Marjorie is far from ready to think about marriage. Her sister's lecturing although well intentioned, is of no help to her.

Things have gotten very serious in this case and there is an urgent need for the professional services of a trained individual. Such a person might well suggest that the girl would be better off in a new home environment for a time.

Essentially, Marjorie needs to develop goals and interests to restore her self-esteem. When this has happened, she will quite naturally become interested in the doings of normal, wholesome young people and will seek to join them as a matter of course.

TV-Owner Gets Better View Of Convention Than Delegate

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Where's the best seat from which to view a U.S. political convention? The one in front of your TV set.

That's my conclusion from watching the Democratic convention from ringside and the Republican convention from setside. For the big, well-rounded picture of what's brewing in the political stew, TV is the winner.

Of course, there's a thrill to watching a convention in person that no TV viewer can get. It's the same with any televised event; you miss that extra excitement of participation when seeing it only on the screen. There's something about the closeness of a mass of living, breathing human beings that gives you an added charge.

It's dazzling sight for the human eye to witness a floor demonstration—the riot of color, the jubilant masses, the hurly-burly. But the scene merely looks jumbled and drab in the black-and-white tones of the home screen.

The thrill may be present for the convention hall observer, but often the sense is not. That's where TV watching is superior.

The fact is that most in-person observers of a convention don't know what is going on. They watch the ceremonies and hear the speeches. But they're unaware of the doings at campaign headquarters, in caucuses and at press conferences that have a vital effect on the important business of the convention.

TV gives you mobility. More than ever before, the networks in 1960 leaped all over the convention cities to keep abreast of events. Sometimes the journeys were meaningless and even annoying. But at least you weren't stuck with one view, as you would have been from a seat at the convention hall.

Clean, Tighten Parts to Cure Engine Miss

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

When your engine develops a miss, chances are better than ever that a simple tune up will cure it. If not, keep these frequent but often overlooked, trouble spots in mind.

Look for worn, cracked ignition cable insulation, and be sure that all cable connections, particularly at the distributor cap and coil, are tight and clean. A cracked spark plug porcelain is sometimes at fault — so examine each one closely regardless of how new it might be.

Engine miss may be due to a dirty fuel filter or slight carburetor clogging. The filter is easily removed for cleaning, and for the carburetor, you can get a good on-the-car cleaner at any service station or auto supply store.

If none of these checks uncovers the cause, consider the possibility of slight valve sticking. Again, an approved solvent may be all that is needed to remedy the condition.

From K. S.: "My car is an eight-cylinder model with four-speed automatic transmission. How much fluid should the transmisson take?"

(A) The capacity is one and one-half pints.

F. G. asks: "Yesterday I noticed that when I stepped on the brake pedal, less pressure was required each time. Should I have something done with the brakes or is this something temporary?"

(A) It indicates that the master cylinder compensating port is clogged, and the condition will get worse unless you have it cleaned out.

B. J. writes: "Ive read about and experienced the slight bump which occurs with nylon tires during the first few minutes when they are still cold, but what causes it?"

(A) Heat causes nylon tires to stretch. When they cool off, they tend to settle and develop a flat spot where the tire is resting on the ground. This causes the slight, harmless bump you may notice while the tires warm up.

• • •

From F. P.: "Is it so important to keep car wheels in balance?"

(A) Properly balanced wheels promote safety, comfort, economy. When balance is neglected, the car is more difficult to steer and there is greater wear on both the steering system and the tires.

Hal Patterson To Return To Alouettes

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes, who have absorbed two clobberings and pulled out a tie in three exhibition games, have some consolation in the expected return of Hal Patterson for the regular-schedule opener Aug. 16.

The Als will be hosts to the Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

Patterson suffered a cheek-bone fracture in a game in Vancouver July 20. Patteron already has started light workouts, wearing a weird mask contraption.

The starry left end will be able to take part in formation drills but not in scrimmages for a while. He will have to wear the mask—not the single-bar type—throughout the season. Heretofore he has rejected a mask, claiming that even the bar type interfered with his line of vision for passes.

Jerome Meets Top American Metres Star

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Canadian sprinter Harry Jerome, who recently matched the world 100-metre mark of 10 seconds flat, will compete against United States Olympic team members here today when the squad stages its first dress rehearsal.

Jerome, a native of New Westminster, B.C., who attends the University of Oregon, will have top competition in Ray Norton of Oakland, Calif., who has tied the world record of 9.2 seconds for the 100-yard dash.

T-V TIPS

by JOHN WETTLAUFER

Television has proven extremely popular with young and old, but some children are apt to adopt poor viewing habits — such as lying on the floor in front of the TV set. Get them in the habit of watching while sitting up at a reasonable distance in front of the screen. Since children's eyes are still developing, frequent interruptions from television with normal play is a good idea.

Whether you are young or old, jumpy or out of focus TV pictures can tire your eyes . . . CIRCLE TV SERVICE, 364 Coleman St. specialize in restoring top performance to ailing television sets to give more pleasant viewing. For prompt action dial WO 8-6791.

Leafs Whip Marlins 2-0; Bisons Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

One thing about the transplanted Havana club in the International League. It may not be a winner, but it'll keep Jersey City hopping if it can come up with a few more games like Friday night's with Montreal Royals.

Jersey City Reds, held hitless for six innings and to one hit for seven, erupted with two runs in the eighth and then broke through in the last of the ninth for a 3-2 victory. Enrique Izquierdo's sacrifice fly with one out and the bases loaded scored the tie-breaker after two runs had chased Montreal starter Bill Kunkel in the eighth.

Kunkel had a no-hitter until Jim Pendleton, the league's leading hitter, doubled in the seventh. Bob Moorhead, fourth Jersey pitcher, was the winner over Ralph Mauriello, second of three pitchers working in relief of Kunkel.

Toronto Maple Leafs, runaway leaders, whipped Miami Marlins 2-0 behind the combined shutout pitching of Rip Coleman and Russ Heman, and veteran Warren Hacker fired a four-hit shutout as Buffalo Bisons snapped a six-game losing string with a 5-0 victory over Columbus Jets. Rochester at Richmond was rained out.

DOUBLES DO IT

Don Dillard and Archie Wilson drove in the Toronto runs in support of winner Coleman (6-4), who worked eight innings, and Heman, who pitched the ninth. Dillard and Wilson both did it with doubles, the former in the first and the latter, who had three of Toronto's six hits, in the sixth following Dillard's single.

Buffalo regained third place as a result of Hacker's performance, which cost Columbus its ninth straight loss.

The Bisons got the only run they needed in the first on the first of Solly Drake's three hits, a double by Don Landrum and an infield out. Hacker now is 6-7. The loss went to Bennie Daniels (4-2).

On the Tracks

FORT ERIE (CP) — Anita's Son, carrying 126 pounds, will seek his sixth consecutive victory of the season in the $7,500 Fair Play stakes at the Fort Erie Jockey Club today.

War Eagle also will carry 126 pounds while Tyhawk, which will be ridden by Avelino Gomez, will carry only 116 pounds.

This is expected to be the biggest weekend of Fort Erie's summer meeting with the Fair Play Stakes scheduled for Saturday and the $7,500 Boniface Stakes on Monday, Civic Holiday.

Our Sirdar won the featured Niagara Club purse before 7,447 fans Friday.

He was time for the mile and 70 yards in 1.41 4-5, chopping two fifths of a second off a standard that, while not too frequently raced here these days, had stood since it was set in August, 1957, by Brown Bullet.

Ali's Pride, the favorite, was second, a nose before Culepper.

AT THE PARK — A scene from the drama "The Last Man to Hang", starring Tom Conway and Elizabeth Sellars, opening Sunday midnight after 12.05 at the air conditioned Park Theatre. On the same program "13 Ghosts", starring Charles Herbert and Jo Morrow. Both features are first district showings. Special matinee Monday starts at 1.30 p.m.

Sport Snapshots

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

An American citizen, who preferred to remain anonymous, has sent $5 to the Canadian Olympic Association to help defray expenses of getting a 99-athlete team to the Rome Games next month. That is five dollars more than many Canadians have contributed.

"The Canadian public right across Canada doesn't appear to be interested enough to help our athletes," team general manager Jim Worrall of Toronto says. "The Olympic movement isn't getting the support this year as in the past," he adds.

Worrall says the Olympic fund is about $33,000 short of its objective. The federal and provincial governments have come across, but the general public "which includes cities, business groups," aren't responding to appeals.

The Canadian Olympic Association budgeted for $211,000 to send teams to the 1959 Pan-American Games at Chicago, the winter Olympics at Squaw Valley, Calif., last February and the Rome Games. At the end of June, it had received $176,000.

Only two provinces — British Columbia and Saskatchewan — have reached their objective. British Columbia's figure was $15,000 and "although we've received only about $300, we are assured of the remainder," Worrall said. Saskatchewan hit its figure of $2,500 on the nose.

The other provinces are lagging. "We had Prince Edward Island down for $250 and, unless there are some donations in the past few days, our books show that nothing has been received from that province."

Nova Scotia is short nearly $1,000 of its $1,500 objective. Donations from New Brunswick total $375 of its $750 budget and Newfoundland has sent in $105 of its $500 objective.

Ontario has a long way to go to reach its $40,000 total. So far, the COA has received $27,500. Quebec is short $8,500 of its $30,500 figure; Manitoba has contributed $250 and needs another $2,250 to reach its $2,500 objective, and $4,000 of Alberta's $7,000 has been realized.

"We've just got to get more general support when we send teams to Olympic, British Empire and Pan-American Games," Worrall says. "The governments have done their part, but it is the citizens who should support their own athletes."

The team leaves by air from Montreal on Wednesday, Aug. 17. The COA needn't worry about finances. The federal government has contributed $60,000 and if there's a shortage at that time, COA officials know that the door is still open for a further grant.

How can it refuse?

Littler Holds Golf Lead

BALTIMORE (AP) — Gene Littler managed to hold onto the lead Friday in the second round of the $25,000 eastern open golf tournament by shooting an eagle 3 on the last hole.

The sensational finish provided the 30-year-old Littler with a 68 and a total of 133, 11 under par for the Pine Ridge course, half-way through the 72 hole tournament.

It staved off Doug Ford and Juan Rodriques, a surprising newcomer of this tournament. They pulled to within one stroke of Littler, Ford by carving a 66 on the par 72 course and Rodriguez by posting his second straight 67.

Littler had boomed into a two stroke lead in Thursday's opening round by tying his own record of 65 for the course. Ford began Thursday with a 68.

AT THE McCARTHY — General "Hap" Arnold (Barton MacLane) brings Helen (June Allyson) and the two Miller children to see Glenn Miller (James Stewart) off on his overseas assignment in a dramatic scene from Universal-International's Technicolor production of "The Glenn Miller Story." The picture spans Glenn's life from his early band-playing days through the exciting years of World War II, and closes tonight at the Odeon McCarthy and Belleville Drive-In Theatres; also on the same program in color is "The Snow Queen" with Art Linkletter and Sandra Dee.

Prospects Good for Success In Large Buffalo Hunt Set For Fall in N.W. Territories

By JIM WHELLY
Canadian Press Correspondent

FORT SMITH, N.W.T. (CP)—Spurred by the success of the first buffalo hunt of the century in the Northwest Territories, officials are preparing for a second, larger open season this year.

So convinced is one outfitter that the hunters will get plenty of chances to zero their sights on the big shaggy animals, he is offering almost a money - back guarantee.

In a 2½-month season last fall, the first since 1896, one outfitters' licence and 30 hunting licences were issued. Twenty-nine of the eligible hunters turned up and all bagged the limit of one.

This year the season has been extended to three full months—from Sept. 1 - Nov. 30—and 100 hunting licences and two outfitters' licences are being issued by the department of northern affairs.

EASY GAME

Joe Bryant, superintendent of game for the Mackenzie District, says hunters will have an equal chance at record heads because "the cream of the crop has hardly been touched."

"Larger trophies will undoubtedly be obtained this year. There is a good chance the world's record trophy will come from this area."

Largest buffalo shot in 1959 had a maximum outside horn spread of 31⅜ inches, only four inches short of the world record.

Only a few of the hunting licences have been awarded so far. The outfitters' permits have gone to C.B. Brewster of Banff, Alta., holder of last-year's single licence, and Stan Burrell of Sundre, Alta.

FEE REFUNDED

Burrell, who says it has never been his policy to guarantee game, declared that because of the high licence fee, "if a hunter stays a week without getting a reasonable shot at a buffalo, his licence fee will be refunded."

Fees are $50 for resident Canadians $200 for non - residents and $25 for a bird game licence.

Twenty of last year's hunters replied to a government questionnaire and reported seeing an average of 67 buffalo each.

"As a result," says Bryant, "hunters can expect to be able to select their trophies from a good sample."

COSTLY OUTING

Sixteen of the 1959 hunters said they planned to go on another buffalo hunt in the area.

Bryant figured the average cost for Americans last year was $1,500 and for Canadians about $900.

The area in which the hunt takes place is north and west of Wood Buffalo National Park, set aside in 1922 as a haven for the bison which had received total protection in this area since 1893. Fort Smith is about 2½ air hours from Edmonton.

One of the purposes of the hunt is to kill off some of the 2,000 buffalo that stray from the park which juts into the Northwest Territories from northern Alberta and contains about 15,000 buffalo.

SUNDAY MIDNIGHT AT THE BELLE — David Hedison and Jill St. John co-star with Michael Rennie, Claude Rains and Fernando Lamas in Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's "The Lost World", a 20th Century-Fox DeLuxe Color CinemaScope production, showing for a Preview performance, one showing, Sunday after midnight, at the air conditioned Belle Theatre in Belleville.

COLOR TV

The NBC network color schedule in the U.S. totals more than 1,000 hours for 1960, compared with 720 hours in 1959.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Civic Holiday again and a long weekend for fun, frolic, and macabre as it sounds, funerals for not a few. Highways, byways, lake, stream and river, cottage, cabin, tent and parksite will have their quotas of fun-seeking or rest-questing humanity.

Bass, trout, pickerel and musky will be creeled by the holiday Isaak Waltons, unless they decide to forego the underwater handouts and stay home for dinner

There'll be swimming, diving, wading, boating, water ski-ing and other nautical high pinks. There'll be picnics, park-vacations, dancing and dining. And for the older folks there'll be the shady side of the verandah of the house, or cottage with soft music from a radio, and after the cool of the evening the comfy interior and perhaps a television show.

And the highways will become animated ribbons with the inevitable streams of holiday vehicular traffic. For the rural folks there is nothing like visiting Uncle Tom and Aunt Maggie in the city over a holiday, it seems. To the urbanites, there's nothing like a couple of days in the country with the farm cousins.

And Death and his co-pilot, Accident, will be keeping close watch on highway, lake and stream. If history repeats itself, and it usually does, despite almost frantic pleas by police, safety organizations and individuals, the holiday death and accident toll will again be heavy.

But as has so often been said, written and preached, a little care will avoid serious mishap. It is not always "the other fellow" who is to blame. Driving is a thinking man's pastime. And a thinking man will always observe the rules and regulations of the road and the common courtesy towards a fellowman.

The same applies to swimming. It's always a good fault to count noses often, if you're with a crowd. And it's an equally good fault not to go swimming alone. Know the depth of the water into which you are diving, and if you're "first in" bob up and inform the rest of the party.

Wear a lifebelt if you go water ski-ing. And insist on two in the driving seat of the boat. Don't overload the boat—and don't get loaded yourself if you're in charge of one. And see to it there's enough lifebelts in the boat to go around before you take off.

As far as driving the highways is concerned, every time a long holiday weekend draws near, a verse we learned in public school comes to mind. Seems it was written by William Henry Drummond, the famous "Habitant" writer and it went like this: "The wind she blow lak hurricane. Bimeby she blow some more. You'll never get drown' on Lac Pierre. So long as you stay on de shore."

We have found it rather easy to stay breathing and in one piece if we hang around the old family hacienda during these long weekends, and let the rest of the world go enjoy—and kill itself.

We have found it far more enjoyable—and safer perhaps—to take a necessary or holiday highway jaunt on the comparative quiet and safety of a non-holiday day or weekend. Anyway it has worked so far.

Now, what's doing around the hometown over the holiday.

Tonight, we cannot think of a better pastime than wandering up to the Fair Grounds and taking in the harness racing meet of the Quinte Driving Club. It will be cool and comfortable and you can gab and gossip with a neighbor between each of six thrilling heats. It's nice up there if the weatherman is in good humor.

There's excitement, too. These Quinte Driving fellows have gathered some of the finest horseflesh in the district and you'll thrill to the neck-and-neck finishes. Besides there's betting privileges, too, if you're so inclined.

But don't believe all you hear. We overheard a conversation once up there. "That old nightmare? She's weak on her pins but she gets home first every time," said this fellow to a friend.

That was enough. On the scoresheet and listed was a mare owned by a fellow named Knight. We placed four bucks of the sugar-bowl money on her nose. At ten o'clock they were still looking for her.

How were we to know that fellow meant every time he went to a lodge meeting with the boys, his mother-in-law came looking for him.

Or if you want to give the family some fun and excitement tomorrow and Monday try Dick Burrowes' Shannonville Speedway Parkland. There's Go-Karts for rent for you and the kiddies. It's a nice summery, green place with shady picnic spots. Good for the entire family.

BILLIARD EXPERT DIES

BELMONT, Calif. (AP)—Former billiard champion Welker Cochran, 63, died at his home here Thursday night, apparently of a heart attack. His matches against Willie Hoppe featured the game for two decades. He has been in retirement since he last won a world title in 1945 when he defeated Hoppe in a challenge match.

Indians Win Yanks Beaten

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Staff Writer

Back in April if anyone had dared to predict that Washington's perennial cellar - dwellers would be over the .500 mark on July 30 he'd have been carted off to the nearest sanitarium.

But today, the Senators are not playing .505 ball, but actually battling for a spot in the first division. What's more, they're only 6½ games out of first place in the American league.

A great deal of credit for Washington's incredible showing must be given to Cookie Lavagetto who most certainly is in line for the manager of the year award.

The Nats went over the .500 mark for the first time since opening day by defeating the Chicago White Sox 7-5 Friday night for their third straight victory. Since July 3, the Nats have won 16 while losing only seven to move up three places.

TINY LEAD

The defeat left the White Sox .004 percentage points behind the New York Yankees, who clung to first despite a 5-2 defeat by Kansas City. Boston nipped Detroit 1-0 and Cleveland defeated Baltimore 3-1.

Washington, trailing 5-3, rallied for three runs in the seventh and added an insurance run in the eighth. With one out in the seventh, pinch hitter Faye Throneberry, Lennie Green, Billy Consolo and Bob Allison hit successive singles. Jim Lemon's long fly drove in the third run.

The game was halted briefly after the seventh as rain fell. When play resumed, Washington scored its final run on Billy Gardner's double and a single by Earl Battey.

Tom Morgan, who relieved Camilo Pascual in the seventh and gave up back-to-back home runs by Roy Sievers and Sherm Lollar, was the winner. It was his second relief victory in three nights since coming to Washington from Detroit this week. Gerry Staley, in relief, was the loser.

SIX-HIT PITCHING

Home runs by Danny Kravitz and Marv Thoneberry and six-hit pitching by Ray Herbert gave the Athletics their first victory in Yankee Stadium since June 11, 1959.

Ted Williams singled home Don Buddin with two out in the third inning to provide the only run as Boston's Bill Monbouquette won a hurling duel from Detroit's Jim Bunning. Williams, with two home runs, a double and four singles, is batting .700 against Bunning this season. Ted collected another single and a walk.

Jack Harshman, in his second start for Cleveland after being sidelined three months with back trouble, was the victor as the Indians snapped a five-game losing string. Harshman and relief pitcher Dick Stigman held the Orioles to six hits.

Cleveland scored two runs off loser Jack Fisher in the second on four singles and a sacrifice. Ken Aspromonte and Vic Power drove in the runs with singles.

The Night of the Hunter

Bobcats Defeat Flyers 7-4

Bobby Hunter unbeaten Bobcats' mound ace had a two-hitter going for him up to the ninth inning last night, then the RCAF Flyer bats got to him for three clouts and four runs.

It didn't make much difference for the Cats pulled out with a 7-4 win to grab the first of their best of-seven semi-finals playoffs with the flyboys.

The second game is tabbed for the airport next Tuesday and the third at the CNRA Park Wednesday.

Hunter, given good support breezed along with an early lead. He struck out five and issued as many walks. Stan Elchuk went the route for the Flyers yielding nine clouts, two of them back-to-back homers by Brown and Hughes. He struck out a pair and issued five free tickets.

Three walks and Hunter's single gave the Cats their one run lead in the second innings. Hayden's single a long fly and a Flyer bobble made it 2-0 in the fourth. Then came the twin four-baggers and Hunter had a 4-0 lead.

Hayden's double and singles by Hunter and Jones and a stroll to Hughes added another pair in the sixth and singles by Brown and Hunter plus a walk wrapped up the Cat scoring in the eighth.

Then it happened. The Cats had a 7-0 lead and what looked like a Hunter shutout. But they hadn't reckoned with the Flyer bludgeons.

They suddenly solved the mystery of the Hunter slants and poled out three clouts. These aided by a couple of walks sent four of the flyboys scudding across the plate. Most of the damage was done with two out.

Desimone singled and Smith walked only to be nipped later. Two more walks to Matheson and Crowell and singles by Elchuk and Duff and the damage was done.

Wiener Brown led the Cat attack with a homer and single, with Denny Hayden donating a double and single. Hunter had a pair of one-basers and Jones kicked in with a single. Then of course there was Hughes homer.

Desimone wielded a potent bat for the Flyers with a double and two singles. Duff and Elchuk came up with singles.

Watch out Pittsburgh and Milwaukee — the Dodgers are sniffing that World Series money again.

And at the rate the Dodgers have been moving another pennant flag could fly at the Los Angeles Coliseum in October.

Paced by Stan Williams, their now mounds ace, the Dodgers Friday night turned back Milwaukee 7-3 to climb within two games of the second place Braves. It was their 16th victory in the last 20 games.

Los Angeles remained five games in back of the league leading Pirates who shut out Chicago 4-0 to widen their margin over the Braves to three games St. Louis' fourth place Cards remained two games in back of the Dodgers with a 3-0 victory over Philadelphia. San Francisco's fifth place Giants, a half game in back of the Cards, nipped Cincinnati 2-1.

A crowd of 56,648 Coliseum clients saw Williams space 10 Milwaukee hits for his fifth straight victory and his 11th attack against only two defeats. Williams was backed by an 11-hit attack against nemesis Bob Buhl and three relievers that included three safeties apiece by Norm Larker and Joe Pignatano. Larker drove in three runs. Pignatano, whose hits included a homer, batted in two.

WIN ON FOUR HITS

The Giants managed only four hits but took advantage of three Reds'miscues to score a pair of unearned runs off starter and loser Jay Hook. Mike McCormick gained his 10th victory in 16 decisions. He gave up eight hits. Stu Miller and Johnny Antonelli, who relieved in the eighth when the Reds scored their run, each gave up a hit.

The eighth was an odd inning. Eddie Kasko and Vada Pinson were on second and third with one out following singles and an infield grounder. Wally Post beat out an infield single to deep short, but the runners remained glued to the bases. As a result only one run scored as Gus Bell flied deep to Willie Mays and Dutch Dotterer flied out.

A crowd of 20,195 raised the Candlestick Park home attendance past last year's record of 1,422,130 in the 22,000-seat Seals Stadium. The Giants have drawn 1,432,492 in 57 games now in the 42,500-seat Candlestick. This averages 25,152 a game.

Ernie Broglio hurled a five-hit shutout and struck out 12 Phillies for his 11th triumph. The Cardinal sophomore has lost five. Third baseman Kenny Boyer drove in all three Redbirds' runs with a single and double. Johnny Buzhardt lost his eighth against four victories.

Vinegar Bend Mizell, traded earlier this season by St. Louis to Pittsburgh, pitched a two-hitter to extend the Cubs' losing streak to eight. Don Hoak batted across three Pirate runs, two on a fifth inning homer off loser Jim Brewer. The third baseman also sparkled in the field, making three fine stops and throws to take hits away from Ron Santo, Ernie Banks and Frank Thomas.

Oldster Shows Way at Canadian Henley

PORT DALHOUSIE (CP)—The sport of young men bowed before an older competitor at the 78th Royal Canadian Henley Regatta here Friday.

Jim Hewson, the oldest competitor here at the age of 43, soed to victory in the senior 135-pound single.

It was the 44th Henley medal for the Buffalo West Side veteran who was rowing in his 24th Henley.

On the other side of the age coin 17 - year-old Joe Mastalski of Philadelphia Undines churned to a win in the junior 145-pound single. Mastalski had won the high school singles Wednesday, knocking 35 seconds off the former mark of 6:04.

HOST CLUB LEADS

Oarsmen from the host St. Catharines rowing club continued to set the pace Friday as they took two firsts, a second and a third to bring their points total to 150.5 after three days of the four-day competition.

Buffalo West Sides had 141.25 points for second place while Hamilton Leanders had 115 for third spot. Brockville was sixth with 33.5 points.

Detroit Boat Club, Henley champions for the last two years, had two wins yesterday to move into fourth slot with 63 points.

The Ecorse, Mich., boat club was fifth with 37.25 and Brockville is sixth with 33.5.

The championship is awarded on a complicated points system which basically gives the eights, fours, doubles and singles winners 40, 20, 15 and 10 points respectively. However, scoring also depends on the number of heats and crews. Winners of today's senior eights and championship singles get 80 and 20 points respectively.

Friday St. Catharines won the junior 145 - pound eight and junior 145-pound cox four. Both were stroked by Syl Palumbi. He was also stroke for Wednesday's junior 155-pound eight winners.

THIRD WIN

John Welchli of Detroit won the senior 155 - pound single Friday for the third year in a row. His club also took the senior cox four.

Hamilton came first in the junior heavy eight and third in the junior 155 - pound four and senior 155 - pound single.

Buffalo pulled across the line first in the junior 135 - pound four as Ecorse took the junior 155-pound four.

Toronto Argonauts took their first victory of the regatta when Jim Elgar and Bart Hildebrand swept to first spot in the junior doubles.

Seymour Cromwell of the Riverside Boat Club, Kambridge, Mas., won the junior singles and goes against Tony Biernacki of Ottawa in today's championship single.

A race that doesn't count in regatta standings, Friday's quarter-mile dash for eights, went to Detroit.

U.S.-OWNED HORSE WINS

GOODWOOD, England (AP)—Rocky Royale, four - year-old 100-to-8 outsider owned by James D. Norris, former New York boxing promoter, won the Chesterfield Cup horse race Friday.

Canada's Hockey Brass

Concerned Over Yankees Recruiting

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Canadian alarm over U.S. college recruiting of promising Canadian An[illegible]r hockey talent produced new[illegible]ul - searching in the college camp today, but there was no indication of early action.

At the invitation of the Western Intercollegiate Hockey Association, most powerful college hockey body in the United States, Canadian amateur and professional leaders appealed for a curb on U.S. recruiting.

The American college policymakers heard from Gordon Juckes, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, and Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League.

Their proposals, not formally made public by the WIHA, will be relayed to the full conference organization today by committeemen who met with the Canadians in a marathon session Friday.

The Canadians made it clear they are chiefly fretful about U.S. raids on their Junior A programs, in which the maximum age is 20.

The Canadians contend Americans too often have disrupted their clubs and damaged the players' future by plucking some of the most promising young talent for their own rosters.

American colleges argue the player has a right to further his college education and that waiting until the boy is 20 would interrupt his education.

They don't deny, of course, that he also is welcome for his hockey prowess.

"The talks were strictly exploratory," said Stan Kinyon of the University of Minnesota. "Mr. Juckes and Mr. Campbell gave us some valuable information on how hockey operates in Canada. Mr. Campbell, of course was there because NHL sponsors some of the junior leagues and his organization has a commercial interest in them—plus the players who might help them."

Campbell also voiced objection to the recruiting of players while they are in the Junior A program.

"Five or six proposals were made," Kinyon said. "All of them had some dissent. We'll keep trying to reach some common ground."

Blue Bombers Defeat Lions In Exhibition

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa (CP) —Winnipeg Blue Bombers, who won the Grey Cup the last two seasons, downed British Columbia Lions 13-7 in an exhibition football game here Friday night but they had to halt the charging Lions on the 10-yard line in the final five minutes o. play to come out on top.

Behind 13-0 when the fourth [illegible]rter started, Lions brought [illegible] crowd of 12,583 to its feet with a rally capped by a touchdown by Willie Fleming, former University of Iowa star.

Fleming crossed the goal line from two yards out with 13 minutes left for B.C.'s only touchdown, which was converted.

Gar Warren, Winnipeg linebacker, knocked down Jim Waldren's pass to halt the next Vancouver threat on the 10.

Two former Iowa stars, Kenny Pleon and Ray Jauch, were intouchdown and Charlie Shepard the second. The latter also minutes.

Need a plumber, laywer, die sinker, contractor, cable splicer, jeweler, industrial engineer, policeman, salesman, geologist, chartered accountant, secretary, teacher, electrician, executive, or even a tile setter? Look no farther.

The man or woman you want can be found on Canada's Olympic team. Group them together, as they'll do in Rome next month, and they could operate a small community quite efficiently. The heck of it is, our 97-member team has everything but full-time athletes on it.

The squad is unlike the win-at-all-costs Americans and Russians or the dedicated, sports-happy Australians whose international teams are made up of students, army types and physical education teachers. The Canadians try to make a living first and take to sports as a sideline.

OLYMPIC IDEAL

Judging by results of the last three Olympic Games, the Canadians appear to be inspired by The Olympic Ideal as set forth by Baron Pierre de Coubertin, founder of the modern Games. It reads:

"The important thing in the Olympic Games is not to win, but to take part. The important thing in life is not the triumph, but the struggle. The essential thing is not to have conquered but to have fought well. . . ."

The Americans, Russians and Aussies seem to say "thanks a lot, but we'll take the medals."

Which Canadians will win medals at Rome?

The country's big hope is sprinter Harry Jerome of Vancouver. But he isn't a mechanic, laborer, plumber, farmer, supermaket clerk or cashier. No, sir, he works at sport. He's a student at the University of Oregon on an athletic scholarship and this has given him the chance to graduate from a fairly good runner to one of the fastest humans in the world over 100 metres.

CYCLING TILE SETTER

A glance at the roster of the Canadian team under the column entitled "profession or calling" reveals some interesting information. The list was prepared by the Canadian Olympic Association.

Under cycling, we have Luigi Bartesaghi of Montreal. He's the tile setter. And Alessandro Vincenzo Arturo Messina. He's a draughtsman.

Then there's the equestrian team. Jim Elder of Aurora, Ont., is listed as an executive. Brother Norm Elder of Toronto is a student. Tom Gayford of Gormley, Ont., pays for the horses' feed from his stock-broking business. Brian Herbinson of King, Ont., is in the insurance business and John Rumble, Toronto, is a sales engineer.

The wrestlers and boxers are real sluggers. Wrestler Kurt Boese of Kitchenr, Ont., is a plumber; Ray Lougheed of Moose Jaw, Sask., a trainman, and Bob Steckle, also of Kitchener, a farmer.

WHITE COLLAR SAILORS

Montreal boxer Jeffery O'Neale Downes Alleyne, to give him his full listed name, is a teletype mechanic. Team-mate Marcel Bellefeuille of Ville LaSalle, Que., is an electrician; Gabriele Mancini, Montreal,, a supermarket clerk, and Raoul Sarrazin, Pointe aux Trembles, Que., a mechanic.

If you want the executive types, we refer you to yachtsmen and officials of the headquarters staff and the various teams. Let's start with the sailors:

Ian Bruce, Wakefield, Que., is an industrial designer. William Burgess, Vancouver, is a chartered accountant. Mel Gould, Toronto, is a stockbroker; Dr. Samuel MacDonald, Montreal, a surgeon; Gordon Norton, Toronto a civil engineer; Lynn Watters, Beaconsfield, Que., a mechanical engineer. In addition, there are a couple of students and salesmen on the yachting team.

Now for the headquarters staff. Lawyer Jim Worrall of Toronto heads this impressive lineup as team general manager. General secretary is Howard Radford of Montreal, an accountant, and treasurer is Bill Parish of Hamilton, a chartered accountant.

Track and field manager Neil Farrell, Hamilton, is an assessor. Shooting manager Frank McCormick, Montreal, is a sales supervisor; swimming team manager Jack Richard, Vancouver, a marine superintendent; equestrian team manager, Charles Baker, King, Ont., an executive; canoeing manager William Cleevely, St. Lambert, Que., an office manager.

New Gimmick Makes Hit With Jumpers

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — The newest wrinkle in track is a portable runway that brings the jumping events to the fans. A budding controversy accompanies it.

Broad jumpers at the United States National Amateur Athletic Union decathlon meet here early this month used the runway and leaped farther than they ever had before in competition. Jumpers on the U.S. Olympic team will use it in their intra - squad meet today.

Mike Herman of New York city, who jumped 26 feet, three inches, the longest jump ever made in a decathlon, said:

"It ought to be barred from competition unless it is used world-wide. Jumps made on it can't be compared to the jumps made on the ordinary dirt or cinders."

The runway is of plywood sheets, mounted on rafter lumber, and topped with an asphalt - rubber mix that has a foam rubber feel.

"It's like a trampoline," said Bob Lawson, young Oregon State College assistant track coach, who competed and jumped 23 feet, 11½ inches.

"It was like floating on a cloud," said Rafer Johnson, who jumped 24 feet, 9¼ inches on his way to a decathlon total of 8,683 points. The recognized world mark is 8,357 by Russia's Vasily Kuznetsov.

"There's the reason," he said, pointing at the runway. "They won't have one of those at Rome or any other decathlon for a long time."

Officials here said there is nothing illegal about it.

REPLACE DICKEY

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Yankees announced Friday night they had signed Jim Hegan as a bullpen catcher and coach as a replacement for Bill Dickey who is ill and will return to his home in Little Rock, Ark., for the remainder of the season. Hegan obtained his release from Chicago Cubs to join the Yankees.

Harness Racing

BATAVIA (CP) — Another track record for three - year-olds went into the books Friday night when Knight Time, owned by Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Eastin of Wayne, Mich., captured the $14,150 colt and filly stake for three-year-old pacers.

The colt ripped off a 2:02 3-5 mile, erasing a 2:03 put in the books in 1958 by Tar Boy. He beat Sampson Direct by a length and paid $4.70.

In the seventh race, Ed Arthur of Otterville, Ont., piloted his Ensign Dill onto a smashing 2:02 2-5 trip. One - fifth faster than the mark set by Knight Time in the fifth, it became the fastest mile of the young season.

The event was a class A pace for $2,000. Ensign Dillon is a six-year-old which has won three times in nine trips this year.

TORONTO (CP) — After three straight victories at Old Woodbine Park, Selka Song, the Armstrong brothers' distaff trotter, was considered the mare most likely to succeed in the $7,500 added Maple Leaf Trot, the top event for trotters on the raceway's 51 evenings of harness racing.

But before 4,797 patrons Friday night, Amber Lad, seven-year-old gelding from the stable of Lou Lorenz and Bill Fritz of Durham, whipped Selka Song by six lengths in a $1,400 handicap which featured the program.

The handicaps, evolved by racing secretary Court Smith were based on post position, the stronger horses on record being placed farther from the favored rail position. Amber Lad was handed the No. 5 position and the favored Selka Song No. 6. The six-length spread at the finish more than compensated for whatever advantage Amber Lad had at the start.

Selka Song, driven by top drive Harold McKinely, put on a burst in the stretch but was scarcely within shouting distance of Bill Fritz and his Amber Lad at the finish. Time of 2:06.1 was the fastest mile of Amber Lad's trotting career.

Old Woodbine Park's purse distribution for Saturday evening, $15,457, is the largest in Toronto's 11-year harness race history. Bulk of it goes on the Canadian Juvenile Circuit Pace for two-year-old colts which brings the unbeaten Mac Wil to the track for the first time. The stakes will be conducted in two heats, each worth $4,376.50.

YONKERS (CP) — Caduceus, the pride of New Zealand, scored its first victory in six starts in this country when he accounted for the feature $25,000 National Handicap Pace at Yonkers Raceway Friday night.

He established a Yonkers track record of 2:32.2 for the mile and a quarter. The previous track record of 2:33.2 was set by Bye Bye Byrd last June 9 in the International Pace.

Victory Dinamic was second with Tar Boy third.

SELL NEWCOMBE CONTRACT

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Reds announced Friday night they had sold the contract of veteran pitcher Don Newcombe to Cleveland Indians.

Gabe Paul, Redlegs general manager, said the big right-hander (4-6 this year) was sold for cash and that Cleveland would transfer the option of Carl Thomas, righthanded pitcher from Indianapolis of the American Association to Nashville, Tenn., of the Southern Association.

The Reds also sent pitcher Bob Grim to St. Louis Cardinals on waivers. He had been used exclusively in relief and had a 2-2 won-lost record.

At Least Ted Williams Never Forgets

NEW YORK (AP) — It was a scoreless game with runball season to the average major leaguer Friday. But to slugger Ted Williams and pitcher Jim Bunning it was sort of an anniversary.

On July 29, 1955, Williams met Bunning for the first time. Bunning, a rookie in his second week with Detroit Tigers, was slated to pitch against the Red Sox in an American League game at Boston's Fenway Park.

Long a Williams admirer, Bunning had sought an introduction to the ace belter. Less than an hour after their friendly chat, Ted teed off on a Bunning fastball and hammered it into the right - field bleachers for a home run.

Three years later, on July 29, the Tigers and Red Sox were at it again in Boston. Bunning was the pitcher and the bases were loaded with Red Sox in the third inning. Williams smashed his 17th career grand-slam homer, equalling Babe Ruth's total. Ted finished with two home runs and seven runs batted in.

July 29, 1960 . . . Friday night. Again William faced Bunning in the third inning of just another day in the basenners on first and third and two men out. This time Ted hit a single to score Don Buddin with the only run of the game in Boston's 1-0 victory over the Tigers.

Canadian Fans Like American Football Play

TORONTO CP) — Pittsburgh Steelers' game here Wednesday against Toronto Argonauts of the Big Four league may cause some re-thinking among Canadian football league executives who oppose exhibition matches with National Football League clubs.

Last year the Argos drew a 28,800 crowd against the NFL's poo[illegible] team, Chicago Cardinals, a Canadian record for a pre-season game and an eastern record for any match except the 1959 Grey Cup contest. The game also produced a gate in excess of $115,000.

This year the Steelers, one of the top four or five teams from the United States circuit, may draw an even bigger gate.

No CFL team has ever attracted more than 13,000 for an exhibition game in Toronto.

The Steelers will be led into the Canadian National Exhibition stadium by the flamboyant and controversial quarterback Bobby Layne, traditional rival of Argo's Tobin Rote since Rote was Layne's understudy in Detroit.

Also on the field will be Tom Tracy, the former Ottawa Rough Rider all - eastern fullback, and John Henry Johnson, highly rated with Calgary a few years ago.

Montrealer Wins Junior Tennis Title

By DOUG MARSHALL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — Playing defensive tennis in 90-degree temperatures, Montreal's Claude Savaria won the junior men's crown at the Ontario junior tennis championships Friday.

Savaria, 17, seeded third, defeated 16 - year-old Brian Flood of London, Ont., 5-7, 6-4, 8-6 in a blistering three - hour match that had both players stunned by the heat.

The Montreal boy, who won the Canadian junior boys' championship in 1958, used his experience to overcome Flood's brilliant but erratic placement shots.

Flood, seeded fourth, burned up his energy winning the first set, let the next two slide and began an exciting recovery in the fourth which never moved into its advanced stages.

In the last game, after levelling the set at 6-6 and throwing away his chances, Flood double-faulted to give Savaria match point and then drove a forehand into the net.

Toronto's Della Freedhoff won the junior women's title, defeating Wendy Davis of Newmarket, 6-0, 6-4. The junior girl's crown went to Windsor's Faye Urban, who downed top - seed Brenda Nunns of Toronto 6-1, 6-1.

Toronto's Tom Borecki won the junior boys' title with a 7-5, 6-4 victory over Mike Carroll of Ottawa.

Toronto's Mike Brown won the juvenile boys' title Thursday.

Nancy Green of Toronto won the juvenile girls' crown. In doubles play, John Fraser of Victoria and Toronto's Frank Wodzicki took the junior men's title.

QUICK WINS

The junior women's doubles went to Miss Freedhoff and Miss Urban. They overwhelmed Hildegarde Balogh of Sudbury and Madelein Fox of Deep River, 6-1, 6-1.

Miss Nunns and Susan Snyder of Southampton won the junior girls' doubles with an easy 6-0, 6-0 win over Patsy Dawson and Marilee Thompson, both of Torönto.

In the junior boys' doubles it was Craig Finger of Niagara Falls, and Cam Killoran of Windsor. They trounced Carroll and John Childs of Toronto 6-4, 1-6, 6-3.

Wanted; Nice Pure Amateurs

PARIS (AP) — The International Olympic Committee has urged that the national Olympic committees make certain only pure-in-heart amateurs are permitted to compete in the Rome games.

A letter signed by Avery Brundage of Chicago, IOC president, and Otto Mayor, Olympic chancellor, has been sent to all national Olympic committees. Copies of the letter posted from Olympic headquarters at Lausanne were received in Paris Friday.

The letter notes each entry form requires the competitor to sign the following pledge:

"I, the undersigned, declare on my honor that I am an amateur and fulfill the conditions stipulated by the Olympic rules."

THREE SIGNATURES

The letter goes on to say:

"This declaration must be countersigned by the national (sports) federation of the competitor and by your committee."

It adds that when competitors are not truly, eligible under the Olympic rules, "at least three people have made false certifications in each instance."

Brundage and the IOC created a furor four years ago just prior to the Melbourne games when the athletes were asked to sign a pledge in which they swore they were true amateurs at the time and would continue to be.

The committee has been disturbed for sometime by boxers, basketball players, figure skaters who sign lucrative pro contracts soon after gaining Olympic fame.

Both heavyweights Floyd Patterson and Ingemar Johansson turned pro soon after the 1952 games and Bill Russell of the champion U.S. basketball team joined Boston soon after the 1956 games.

Following the 1960 Winter Games, Carol Heiss of Ozone Park, N.Y., joined the ranks of the pro figure skaters after taking the Olympic title.

Will Honor 'Ole Casey' On Birthday

NEW YORK (AP) — Casey Stengel celebrates his 70th birthday today. The New York Yankees manager will be honored at a special ceremony before the Ladies Day game between the Yanks and Kansas City Athletics.

Although some record books carry Stengel's birthday as July 30, 1889 and others say it should have been 1891, Stengel set the record right in Kansas City two years ago.

"Some say I was born in 1889 and some say 1891", he said. "But 1890 is right".

Stengel, whose Yanks had won nine penants in 11 years of his management through 1959, generally is expected to retire after the 1960 season. However, there is nothing definite about that.

Astrological Forecast

Sunday, July 31

By CARROLL RIGHTER

General Tendencies: Until midafternoon you have a Sunday when you can think out just how you would like to have the foundation and structure of your existence. Then you will be able to avoid some very decided upset that can be a trial and tribulation to you. Be sure to act in a tactful and diplomatic manner tonight for best results.

Aries (March 21 to April 19)—If you follow your intuition now, you can act in such a way that you will add to the prestige you now enjoy. Be particularly sure you make a good impression on higher-ups. P.M. have fun economically.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20)—If you get together with a dynamic partner now, but first going to the services of your choice, you can make plans for a combined success. P.M. don't get into altercation with close ties over some conniving stranger.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — You will instinctively know now how to be more helpful to others and who can be of assistance to you so that you can really advance in your career in the future. P.M. take care while out driving or in action anywhere — avoid danger.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — By entertaining a deserving partner at some lovely place and showing your gratitude for past favors, you can cement even better relations for the future. P.M. do not spend money unwisely, since you have yen to be too extravagant.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — It behooves you today to attend to those duties which would please close ties so that you increase harmony and god will in that important sphere of your life. P.M. do not say or do anything that will start an altercation at home.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22)—Attend services of your choice with intelligent friend and then have a serious talk. You can add much to your fund of knowledge and wisdom. P.M. enjoy social pleasures and drive away gloom of loneliness you have felt for some time.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — You get some excellent ideas from a high-minded comrade today. Study them carefully, since they will be very valuable to you. P.M. do not be forceful in going after what you desire. Be tactful.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)—It is important you listen carefully to the sermons or advice of religious leaders this day so that you can increase success through spiritual understanding. In P.M. it is best to avoid arguments and apply new philosophy with others.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Bring back to mind the fine standards under which you were reared and thrived in the past and then follow them. Get back on even keel. Evening should be spent planning the system that will bring more success in the future.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)—An ideal day to discuss your friends and get their active support. Be sure you do not get entangled with a conniving person who would purloin your ideas. Be loyal to those who are tried and true.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)—Endeavor to confer in A.M. with some powerful person you know who will also give you an excellent philosophy by which to live in the future. You can be far more successful. P.M. don't argue with a jealous partner.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20)—See that you follow the Golden Rule religiously now so that your fortunes change for the better. Listen to wise advisor and get on a lofty plane. P.M. serve other persons kindly instead of going off on some unworthy e er s p unworthy spree.

If your child is born today . . . it is imperative you early give spiritual education so that there can be a fine balance between the aesthetic and the material and less attention focused upon the flesh and things of darkness. Teach also that standards never change, that they are simply modified to suit the times. Give a good business course and let the mind have free rein. A great success is then in this chart.

Monday, Aug. 1, 1960

General Tendencies The very early morning brings a chance to get at whatever tasks await your attention in a very well-rounded manner. Then unexpected circumstances arise to test your patience, devotion to others and bring you the chance to make a new arrangement with others in a tactful but highly capable fashion.

Aries (March 21 to April 19)—Earliest morning is best time to ameliorate troubling situation at home. Then you will be able to exercise that fine personality in the outside world to accomplish what you set out to do. P.M. be social and increase prestige. Grow.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20)—Morning is ideal for purchases which you have promised to make for associates. Later, be perfectly controlled or you stir up a hornet's nest at home with kin. Avoid drastic changes in that sphere. P.M. come through with promises.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21)—During a.m. you can easily figure out what your true position is and what progress is possible in the future. Handle bookkeeping and property wisely. Then get wardrobe in better order. P.M. cement better relations with associates.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — Spend a.m. getting business and property affairs more streamlined and running more smoothly. Then improve your appearance. Dress charmingly. P.M. fine for fun romantically and also for being of assistance to those in dire need.

Leo (Julyy 22 to Aug. 21)—Plan your home life more wisely in a.m. so that greater happiness and prosperity is established there immediately. Later, bring your fine talents to the right people. P.M. step out socially with comrades and have a wonderful time.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — Ideal morning to invite suggestions from experts, whether personally or by telephone, or mail that will help you to expand more quickly. Evening is fine for any civic duties that will bring you greater acclain.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — You can make an excellent impression on higher-ups if you are more practical in your work on plans in A.M. Then the remainder of the day is fine for more contacts that bring greater prestige and prosperity.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — Morning is just fine for looking into new avenues for expansion or a good bit of research work to make present set-up more lucrative. Guard prestige and finances well. Then improve all monetary matters. Work.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) The ideal day to make new contacts and study fine new ideas that come your way. Make worthwhile friends of them for future. Evening should then be spent with bosom pals for a delightful time. Be jolly.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Conversations with associates in a.m. should show just what is demanded of you. Then get in touch with authorities and map out a more happy and lucrative existence for yourself. P.M. plan daily duties more wisely.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Much can be accomplished by working very hard in a.m. Then later a fine associate is instrumental in making your day very interesting and pointing the way to greater prosperity. P.M. delve into delightful hobbies. Have fun.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) You have every opportunity now to establish better relations with those who are important in your life. Then you are able to get even greater support from them, especially family ties. Handle civic affairs wisely, too.

If your child is born today . . . he, or she, will soon begin to startle you with all sort of unexpected behavior, so it is imperative you early give the finest religious training so that all this imagination is channeled in the right directions. Then there can be real success in this chart, full of fascinating experiences, travel, creativity. The intellect will be directed mainly toward inventions and bettering the lot of humankind.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Tuesday, Aug. 2, 1960

General Tendencies: —This is one of your best days in a long while to be very outgoing and to show others that you are on the beam in sending them the ideas, or speaking to them in person, that can open whole new worlds of co-operation, expansion and development. Add note of charm, entertainment, joviality for best results. Full speed ahead.

Aries (March 21 to April 19)—You are so filled with inspiring thoughts and plans in a.m. that it would be very wise to early contact all those who can help you to carry through with them. Exchange ideas. P.M. make new contacts at interesting places.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) —You have every chance now to confer with specialists or authorities who can help you to solve whatever problems are before you, whether of an intimate or business nature. Be sure you listen for minute details during conversations.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21)—The ideal day to sit down for a friendly conference with all associates so that you can iron out any differences and make plans for more co-ordinated efforts. This can be very profitable too. P.M. be sure you go out and have fun.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — You can work very constructively today if you get an early start and are enthusiastic. Also be sure you improve the appearance of your surroundings, make necessary repairs to property. P.M. take health treatments you need.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — Be sure to get all the important work done early so that you can make this a day of fun and pleasure. But first visit your barber or beauty shop. Then ride those hobbies, do the creative work that so pleases you. Be gay, joyful.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) —The desires of own clan should be considered and met today, as well as considering some new avenue of endeavor that will be more lucrative and bring you greater pleasure. Evening should be spent at home enjoying kin.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) —The ideal day to shop and to have meetings with persons important to you and your affairs right now. Tonight is then fine for being with those you like for a delightful evening's fun.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) —There is every opportunity open to you now for real expansion so that you can increase income appreciably. Get busy early. Then be sure you take the health treatments you require. Develop a stronger voice.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) A day to consider own interests first. Get an early start and see all those persons who can assist you to greater success and happiness. A friendly, happy attitude will be very helpful. Expand.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Endeavor to garner as much information as you can now that will be helpful to you in the future. And if you take time to assist those who are in real need, this will bring excellent results in days to come. Be kind.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)—Influential persons realize your true worth today and will gladly give you the advice and support you need, but you must not be afraid to tell them of your ambitions. Tonight is fine for civic or personal pleasures.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) Anything connected with the business world will have every chance of success for you today. But you must make it a point to contact the most influential persons you know and do the necessary work most efficiently.

If your child is born today — he will have every aptitude for performing the work that is necessary to carry through with the brilliant ideas which he, or she, will be inspired. The mentality here is tremendous, so be sure you early give courses in foreign languages and cultures in order that the fine, unusual success in this chart can be assured. Also, early study of spiritual Truths is absolutely necessary to fortify this splendid little soul.

MY, WHAT A BEAUTY?

Drive up the Trent Road — about half way to Trenton — on the South Side of the road before you arrive at Bayside, you will see our sign on one of the most desirable bungalows you could dream of. It is painted a charming white — you will surely notice it — There is a matching garage. The owner is moving to Toronto — It could be yours for a down payment of only $3,000.

SOLD

Preferably called "older type" than just plain "old." "Older type" because it has been there a mighty long time but up-to-[illegible]te like for the sensible family [illegible]r the family that likes [illegible] room that you just coul[illegible] in a new one unless [illegible] spend many many dollars. [illegible]his has 4 bedrooms, 2 baths, good location, good heating system. Good price — $11,500. Good down payment — $2,000.

IT'S COTTAGE TIME

Half way to Trenton — just off the Highway — No. 2 — only about $1,000 down — 2 bedrooms, a big lot right on the Bay — completely equipped — even a brand new lawn mower. You can start your holidays right today and have your problems solved for years to come.

THE CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY
IS ANXIOUS TO OBTAIN
FOSTER HOMES
FOR A NUMBER OF TEEN-AGE GIRLS WHO WILL BE ENTERING SECONDARY SCHOOL THIS FALL.

It is essential that these homes be located in the City of Belleville or in the close proximity. These are normal, healthy youngsters of good intelligence. They present no problems out of the ordinary. All have been in the care of the Society for a number of years.

Being a foster parent to a child of this age has many compensations. It offers:

—the companionship of a young adult
—assistance with the normal routine of the home

—$35.00 per month maintenance — the Society is responsible for clothing, medical and dental care, hospitalization, spending allowances, etc.

—opportunity to discuss the child's progress with an experienced and skilled caseworker, who in turn receives professional supervision.

—the satisfaction that comes from knowing that you are contributing to the future well being of someone less fortunate than yourself.

If you are married, in good health, between the ages of 25 and 55, and would like to learn more about what is involved telephone Belleville, WO 8-5704 between the hours of 8.30 and 4.30 Monday to Friday and ask for Mr. Adamson. He will be pleased to discuss it with you and tell you of some of the pleasureable experiences of foster parents presently caring for older children.

WELLINGTON

Arctic Patrol Officer Known In Wellington

WELLINGTON — This year the Eastern Arctic Patrol sailed from Montreal on July 4th aboard the "C.D. Howe". This will be the 39th annual government Arctic Patrol and the 10th trip for the "C.D. Howe," which was designed and built specifically for this type of work in 1950. Government officers aboard the "C. D. Howe" include representatives of the Department of National Health and Welfare Department of Northern Affairs, Department of Mines and Surveys; Department of Transport, Department of National Defence and Post Offices.

The largest single group making up the Arctic Patrol is the Medical party of Indian and Northern Health Services, Department of National Health and Welfare. Dr. M. Habgood is the Medical Officer in charge of the medical section of the Patrol.

The medical party will carry out an intensive chest X-ray, dental, immunization and medical program among the 2,800 Eskimos who will be visited during the patrol. The "C.D. Howe" sailed from Montreal visiting settlements in the north and south coast of Hudson Strait and the east and west coasts of north to Resolute. On returning south from Resolute the patrol Hudson Bay before travelling will visit settlements along the east coast of Baffin Island.

ments will be visited by the

THE GOLDEN YEARS

Want to Retire to The Ozarks? Here Is Cost of Living Lowdown

Here is information on what it would cost you to retire to the Ozarks.

This information was obtained from a questionnaire sent to retired people in the area by the Ozark Playgrounds Association of Joplin, Mo. It indicates as you have heard before, that the cost of retirement living in the Ozarks may be about the lowest in the country.

The area with which the Association is concerned covers Northern Arkansas, Southwest Missouri and Northeast Oklahoma. The following data was obtained from a town which seems typical of this area — Berryville, Ark.

Q. What is the usual retirement income?

A. $2,500 a year.

Q. Do the people find living costs cheaper here than where they lived before retiring?

A. Some canned items are higher, but many are the same. Professional services are cheaper, however, and in many cases vastly cheaper. Taxes and labor are generally lower.

Q. What is the cost of a lake lot, a rural lot and a city lot?

A. A lake lot averages around $750. Rural lots on or near county roads run $50 to $150 an acre higher on U.S. highways. City lots cost from $500 to $1,500.

BUILDING COSTS

Q. What are the building costs per square foot?

A. Seven dollars to ten dollars complete with utilities, heating system and kitchen appliances.

Q. Are rental houses available?

A. A few are available at an average rent of $50 a month. (Other towns in the area reported rents of $75 a month for a three-bedroom cottage.)

The retired people in Berryville buy local produce like fruit and vegetables in season, and milk, butter and eggs all year round. Many have deep freeze units for vegetables they buy or raise and for meats, fish and game. Quite a few have pressure cookers and do considerable canning.

According to this survey, there is a minimum charge for electricity of $1.50 a month in town with the average bill being about $5. Rural users pay an average of $7 a month.

Drilling costs for well run $2 per foot in the area. In some places 100 feet would be adequate and in others several hundred feet might be necessary. A septic tank averages $115 complete.

The tax rate is complicated, as it usually is, but a banker estimated that the overall tax on a $15,000 house (a modern three-bedroom job) would be about $150 to $200 a year. A $10,000 home with furniture and appliances and an automobile, would be taxed about $75 to $125 a year.

SOME JOBS AVAILABLE

Some jobs are available in the Ozarks but the survey indicates that you have a better chance if you can build a house or dig a well than if you are a $10,000-a-year consultant.

Medical costs are generally lower than in the big towns, also.

These figures seem to reflect living costs in the Ozarks, as I know them. You must realize, of course, that just around the corner from anywhere the figures might be higher or lower.

If you're interested write Tom Ayers, Executive Director of the Ozark Playgrounds Association, 112 W. Fourth St. Joplin, Mo. He has literature on many towns in the area and will be glad to mail it to you.

You cannot use what I tell you or what Mr. Ayers may send you as your sole guide to a retirement paradise. A visit to the area and two or three weeks of living among the people there — once you have the background information — is the best way to do it.

LINES WOULD MERGE

WASHINGTON (AP) — United Air Lines, second largest United States domestic airline, and Capital Airlines, the fifth largest, Thursday announced plans to merge. The Civil Aeronautics Board must approve. The merger—actually, absorption of Capital by United—would have the blessing of Capital's British creditor, Vickers-Armstrongs.

6th Sidney

SIXTH SIDNEY — Mr. and Mrs. Edison Sine and girls called on friends in Marmora, Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Copeland were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Pollard.

Several from here spent Saturday evening at the barn dance in Mr. Harder's new barn.

Master Ross Martyn is spending his holidays at Quin-mo-lac camp.

Mr. and Mrs. Avery Martyn are holidaying at French River, Ont.

Mr. and Mrs. Ken Faul were Saturday evening callers of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Dafoe.

MEMORIAL DEDICATION

An historic event in the history of Scott's United Church, was enacted on Sunday morning when three memorial offerings were dedicated. A communion table was unveiled by Messrs. Frank Moon, and Clarence Copeland, as a memorial to the memory of Morley Sine; a baptismal font unveiled by the same two elders, in memory of Robbie Sine, and a pulpit unveiled by Mr. Carman Frost and Mrs. Harry Phillips, as a memorial in memory of Mrs. Carman Frost.

The minister of the church, the Rev. R. McMullen, pointed out the challenge to all present to live lives worthwhile as followers of the Master. "Faith is the great essential of the Christian; by it we are able to accept what God ordains and continuing to do our part in the plan laid down for us."

The summer is moving right along even though there has not been much summer heat. Most of the hay is in the barns; some farmers are getting geared for combining while others are looking to the early plowing.

CONCLUDE TALKS

WASHINGTON (Reuters)—Britain and the United States have concluded satisfactory talks aimed at improving consultation on U.S. air bases in Britain, it was announced Thursday. Results of the talks are being reported back to Prime Minister Macmillan who initiated them, and to President Eisenhower.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINIFRED WILSON

THE TURNSTONE

August is the month when those beautiful shore birds, the turnstones, pass through Canada and the U.S. They have come from their breeding grounds which lie as far north as 70 degrees, nesting along the coast of the Arctic Ocean or on the Arctic Islands and as far south as Southhampton Island. Already they are on their way to their holiday resort: from Bermuda westward to Central California and down to southern Brazil and central Chile. Their stay in the summer home was short, as they arrived there only about the beginning of June.

GREAT TRAVELLERS

Turnstones are among the earth's greatest travellers — sanderlings are the only birds with as great a migration range. They have been found all over the globe: in South Africa, Australia, New Zealand, Great Britain, the Mediterranean, southern China and Hawaii which is more than 2,000 miles from any continent. We wonder if they ever drink salt water as the kittiwakes are known to do. Probably they rest on the waves when taking these lengthy flights.

In migration turnstones generally keep in compact flocks of a dozen or so, sometimes flying all bunched up, at other times in lines. As they hurry along they give a quick note over and over, and the sound floats down to our ears as a trill.

On account of their feeding habits turnstones follow a coast line except when they can find suitable areas elsewhere. Many migrate through the interior of North America because, our prairie sloughs and the Great Lakes provide them with just what they want. Sandy, pebbly, or gravelly beaches are preferred, with seaweed-covered rocks.

WELL NAMED

With their highly specialized, wedge-shaped bills they lift and turn over everything that comes in their way as they waddle along the shore on their short legs. This includes not only pebbles, shells and lumps of seaweed, but even good-sized stones, because under these objects they find titbits such as mollusks, crustacea, slugs and worms. So, you see, these birds have been rightly named.

In spring handome turnstones can be recognized on beaches by their richly colored plumage which reminds us of a male wood duck, so many different colors splashed on to form weird shapes. Of course this makes for good camouflage. Identification is not so easy in autumn when the gaudy colors are replaced by fawn; but at all times their legs are reddish, unlike the legs of the various kinds of plover with whom they might otherwise be confused.
